Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, I will not take more than a few minutes, because I will not repeat the old, old story that has been told already. I will confine my remarks to a certain village in Chittagong with which I am in close touch, i.e., Noapara which has not only given birth to the great Poet Nabinchandra Sen, but it is also the birth place of a holy Saint, Sadhu Tara Charan. I visited the village myself and I am in close touch with the village people who came to Calcutta last week. What they told me has some connection with the present discussion. I would ask Government to make a note of it, as they might wish to make an enquiry about it. Noapara and Guzman are about 20 miles from the town of Chittagong. For the last six months the people of these villages have been buying rice at Rs. 22 per maund and for the last three weeks at Rs. 32 per maund. I fully believe what a village man told me and it was also confirmed by other Chittagong people. Now a days many consumers have to buy in the black market and there are profiteers and black marketeers. One of them who happened to be a patient of my doctor friend in Chittagong is a rice dealer and he confessed that he was also charging the black-market price of Rs. 32 a maund and only 7 days back he charged my friend that rate. He said that he had to purchase this rice from a surplus district at Rs. 20 per maund and had to pay besides a large sum to this man and that man to cross the boundary of the district and so on. Therefore, my point is that the whole thing shows extreme corruption and bribery. And the strangest part of the thing is that in the Chittagong district of all districts, which is in the closest vicinity of the base of War in Burma front, the strangest thing is that in this district Government is not making any serious effort to see that rice is supplied from the surplus districts or from any where at any cost. I say at any cost advisedly, let it be by aeroplane even if hundreds of rupees are incurred for transport. Sir, every responsible man in Bengal is saying how is it that Government cannot maintain supply or control the prices in Chittagong although it is controlling the price of rice in the 24-Parganas, Burdwan, etc. The logical conclusion is that there must be something wrong about the administration in the district of Chittagong.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Roy Chowdhury, it is far away from the Calcutta Gazette.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, I am sorry. But my point is that it is not merely a question of black-market. People are obliged to pay black-market prices to keep themselves alive in any way; whether the price is legal or not, it does not matter at all; a man when he is starving is apt to pay any price to save himself. If Government interferes and says that such price is illegal, that won't hold water. And it is curious that Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury should come here and stand up to defend the circular and not ask for its withdrawal. As I have said, it is not a question of black-market or illegal prices. Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury and the Hon'ble Minister for Agriculture both of them know that from top to bottom there is corruption and bribery and that black-marketing is thriving only on account of the prevalence of corruption and bribery. Therefore, I suggest that that military officers be sent to Chittagong on special duty for checking this corruption and bribery. I could have understood the attitude of Government if they acted in that spirit and did their duty by the people. But on the contrary, I find that some Hon'ble Minister goes and pays a flying visit to Chittagong, makes an enquiry and comes back and says that the people there have got plenty of money on account of the war and that inflation is the main cause of black markets. Well, Sir, what will they do with this money, if there is not enough foodstuff to buy with it? Are they going to eat the currency notes to satisfy their hunger, or are they to buy in the black market? Let the Minister say that the Government is unable to stop this corruption; we will then know what to do. If corruption cannot be checked, let section 93 of the Government of India Act be applied to Bengal; that alone can save Bengal from the very serious effects of malnutrition, disease and debility. I again repeat that it is section 93 that has saved Bihar. Sir, I have been to Simultola and Jhajha in Bihar and have seen how prices have been reduced there with my own eyes by the ceaseless vigilance of the I.C.S. and other officers unhampered by Ministry.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order: that is not the point at issue.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: All right, Sir, I have finished.

(At this stage the Deputy President occupied the Chair.)

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Mr. Deputy President, Sir, I think there has been a great deal of confusion regarding this matter. In the first place, some of the honourable members of the Opposition want to know how the Agriculture Department could be held responsible for the publication of agricultural statistics. The publication of weekly figures of staple crops is done under an executive order (and not under the Bengal Tenancy Act) under Chapter IX regarding preparation of crop statistics, Agricultural Statistics Manual. There is a separate Chapter for preparation of price list under the Bengal Tenancy Act and it is Chapter X of the same manual. It deals with preparation of price list under the Bengal Tenancy Act, section 39. Under section 39 quarterly and annual figures of current prices are published in the Calcutta Gazette. The basis of these figures is the weekly return which is published under the executive order of Government. In view of that, the Agriculture Department is connected with it. Of course, when this circular was issued the legal aspect of the question was not at all considered. On the face of it, it appeared absurd that Government would fix a ceiling price and again publish current prices which were higher than ceiling price and so the circular was issued. But the circular was issued without taking any legal opinion. When I came to know of the circular, I made it clear to the House that if after taking legal opinion we found that we could publish the actual prices legally, I would certainly withdraw the circular. We have taken legal opinion. The legal opinion says that we cannot publish prices which are illegal. Dr. S. C. Basak, senior Government Pleader of the High Court, says in his note—"In my opinion it is not possible to regard the price in excess of ceiling price as the open market price. There may be a black-market where rice may be sold at a price in excess of the ceiling price; but such a market cannot be regarded as an open market or mart as contemplated by rule 6. Moreover, it is quite clear that although the price actually paid be higher than the ceiling price, neither the seller nor the purchaser will admit it, nor it will appear from books of account that the price was higher than the ceiling price. The black-market price is an illegal price and the Government cannot recognise it. The price list is prepared under section 39(4), read with section 30(b) and section 32(a) of the Bengal Tenancy Act. The price contemplated in these sections is lawful price and not illegal price. I am, therefore, of opinion that it would not be legal to publish the black-market prices in the official Gazette. In my opinion, Government having fixed a ceiling price, it would not be legal or proper for Government to publish a record of transaction made in contravention of the legal ceiling price".

This is the opinion of Dr. Basak. We have other example. Under section 102 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, we are to record the existing rent—in the course of preparation of record-of-right,—but in recording such rents, we cannot record rents which are illegal being in contravention of section 29 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. In thousands of cases we had to reject illegal rents though actually paid for many years. In such cases the entire enhancements had to be cut down and the original unenhanced rent recorded. We could not record illegally enhanced rents because the law contemplates that nothing illegal should be recorded. That is commonsense and I do not think anything can be said against it. One word more—and about it Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury has already spoken—to the Opposition. May I enquire, by tabling this adjournment motion whom the Opposition is going to help? I believe they are going to kill the poor tenants.

For, if on the basis of the black-market prices rents were enhanced as contemplated under sections 32(a) and (b), the rents would increase by 200 or 300 per cent. Sir, the Opposition say that they are championing the cause of the poor tenantry but I find they are championing the cause of the landlords. However, Sir, we have been advised that in the price column no price higher than the ceiling price could be published; in such cases the column of current prices should be left blank and in the remarks column it should be shown that rice is not available in those places within the controlled price. I want to be very clear on this point. We do not want to conceal facts. We have to get black-market prices through the agency of the Civil Supplies Department, so that the department might rush in supplies to the poor people in the areas where rice is selling at rates above the ceiling rate. The Director of Civil Supplies has agreed that if any of the members of the Legislature wants to know the black-market price, he will be glad to supply the information. The honourable members may get the information, only for the asking even when the Council is not sitting. I do not think, being members of the Legislature they can ask the Government to do something which is absolutely illegal.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Mr. Deputy President, Sir, I am taken aback by the speech of the Hon'ble Minister for Agriculture. I was surprised to hear the great advocate Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury speaking on the admissibility or inadmissibility of evidence and saying that it was absolutely illegal and therefore it was not evidence. I had never had the fortune of meeting him in a forensic battle. I wish I would have him some day but I must tell him that that proposition of law is absolutely bad. Evidence that is collected, even if illegally, is evidence in a court of law. If it is fabricated, then it is not evidence. I am here trying to show that what the Hon'ble Minister is doing is tantamount to fabricating evidence and I think Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury would certainly recall to his memory certain well-known cases in which evidences collected by illegal searches were admitted by the High Court in spite of his. (Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: That is bad law) you ought to go to the Privy Council to set aside the decision of the High Court. I do not find any trouble over the arguments which have been advanced by Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury and the Hon'ble Minister save and except the common remarks made by them enquiring whom we are going to help by raising this question in the Council. My first answer is: to benefit the Hon'ble Ministers themselves so that they may not stray out from the path of truth. Secondly, I am going to show that we are here in this Council not to allow this sort of trickery to go on on the plea of illegality of price to put on record for all time to come what is not true.

Therefore, Sir, it is not the question of benefiting the landlords. It is not the question of benefiting the tenants. It is the question of truth and truth alone. There is absolutely no justification on any ground whatsoever to keep your record in this way, which even after 100 years will be evidence of these matters, so that we may have to look into this record and find out what was the condition in Bengal in the year 1943-44. What would the people at that time think of us if we say that rice is not available at controlled price, and they would say that these gentlemen had some ulterior motive in concealing the actual price. I would ask my learned friend Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury to revise his commercial law once again to find out what is the meaning of "market price". You actually control price when the market price goes higher up. When you think that the market price should not go so much, you want to control it. But what do you control? You control the market price. But in order to control the market price you should make sufficient supplies available. If you cannot supply in sufficient quantities, then the black market comes into play and the market price goes up. This is your embarrassment and for that embarrassment you have taken recourse to fabricating the price list in the Calcutta Gazette. Of course, our friends sitting on my left have supported my honourable friend Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury. In this connection, may I have the permission of the House to narrate a short story? There was a young boy who was supported from the very beginning of his life by his aunt who used to encourage him in every vice like telling lies, theft and so on and so forth. When the boy grew old he was caught red-handed in an act of theft and he was being taken by the police to jail. At that time his aunt wanted to see the boy before he was taken to jail, and the boy said that he would like to speak to the ears of his aunt. The aunt was taken there and the boy without saying a single word bit her ears and said that if she had corrected him from the very beginning, he would not have been taken to jail. So my honourable friends on the left have been encouraging the Hon'ble Ministers in every work they are doing but a time will come when they (the Ministers) will say that they should have corrected them earlier.

Now, Sir, my contention is that it is not what is wanted under the Bengal Tenancy Act. You are controlling the price for the time being owing to the prevalence of the war; but having regard to the fact that rice is being sold in the market and the District Officers being aware of the fact that rice is being sold at higher prices, they are bound under the statutory provision to report correctly and they are not to obey your order or your circular to report falsely or to suppress facts. Therefore, Sir, if you think that this publication of true price might hurt the tenants, then you may make legislation, but you are not entitled to publish false reports. I say that in spite of the forensic ability of my learned friend Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury, let this case of fabricating evidence go to any court of law and let him defend it.

Sir, my friend asks "what about Dr. Basak's opinion"? Well, Sir, we know how legal opinion can be obtained in somebody's favour; it depends upon the manner of putting a case; by putting up a matter in a certain manner they can have an opinion in their own favour. That is why I am sure that the other party having heard the Hon'ble Minister, and the mouthpiece of the Ministerial party, Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury, gave the opinion in the favour of Government. The Government had absolutely no case at all and I have no doubt that this plea of illegal price is an after-thought.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Does the Hon'ble the Leader of the House want to reply to this speech?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: No, Sir. I do not think that it needs a reply.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the attempt that is being made by Government to deliberately suppress the publication of correct information in the Calcutta Gazette of the current and prevailing market prices of rice in the various places of the different districts in Bengal and to secure untrue and incorrect reports regarding the same by issuing a circular on or about the 19th June, 1944 to all District Officers under the signature of the Secretary to the Government of Bengal in the Agriculture Department to the following effect:—

“The Government feels embarrassed by the publication of the price of rice in supplement to the Calcutta Gazette and District Officers are informed that where the prices are higher than the controlled price, instead of actual price being given, District Officers should show the controlled price, but add that rice cannot be had at the controlled price.”

which is causing or likely to cause alarm and panic in the country, and demoralise the District Officers.

(The motion was negatived.)

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 64.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Tuesday, the 25th July, 1944, at 3 p.m., being the sixty-fourth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mr. PRESIDENT: Questions standing in the name of the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies will stand over till tomorrow, as he is not present in the House.

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, he is expected any moment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But the House cannot wait for him.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a matter of information, Sir. Are you going to fix up the date with regard to my motion—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Not now, Mr. Das. I shall take up the matter after the questions are over.

Orient Press of India.

243. Maulvi MOHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Publicity Department be pleased to state—

- (a) the names of the news agencies subscribed by the Government with the amount paid to each of them;
- (b) whether he is aware that there is a news agency, named Orient Press of India;
- (c) whether the Government are considering the desirability of subscribing the services of this news agency also; and
- (d) if the reply to paragraph (c) is in the negative, what are the reasons therefor?

MINISTER in charge of the PUBLICITY DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Mr. Pulin Behary Mullick): (a) (1) Indian News Agency Telegrams—Rs. 480 per month.

(2) United Press of India News Service—Rs. 520 per month.

(3) Orient Press of India News Service—Rs. 400 per month.

(b) to (d) Do not arise.

Adjournment Motions.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I have an adjournment motion which says—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, your adjournment motion raises an issue identical to what had already been discussed in connection with another adjournment motion moved in this House on the 9th February by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das which ran as follows:—“This Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the failure of the Government of Bengal to meet, by the adoption of proper, timely and adequate remedial measures, the very serious situation which, arising out of the outbreak of preventible diseases following the famine, has taken and is taking a huge toll of human lives from all the districts of the province." Perhaps you have forgotten about it. So, this adjournment motion cannot be discussed.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, it is a continuing necessity.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, it is not a continuing necessity.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Supposing there is a riot in the town of Howrah on a particular day and there is an adjournment motion and after 25 days or a month another riot takes place—

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is something hypothetical.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I will in a moment show that—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, let us not suppose something and come to a decision. Rule 99 (3) says that a motion must not revive discussion on a matter which has already been discussed in the same session and this matter was, I remember definitely, discussed.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: If the situation has aggravated since then, that is, if the position of malaria today, towards the end of July, has become far more serious than the situation arising out of the malaria epidemic on the 9th February, would it not be a new matter?

Mr. PRESIDENT: It has not become far more serious.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: From the report, Sir, you will find that on the 18th the Amrita Bazar Patrika stated that the scourge of malaria is creating havoc—

Mr. PRESIDENT: In any case, this is substantially the same question and I cannot admit your motion.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, the Hon'ble the Leader of the House made a statement—

Mr. PRESIDENT: You may move this matter in some other form, not by an adjournment motion and the Hon'ble the Leader of the House, if he likes, may make a statement. You cannot move this motion. I am bound by the Rules.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, there is another adjournment motion standing in my name which runs as follows: That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance—

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is not necessary to read it.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR:....., namely, the situation arising out of the judgment of the Special Bench of the Hon'ble the Calcutta High Court regarding the Howrah Municipal affairs and Mr. B. P. Pain, Chairman of the Howrah Municipality.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You need not read it. I have got your motion before me. One point on which I would like to be satisfied is this: what do you mean by "the situation arising out of the judgment of the Special Bench.....?" What is the situation?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: The situation is this: From the judgment it appears that the facts or allegations made against Mr. Barada Prasanna Pain were true. No counter-affidavit was filed in the court to meet those allegations and the Bench held that the supersession order was not valid and the very gentleman who was the Chairman of that municipality is still an Hon'ble Minister of the Bengal Government. He is one of the members of the Cabinet. So, when these allegations are proved against the Hon'ble Minister, when the supersession order has been held not to be bona fide, then how can he continue to be a Minister of the Bengal Government. When it is clearly an abuse of power, this Ministry also is to be blamed and we want to discuss this matter. It is a very urgent and important matter from the point of view of the public and we want to discuss it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I hear Government on the point?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMED: Mr. President, under the rule, an adjournment motion can be brought on a definite matter of urgent public importance for which Government is responsible. The question of supersession of the Howrah Municipality has been on the tapis for a long time and it is a very old question. It is not a matter of recent occurrence. The order of supersession was given by the Government. The matter was taken to the High Court and the High Court has given its decision. I do not understand what situation has arisen out of the High Court decision. On the other hand, over the question there is a difference of opinion between the Executive and the Judiciary, and therefore, we have applied for permission to the Federal Court, and permission has been given by the High Court for this appeal to the Federal Court. Although it may not be technically sub judice, it may be said to be sub judice in the sense that we intend to file an appeal to the Federal Court. Therefore, suppose we discuss this matter and come to a decision today and then the judgment of the High Court is dissented from by the Federal Court tomorrow, what will happen? Under these circumstances, my submission to you as the President is that this does not come within the purview of an adjournment motion and so far as the judgment of the High Court is concerned, Government can only take action by filing an appeal.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The matter cannot be regarded as sub judice, as you have not filed the appeal at yet.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: I have already submitted that in the technical sense the matter is not sub judice, but as Government has got the permission of the High Court to file an appeal to the Federal Court, it may be said to be sub judice.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Is the Howrah Municipality functioning?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: The Municipality is functioning.

Mr. PRESIDENT: How? Government passed the supersession order under the Defence of India Rules, and the High Court issued an injunction against the officer who was appointed by Government to run the municipality. So how can the Municipality function at all?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, the municipality is functioning. The question is this up to this time, under the High Court's Single Bench order, the municipality has been functioning, so far as I know.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Hon'ble Minister admits that no appeal has yet been filed. So the matter is not at present sub judice. I do not think there is any substantial objection to that point. I am not satisfied from the Hon'ble Minister's reply that the municipality is functioning. I do not understand how the municipality can function. Government passed orders superseding the municipality and the High Court judgment prevents the officer appointed to run the municipality from functioning. So, evidently there is a stalemate and that is the situation, in my opinion. Therefore, I give my consent to this motion being moved and I fix tomorrow, immediately after the questions, for the discussion of the adjournment motion.

Special Motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, Mr. Das, what is your point?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, my motion was admitted on Wednesday last as a special motion by arrangement and the Deputy President left the date to be fixed by you when we wanted a date——

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes. But as no Special Motion was formally tabled——

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: That motion was itself to be treated as a Special Motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, Mr. Das, I am afraid you have to table a Special Motion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I am reading from the report, Sir; it is as follows: Khan Bahadur Abdul Hamid Chowdhury was in the Chair and said that there was a consensus of opinion in the House in favour of this motion being taken up as a Special Motion. He ruled that it should be so treated. As regards the date he would leave it to the President to be fixed.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, I hope you will realise that the Chair has no power to convert an Adjournment Motion into a Special Motion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But what I have narrated was the opinion expressed from the Chair that day.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Perhaps that ruling was given out of deference to the wishes of the House; but I may tell you that a formal notice has to be given of such a motion. If any one wants to move a Special Motion under rule 96, he will have to take the consent of the Chair, then the motion has got to be sent to the Government and the Hon'ble Minister in charge has also to give his consent before it can be actually included in the agenda.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I point out one thing, Sir? My point is that on the very day that the Adjournment Motion came up it was decided to be treated as a Special Motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid it could not be so treated. You are a lawyer, Mr. Das, and you should realise the technical difficulty about it. Evidently, there would be no objection if you send in a notice of the motion. And I hope you will do so if you really want to have the matter discussed as a Special Motion.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: If that is your direction, then he will certainly comply with it; but we are referring to the matter as it actually happened on that day when Sir Nazimuddin was prepared to have the matter moved as a Special Motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: These are very technical matters and I have got to follow the rules very strictly. Unless there is a formal motion under rule 96, and I admit it and the consent of the Minister in charge is received, no motion can be discussed as a Special Motion. The Chair has no right to convert an Adjournment Motion into a Special Motion.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: May I refer to what happened on that day, Sir? All the procedure laid down in rule 96 was followed on that day. As a matter of fact, after the Adjournment Motion was admitted, the Honourable Home Minister stated that it should be discussed as a Special Motion and it was moved as a Special Motion and the Deputy President who was acting as President accepted the motion as a Special Motion and only the fixing of the date remained and that was left to you, Sir.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Because we did not want to have it discussed on a non-official day, which was the suggestion of the Home Minister.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Whatever might have happened, first of all a formal notice should be given—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: The Deputy President did not say any such thing, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: "There was a consensus of opinion" that is what the Deputy President observed, "that this motion would be treated as a Special Motion". As regards the date on which the discussion would take place, that was left to the Chair to fix.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir Nazimuddin said that it would be taken as a Special Motion—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think it is better that you should give a formal notice of this Special Motion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Permit me to say, Sir,—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But, Mr. Das, what is the difficulty in giving notice of this motion?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I may point out that when I wanted to move it, it was treated as if I had given notice of this motion. And Sir Nazimuddin accepted this view also. So there was the consent of the Chair, there was also the consent of the Minister in charge concerned, and it was therefore treated as a Special Motion; only the date was not fixed.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, you forget the language of your own motion. Your motion was that the House do now adjourn. Certainly you cannot adjourn the House and move a Special Motion on the same terms at the same time! So I rule that you will kindly give notice of your Special Motion. I will admit it and I presume that Government would not object to it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, in that case I do not know when the date will be fixed.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The date will be fixed as soon as possible. But let the motion be submitted first.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But, Sir, the ruling that was given the other day with regard to my motion by the Chair, that ruling has been ruled out by you.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I must be guided by rules. The Chair has no right to convert one kind of motion into another.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But, Sir, the motion was accepted as a Special Motion and Sir Nazimuddin agreed to it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have given my ruling. I do not understand what is your difficulty in sending in a formal notice of your motion now.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It means throwing back an urgent matter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Why? You send notice of the motion to me and it will be admitted tomorrow.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Then, Sir, you will fix another date—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, I can fix it tomorrow.

Longer sitting of the Council.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: May I mention one thing, Sir, before you take up the discussion of the Agricultural Income-tax Bill? You have seen during the last month how little progress we have made with the Government business, namely, the Agricultural Income-tax Bill. This week and several days in the last week have all been taken up in discussing adjournment motions and other motions and I think this state of things will continue for some time more. Under the circumstances, if you follow the ordinary rule of carrying on the meeting of the House only for two hours a day, I do not think we shall be able to make any progress with regard to the Bill. Moreover, if I am allowed to say so, in discussing the Bill we are not going on in a business-like manner.....(Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: This is a reflection on the House). No, I said "We are not going.....". But if the cap fits him, I can't help. Now, Sir, are we to go on in this way indefinitely or are we going to finish the Bill in a reasonable time? If that is your wish and the wish of the House, the only alternative is to give more time and we should henceforth sit for longer hours. Two-hour-sittings every day will not make any effect on the progress of the Bill if things go on like this. Even though the adjournment motions are defeated, still they have to be brought in and so they are taking up the time of the House. I suggest that from the next week or from tomorrow or whenever it suits the pleasure of the House the time of the sitting should be fixed at 4 hours and if necessary we may sit for whole night. After all, it is no use coming here for two hours. As a matter of fact, this House has in the past not even sat for two hours daily. There were holidays and other things. So, we have done very little progress. I suggest that the hours of sitting should be doubled and if that does not also lead to fair progress, we must sit all night.

There is another point to be considered in this connection. Sir, Ramzan begins, I believe, from the 21st of the next month and it will be very difficult for the mofussil members to stay on at Calcutta at that time. I hope all these things should be taken into consideration.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, practically the time for the consideration of the Bill has been doubled, as the first hour reserved for questions and answers are now being utilised, there being no questions practically. As regards the adjournment motions, when there are urgent matters of public importance, we are entitled to move for adjournment of the House. As regards the extension of time of daily sittings, we have every objection, as after sitting for a long period from February, we do not want to sit for longer hours.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I object to longer hours than usual. From 1937 till now, the practice has always been uniform. I remember on one occasion when the Leader of the House was the Leader of the Opposition, at the time of the consideration of the Bengal Primary Education (Amendment) Bill, the then Education Minister, Khan Bahadur Abdul Karim, thought that he could finish the Bill in two days but the Opposition took 30 days and never sat for more than two hours. At that time not a single objection was raised by the Government. Here is a very important taxation Bill which is going to affect the people of Bengal as a whole, and we have tabled as many as 500 amendments. Now, at the very beginning of the consideration the Hon'ble Minister stood up and issued a fatwa to the members on the opposite side that this Bill should be passed without change of a comma as if we are so many automatons; they forget the fact that this House is a revising body.

Then there is another point. We have in our midst businessmen and lawyers who cannot be away from their place of business for a long time. Some of them come only at the time of voting on a particular important amendment. It is not possible to keep them engaged here day in and day out. If they have to sit for more than two hours, they will be restive because they have to attend to their other business also. You will, Sir, also take into consideration the health of the members of this House because sitting for more than two hours will affect their health. So, upon all these grounds I object to the extension of time of sitting.

Mr. W. B. G. LAIDLAW: Mr. President, Sir, I hear Mr. Das referring to the businessmen who find it difficult to keep themselves away from their businesses. We would also welcome any extension of hours so that we might finish the Bill and get back to our businesses. One further point Mr. Das referred to and that is the procedure of this House in the past. He went back to 1937, but I distinctly remember and I am corroborated by one of my colleagues that on occasions we sat for more than two hours. On one occasion, I remember we sat from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. in the evening. Two hours is not sacrosanct that we shall stick to it always. Finally, it seems to me that when the House has accepted the principle of the Bill, we might deal with the details as quickly as possible in a businesslike manner.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, may I point out that it would not cause very great inconvenience to honourable members who are alleged to be very busy men. If, for instance, we sit beyond five o'clock, it would be very convenient, because I do not think that even busy men who do very much business do anything between five and six. On the other hand, it might help these busy men if we go through the Bill and finish it in the course of two or three weeks, because it would give them more leisure and make them more free to attend to their business. I entirely agree with the Leader of the European Group that we should sit longer hours to economise time for ourselves ultimately, and I think the House will be well-advised to sit longer hours. Therefore, I would request the Opposition to agree to an extension of time.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, out of 11 provinces in India there are Second Chambers in six of the provinces, and nowhere do the Second Chambers sit for more than two hours ordinarily. It is very true that in the past we sat for a little more than two hours, but such occasions were very rare. This is a very important Bill, and although we have accepted the principle of this Bill, we are now going through the details. The provisions of the Bill are so very important and are so fraught with far-reaching consequences that we should give our best thoughts on the question in this House. Therefore, Sir, I think we should proceed very slowly so that it may not be necessary after a short while to bring in another amending Bill that will be passed in this House. Mr. Das has already said that this House is the House of the Elders where there are elderly people who can hardly afford to devote more than two hours at a time. It will impair their efficiency. With these few words, I object to the proposal for an extension of time.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, I endorse the views of all my friends who opposed the proposal for an extension of time. It has already been shown that the time of meeting has been practically doubled. Due to shortage of questions in the agenda, practically the whole of the two hours is being utilised for consideration of this Bill. The other point is that the Opposition is interested in the amendments and they think it their duty to scrutinize them and pay sufficient attention to them so that the defects in the Bill may be remedied. But if Government want to gag us, then it is a different question altogether. If Government is so anxious to finish the Bill hurriedly, then the best course for them would be to apply to the Governor for an Ordinance on the subject as they are doing in other matters. If the Government want to stifle the Opposition in this way, then all that we can do is to appeal to you as the custodian of the rights and privileges of the House and request you to look to the interests of us, who constitute the minority party in this House.

I do not know why Khan Bahadur Momin should all on a sudden raise this question, although we find that he comes very rarely in this House—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order, that is not relevant, Mr. Chakraverti. I think we have heard all sections of the House now and—

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD:except one section, Sir, which is also deeply interested in the matter. May I have a word, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, certainly.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, somehow or other, I seem to be the guilty man. (Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: Whom do you represent?) Well, I represent, may be, only myself, but I also represent good and constructive work in the House. The position is this, Sir: the House is sought to be punished for the delay in the progress of this Bill; no doubt, there has been some delay, but for this who is guilty? Are they those members who have carefully gone through the Bill and have proposed amendments or does the fault lie with bad draftsmanship? I submit the fault lies with bad draftsmanship. Sir, there is another aspect of the matter. We are doing some amount of intellectual work, however unappreciative or inattentive some members of the House may be to it. (Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: Most members do not agree with you.) Well, that shows that those members are not attending to the business of the House. That is an admission which hardly does credit to the honourable members on that side of the House. The position is: that we are doing some amount of intellectual work, and I think everybody in this House should be disposed to agree with this view. It is fairly obvious that intellectual work of this type requires some amount of preparation. We cannot speak off-hand and do two hours' work here on an important Bill like this unless we have also made some more hours' work before or unless we make some hours' work after. We have got to work both before and after we meet here. As to the cheerful suggestion of some honourable members including one from the European group that we should sit whole nights, if accepted, it will turn this august assembly into a night club.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order, Khan Bahadur, that is hardly relevant. Please resume your seat.

I have listened very carefully to the views of the different sections of the House. There is no doubt that we are making rather slow progress; there is no doubt that for various reasons we are not making much headway with the main business before the House, and it is desirable that we should speed up. Either we should do so within the time, that is, the usual time of two hours, or by sitting longer hours. These are the two alternatives left. Now, as regards the argument of intellectual work or that the Council cannot sit for more than two hours, or again the argument advanced by Rai Bahadur Keshab Chandra Banerjee that throughout India the Upper House sits ordinarily for two hours only—although I do not know where he gets this information from—I may say that the Honourable Judges of the High Court may be supposed to be doing some amount of intellectual work and they do not do their work for two hours only; then there are the Advocates of the High Court who too may be supposed to be doing some intellectual work, and Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad himself as Public Prosecutor of Burdwan has to do some intellectual work, where there is no time-limit and where he has to be on his legs for 5 or 6 hours at a stretch perhaps,—to that argument, therefore, I attach not much importance. But it is the question of convenience, provided that consideration does not militate against the disposal of the business of the House. I propose to give my decision after duly considering this matter, tomorrow. One fact mentioned by Khan Bahadur Abdul Momin Sahib is that Ramjan is approaching and many members hailing from the mofussil will be put to great inconvenience if they have to remain in Calcutta and cannot go home. That is a point which the Chair must take into consideration in coming to a decision. We have got to proceed with the business of the House. It is certainly the privilege of the Opposition to criticise the Bill by moving amendments and it is the duty of the Chair to see that the privileges of the Opposition are fully maintained and they are given every facility in expressing their views; but at the same time the business of the House must proceed. I propose to give my decision on the matter tomorrow and I hope the House will accept that decision.

The House will now resume further discussion on the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I was speaking on amendment No. 67 which was moved by my friend Mr. Nagendra Nath Moholanabish the other day when the House was adjourned. I was referring to the question that the addition of the words "or in the case of Muslim Trusts commonly known as Wakf-al-al-aulad" was not only unnecessary but that it really introduced confusion which ought to be removed in order that the clause itself as a whole might not lead to a construction which was not intended, viz., that Wakf estates under the Muslim trusts may be excluded from the operation of the clause. When I was referring to amendments 62A and 63 intended to be moved by my friend Mr. Nur Ahmed, he wanted to rise on a point of order saying that an amendment which was not moved could not be referred to. My friend Mr. Nur Ahmed ought to have realised that I was quite within my rights in referring to the amendments proposed. What I was going to say was that the proposed amendment of Mr. Nur Ahmed really supported my argument and it was clear that the Government realised the force of the objection which I am now raising with regard to the interpretation of clause 4 of the Bill. If, as is contended by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister, the first four lines of the clause include all trusts: Hindu, Christian, Anglo-Indian, European, Buddhist, Muslim and the Brahmo religious trusts, why is it then that in the last two lines Muslim trusts commonly known as Wakf-al-al-aulads are again mentioned? It means that really the Muslim trusts are not included in the first four lines of the clause. I hope the Hon'ble Minister will realise that in order to construe a Statute there must be a harmonious construction of all parts of it and every part of it should be given effect to. I also think the Finance Minister knows that in the case of construction of a Statute it is not permissible to refer to his assurances given on the floor of the House which cannot in any way be brought in in a court of law for the purpose of construction of the Statute or to the speeches of the honourable members of the House. There is also the principle of construing a Statute, namely, that where there are general words followed by particular words, the general words should yield to the specific words. Now, if this construction is taken into account, then it would be clear that so far as Muslim Trusts are concerned, the last two lines refer to them and therefore the first four lines are excluded and in that view it may be suggested that ordinary wakfs are not included in the exemption. Although it is clear that that is not the intention of the Legislature, it is necessary to consider seriously whether these two lines should be retained if Muslim trusts commonly known as Wakf-al-al-aulads are included in the first four lines as I hold they are, if the construction which the Hon'ble the Finance Minister seeks to put upon them is correct. Then, it is clearly redundant and may lead to the difficulty I had pointed out before. It is sought to be supported on the ground that Muslim trusts known as Wakf-al-al-aulads are of a particular and peculiar nature and therefore they have been mentioned.

I am sorry the supporters of this argument have not really appreciated what Wakf-al-al-aulads really mean. If we look to the Muslim law and the principle on which Muslim Wakf-al-al-aulads are supported, we find that the real reason is not the maintenance of the descendants of the wakeef; when a man intends to constitute a wakf of his properties, he dedicates the property in the name of God and absolves himself from all interest in it. God becomes the real owner of the property. If a man makes a wakf of all his properties, then he really places himself and his family along with others at the mercy of God and is entitled to His protection. If in such case a provision is made for himself and his family, it is not to be treated as uncharitable or unreligious, that is the original idea of Muslim Wakf-al-al-aulads. It is therefore nothing unusual and should not be looked upon as a special idea. The property really vests in God. I, therefore, submit that Wakf-al-al-aulads really do not stand on a footing different from ordinary wakfs. I submit that this amendment should be accepted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Mr. President, my honourable friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee spoke more as a lawyer engaged in a case than as a legislator. Wakf-al-al-aulad is a particular kind of wakf, mainly for the benefit of descendants. This, I believe is the translation of the word. Here is a case of charity beginning at home and therefore we are entitled to tax those beneficiaries who enjoy portion of the income of the property for their own selves. It is only a portion of the income which is actually employed for charitable purposes that is sought to be exempted. Charitable objects and Debattars have been exempted by sub-clause (b) of clause 4. Therefore, I think there is very good reason why Wakf-al-al-aulads should be mentioned specially saying that that portion of the income of such wakfs as are devoted to charitable objects may be exempted only to that extent.

Sir, I oppose the amendment.

MR. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in paragraph (b) of clause 4 of the Bill, the words "or in the case of Muslim trusts commonly known as Wakf-al-al-aulads" in lines 5 and 6 be deleted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move: That in paragraph (b) of clause 4 of the Bill, after the words "Wakf-al-al-aulads," the following be inserted, namely:—

"and in the case of persons producing evidence satisfactory to the Agricultural Income-tax Officer in the manner prescribed of their having undertaken to contribute regularly to the funds of any public institutions for religious or charitable purposes out of the income derived from agriculture."

Sir, the meaning and purpose of my amendment is clear from the wording. It does not require amplification. I would only try to explain my viewpoint by some examples or illustrations. Suppose the Maharaja of Cossimbazar undertakes to contribute regularly to the funds of the Calcutta University or to the Jadavpore College of Engineering or suppose the Maharajahdhiraj Bahadur of Burdwan decides to contribute regularly to a fund either for religious or for charitable purposes, should not their income derived from their lands be excluded from assessment? That is the point. Now, I should think that it has a very laudable object, and as it is, the amendment if accepted will also encourage people to come to the rescue and advancement of public institutions. With these few words, I move my amendment.

MR. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved that in paragraph (b) of clause 4 of the Bill, after the words "Wakf-al-al-aulads," the following be inserted, namely:—

"and in the case of persons producing evidence satisfactory to the Agricultural Income-tax Officer in the manner prescribed of their having undertaken to contribute regularly to the funds of any public institutions for religious or charitable purposes out of the income derived from Agriculture."

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Mr. President, I oppose this amendment, because a provision like the one which is being proposed by my honourable friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das would leave a lot of loopholes. I can understand a gift in respect of a property being created by way of trust and allowance being made for that. That is the practice of the Indian Income-tax Department. But where an assessee is in full ownership of the property, there is no reason for counting reduction in respect of sums spent on charity and when that expenditure is not necessary for earning the income. Sir, I would oppose this amendment conscientiously.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that in paragraph (b) of clause 4 of the Bill, after the words "Wakf-al-aulads," the following be inserted, namely:—

"and in the case of persons producing evidence satisfactory to the Agricultural Income-tax Officer in the manner prescribed of their having undertaken to contribute regularly to the funds of any public institutions for religious or charitable purposes out of the income derived from Agriculture."

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 4 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the word "applied" in line 6, the word "applicable" be substituted.

Sir, this is merely a drafting amendment. The Bill-clause exempts from taxation those incomes which are actually "applied" during the year for purposes of all classes of trust. The amendment would exempt "all incomes which are really applicable for such purposes". If there is a trust which provides that the whole of the income should be applied for charitable or religious purposes, then according to the amendment, the whole income should be exempted if it is spent partly in the same year and partly in the next. The Bill-clause provides that to be exempted, the whole must be spent in the year. Suppose, a trust property has a net income of Rs. 50,000 and also suppose that the trust provides that the whole income of Rs. 50,000 should be applied for charitable purposes, and supposing that, for some accidental reasons, the amount could not be so applied before the year closes but only Rs. 40,000 is applied during the year and the balance is applied in the beginning of the next year. So far as the Bill-clause stands, the whole of the unspent amount shall be taxable, whereas the principle of the amendment is that if certain profit or income is reserved, for purposes of charity, then it should be excluded. The test is: whether the whole is reserved for charitable or religious purposes or whether it should be the actual expenditure. The amendment has reference to the terms of the wakf or charity or debattar and other things; the Bill-clause depends upon the pure accident of actual expenditure. The principle which is incorporated in the Bill really supports the amendment. This is the purpose behind the amendment. With these few words, I move my amendment and hope it will be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 4 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the word "applied" in line 6, the word "applicable" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, on a first reading of the notice of this amendment, I myself thought that it was just a drafting amendment but from the speech of the mover I find that there is serious objection to accepting such an amendment. The mover would like to protect the misapplication of portions of the fund allotted to charity for personal use. I cannot be a party to this. Sums actually applied to charitable objects will certainly be considered for the purposes of exemption; but if we are to exempt all sums which are applicable to charitable objects but not actually spent on them, then we should be encouraging dishonesty. On these grounds, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House—

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: May I rise on a personal explanation?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think you can make a second speech, Khan Bahadur.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Not a second speech, but I would like to make a personal explanation.

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The Hon'ble Minister assumes that my point was that whatever money was not spent for charity would be spent for personal purposes. That was not my object, Sir. It may be that this unspent money would be spent next year. Any income, reserved for charity, and unspent during the year should not go to the pocket of the trustee. That is not my point, for that would constitute a breach of trust—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think that will do.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: May I have any observations from the Hon'ble Minister on this explanation of mine?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I am not convinced, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that in clause 4 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the word "applied" in line 6, the word "applicable" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in clause 4 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the word "thereto", in line 6, the words and comma "to such trust, legal obligations or religious or charitable purposes" be substituted.

The word "thereto" has a clear reference to some of the matters which are detailed in the amendment. The way in which the clause has been drafted would make the purpose of the word "thereto" doubtful, and this has been already adverted to by some speakers. The scope of the word "thereto" in the text is doubtful and might lead to trouble hereafter. So, in order to be very explicit and to remove all possible doubts, I have sought to incorporate the words which would make the meaning absolutely clear. This is a purely drafting amendment and is intended to make the thing absolutely clear, and should be accepted by the Hon'ble Minister.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 4 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the word "thereto", in line 6, the words and comma "to such trust, legal obligation or religious or charitable purposes" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: This amendment unlike the previous amendment is really a drafting amendment; but I do not think that it is necessary, because the word "thereto" is quite clear. Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 4 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the word "thereto" in line 6, the words and comma "to such trust, legal obligation or religious or charitable purposes" be substituted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in clause 4 of the Bill, in the Explanation, for the word "Charitable" in line 1, the word "charitable" be substituted.

Sir, the amendment is purely of a drafting nature and it attempts to substitute only a small letter for a capital letter with which the word begins. The expression "charitable purposes", which appears in the body of clause 4, has been defined in the Explanation. In the Explanation, the passage means this: In this section "Charitable purpose includes.....". The word "charitable" in clause 4 begins with a small letter, but in the definition it begins with a capital letter. The invariable rule is that in the definition clause the word defined begins with a capital letter only when it is so used in the body of the Bill itself. There are many examples in clause 2. There is no earthly reason why the word should begin with a capital letter. The use of the capital letter is a mistake. In the circumstances, I submit that this is a drafting mistake and should be corrected.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in clause 4 of the Bill, in the Explanation, for the word "Charitable" in line 1, the word "charitable" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, this amendment seeks to amend a printing error which I think could well be taken into account when we bring in an amending Bill. It is unnecessary now. So I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in clause 4 of the Bill, in the Explanation, for the word "Charitable" in line 1, the word "charitable" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move: That in clause 4 of the Bill, after paragraph (b), the following new paragraphs be added, namely:—

"(c) any agricultural income devoted to charitable purposes for which proper audited accounts are kept,

(d) receipts accruing from agricultural land in Bengal which are of a casual and non-recurring nature."

Sir, charitable purposes have been defined in the Explanation given to section 4 of the Bill. It includes relief to the poor, education, medical relief and the advancement of any other object of general public utility. This being so, if agricultural income is spent for furtherance of this object, —and audited accounts would be able to show it to the satisfaction of the Agricultural Income-tax Officer,—then I think it should be considered as a fit expenditure for which no assessment should be made. Secondly, the receipts accruing from agriculture which are of a non-recurring character, being of a casual nature, should also be excluded.

With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 4 of the Bill, after paragraph (b), the following new paragraphs be added, namely:—

"(c) any agricultural income devoted to charitable purposes for which proper audited accounts are kept,

(d) receipts accruing from agricultural land in Bengal which are of casual and non-recurring nature."

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to support the amendment which has been moved by my honourable friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. There is also a similar amendment standing in my name. Now, if we look to the meaning of the word income, it means something which comes regularly and every year and therefore I say that receipts which are of a casual nature and which are not annually accruing from the land should be excluded from the operation of the Act. Now under subsection (3) of section 4 of the Indian Income-tax Act of 1922, there is a special reference to incomes which are of a casual or non-recurring nature and provision is made that they should be excluded from being taxed under the Indian Income-tax Act. I do not understand why that exclusion has not been provided for in the Agricultural Income-tax Act, when we find that in most instances the framers of this Bill have been punctilious in following the provisions of the Indian Income-tax Act. Now, it may be suggested as to what are casual gains. This has also been considered and provided for by rules made under the Indian Income-tax Act. The two conditions laid down in the Income-tax Act in order that the exemption on the ground of casual profits may be taken advantage of are the following:— They must not be the profits of a profession, vocation or employment or arise from business that is from any venture or concern in the nature of trade, commerce or manufacture; and they must not be annual. I would only refer the honourable members to the words "they must not be annual". There are many such casual receipts in case of agricultural lands which people do not annually receive but are only casual and I would submit that those should be excluded from the operation of the Act. Another way of considering as to whether it is a casual gain or an annual income is to see whether the gain was made in connection with any operation of carrying out a scheme for making profits within agricultural land. I hope the Hon'ble the Finance Minister will realise that there are many items which come to an agriculturist casually and are not annual and therefore a provision ought to be made as in the Indian Income-tax Act, so that these casual receipts be excluded from operation of the Act.

I may refer the illustrations given in the Indian Income-tax Act Manual as examples of casual receipts—

- (i) A purchases a house with a view to re-selling it at a profit; his profits from the transaction are liable to income-tax even although it be an isolated transaction. B purchases a house for his own residence and later on sells it at a profit; his profit is not liable to be taxed.

The Hon'ble the Finance Minister and the honourable members of the House will kindly note the distinction between the two classes of cases.

- (ii) A wins a prize in a lottery or a bet on the race course; his receipts therefrom are not assessed.

I need not repeat other instances. On the other hand, the yields from Treasury Bills are taxed under the Indian Income-tax Act.

With these words, I support the amendment which has been moved by my friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, the House has already given its verdict on both parts of this amendment. As to the first part, I need not repeat what I said a few minutes ago in connection with an amendment of Mr. Lalit Chandra Das; and as regards the second part, I spoke at some length on a previous occasion on an amendment moved by Mr. Haridas Majumdar—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: What is the number of that amendment, please?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: It is amendment No. 62.

I do not propose to make two separate speeches. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that in clause 4 of the Bill, after paragraph (b), the following new paragraphs be added, namely:—

"(c) any agricultural income devoted to charitable purposes for which proper audited accounts are kept,

(d) receipts accruing from agricultural land in Bengal which are of a casual and non-recurring nature."

(The amendment was negatived.)

Clause 4.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 4 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 5.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 5 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 5 of the Bill, in paragraph (i), the words "or revenue" in line 3 be deleted.

Sir, I need not repeat the arguments which I made in connection with another amendment of mine of a similar nature, but there an objection was taken that the definition of agricultural income as given in the Income-tax Act or in the Government of India Act should not be altered. I do not think that objection applies to the amendment which I am now proposing, and therefore the defect in the drafting—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, I am sorry. There is one late amendment by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad which is not on the printed list but which was admitted. It is amendment No. 73B. Now, Khan Bahadur Sahib, do you propose to move it?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Yes, Sir.

I beg to move that in clause 5 of the Bill, after the words "heads of agricultural income" in line 2, the words "and no other" be inserted.

Sir, it has already been given out by the Hon'ble Minister in charge that it is not proposed to tax anybody for income arising out of buildings: that is to say that paragraph (c) of sub-clause (I) of clause 2 of the Bill would not be actually put into operation; but during the debate on paragraph (c) of the definition of agricultural income, it was shown that there are certain clauses in the Bill which in spite of the absence of reference to that paragraph in clause 5 would make agricultural income from buildings taxable. In order to remove all doubts this amendment is proposed. If this amendment is accepted, then paragraph (c) in the definition of "agricultural income" can never be brought into operation; otherwise there may be a tax realised on this head, although the Hon'ble Minister says that he does not wish to tax anybody on this ground. But clauses 6 and 7, the charging clauses, are rather too wide to allow this kind of income to escape taxation in spite of the assurance of the Hon'ble Minister. I think this amendment will give effect to the real desire of the pilot of the Bill and also to the real desire of the House. If, for certain technical reasons, paragraph (c) in the definition of "agricultural income" has to be retained, it can be effectively excluded from taxation by the addition of the three words in the amendment. The amendment will, therefore, remove all possible doubts and should be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 5 of the Bill, after the words "heads of agricultural income" in line 2, the words "and no other" be inserted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to support the amendment moved by my friend, Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. As I pointed out while I was moving that sub-clause (c) which referred to buildings in the definition clause of agricultural income in clause 2 should be deleted, it was not only redundant but also mischievous. You will find that so far as the principle is concerned, it was intended to impose a tax on buildings in the original Bill; but the two sections which provided for taxing the income from buildings were omitted in the Lower House, after the report of the select committee. Here, the Hon'ble Minister has made it quite clear that income from buildings will not be taxed. If that be so, then I would submit, as I submitted before, that the retention of paragraph (c) in the definition clause was rather mischievous and it is also ambiguous. It may be that the assessing authorities, in the absence of any express provision anywhere in the Bill with regard to express exclusion of the income from buildings, would be perplexed by seeing a reference to the income from buildings in the definition clause and they may be inclined to include the income from the buildings; in order to avoid that difficulty and in order to make the administration of the Act and the task of the assessors easy this amendment has been proposed. With these words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I think the misapprehension in the mind of the mover is quite unnecessary and unjustified.

We have excluded the portion of income from buildings, etc., from the purview of the Bill and there is absolutely no danger of that class of income being taxed. So I do not see any purpose in changing the marginal note to clause 5.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 5 of the Bill after the words "agricultural income" in line 2 the words "and no other means" be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move that in clause 5 of the Bill, in paragraph (i), the words "or revenue" in line 3 be deleted.

Sir, I need not repeat the argument which I advanced in support of a similar amendment in connection with the definition clause itself. The objection in connection with the definition clause is not applicable to the amendment which I am now proposing for consideration of the House. If that objection is removed, I think the House will accept the amendment because the language seems to be rather not only vague but is quite inappropriate. Agricultural income, as defined in sub-clause (a) of clause 1, would not have been referred to as "agricultural income" or revenue. No agricultural income is derived from revenue which is paid from the provincial revenue. Therefore, the words "or revenue" is inappropriate there. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in clause 5 of the Bill, in paragraph (i), the words "or revenue" in line 3 be deleted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support this amendment. The House would be pleased to remember that in the discussion of paragraph (c) relating to the definition of agricultural income, the words "or revenue" were objected to and attempted to be removed from the clause. The reason of the Hon'ble Minister's opposition then was that this definition was an exact copy of the definition of the "agricultural income" as given in the Indian Income-tax Act. Another argument was that the Government of India Act, by section 311, had sanctioned the definition of "agricultural income" as it is given in the Indian Income-tax Act. On the ground of sanctity, it was held by the Hon'ble Minister that the removal of the words from the definition would so far impair the definition that it would be rendered wholly void. In the Bihar Act, these very words were actually omitted but it was held by the Federal Court that the Act was not, on that ground, illegal. Whatever reason there appeared for the retention of these words in the definition clause on the ground of sanctity, there is no reason why they should be introduced in clause 5 which is the operative clause. The ground of sanctity under which the Hon'ble Minister took shelter does not really apply in clause 5. Here, the taxing section includes the words "or revenue". As has been already clearly shown, the words "or revenue" will not only be unnecessary but thoroughly unmeaning. You will be pleased to remember, Sir, that the word "revenue" in Bengal has a peculiar meaning. Revenue is not rent but it is any payment which a subject has got to pay to Government. This distinction between rent and revenue is unique in Bengal and Bihar.

As this House does not consist of so many experts on the Revenue law of Bengal and Bihar as you are, a word or two by way of further explanation seems necessary. Revenue is payable by zemindars and other proprietors to Government. Can you tax that revenue? That will be rather taxing the income of Revenue Department by another department—the Finance Department. That is meaningless and illogical. The objections which were raised by the Hon'ble Minister against the omission of the words "or revenue" from the definition clause, do not apply here. Here, the question of sanctity does not arise. The Government of India Act does not sanctify it. Therefore, the words "or revenue" are not only superfluous but mischievous. It is for this reason that I particularly support this amendment. This amendment is extremely important and I must confess that it had escaped my attention. With these few words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, if it was sanctity on the last occasion, it is consistency on this occasion. Everywhere in Bengal, revenue means land revenue. That meaning is confined to that particular provision of a particular legislative enactment. We propose to retain the words.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in clause 5 of the Bill, in paragraph (i), the words "or revenue" in line 3 be deleted. (The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move: That in clause 5 of the Bill, in paragraph (ii), the word "agricultural" in line 3 be deleted.

Now, Sir, I would request the honourable members to look to the wording as they appear in the original Bill itself and then they would find the reason for this amendment. The clause reads thus: agricultural income as defined in sub-clause (b) of clause 1 of section 2 hereinafter referred to as agricultural income from agriculture. I think, Sir, no further words would be necessary to support my amendment. What I want to say is that the word "agricultural" should be deleted and the clause should stand "Hereinafter referred to as income from agriculture". As a matter of fact, if you look to the subsequent clauses and the earlier clauses of the Bill, we do not find anywhere any reference to the sentence—agricultural income from agriculture. Everywhere we find either reference to agricultural income or reference to income from agriculture.

I therefore submit that the word "agricultural" in line 3 should be deleted in order that the clause may be understandable. With these few words, I commend my amendment to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved: that in clause 5 of the Bill, in paragraph (ii), the word "agricultural" in line 3 be deleted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support this amendment. The expression in the Bill, namely, "agricultural income from agriculture" amounts to gross tautology and is so much jarring to the ear that any one not having the nerves of my honourable friend Khan Sahib Fariduddin Ahmad would be thoroughly shaken by this. Would you tolerate the use of such expressions as "horse's flesh from the horse" or "human milk from a woman"? Is this over-accuracy necessary? I submit that the doubling of the expression "agricultural" and "agriculture" is grossly insulting to the intelligence of this House. If the expression is "income from agriculture" as in the amendment, then the meaning will be quite clear. But "agricultural income from agriculture" is not only a superfluity but bad draftsmanship. So on these grounds, I submit that the amendment should be accepted.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I wish to say a few words in this connection. Sir, there is a clear distinction made between the two kinds of agricultural income—one is agricultural income from rents and another is agricultural income from agriculture, i.e., from ploughing and cultivation. One is raiyat's income and the other is zamidari income. These are two distinct things. That is why the expression is put within inverted commas. I am very sorry that my two learned friends who are eminent lawyers could not understand this.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I have nothing to say after what has been said by my honourable friend, the Leader of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 5 of the Bill, in paragraph (ii), the word "agricultural" in line 3 be deleted. (The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 5 of the Bill, for the word "appearing" at the end of the clause, the word "provided" be substituted.

Sir, this is a drafting amendment. On a careful examination of similar passages in the living and dead Acts, it has been found that the use of the word "appearing" is really connected with a purpose, but anything which is already there does not find expression in the word "appearing". We always say "purposes appearing" but "things provided". In the circumstances, the word "provided" would be a better substitute and would fit in with the established practice of draftsmanship. With these few words, I offer my amendment for the consideration of the members.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved that in clause 5 of the Bill, for the word "appearing" at the end of the clause, the word "provided" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment. In my opinion, the word "appearing" sounds nicer than the word "provided". My honourable friend has referred to section 6 of the Indian Income-tax Act. It runs as follows:—

"Save as otherwise provided by this Act, the following heads of income, profits and gains, shall be chargeable to income-tax in the manner hereinafter appearing, etc."

Sir, I think both the Government of Bengal and the Government of India are agreed that "appearing" is a better word in this context.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 5 of the Bill, for the word "appearing" at the end of the clause, the word "provided" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 5 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 6.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question is that clause 6 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in clause 6 of the Bill, for the word "Agricultural" in line 2, the word "agricultural" be substituted.

Sir, this is also a drafting amendment. The House will be pleased to consider that the word "Agricultural" does not require to begin with a capital "A". It should not begin with a capital letter unless it be in accordance with the rules of grammar; that is, unless it is placed at the beginning of a sentence or forms the first word in a line in poetry. In the circumstances, the letter "a" of "Agriculture" should begin with a small letter. That is a very simple position. In fact, it is a pity that this small thing should have escaped the attention of the draftsman or of those who are responsible for drafting of the Bill. I wish, therefore, to substitute a small "a" for the capital "A". Such use of capital "A" is not to be found anywhere else. This amendment is calculated to improve the text and to avoid the grammatical error. There is, after all, the question of usage and the question of grammatical accuracy which is to be respected although there are some of us here who are ready to laugh away all ideas of grammatical propriety.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 6 of the Bill, for the word "Agricultural" in line 2, the word "agricultural" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: As on the previous occasion, here capital "A" is necessary, and that is what we have been advised by our drafting experts. I must, therefore, oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 6 of the Bill, for the word "Agricultural" in line 2, the word "agricultural" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move that in clause 6 of the Bill, the words "or revenue" in lines 2 and 3 be deleted.

It may be asked why I am again moving this amendment after a similar amendment in respect of this very clause has been negatived earlier. The reason is apparent. I find here that this is the direct clause where we are going to make provision for assessing this tax on agricultural income. Therefore, no ambiguity should be allowed to remain—

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: On a point of order, Sir. A previous amendment in respect of this very section and in respect of this very matter also having been negatived, this amendment cannot arise. This amendment raises the very question that the earlier amendment raised. There it appeared in inverted comma and here again also it does so; namely, "agricultural income hereinafter referred to as 'agricultural income from rent or revenue', etc.", in clause 5(i), and the very thing appears also here in clause 6, lines 2 and 3. So he cannot move the deletion of an expression which has been retained by the consent of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That will do, Khan Bahadur. I think he is right Mr. Mukherjee.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I do not think, Sir, he is right, because in clause 5—

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I may remind the honourable member that amendment No. 78 is being moved and not 79.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Or, I am sorry. Sir, I agree with the Hon'ble Leader of the House and I don't move 78. I will move amendment No. 79.

I beg to move that in clause 6 of the Bill the words "and revenue" in line 3 after the word "rent" be deleted.

Sir, the reason why I move this amendment is this—

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: On a point of order, Sir. This amendment is also not in order. After having said "rent or revenue" in clause 5, it becomes consequential—"in respect of all rent and revenue". So I do not think it can be moved.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, the point is this: that Government in their Bill have always inserted the word "revenue" after the word "rent". That is the definition I think—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But I think it is consequential.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, it is consequential.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: But, Sir, "in respect of all rent and revenue" will be inconsistent—

Mr. PRESIDENT: It seems to me that it is consequential. So you don't move it.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I beg to move that in clause 6 of the Bill, in paragraph (ii) of sub-clause (I), after the words "local rate" in line 1, the words "or tax" be inserted.

Sir, I want to make it clear—any local rate or cess includes tax. If there is any fresh tax that should be included—that is what I mean in this amendment and that is the reason why I have moved it and hope that it will be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in clause 6 of the Bill, in paragraph (ii) of sub-clause (I), after the words "local rate" in line 1, the words "or tax" be inserted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, the words "local rate" are appropriate; but if by the addition of the words "or tax" the honourable mover means taxes like sales tax, etc., sales of the crop, then such tax would be allowed and we have already provided for that in sub-clause (10) of clause 6.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in clause 6 of the Bill, in paragraph (ii) of sub-clause (I), after the words "local rate" in line 1, the words "or tax" be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I beg to move: That in clause 6 of the Bill, in paragraph (ii) of sub-clause (I), after the words "Education cess" in line 1, the words "and including the tenant's share of any such rate or cess" be inserted.

Sir, landlords are generally required to pay all sorts of cesses and therefore they are entitled to this relief. They should be allowed to realise the cesses from the tenants and this should be included.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 6 of the Bill, in paragraph (ii) of sub-clause (I), after the words "Education cess" in line 1, the words "and including the tenant's share of any such rate or cess" be inserted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, this amendment is not only unnecessary but is misleading. The Education cess which the landlords pay is generally realised from the tenants, though in law the payment is not conditional upon the tenant's paying the cess. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in clause 6 of the Bill, in paragraph (ii) of sub-clause (I), after the words "Education cess" in line 1, the words "and including the tenant's share of any such rate or cess" be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move: That in sub-clause (I) of clause 6 of the Bill, in paragraph (ii), after the words "in respect of such land" in line 2, the following be added, namely:—

"Payable under the Cess Act, 1880, the Bengal (Rural) Primary Education Act, 1930, or under any other Act which may come into force hereafter."

Sir, I move this amendment to make the definition expressly definite and clear.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (1) of clause 6 of the Bill, in paragraph (ii) after the words "in respect of such land" in line 2, the following be added, namely:—

"Payable under the Cess Act, 1880, the Bengal (Rural) Primary Education Act, 1930, or under any other Act which may come into force hereafter."

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I think this drafting amendment is unnecessary. I oppose it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in sub-clause (1) of clause 6 of the Bill, in paragraph (ii), after the words "in respect of such land" in line 2, the following be added, namely:—

"Payable under the Cess Act, 1880, the Bengal (Rural) Primary Education Act, 1930, or under any other Act which may come into force hereafter."

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 6 of the Bill, the word "borrowed" in line 6 be deleted.

Sir, I would refer the honourable members of this House to the clause itself for the purpose of understanding the amendment which I am moving. Clause 6 refers to agricultural income subject to the following allowances, and in the case of the allowances under sub-clause (2) a provision is made: "where his interest in such land is subject to a mortgage or other capital charge, the amount of any interest paid by him in the previous year in respect of such mortgage or charge, and where such land has been acquired, reclaimed or improved by him by the use of borrowed capital." I propose that the word "borrowed" should be deleted, because I think that it would be admitted on all hands that it is necessary to improve the lands and funds are necessary for that. He may not use it from the borrowed capital. He may use it from the income which he has derived from the land itself. That amount ought to be given to him by way of allowances. With regard to allowances, I say that the capital amount that is employed, even if it is not borrowed, should be excluded. If it is spent from the agricultural income, it is for the improvement of that very land. I do not know why the Hon'ble the Leader of the House is astonished at this? It is not a question of interest, it is a question of a capital amount that has been spent for improving the land and if the capital amount has been taken up from the income of the land itself, I say that ought to be excluded from the operation of the tax that year. If it is not excluded, then people will not be inclined to improve their lands, because they would have to pay the income-tax on that capital amount that may be spent, and it may be that he would not be in a position to pay the income-tax if he has spent the capital amount which he had to use for the purpose of improving the land itself. I would like to hear the Hon'ble the Leader of the House with regard to this amendment.

With these words, I support the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (2) of clause 6 of the Bill, the word "borrowed" in line 6 be deleted.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, my honourable friend wants that the entire capital that is spent on improvement or reclamation of the land should be excluded from the operation of the tax. If that is the object of his amendment, then he should have asked for that in his next amendment. But he has not done so. So his amendment becomes meaningless, and therefore I oppose this amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I think that the amendments Nos. 84 and 85 should go together, for independently they are meaningless.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: If that is so, then I move both of my amendments together. Therefore I ask the leave of the Chair to move both the amendments together.

Mr. PRESIDENT: There is no objection to your moving them together.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 6 of the Bill, the word "borrowed" in line 6 be deleted.

I also beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 6 of the Bill, for the words "the amount of any interest paid by him in the previous year in respect of such capital" in lines 6, 7 and 8, the words "the capital so used" be substituted.

I do not think I need make any speech.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: My honourable friend wants that even money spent on the acquisition of land should be excluded from this tax; if a man purchases land for further improvement of his existing land, even that purchase money is to be left untaxed. I do not think that is at all fair: Therefore, I would oppose the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I support the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Which amendment? Or do you support both the amendments?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I support both the amendments. They are consistent and are linked up together, even though they are separate. The first amendment without the second would be illogical, as has been pointed out by the Leader of the House; but taken together, they assume a symmetrical shape. Sir, the position briefly is this: Money spent for improving the land will increase the income from the land, and that will yield increased taxation. This increase in income from land will be taxed; but you are in addition going to tax the capital itself which will bring about this increased income. Once you are taxing the income and then again you are taxing the capital; that amounts to double taxation. So if you exclude this sum from the tax, then there will be no harm because it would encourage the people to improve their land. Some encouragement should be given to the people to spend on improvement of agriculture which is one of the objects of the Bill and which is laid down in the Floud Commission's Report, although nowadays that report meets but with scant respect from this House. Still, Sir, that should be the main object of the Bill. If encouragement is given to the people for improving their agriculture, then Government would be gaining in improved receipts, and the raiyyats would be encouraged in practising frugality and prudence. But instead of doing that, you are going to tax their capital with which they are to bring about the improvements. That is not fair or prudent. With these words, I support the two amendments.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I take it that we are discussing amendments Nos. 84 and 85 together. The purpose of these amendments is partly to restrict the scope of the sub-clause and partly to enlarge it. The sub-clause at present provides for allowances in regard to interest paid on capital borrowed for improving land but the amendments suggest that interest should not be allowed as a deduction but that the whole of the capital should be allowed as deduction, irrespective of whether such capital has been borrowed or not. First of all, there is no reason why interest should not be allowed as deduction when the capital has been borrowed for the purpose; secondly, expenditure of capital cannot be allowed as deduction from income: this cuts across the principle of the Bill itself. Therefore, I oppose both the amendments.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (2) of clause 6 of the Bill, the word "borrowed" in line 6 be deleted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (2) of clause 6 of the Bill, for the words "the amount of any interest paid by him in the previous year in respect of such capital" in lines 6, 7 and 8, the words "the capital so used" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House now stands adjourned till 3 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 65.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Wednesday, the 26th July, 1944, at 3 p.m., being the sixty-fifth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, Mr. Suhrawardy has left for Dacca. With your permission, I would like to answer the questions standing in his name tomorrow.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Very well, Mr. Suhrawardy's questions will be taken up tomorrow.

Detenus Sj. Profulla Ranjan Chakravarty and Sj. Sudhir Kumar Aich.

244. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state if the Government contemplate the desirability of releasing Professors Profulla Ranjan Chakravarty and Sudhir Kumar Aich of the Brojo Mohan College, Barisal, who are still in detention?

(b) Do the Government consider the advisability of providing them with suitable allowances for their maintenance?

MINISTER in charge of the HOME DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) No.

(b) No. The honourable member may refer to Bengal Security Prisoners Rules 8 and 14.

Sir, I would like to add to the answer and it is to the effect that question (b) was a bit vague. It is not clear whether the honourable member meant maintenance for the prisoners themselves or for their families. As far as maintenance of the family is concerned, the families of both the security prisoners are in receipt of maintenance allowance. As far as the security prisoners themselves are concerned, the honourable member no doubt is aware that the policy of the Government is not to grant any personal allowance.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what allowances are allowed to the families of the detenus for maintenance?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Security prisoner Profulla Ranjan Chakravarty was at first granted a family allowance of Rs. 50. But that allowance has been increased to Rs. 75 per month by Government letter No. so and so, dated 30th June, 1944. Security prisoner Sudhir Kumar Aich was originally granted an allowance of Rs. 40 per month with effect from 12th May, 1943; but this was enhanced to Rs. 60 per month from 15th September, 1943.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Were these security prisoners informed of the reasons for which they were taken into custody and, if so, did they reply to those charges?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Before the new Ordinance was promulgated, it was not customary to inform the security prisoners the reason why they were taken into custody; but under the new Ordinance, the provisions of which are strictly being followed, I assume that these security prisoners are being informed in the manner suggested therein.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: As the question refers to their release, did the Hon'ble Minister take into consideration the reply that was given by those security prisoners to the charges made against them?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As I have already said, the provisions of the new Ordinance have been complied with and Government think that they cannot be released at the present time.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I ask the Hon'ble Minister whether he personally examined these cases and took into account the explanation that they gave in reply to the charges?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I have nothing further to add to what I have already stated.

Longer hours of sitting.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yesterday there was a suggestion about longer sitting. I have very carefully considered this question. Now, in view of the fact that up till now we have not been able to make sufficient progress with the principal business before the House and in view also of the fact that Ramzan is approaching and it would be inconvenient for a large number of honourable members of this House to attend the sittings of the House during Ramzan, I think it is desirable that we expedite the business of the House and this can be done in two ways as I mentioned yesterday. Firstly, by expediting or speeding up the business and, secondly, by sitting longer hours. I think both are necessary to some extent. Now, as regards the first procedure, of course, the Opposition, I fully realise, should be given full facilities to press their points of view; but as regards sitting longer hours, I hope there will be no objection if I decide that we shall sit from 3 p.m. to 5-45 p.m. from Monday next, that is, three quarters of an hour more than our usual sitting. I only suggest three quarters of an hour because that, I think, would be least inconvenient and least irksome to the honourable members. I hope the House will accept the decision.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, with regard to the observations which you have just made that during the Ramzan it will be inconvenient for the Muslim members to attend the House, may I say that in previous years, the Council used to sit up to 4 p.m. during the Ramzan so that Muslim members might say their prayers and attend to other religious duties without interfering with the work of the Council? I think, Sir, you will kindly consider this—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Certainly I have considered all these points; but I am afraid my honourable friend forgets the point that was made out by Khan Bahadur M. A. Momin that many members hailing from mufassil would like to go back to their homes during the Ramzan if possible, because in the present circumstance it will not be convenient for them to remain in Calcutta and perform the religious duties during the Ramzan.

Mr. BIREN ROY: Sir, can't we sit earlier, say, at 2-30 p.m.?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have not the least objection to sit earlier. I shall accept the majority view in this matter. If I find it suits the majority to sit earlier, I will certainly agree.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, may I suggest an earlier hour?

Mr. PRESIDENT: What time do you suggest?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, it will be convenient if we sit at half-past one. As regards the speeding up of the debate, I think it is being speeded up from yesterday—

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is all right. Your suggestion is that we start at half-past one. Is it?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Yes, Sir.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir I suggest that time be increased only by half-an-hour.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Why? Do you think that forty-five minutes would be too long a time?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, it will be convenient if you would allow us to sit from 2-15.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I have the views of Mr. Laidlaw?

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: Sir, 2-15 would suit us very well.

Mr. PRESIDENT: So, if we sit at 2-15, let us sit up to five o'clock.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS and other members: Very well, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Therefore, from Monday next we shall start at 2-15 p.m. and continue up to five o'clock for the present. But we may have to increase the sitting hours still further, if necessary.

Special Motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: As regards the special motion under 96 about which Mr. Lalit Chandra Das gave notice yesterday, I find the Chair has been asked to fix a date. The Chair can fix the date only with regard to non-official business; but where official business gets preference the date has to be fixed with the consent of the Government under Rule 20. So may I have the views of the Hon'ble the Chief Minister?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, may I speak?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I think the date should be fixed on Friday, i.e., on the non-official day, because this is a non-official matter and so it should be treated as an ordinary private resolution. Government is not prepared to give one of its own business days for the discussion of a matter like this.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, the other day the Hon'ble the Chief Minister was present in the House, and as we objected to a date being fixed on a non-official day the matter was referred to you for a decision. Otherwise, the matter would have been disposed of that very day. The Chief Minister was almost willing to fix a date on a Government day, but as he could not fix upon a particular date, the matter was referred to you.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, all along I maintained that the discussion of a subject like this should take place on Friday, i.e., on the non-official day, and not on a Government business day. I never at any stage, as far as I remember, agreed with the suggestion that such a discussion should be held on a Government day. I would ask the honourable members opposite to consider the fact that the Agricultural Income-tax Bill has got to go through; and as the month of Ramzan is approaching, it would be extremely inconvenient to protract the sittings of the House, as it would cause considerable hardships to the mofussil members. So we want to finish it, if possible, before the 20th of August and, therefore, I feel that every day is valuable and unless something exceptional happens we should go ahead with Government business which for the present consists of a financial or taxation measure and which has got to be put into effect this year.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, may I say a few words, since in a way I am responsible for the present situation? It was at my suggestion the other day that this question of special resolution came up at all. My honourable friends on my right, specially the mover of the adjournment motion, was insistent that it should be moved as an adjournment motion. I made a suggestion that this subject was obviously in the interest of the House to discuss. It affected the rights of a very large number of officials in this province and through them also the fortunes of all the people of this province. This matter should, therefore, be discussed at all costs. Since Government did not seem disposed to agree to the adjournment motion just then, I thought that a via media could be found if a special motion on the subject were tabled. When I made my suggestion, the Hon'ble the Home Minister accepted that suggestion and said that it was a proper matter to be discussed as a special resolution. He wanted to take up the special motion on a Friday to which the Opposition objected since we had already missed many Fridays. By agreement with Government and at the specific request of some members of the Government party, the Opposition forewent their right of having a private member's day last Friday. Another Friday should not, therefore, be taken up for a matter which was primarily the concern of the Government. The Hon'ble Deputy President said that so far as the question itself was concerned, there was agreement on both sides of the House that it should be discussed as a special motion. So far as the fixing of a date was concerned, Government wanted a private member's day and the members thought it would be an undue encroachment on the rights if a non-official day was allotted for the purpose. If a matter which was primarily the responsibility of the Government, which arose out of the action of Government and for which many members of the Opposition wanted to move an adjournment motion, if such a matter were to be taken up on a non-official day, it would be an undue encroachment on the rights of the private members. The Hon'ble the Deputy President who was in the Chair, therefore, decided that this question should be decided by you. It is now for you, Sir, to decide whether the matter is one for which a private member's day should be given up or not. I quite see the force of what the Hon'ble Sir Nazimuddin has said, namely, that a money bill is pending in this House and Government want to finish it by the 20th August, if possible; but at the same time, this is also a matter which has been created by the Provincial Government and it relates to an important matter of Government decision. Therefore, it is for you to decide whether a private member's day should be sacrificed for this purpose.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That will do. I have understood your point. But the difficulty is that in view of the statement of the Hon'ble the Chief Minister the Chair has no option in the matter. I would refer you to rule 20 regarding arrangement of business, which says that when Government business has precedence, the Governor may arrange the business in such order as he thinks fit. Therefore, the Chair can only fix a date for non-official business. So I fix Friday next for the consideration of this special motion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Friday this week?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, Friday this week, that is, the day after tomorrow.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will there be no other business on that day?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, that will depend. Suppose we finish the special motion early, then other business also may be taken up.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the non-official business in that case be non-official resolutions?

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, I think it will be Addresses to the Governor.

Adjournment Motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Now we will take up the adjournment motion of Mr. Haridas Mazumdar.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I beg to move that this Council do adjourn its business—

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, before the honourable member moves the adjournment motion, may I say a few words in this connection? Sir, we have not yet seen the judgment of the High Court—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point order, Sir. I am in possession of the House and was just moving my motion, how then can the Hon'ble Minister make a statement now?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Just a minute Mr. Mazumdar. What is it, Khan Bahadur Sahib?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: My submission to you is that I have not yet got a copy of the judgment of the High Court. So until we have a—

Mr. PRESIDENT: You cannot make a statement before the adjournment motion is moved. You may say what you have to say after the adjournment motion is moved.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: But, Sir, unless a copy of the judgment is in my possession, how can I know the position? Unless we go through the whole judgment which is lengthy and apply our mind to it in order to find out what is the position, it is not possible to reply to—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point of order—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Please wait, Mr. Mazumdar.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: We have got no official copy of the judgment—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur, the point is this: you find it difficult to reply to this debate on behalf of Government in view of the fact that you have not yet got a copy of the judgment nor have you been able to apply your mind to it. When was the judgment delivered?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: My information is that the judgment has not yet been signed.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The point that has been raised is for your consideration. The facts are that we have not yet been able to get a copy of the judgment which is very long, about 145 pages, and, what is more, our information is that the judgment has not yet been signed—there is no guarantee that it has been signed. And, Sir, the honourable members—and this is a very important point—not one of them was present in the court. So not one of them knows what the text of the judgment is; so until the honourable member has a copy of the judgment, I submit it cannot be said what is the text of the judgment. Because it does not contain full judgment. The honourable mover has asked to consider the effect of the judgment of the High Court, but how can one see the implication of the judgment if that judgment is not obtainable. I, therefore, submit that if necessary this adjournment motion may be discussed a week hence when copies of the judgment would be obtainable to anybody. How can the Government reply to the debate in the absence of a copy of the judgment? The honourable mover has cited an extract of the judgment published in the newspaper. I am not saying that the motion should be disallowed. I say, let the motion be discussed as soon as a copy of the judgment is available.

MR. PRESIDENT: These points which are now being raised by Government should have been raised when the question of admissibility of the adjournment motion was under consideration. They did not object then. Now they say that they were not in a position to reply to the debate. Usually it is the practice to fix the discussion of an adjournment motion as soon as possible. So, it was fixed today. No objection was taken by the Hon'ble Minister then. Now I am told that Government have not got a copy of the judgment, that they had no time to apply their mind to this motion, that they are not in a position to reply to this motion and so on and so forth. I quite appreciate the difficulty. Take for instance, the other adjournment motion regarding the publication of the price lists. As soon as the Chair realised the difficulty of Government that without legal advice the Government could not reply to the debate, the Chair fixed a date after a week. Now, as regards this motion, practically the Government was a consenting party to the decision and for Government to get up now and to say that they are not in a position to reply to the debate is an attitude for which there is no precedent. I cannot now ask the House to defer the discussion to a date convenient for Government. I fully sympathise with Government. I think this difficulty ought to have been foreseen by them.

Yes, Mr. Haridas Mazumdar.

MR. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I beg to move: That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation arising out of the judgment of the Special Bench of the Hon'ble High Court regarding the Howrah municipal affairs and Mr. B. P. Pain, Chairman of the Howrah Municipality.

Sir, I should like to point out at the very outset that we do not treat this motion as a vote of no-confidence against the Ministry, but just as affording an opportunity for discussing a first-rate constitutional crisis where a High Court has found the action of a Provincial Government to be a colourable use of the Defence of India Rules designed to protect a Minister against an impending law suit relating to the illegal use of public funds.

This now-famous judgment which may, after all, prove to be the first nail in the coffin of the present Ministry was secured at considerable sacrifice and personal expenditure by a body of public-spirited men on the western bank of the Ganges, and the whole of Bengal owes a deep debt of gratitude to Babu Banwarilal Ray and others whose names will live in history and who have served to lift, however partially, the screen that hides from public view a clandestine state of affairs carried on by this purdah Ministry which wants to live and flourish in a life of concealment.

MR. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, you must confine your observations to the situation that has arisen out of the judgment of the High Court.

MR. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: All right, Sir.

A number of Publicity Officers has recently been appointed, at a time when every rupee should be like a prisoner and looked at twice before being let off. His Excellency the Governor said some time ago that these appointments are not for any political purpose—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Mazumdar, I cannot allow you to speak like that. If you cannot refer to the High Court judgment, then you let someone else to do so on your behalf. But it would be very unfair if you proceed like this.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I am coming to the High Court judgment.

His Excellency the Governor said some time ago that these appointments are not for any political purpose—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I cannot allow that, Mr. Mazumdar, for that is a matter which cannot be discussed in this House. We cannot discuss His Excellency's conduct here.

Mr. Mazumdar, you must confine your observations strictly to the situation that has arisen out of the judgment of the High Court.

Mr. AMULYADHON ROY: On a point of order, Sir. May I submit for your consideration as to whether the honourable member is or is not entitled to go into the situation which was prevailing in the Howrah Municipality just preceding the order of supersession?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, he can, only if it is relevant to the motion before the House; otherwise not.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The only question relevant is the situation created by the judgment; but the mover cannot criticise the orders that have been passed.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I think I am entitled to do so. But to resume. Now, Sir, who has been appointed to this post of Subdivisional Publicity Officer? He happens to be a nephew of Mr. Salim.

Mr. SULTANUDDIN AHMED: Sir, you have ruled that this matter is not in order.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Well, Sir, I am coming to the point.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, you must come to the point at once. If you cannot speak on the relevant matter, leave it to your friends and supporters.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Who do you think, Sir, was the rival candidate? This candidate had not the requisite or the minimum qualifications—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Which candidate?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: The candidate who has been appointed as the Subdivisional Publicity Officer.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Mazumdar, you must come to the point. You cannot refer to these things.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I may tell this House and through it the general public that I understand that a contract for supplying seeds to the value of half a lakh of rupees was given to a cousin of his, perhaps living under the same roof. The seeds were supplied, but they did not germinate. So money spent benefits not Bengal agriculture, but her Agriculture Minister. There is another point.

Mr. SULTANUDDIN AHMED: Sir, this has nothing to do with the High Court judgment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I must ask you to resume your seat, Mr. Mazumdar, if you go on in this way. I cannot allow you to continue.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: This purdah affair is of a piece with the "Barada" affair of the Howrah Municipality. Three days before the super-session, Mr. Pain, Chairman, appointed a son of the Vice-Chairman, who does not possess the requisite qualifications prescribed under Government rules framed under the Bengal Municipal Act, as Market Superintendent on a salary of Rs. 100 per month. There is no dearth of qualified and poor Muhammadan youths at Howrah who could fill this post. Some time ago in a suit, Birendra Nath Kar and others versus Rabbindra Lal Sinha, the trying munsiff of Howrah, held that the proceedings of the meeting which elected Mr. Pain's nominee as the Chairman of Ward Committee No. 7 were illegal. On appeal the sub-judge upheld the decision of the munsiff. But in spite of the two judgments, Mr. Pain has not taken any steps to rectify the wrong and is flouting the court's orders—

Mr. LATAFAT HOSSAIN: Is all this relevant to the subject, Sir?

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: But at least it relates to the affairs of the Howrah Municipality.

• Mr. SULTANUDDIN AHMAD: The member is speaking of the previous history of the Howrah Municipality.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Yes, certainly; he is doing so.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I believe, Mr. Mazumdar is now trying to make out his case and is giving the background of the affairs of the Howrah Municipality. And so long as he is referring to the affairs of the Howrah Municipality I will allow him to continue; but he must strictly confine himself to them and the moment he digresses I will stop him.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: All right, Sir. The wrong is continuing. The Chairman is flouting the court's orders and his nominee still flourishes as the Chairman of the Ward Committee. In regard to disappearance of land, the Government auditor's note referred in clear and unambiguous terms to erasures and new insertions in the record-of-rights and stated that they bore no attestation. When the audit note came up before a meeting of the Commissioners, they demanded an enquiry. The Chairman for two years had suppressed the enquiry and taken no steps in that direction. In the High Court Mr. Justice Das in his judgment said: "In view of these allegations and charges, which stood uncontradicted, it was impossible to hold that the appropriate authority had actually applied its mind to the facts or to the conditions precedent to the exercise of the power, or that the impugned order was made in good faith." His Lordship was satisfied that the petitioners had established that the "order was made for the collateral purpose of protecting Mr. Pain against the threatened litigation and the maintenance of the vital services of the Howrah Municipality in the event of an hostile attack had nothing whatsoever to do with the order".

In His Lordship's judgment the making of this order was clearly an abuse or, at any rate, a colourable use of the powers conferred by rule 51F of the Defence of India Rules and could not possibly be regarded or sustained as an order "made in exercise of those powers". The charges have been accepted as true. Let me now quote from the affidavit in the High Court some of the charges. On the 19th May, 1944, the majority of the Commissioners of the Municipality of Howrah acting under the advice of the Advocate-General of Bengal tabled a motion for a requisition meeting to institute a suit for enforcing the personal liability under section 104 of the Bengal Municipal Act against the said Chairman for loss, waste and mis-application of public money and illegal payment of municipal funds. Particulars are given below:

Under the relevant statute and statutory rules and in particular under section 103 of the Bengal Municipal Act and rule 147 of the Municipal Account Rules framed by Government, every contract involving an expenditure over Rs. 500 must be sanctioned by the Commissioners at a meeting and shall be in writing and signed by at least two Commissioners. In order to circumvent the same, the said Mr. Pain split up estimates and got contracts each for less than Rs. 500. To cite one instance: a room was constructed for the said Chairman at the municipal premises. It involved an expenditure of over Rs. 3,000. Separate estimates were made for floor, roof and walls and separate contracts were given—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar you may cut short your speech and come to the actual situation.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: All right, Sir. Such illegal estimates and contracts in respect of various public works were sanctioned by or under the authority of the Chairman to the extent of rupees one lakh without sanction of the Commissioners.

The Government auditor reported after enquiry that there was a shortage of land to the extent of 3 bighas and 19 cottahs belonging to the municipality, out of the total land of 41 bighas comprised in the municipal trenching ground which was converted into a park. Mr. Pain had his own land, about 8 bighas, adjacent to the same. Enquiry was sought to be instituted as to the said shortage or loss of land belonging to the said municipality.

Posts and appointments were made by the Chairman which were not legal and not confirmed by the Commissioners on the ground that men appointed were without the requisite qualifications as required by the Government rules. In spite of the same being pointed out, salaries were being paid to such persons. The said payments were illegal and the requisitionists wanted to stop such illegal payments.

The said Mr. Pain was apprehensive of the disclosures that would follow such a motion and the institution of the suit against him and he wilfully failed to call a meeting within the 30th May, 1944, the period of 15 days prescribed by statute. The Commissioners of the municipality on the 2nd day of June 1942, called a meeting under section 78(2) of the Bengal Municipal Act and the meeting was fixed for the 12th day of June, 1944, 5 p.m.

On the 7th day of June, 1944, the Hon'ble Mr. Pain, the said Chairman, requested the Commissioners to withdraw the motions and stated that he would stop the order of supersession of the municipality if the resolution was withdrawn. He offered to stay such supersession order, which he had apparently arranged and been apprised of, if the resolution tabled for the meeting of the 12th June, 1944, was withdrawn or even postponed.

On the 8th day of June, 1944, a meeting of the Commissioners who sent the requisition was held and they decided not to withdraw the said motion. Mr. Pain came to know the said decision. Supersession order mentioned as aforesaid followed on the 9th day of June, 1944.

The Provincial Government, if its action were bona fide could have passed an order under sub-rule (3) of rule 51F of the Defence of India Rules asking the Municipality of Howrah to take specific measure or measures which it deemed necessary for ensuring the maintenance of the vital services of the said municipality. No such order was ever made. At no time whatever the Government of Bengal had made any grievance or complaint on the ground that the municipality had failed to maintain the vital services or that there was any danger whatever to the maintenance of the vital services of the municipality. As a matter of fact, complete civil defence scheme was prepared by the Howrah Municipality and the same was approved by the Government of Bengal and has been completely given effect to and the Government of Bengal has been regularly contributing a portion of the recurring expenditure for the execution of the said scheme without any complaint whatsoever.

The order for supersession has been passed not to defend or protect Howrah or its vital services but to shield a member of Government from the consequences of his own misdeeds.

Now, the question arises as to what should be done with regard to the two bodies, viz., the Howrah Municipality and the Bengal Ministry. Will the second municipality of Bengal taking its birth immediately after the grant of Local Self-Government by one of India's good Viceroy, Lord Ripon, be allowed to function normally as it is doing now? Mr. Justice Das observed that the order of supersession of the municipality was illegal and invalid. Therefore, any act designed to defeat the object of the order of the High Court will be considered as contempt of court. But this lawyer-Chairman has scant regard for law. Since Mr. Justice Edgley's judgment delivered by the middle of June allowing the municipality to function normally, he has not called one meeting of the Commissioners and wants to create a deadlock by committing statutory breaches under the protecting wings of the Ministry. He has not attended the Municipal Officer these two months. Can the affairs of Bengal's second municipality, for the breakdown of whose vital services the Government expressed an over-abundant measure of concern lately, be managed in this way? This gentleman does not dare to tread the soil or face the public of Howrah. Mr. Pain finds time for everything except for doing the duties of a Chairman of a municipality which he will not relinquish either. Recently in the Lower House he treated his audience to an oft-quoted passage of Edmund Burke. I should like to quote Grattan's remarks about Giffard: "When I observe the quarter whence the objection comes, I am not surprised at its being made. It proceeds from the hired traducer of his country, the ex-communicated of his fellow-citizens, the regal rebel, the unpunished, ruffian, the bigoted agitator. In the city a fire-brand, in the court a liar, in the streets a bully, in the field a coward. And so obnoxious is he to the very party he wishes to espouse that he is only supportable by doing those dirty acts the less vile refuse to do."

As regards the repercussions of the judgment on the Ministry let me cite the instance of His Excellency Mr. Glancy, the Governor of the Punjab, in dismissing one Minister on the ground of improper treatment meted out to a lady teacher. The facts here are proved and the Federal Court can go only into the points of law. Are these proved charges not grave enough to dismiss the Ministry here? Public money should no more be spent on a law suit in the higher court. The plea of enemy raid first on Howrah and then, if possible, on Calcutta is ludicrous, as stated recently by the Statesman. The proceedings of this meeting should be placed before His Excellency who should decide whether a Ministry like this can be entrusted with large sums of money.

I want to say a few words to my European friends. They have read the judgment in the Statesman. There it was said that it was a devastating judgment, not devastating from the point of view of the Chairman of the Howrah Municipality but devastating from the point of view of the public of Bengal, the ratepayers of Bengal. I should like to point out to them that they should think twice before they go to the Ayes lobby or to the Noes lobby. For them the only path of rectitude is to say that the judgment is passed against an act of Government and they should, if not by speech, at least by votes, support this motion. With these few words, I move the adjournment motion standing in my name.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation arising out of the judgment of the Special Bench of the Hon'ble High Court regarding the Howrah Municipality affairs and Mr. B. P. Pain, Chairman of the Howrah Municipality.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA DATTA: Mr. President, Sir, I propose to be very brief in view of the ruling you have given that we should not digress. I will only deal with the effect of the judgment on the order of supersession of the Howrah Municipality and the issue of quo warranto on Mr. Nomani. I am supporting my learned friend Mr. Haridas Mazumdar's motion.

Sir, no act of any Government has received the judicial indictment as sordid and discreditable as this mala fide invocation of the powers under the Defence of India Rules for helping a particular Minister of the Cabinet. The High Court's Special Bench has held that the order passed on the 9th of June, 1944, superseding the Howrah Municipality is illegal, invalid and unsustainable. The High Court has further held that the powers under the rules of the Defence of India Act were exercised mala fide and, if I may quote the words of his Lordship the Chief Justice "for a colourable purpose," and for the purpose of protecting the Hon'ble Mr. Pain, a member of the Cabinet, from a threatened litigation. According to the said orders, Mr. Nomani has been enjoined from acting under the order of supersession by the Government. He usurped the offices of the Chairman and Commissioners which, according to the learned Judges, Mr. Nomani had no legal right or warrant to do.

Sir, as regards the Province of Bengal, the writ of Certiorari and Prohibition was asked for; but the Court held that the order being an executive one and not a judicial order, it had no jurisdiction to issue those writs against the Province of Bengal. These writs failed on technical grounds, but the writ of quo warranto against Mr. Nomani succeeded. I think, there is some amount of confusion in the minds of some of us here as regards the point as to whether the Court by discharging the rule so far as it related to the issue of the writs of Certiorari and Prohibition and not expressly setting aside the order of supersession issued by the Government impliedly directed the Commissioners to function as before. But that is so, Sir. The Court in fact has held that this order of supersession and appointment of Mr. Nomani was invalid, illegal and unsustainable and that, therefore, Mr. Nomani was a usurper and had no right or warrant to be there. The Court had to go into the matter about the legality or illegality of the order of the Government to determine the question as to whether Mr. Nomani was there under a proper order or not, and it did come to the conclusion that the order appointing Mr. Nomani was illegal, invalid and could not be sustained. Therefore, the position is this: that Nomani as a usurper has had to vacate his seat, the seat of the Chairman and the Commissioners and the legal effect of that would be that the Chairman and the Commissioners would be restored to their previous status and they should be functioning as members of the Howrah Municipality as before and that, therefore, there was no deadlock. The Chairman should continue to function immediately and not let things go astray in the way they are doing just now.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: On a point of order, Sir. I find that the Minister in charge of the department is absent. It has been held on a similar occasion before that it is necessary for the Hon'ble Minister concerned to be present and listen to the debate if he intends to reply to the debate in whatever way he can, as otherwise the debate will be absolutely meaningless: that is my point of order.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is not strictly a point of order; but it is no doubt proper that the Hon'ble Minister should be present here.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA DUTT: I would submit that these few minutes which are being reduced from my quota will not be counted. As I was submitting, Sir, I understand that the Chairman now takes his stand on the view that he is now functus officio and, therefore, he cannot now act; but in view of the order of Their Lordships the Municipality of Howrah should be functioning immediately after or as soon as Mr. Nomani has vacated. I am afraid, he is entirely wrong in his views. The warrant under which (Mr. Nomani) ousted the Chairman and Commissioners of the Howrah Municipality and occupied the chair has been held by the High Court to be illegal, and, therefore, he must go. As soon as Mr. Nomani vacates his office, the old state of affairs, namely, the status quo ante of the municipality must be deemed to be restored. That is why I say there is no deadlock at present there as suggested by the Hon'ble Minister for Local Self-Government yesterday. As a matter of fact, the Chairman and Commissioners should be made to function and that immediately—

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: I have not got the official report of my speech of yesterday, but so far as I remember I did not say so.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA DUTT: All right, Sir, I stand corrected to that extent. But as I was suggesting, the position now is, that there is in fact nobody in the municipality to function. I had received information from a very reliable officer of the municipality that a cheque for payment to the Calcutta Electric Supply Corporation either today or tomorrow was sent to the Imperial Bank, but that cheque was refused by the bank on the ground that they were not quite clear as to the effect of the order of the High Court and they, therefore, referred the matter to their legal advisers.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: May I say that late yesterday evening I got the information that the cheque of the municipality was dishonoured? This information may help my friend.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA DUTT: I am also told that there is a proposal by the Government to help the Howrah Municipality financially so that it might carry on. There is the question of payment to the conservancy that has got to be made. This may be done. But there is the day to day administration of which you are well aware from your previous experience, Sir, that the municipality has to do its daily routine business. That could not be done in the absence of a Chairman. There are breaches of sanitary rules, there are breaches of engineering rules, building rules. Prosecutions will have to be started against these infringements. But who is going to pass orders? There is nobody to do so. This mere financial help to the municipality cannot make it function without the Chairman actually resuming his work. I will not dilate on the various other points. But, Sir, you know that the Chairman has refused to work. It may be that he is under a misapprehension that he is functus officio. But it must be said that the effect of the order was to make him alive—very much alive—to his duties. In any way, the position is that the municipality is practically at a standstill. The salaried officers will have to be paid on the 1st or 2nd of the next month. But nothing has been done to solve that point. Their Lordships have given a sufficient hint that the Government should be well-advised to withdraw this order as early as possible and I would request the Government that the sooner they withdraw this order the better not only for them but for everybody concerned.

I would not dilate on the various points raised by Mr. Mazumdar..... (here the member reached time-limit). I hope you will give some time as some time has been taken up by the points of order raised while I was speaking.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Extra time has been included.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA DUTT: I am in your hands and I resume my seat.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, a point has been made by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Local Self-Government that he has not yet received a copy of the judgment of the High Court and the House cannot, therefore, go into the matter fully. I shall, therefore, deal with the broader aspects of the case as reported in the Statesman. I think reports of High Court cases in the Statesman are accepted even by the High Court till certified copies are available. Certain broader and undeniable aspects of the judgment are very significant.

Some important aspects of the judgment have already been referred to. They are that this supersession order was supposed to have been passed by the Government for the purpose of maintenance of the vital services of the municipality in the event of a hostile attack. But although the order purported to serve this purpose, the High Court came to the conclusion that this was absolutely a colourable use of power: in fact, a misuse of power. I do not desire to include the Hon'ble Minister in this sinister business, but somebody or bodies somehow managed it; and according to the High Court, the real object of the supersession order was rather to serve indirect ends than to serve the purpose of the war. In view of the fact which cannot be gainsaid that the shadow of the war is gradually vanishing from the borders of Bengal and is receding more and more into the interior of Burma and is probably fading out or will fade out from the eastern theatre in a very short time, the order at this moment is unjustified. But that is not the point which I have in my mind. One finding of the judgment is absolutely decisive, namely, that the order of supersession was bad. The High Court felt that they could not pass an order against the Government of Bengal because the order was passed in the name of the Governor, but they gave an injunction upon the officer appointed by the Government restraining him from taking charge of the administration of the municipality. Now an impossible situation has been created by the judgment. Mr. Nomani, who was appointed by the Government to discharge the functions of the municipality, has been restrained, and unless the judgment is set aside, this order stands. Now, the effect of this order should be rather disastrous on the municipality unless something is done meanwhile. There is a gap in the municipal administration at Howrah and I have an authority before me which would show that the Howrah Municipality, instead of being Mr. Nomani's land, is now really in "No man's land". This supersession order was passed under rule 51F of the Defence of India Rules, sub-rule (4). The effect of this order is described in sub-rule (7). The sub-rule says "When an order of supersession has been made under sub-rule (6), all the members of the local authority shall, as from the date of supersession, vacate their offices as such members". The Municipal Commissioners, including the Chairman and the Vice-Chairman, having by virtue of the order vacated their offices, the Municipality is now under no master. The sub-rule further provides that all the powers and duties of the municipality shall be vested in the person appointed by Government, that is, in Mr. Nomani. The sub-rule further provides: "All property vested in the local authority shall, during the period of supersession, vest in the appropriate Government": that is, the Government of Bengal. Now the monies, properties, its carts and vehicles, its offices and furniture and all other things belong to the Provincial Government. The Municipal Commissioners have ceased to function; the Chairman and Vice-Chairman have no authority to act and, by a clear and unambiguous order the High Court has effectively restrained Mr. Nomani from functioning.

May I ask as to who is now the master of the Howrah Municipality? It is now a fatherless and motherless municipality. In fact, a situation has been created by the judgment which is unparalleled. I think, Sir, the point was suggested by you yesterday, and it should have been taken up by the authorities in the meantime. Now the situation created is that the municipality cannot function. If the Hon'ble Minister is right in saying that the municipality is now functioning, it is an illegal functioning, and if money is spent by anybody in the municipality, he would be chargeable with a criminal offence. This grave situation should at once be remedied.

The High Court has held that the supersession order is illegal; it has, in consequence, restrained the officer appointed from acting at all. The High Court has also held that the supersession order is invalid and illegal and a colourable transaction or rather an underhand transaction to help a certain private individual. In the circumstances, should the supersession order be allowed to continue, first of all, when the High Court has condemned it as a collusive affair, and secondly, as the municipality cannot function? If it is functioning, it is functioning illegally and irregularly. In order that the municipality should function properly, the order of supersession should be vacated. I have got a very large precedent for this course. You will be pleased to remember, Sir, that the Special Court Criminal Ordinance, No. II of 1942, was promulgated by the Viceroy and an innumerable number of courts were created. These courts had tried innumerable number of accused persons and thousands were convicted by the courts. But the Federal Court held that these courts had been illegally constituted. As soon as the judgment was passed by the Federal Court, the Viceroy, without waiting for a copy of the judgment, at once repealed that Special Ordinance No. II of 1942 by another Ordinance, No. XIX of 1943. This was done on the day following the day of the judgment, and it is to be remembered that the Government of India had in their mind an intention of filing an appeal to the Privy Council. Now the situation that has arisen in Bengal is exactly on a par with this. I believe, Sir, that the supersession order itself should be superseded and the municipality should be allowed to function in the normal way. The High Court should be respected, and its decision should be treated with some courtesy. It is impossible to allow things to drift like this—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Your time is up.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: All right, Sir, with these words, I support the motion.

Mr. J. W. R. STEVEN: Mr. President, Sir, as we understand the situation arising out of the High Court decision, the officer appointed by Government, Maulvi Hamid Hasan Nomani, to carry on the powers and duties of the superseded Chairman and Commissioners has been restrained by order of the High Court—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Steven, do you mind speaking through the microphone?

(The member went to the microphone.)

Mr. J. W. R. STEVEN: I would rather prefer to repeat what I have already said. As we of the European Group understand the situation arising out of the High Court decision, the officer appointed by Government, Maulvi Hamid Hassan Nomani, to carry on the powers and duties of the superseded Chairman and Commissioners has been restrained by order of the High Court from carrying out these duties. On the other hand, we understand that the order of supersession still subsists and, therefore, the Chairman and Commissioners are unable to carry on the work of the municipality. If we are correct, this is undoubtedly a serious situation and we think that the Opposition have been done well in bringing it before the House.

It is up to Government to satisfy the House that satisfactory arrangements have been made for carrying on the work of the municipality. We cannot acquiesce in the present situation which appears to us to mean that there is no executive head in charge of the municipality. One solution would be to cancel the order of supersession, dissolve the municipality, and order a general election. We would like to be satisfied as to the objections to adopting this course which appears to be the fairest one in the circumstances. There was a general election very recently in the City of Calcutta, and it is difficult to see, in view of this, what reasonable objection can be taken to a general election in Howrah. If, however, Government do not propose to take this course, then we must know what arrangements Government propose to make to carry on the work of the municipality. It will not do to allow matters to stand as at present until a Federal Court decision is obtained as this would mean, in effect, allowing the present stalemate to continue for an indefinite period.

The other serious aspect of this matter is that doubts have been expressed by the High Court as to the validity of this exercise by Government of their powers under the Defence of India Rules to supersede Howrah Municipality, and in fact the good faith of the Government has been questioned. This, Sir, is a serious stigma which Government must take immediate steps to remove. We, Sir, in another place supported the order of supersession because we were satisfied that there were good grounds for supersession of the municipality. We are now, however, faced with a different situation in which the good faith of Government has been questioned by the highest Court in Bengal. Government must, in our opinion, satisfy the House that they have acted in good faith. We feel, however, that from the point of view of Government, it is essential that there should be a proper official enquiry into the working of the administration of the Howrah Municipality during the past few years and into the allegations against the Chairman.

Before we decide our attitude towards this adjournment motion we would like to hear from the Honourable Minister, in the first place, what arrangements he proposes to make for carrying on the work of the municipality; and in the second place, what action he proposes to take to remove the undoubted stigma which the High Court decision has attached to Government. We would like to know in particular that an official enquiry will be set on foot immediately.

Mr. BIREN ROY: Sir, as a representative in this House of the municipalities in the districts of Howrah, Hooghly and 24-Parganas, and also as one representing officially the recognised Association of Municipalities in Bengal, I would be failing in my duty if I did not associate myself with this note of protest against the manner in which the premier municipality of Howrah, administered under the Bengal Municipal Act, has been superseded.

Much has been said and written about this regrettable episode and I do not intend to dilate on it any further. But the way in which things are moving and facts as they stand now with regard to the number of municipalities superseded in Bengal show that if things are allowed to continue in this manner it would lead to a negation of self-government in this province. Sir, even with all its drawbacks I am in favour of allowing full freedom to a local self-governing institution and this, I suppose, is the general idea of the present members of the Cabinet whose chief has stated on various occasions that he would see that even the system of nomination in the case of municipal institutions is abolished. I consider that the local bodies of this province are the training centres for future administrators. Even our Chief Minister himself was for a long time Chairman of the Dacca Municipality and there are several members on the Cabinet today who some time or other also served in the municipalities or district boards in their respective areas. I think, Sir, that with all their party factions and electioneering contests no one could ever think of kicking out their Chairman or Chief while serving their fellow citizens in local self-governing institutions in such a manner as has recently fallen to the lot of the municipal administrators of the second city of Bengal and of bringing about a deadlock, as noted by the learned Judges of the High Court, by a colourable use of the Defence of India Rules. May I know, Sir, for whose benefit and to protect whom this was done? Mr. Pain had once been one of the leaders of the local self-governing institutions in this province and was also associated with the All-Bengal Municipal Association and his name has appeared in connection with this supersession. It is very sad to find that today Mr. Pain will be instrumental in bringing down the institution of Local Self-Government in Bengal. Mr. Pain would not like to be hounded out of the district, as he publicly announced, where he has served for the last two decades; but he can take a hand in getting his colleagues out from the administrative positions which they hold as representatives of the electors of the place, because they could not see eye to eye with him. Mr. Pain is not now a resident of Howrah. He is now a resident of the metropolis of Calcutta and has chosen to be under the protective wings of Sir Nazimuddin.

Now, Sir, there may be private factions in a municipality; there may be party factions as we have also various parties in this House fighting and agreeing again with each other. That is a recognised principle of the democratic system of government. If such differences are taken into account, then there will be ample scope for superseding the whole legislature and for that no such invocation of Defence of India Rules will be necessary. Section 93 of the Government of India Act already provides for it. But would Mr. Pain or his other colleagues like such supersession? I for myself or members who are connected with the local self-governing institutions would never think of supersession or the abuse of powers in any form. We are here for running democratic institutions in spite of all our differences and are anxious to fight evil inside and outside.

Somehow or other, the Government has been ill-advised and being ill-advised it has gone to such an extent that this atrocious order of supersession has been made in respect of the largest municipality in Bengal. The Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Local Self-Government in reply to a question in this Council last session stated that he was considering the proposal of the Bengal Municipal Association for the formation of a Local Self-Government Advisory Committee, a committee which was proposed at the open session of the conference of the municipal administrators of Bengal year after year with a view to strengthen the ties between the Government and the local bodies and also to secure a general improvement in the tone of administration of such local bodies in this province and also to offer advice to the Government before actually such cases of supersession of municipalities take place. Nothing has since happened to this announcement. We fully endorse the views expressed by the European Party here, that there should be an end of this state of affairs in Howrah and, if necessary, there ought to be an immediate order for general election, so that real representatives of the people may again be elected to take charge of the administration of this local self-governing institution.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, I am in a very difficult position so far as this party is concerned. I had something to do with the course of litigation elsewhere and, therefore, I have to be very careful in what I say about that aspect of the matter which was dealt with in the judgment itself. The Acting Chief Justice in his judgment has said that the anxiety that has brought this matter to the High Court is not the welfare of the ratepayers, but it was something different. It has also been said that this municipality was possibly one of the worst municipalities in the province right from the year 1932 onwards but suddenly in the year 1942 certain incidents occurred over the A.R.P. organisations when some of the Commissioners of the municipality woke up and when in 1943 the Chairman of the municipality accepted the position of a Minister in the Provincial Cabinet against the wishes of some of his co-religionists, this desire became very keen and it was then that he was persecuted at every available opportunity. But that is not a new thing even. Mr. Parnell, the Irish leader, had to suffer such indignities. Forged letters were manufactured to run him down. For a few days he was the most obnoxious man in the British Empire. His crime consisted in the fact that he was fighting for the freedom of his people. Recently, we all know, now a letter was forged and made use of immediately before a General Election in England with the deliberate purpose of driving from office a Labour ministry in England. Having the advantage of the Press, and with the judiciary sympathetic towards the point of view represented by friends opposite, the Opposition are in a better position to create a show of a case out of nothing. The persecutors of Mr. Pain are cognisant of all these advantages and they are proceeding step by step.

So far as the High Court is concerned, it had not the advantage of a Government affidavit. Government did not place before the High Court the facts which were in their possession—the facts on the basis of which they were justified in taking the action. Whether it was the proper and right step to be taken was for the Government and their legal adviser to say. The legal adviser was satisfied that in view of the legal position as they understood it, a demurrer's attitude was the best attitude in this case.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a point of order, Sir. Does this arise out of the judgment of the High Court? The judgment of the High Court has in unmistakable terms pointed out that as the Government—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But what is the point of order?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: The point of order is that he was going behind the judgment of the High Court.

Mr. PRESIDENT: As the Opposition tried to give us their background, so Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury is also giving us the background.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, my learned friend is a successful lawyer and as such he knows the advantage of interruption.

Sir, as I was saying, the legal adviser of Government was of the opinion that it was a perfect case for demurrer's attitude. In other words, it was asserted that the High Court, as constituted under the law, had no jurisdiction to interfere—

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, is he entitled to criticise the High Court judgment?

Mr. PRESIDENT: He is not criticising.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, from that point of view the Government did not file an affidavit which the High Court subsequently thought was necessary for the Government to place before them. The High Court said that the procedure which is followed by the High Court is: that one side came up with the facts whereas the other side for some reason or other did not place the facts and, therefore, the Court resuming the facts to be true proceeded at once on that basis. Now, the position that has arisen immediately on the basis of the High Court judgment is not whether the judgment is correct or the supersession order is good or bad. It is an ancient history. The subject before the House is that a stalemate has been created so far as the Howrah Municipality is concerned, and so far as the stalemate is concerned, it is for the Government to find out ways and means. I should make myself clear that it will be the duty of the Government to arrange things in such a way that so far as the rate-payers are concerned, they do not have to suffer in the least on account of this difficulty that has been created. Sir, further I should say that it is well-known and the House also should know that the financial position of the municipality is anything but good. I am told,

Sir, that annual revenue or income of the municipality is 21 lakhs of rupees, but the arrears stand at 29 lakhs of rupees—a thing which is not to be heard of in any of the local bodies in the province. Therefore, if the municipality is allowed to function, it cannot function without financial assistance. In fact, as early as 1939 or thereabout there was a definite proposal by the then Collector of the district to supersede the municipality, because it was incompetent to run its own organisation. Any one who had the misfortune to pass through the roads of Howrah knows the condition of the Howrah Municipality and how they maintain their roads. That is the financial position and the supersession order is a reflection on all concerned; the whole group or gang of them who are now posing as patriots. Any one who knows the condition of the Howrah municipal roads will at once be able to say how the administration of the municipality is carried on. As late as 1939-40, and also as late as 1941, the municipality applied for a subvention from Government saying that they were not capable of carrying on the work of the municipality and along with that I understand there was a recommendation of the Additional District Magistrate for the supersession at least of the Assessment Department, because it was not only incompetent but also corrupt and this corruption had crept in not because the Chairman did not exercise his responsibility but because members of the committee were such that they saw to it that well-to-do people did not pay their assessment, or that assessments whenever made were such successfully challenged by the defaulter. And thus such a condition of affairs arose in the municipality that the Commissioners were unable to—

(At this stage the member reached the time-limit and resumed his seat.)

Mr. LATAFAT HOSSAIN: (Spoke in Urdu.)

The Hon'ble Mr. BARADA PRASANNA PAI: Sir, as one of the persons most directly affected by this adjournment motion, I desire to say a few words on this occasion. For the last fifteen months, and for the last three months in particular, a perfervid propaganda has been carried on against me, because I recognised the fact that the Hindus in Bengal, as elsewhere, must agree to work hand in hand with the Muslim League for the welfare of the province, and I had the courage to act according to my convictions. Mahatma Gandhi has today made it clear in no uncertain manner that the Hindus must not merely co-operate with the League but must make in their favour concessions of a far-reaching character, in order to earn their goodwill. To do my humble bit, I left a profession which had always treated me well and in which I had made thousands of friends within the province and outside. I endeavoured, in my humble way, to serve my province. For more than 20 years I have been actively associated with the Howrah Municipality and in July, 1942, I had the unprecedented honour of being elected Chairman of that municipality for the fourth term. I was connected with numerous public institutions and my assistance and co-operation were eagerly sought on all hands. All these changed in a day immediately I joined the present Ministry, and the most abominable lies have been and are being propagated against me. I can do no better than quote the following passages from my speech in the Bengal Legislative Assembly on the 21st June last on the no-confidence motion against me:

“Ill-informed and mendacious criticisms have been made about my administration of the Howrah Municipality, and allegations have been made that I deliberately absorbed 4 bighas of municipal land into my own land and that I have been guilty of unauthorised expenditure of large sums of money which have resulted in loss and waste of municipal money and that illegal payments were made under my orders. After these charges were made, as Chairman of the municipality I asked the Hon'ble Chief Minister to cause an immediate enquiry to be made into these allegations by an officer not below the rank of a District Judge. Even then, I consider that I owe it to the House today to give them an idea of the position, so that it might know the kind of mischievous propaganda which is being carried on against me. The allegations about the land is that the municipality had in 1878 taken lease of 45 bighas of land, that the present measurement of the land is found to be 41 bighas and that as I have land on the north of the municipal land, I must have absorbed 4 bighas of municipal land into my own land. I cannot conceive of anything more fantastic than this.

Firstly, there was Government survey of the land in 1916-17 when it was found to be 41 bighas 3 cottahs 6 chittacks and 15 square feet and not 45 bighas.

Secondly, the survey record-of-rights made in 1916-17 also shows 41 bighas 3 cottahs 6 chittacks and not 45 bighas.

Thirdly, in 1929 the municipal Survey Superintendent surveyed this land and he also found it to be 41 bighas 3 cottahs 6 chittacks and 15 square feet and not 45 bighas.

Fourthly, in 1940 the municipal bustee alignment overseer verified the land and he also found the same measurement.

Fifthly, in 1941 a sub-committee of the Municipal Commissioners examining a scheme for development of the area accepted the plan drawn up by showing the total quantity of land to be 41 bighas 3 cottahs 6 chittacks and 15 square feet and remarked: "We have examined the plan and approve generally of it."

Sixthly, the Report of the Sub-Committee was approved and confirmed by the Commissioners at a meeting held on May 16, 1941.

Seventhly, there existed a ten-feet wide drain between the municipal land and my land and absorption of municipal land into my land was a physical impossibility.

Eighthly, the land which I purchased in March, 1940, was 6 bighas, and today, on measurement, it is found to be a little less than 6 bighas and not ten bighas which should have been the case, if I had absorbed 4 bighas of municipal land.

Ninthly, the party from whom I purchased, bought it in July, 1939, from Lalit Mohan Roy and others and his document also shows that the area conveyed was 6 bighas.

Tenthly, Lalit Mohan Roy's father purchased it from Panchuram Maiti previously in 1919 and his document also shows the area of the land conveyed to be 6 bighas only.

Eleventhly, Panchuram Maiti purchased it from one Mr. Fairweather on September 22, 1919, and his document also shows that the area conveyed was 6 bighas.

Twelfthly, two suits were instituted against Mr. Fairweather in 1911 and 1912 in respect of this land by one Mr. Khitindra Nath Tagore and the plaints, judgments and decrees all show the area of the land to be 6 bighas. Mr. Fairweather won the suits which were No. 866 of 1911 and No. 977 of 1912 in the court of the Second Munsif of Howrah.

Thirteenthly, Mrs. Fairweather to whom the land originally belonged had bequeathed it by will to Mr. Fairweather years before. This will also show the total quantity of the land to be 6 bighas.

Another false statement made is that I incurred unauthorised expenditure to the extent of about a lakh of rupees. I had only ordered expenditure which I was competent to order of 24 items of work of less than Rs. 500 each which were emergent and which in the aggregate was below Rs. 12,000. Revised rates for twenty-one of these items were later sanctioned by the Commissioners in meeting and they cannot, therefore, by any stretch of imagination be said to be unauthorised. Revised rates for only three, aggregating in value less than Rs. 1,200, have not yet been before the Commissioners for confirmation. Fearing how very reckless they have been in their allegations, the Opposition in the Howrah municipality only day before yesterday have sent in a requisition for rescinding the resolution confirming the 21 items, so that they might at least show alleged unauthorised expenditure of about Rs. 11,000. That is how charges of maladministration are being bolstered up against me and are being circulated through a definitely unfriendly press.

It has been said that Government passed orders superseding the municipality in order to protect me from a threatened law-suit. If these facts furnish materials for a law-suit against me, I do not, I fancy, need much protection. It has also been said that the Commissioners were prevented from passing a resolution at the requisition meeting notified to be held on the 12th of June last sanctioning a law-suit against me. A reference to the requisition itself will show that the requisitionists did not know whom to sue, me or, in their own language, some other person who may be found to be liable. They did not know or state what to sue him or me for. They did not know or state what the misconduct or illegal payment or loss or waste was. They did not indicate anything. All that they did was to hunt out a section from the Bengal Municipal Act and to copy its language into their proposed resolution. The whole idea was to coerce me into submitting my resignation from the Ministry on the issue of the Secondary Education Bill.

It has been asked why no affidavits were filed stating these facts in the High Court. I was no party to the proceedings there and I could not swear any affidavits; but as I have said, on the 21st of June I made in the Assembly the statement from which I have quoted. I have again asked the Hon'ble Chief Minister to appoint immediately a senior District Judge to enquire into the allegations made against me.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the motion that has been moved by my friend Mr. Mazumdar and in doing so, I would go straight to deal with the effect of the judgment of the Hon'ble High Court. To do so, I have to read the exact order which has not been placed before the House and which order was declared to be illegal by the Hon'ble High Court. This order was passed on the 9th June, 1944. The order runs as follows:—

"Whereas the Governor is of opinion that it is necessary to supersede the Commissioners of the Howrah Municipality for ensuring the due maintenance of the vital services of the said local authority in the event of hostile attack. Now, therefore, in exercise of the power conferred by sub-rule 6 of rule 51F of the Defence of India Rules, the Governor is pleased to supersede the Commissioners of the Howrah Municipality for a period of one year with effect from the 9th June, 1944."

Sir, the order of supersession, therefore, is to take effect for one year from the 9th of June, 1944. Now, Sir, immediately after this order was passed, some of the Commissioners of the Howrah Municipality moved the Hon'ble High Court and a rule was issued originally against Mr. Nomani who was the officer appointed by the Government of Bengal to administer the Howrah Municipality. Now, when the matter came up before the Hon'ble High Court, an objection was taken that the Government was no party and the whole proceeding was vitiated. A rule was issued as to whether the writ of certiorari and the writ of prohibition should not be issued upon the Province of Bengal on the affidavit which was filed by the Commissioners of the Howrah Municipality. The matter was dealt with by Mr. Justice Edgley and the case was referred to a Special Bench and after all this you will find, Sir, that in the petition which was presented to the Hon'ble High Court serious charges were laid against Mr. Pain himself with regard to his action in the municipality as Chairman. No affidavit was filed in the High Court either on behalf of the respondent, that is, Mr. Nomani or on behalf of the added respondent, i.e., the Province of Bengal. We have heard just now from Mr. Pain that he was no party to this order or to this proceeding, and, therefore, he could not file any affidavit. I think Mr. Pain knows fully well as a successful lawyer that he should have filed an affidavit on behalf of the Province of Bengal or on behalf of Mr. Nomani. But why he did not do so is quite obvious. Mr. Pain knows very well that whatever he speaks on the floor of this House either in the Lower House or in the Upper House would not be subject to any criticism anywhere, but if he files an affidavit and if that affidavit is found to be false, then his place will be somewhere else and his position will not be that of a Minister of the Cabinet. He enunciated his 13 points—unfortunately, he did not enunciate 14 points—in his statement today thereby defending himself that he did not appropriate any land of the Howrah Municipality. If he had such a strong defence, why did he induce the Ministry to obtain the order of supersession from His Excellency the Governor? The High Court in unmistakable terms pointed out that the order was secured and procured in order to save Mr. Pain from some legal proceedings in the Court and that the hostile attack which was referred to in the order of supersession was not the hostile attack of Japan or any other enemy but was the hostile attack of the Commissioners of the Howrah Municipality against Mr. Barada Prasanna Pain himself. This is made perfectly clear in the High Court judgment. Sir, we were surprised to hear the Hon'ble the Chief Minister today pointing out seriously that as they have got no copy of the judgment, it is impossible for the Government to consider what the situation is. There is no question of reading the judgment of the High Court which runs to over 150 type-written pages. The Advocate-General and Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury who represented the Province of Bengal in the High Court knew what the order of the High Court is and, therefore, the Government also know what exactly the order of the Hon'ble High Court is.

The only question is: what the Government is going to do after having got the order of the High Court. As a matter of fact, it was seriously argued before the High Court that as the Honourable High Court could not issue any writ of certiorari against the Government, probably the order which the Government was going to pass was—

Mr. LATAFAT HOSSAIN: Sir, is the honourable member reading from a certified copy of the judgment?

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is understood that whenever an honourable member makes a statement in this House, he takes responsibility for it.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Mr. Justice Das in the course of his judgment referred to a well-known observation of the Lord Chief Justice of England as follows: This is the King's Court; we sit here to administer and interpret the laws of this realm in the King's name. It is respectful and proper to assume that once the law is declared by a competent judicial authority, it will be followed by the Crown.

I would remind the honourable members of this House and also the Hon'ble the Chief Minister, and the Minister in charge of Local Self-Government that the High Court exercised jurisdiction on this occasion as the King's Court, as the supreme court for this province and, therefore, the observation of the Lord Chief Justice applies strictly to the judgment of the High Court. I am glad that my friends sitting to our left, I mean the European Group, have not in this instance supported the Government and have declared in no unmistakeable terms that they want the Government to take steps immediately in accordance with the orders of the High Court. The judgment of the High Court was pronounced on Wednesday last, I believe, on the 19th July, and seven days have elapsed since then and still we find that the Government is sitting tight over the judgment without taking any action. Sir, I need not refer to the position of the Howrah municipality which has been to some extent referred to by my friend

Mr. Bankim Chandra Dutt. One thing that I should like to say is this—His Excellency has directed that the Commissioners of the Howrah Municipality are unfit to carry on the work of the municipality. Now, Sir, the Commissioners include Mr. Pain also and, therefore, there is in that order a censure upon Mr. Pain himself. I suppose His Excellency will consider whether Mr. Pain could remain as a Minister after the supersession order which was obtained by him and his colleagues. I will only refer in this connection to an action of the Governor of the Punjab where one Minister was dismissed for an offence far less heinous than this offence of which Mr. Pain was now accused and which the High Court finds has been proved to the hilt. This should be taken note of by His Excellency and he should consider whether Mr. Pain should be allowed to administer the funds of this province to the extent of several crores when he could not manage the funds of the Howrah Municipality whose income was in the neighbourhood of 19 or 20 lakhs only.

Mr. KRISHNA CHANDRA ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, as usual, I shall be brief. The effect of this judgment on the people has been electric. But I will not speak on the legalistic aspect of the judgment. I will speak only on the realistic aspect of it, and it is this: that people are going. I mean the employees of the Howrah Municipality, are going without pay and they cannot be paid as my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad has said that the municipality is now fatherless and motherless.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I hope you will be brief, as you promised.

Mr. KRISHNA CHANDRA ROY CHOWDHURY: Yes, Sir, I shall finish in two minutes. You will find that everybody whether in the tea shops or in the football grounds or anywhere else is saying after reading the judgment: why is it that the Minister and Chairman of Howrah Municipality does not resign in spite of the stigma cast on him by the judgment? Throughout the length and breadth of Bengal it is being said that the Hon'ble Mr. Pain should have taken recourse to resignation. He should come out of the Government, take his position as an honest public man and then try to clarify his position and defend himself; but he still sticks to his job and pretends to be innocent of the charges made in the affidavit before the High Court.

The third point is: It is an utter irresponsibility on the part of the part of the Government. When they knew that the judgment created a deadlock, why did they not vacate the supersession order, as was done in connection with a case cited by my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. What did the Viceroy do when the Federal Court judgment was passed? The next day the Viceroy issued a second ordinance and allowed the status quo to be maintained. So the Government would be well advised to cancel the order of supersession and to order re-election, otherwise the Ministry would continue to be the laughing stock of the whole country and the rate-payers of the municipality would refuse to pay taxes.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I will deal with only two points and the other points will be dealt with by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the department. The two questions are what the Government propose to do to resolve the deadlock that has been created; and what steps Government propose to take about the enquiry suggested by Mr. Pain. Sir, I feel that after what Mr. Pain has stated about the allegations, it ought to be clear to every fair-minded person that the allegations, that are being made in this House and in other places are purely political and have no foundations whatsoever. It is unfortunate that Government did not file an affidavit and allowed the High Court to pass certain remarks; but we were assured by our legal advisers that on the ground of jurisdiction we were bound to win the case. As we were anxious to have a decision quickly for the purpose of solving the impasse that has been created, we felt that if we went into the question of affidavit the case could be delayed.

Our position at the present moment is this: as stated before, we have not received any certified copy of the judgment and it is very difficult for us to come to any decision as to the steps that we should take on this question. I would like the honourable members to realise that the judgment of the High Court is not merely confined to the Howrah Municipality. The implications are rather serious. (Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Yes.) If the judgment is not challenged before a superior court, it is likely that the action under the Defence of India Rules may be open to question at any time. By the procedure which has been adopted by the High Court, we do not know whether the appeal will be to the Federal Court or to the Privy Council. So, as I said, apart from the question of the Howrah Municipality we may be advised by our legal advisers to file an appeal on this question. This is the situation as far as our legal position is concerned; but we can give this assurance that as soon as we are in possession of the judgment, we will take steps to see that this impasse which has been created is somehow or other solved. The Hon'ble Minister for Local Self-Government Department will presently inform you about the steps that have been taken to continue the administration of the essential services of the Howrah Municipality.

Now, as regards the question of allegations, I am personally definitely of opinion that in view of the remarks of the High Court the Government must take early steps to have an enquiry made by a high and responsible judicial officer into the administration of the Howrah Municipality during the last four or five years and also into the allegations that have been made against the executive authorities of the Howrah Municipality. (Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Why not allow the Commissioners to file a suit?) I would like Mr. Mazumdar who is so enthusiastic over the matter to finance the Commissioners to file a suit; but why the municipal funds should be spent on suits against the municipal authorities? Now, I do not understand against whom these allegations are made. As far as we are concerned, we are definitely of opinion that there ought to be a proper and suitable enquiry at the earliest opportunity. It was not possible for us to hold an enquiry as the matter was sub judice. But as the judgment has now been delivered, we shall hold an enquiry immediately. The Minister for Local Self-Government Department will be able to give you facts and figures why it was necessary to supersede the municipality and here I may repeat the argument which I used in another place and that is that from my personal experience as an ex-Chairman of a municipality for more than six years, I know how difficulties can be created by party factions amongst the Commissioners. I believe my honourable friend sitting over there on the opposite side, Rai Bahadur Keshab Chandra Banerjee who was the Vice-Chairman during the time I was the Chairman, will be able to tell you how efforts are sometimes made to pull down the Chairmen and the Vice-Chairmen. I say this that when Government realised that the situation had become such that whereas on one hand the Chairman had not the majority to get his decision carried out, the Municipal Commissioners on the other hand had not the majority which would entitle them under the law to turn out the Chairman, they thought that it was a perfect impasse. Indeed, there was a perfect impasse so far as the Howrah Municipality was concerned, because whereas on one side the Chairman could not get his resolution through because of obstruction by the Municipal Commissioners, at the same time the opposition party also were not of sufficient strength to get sufficient majority which will remove the Chairman. (Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It is a technicality.) It is not a question of technicality—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Your time is up.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: All right, I resume my seat.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I enquire of Sir Nazimuddin as to whether his promised enquiry will cover the question of the maintenance of the vital services against enemy hostility?

(The honourable member repeated his question once again, but no answer was given.)

(At this stage several honourable members rose to speak, but they were not allowed to do so.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I am afraid the Hon'ble Minister-in-charge is entitled to speak for full 20 minutes, and it is fair that he should be given opportunity to reply to the debate on behalf of the Government.

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: Sir, ten members can speak under the rules.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You object to Government replying to the debate? You must realise, Mr. Mesbahuddin, that when Government want to reply to the debate, the Minister-in-charge is entitled to speak for full 20 minutes, and it is only fair to the Hon'ble Minister-in-charge, it is fair to the House and it is also fair to the subject under discussion that the Minister-in-charge should be given full opportunity to speak.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, the points that have been raised by Mr. Steven of the European Party, and also by other honourable members of the House as to whether arrangements have been made for carrying on the essential services of the Municipality—

Several Members: We cannot hear.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: All right, I am speaking loudly. I can tell the House that so far as the essential services are concerned, we have made arrangements that they should be carried on and that the staff of the conservancy service should be paid regularly. We have made 1 lakh 80 thousand rupees available to the District Magistrate with instructions to pay the staff of the municipality out of this sum, and the Secretary of the municipality would be carrying on the essential services with the money that will be provided. In the meantime, we are considering, as soon as we get a copy of the judgment, what is the legal situation that has arisen out of the judgment of the High Court. Beyond this I cannot say anything.

Now, Sir, I would like to say a few words on this order of supersession of the Howrah Municipality. I made it quite clear while speaking in another place that nearabout Howrah the Serampore Municipality was superseded, the Hooghly Municipality was also superseded; no objection was taken or raised at the time. But as soon as the Howrah Municipality is superseded, a hue and cry is raised. Other municipalities were also superseded. For instance, the Burdwan Municipality was superseded and as I have already stated the Serampore Municipality was superseded on 22nd June, 1944. The state of affairs in the Hooghly-Chinsura Municipality was not worse than that in the Howrah Municipality, but still the former municipality was superseded before the turn of Howrah municipality came. The Howrah Municipality was inspected by Mr. Stuart, the District Magistrate, in 1940 and he found it in the worst possible condition; later on it was inspected by Mr. Hartley, the District Magistrate, who too found that the condition of the Howrah Municipality was in a worst possible state. I may also say in this connection that some time ago a memorial was submitted by the Commissioners of the Howrah Municipality to His Excellency, the late Sir John Herbert, saying that the municipality was in a worst possible state. So, whatever else it may prove, it proves and it is admitted that the Howrah Municipality was in a mess and was beyond redemption. The Collection Department and the Conservancy Department were the worst offenders. The District Magistrate said that it was no wonder that the Chairman of the municipality should live in Calcutta. This was in 1941 when Mr. Stuart inspected the municipality. The Municipal Commissioners gradually found that they were incapable of managing the affairs of the municipality, as arrears of rates and taxes had accumulated to the extent of lakhs of rupees and it was increasingly becoming impossible and was beyond the power of the Commissioners to run the municipality with so much arrear accumulating. That is why they asked for a subvention of 6 lakhs of rupees and in this connection, the Additional District Magistrate was deputed to enquire. Government having considered his report came to the conclusion that with this state of affairs the municipality could not be run and that it was thoroughly incapable of maintaining the vital services of the town in case of an air raid. There were strikes of sweepers going on also nearabout.

Well, these facts were placed before the Government and on these facts Government came to the conclusion that the municipality should be superseded. It is unfortunate that the High Court referred to Mr. Barada Prasanna Pain; however that is a matter for Mr. Pain himself.

In the first instance, Mr. Nomani was made a party as he was the officer appointed there. Then the Government was made a party. Government took the stand that High Court had no jurisdiction, as they were advised by their legal adviser that they had nothing to speak on affidavit. Then, Sir, the injunction was passed. We are considering the question of appeal. We have got permission to file an appeal; but as has been explained by the Hon'ble Chief Minister, we are considering the point whether appeal lies to the Federal Court or to the Privy Council. Meanwhile, we have applied for a certified copy of the judgment and that is why I submitted to you that it would be difficult for Government to take part in the discussion of this motion unless we have a copy of the judgment. Then, Sir, if as a result of the appeal the decision of the High Court is reversed, what will be the position regarding this adjournment motion? High Court decision is not the last say in the matter.

Now, Sir, so far as the bona fide of the question is concerned, I have made it quite clear that Government had no other alternative but to supersede the municipality. It would appear from the report submitted by the District Magistrate that some of the Municipal Commissioners had solicited the Government to supersede the municipality for bad finance. There is no question of shielding Mr. Pain. I must say that the suggestion that the supersession order was passed in order to shield Mr. Pain is entirely wrong. If that had been the intention of the Government, they would have asked Mr. Pain to resign his chairmanship of the municipality and then the order of supersession would have issued. So there was no question of shielding Mr. Pain, as has been said by the Opposition. We have condemned the working of the municipality. (Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Thereby you are condemning Mr. Pain.) Yes, we have condemned the action of the entire municipality and this condemned Mr. Pain with others. With these words, I oppose the motion.

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMED: Sir, I shall not take much time—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, how can he speak now?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Can he make a speech after the Hon'ble Minister-in-charge has replied?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Not ordinarily, but I have permitted him as a special case.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, I rose five times but could not catch your eyes.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You may speak after the Khan Sahib.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: This is an adjournment motion and there is a certain time-limit. So can it go on indefinitely—

Mr. HARISDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I move that the questions be now put.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Do you want that the questions be now put?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Yes.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that the question be now put.

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMED: Sir, as we live we learn, provided of course we have the mentality to add to our knowledge anything that comes in. This debate would have been absolutely in an atmosphere of unreality if we had not heard what we have just now heard from Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury. He knows the full text of the judgment and from the portions that have been published in the newspapers it is not possible to assess the circumstances or the situation that has arisen as a result of this judgment. Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury having direct touch with the facts and circumstances of the case and having direct connection with the actual conduct of the case is in the know of more facts than are known to any other member of this House. He comes in and says that from his personal knowledge of the circumstances he thinks that the High Court proceeded on an assumption that Government did not have facts and that the High Court proceeded on an ex parte evidence.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: On a point of order, Sir, is he entitled to say that the High Court proceeded on an assumption or proceeded on ex parte evidence?

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMED: I again say that the High Court proceeded on an ex parte evidence.

Therefore, the judgment of which much capital has been made in this House is not of much importance to us, much sanctity has been attached to the judgment, but certain vile—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. As two hours are now over, the debate automatically comes to an end.

I adjourn the House till 3 p.m. to-morrow.

Adjournment.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 68.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Thursday, the 27th July, 1944, at 3 p.m., being the sixty-sixth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

Point of Information.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, yesterday I made a promise that I would answer the questions standing in the name of the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy. But the relevant files were mislaid somewhere and they could not be put up to me in time. They have been made over to me only just now and so I could not be ready for answering supplementaries today. I will go through the files today and with your permission I would reply to the questions tomorrow.

Mr. PRESIDENT: So those questions should stand over today.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I have tabled a short-notice question on the basis of a strong rumour in the lobby that Mr. Janankur De, an intimate friend of Mr. Pann, is going to be appointed in connection with the enquiry promised by the Home Minister yesterday. I have a shrewd suspicion that it will have the consent of the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Local Self-Government Department.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have not seen that question as yet, Mr. Mazumdar. It has not been admitted by me. I must examine the question first and then it will have to be sent to the Minister in charge for his concurrence.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point of information, may I raise the matter today?

Mr. PRESIDENT: No. As you have put in a short-notice question, you should wait.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: But you will see, Sir, that I may not have to wait for a full year for an answer to the question.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But what makes you assume that?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, many short-notice questions are still lying with Government unanswered.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I cannot assume that the Hon'ble Minister would refuse to answer your question if he considers it important.

The next item we take up is the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move that in clause 6 of the Bill, the proviso to sub-clause (2) be omitted.

Now, Sir, allowance has been proposed to be given for monies which are paid under mortgage or charge; but a rider has been added to the effect that "Provided that the interest allowable under this clause shall not exceed the amount which the assessee is liable to pay in respect of such mortgage charge or capital as a borrower under section 30 of the Bengal Money-lenders Act, 1940." Now, Sir, the provisions of the Bengal Money-lenders Act is not applicable to the Scheduled Banks. If the charge of interest be greater there and if the interest paid there is not deducted as allowance, then it would be unjust. I think therefore that it would be fair if this proviso were deleted. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 6 of the Bill the proviso to sub-clause (2) be omitted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to support the amendment. As a matter of fact, I find that the framers of the Bill forgot that under the Bengal Money-lenders Act there is a provision which has excluded the Scheduled Banks from the operation of the Act and so if any agriculturist has the misfortune or the good fortune to obtain a loan from a Scheduled Bank at a rate higher than what is legally payable under the Bengal Money-lenders Act he is not entitled to the concession granted by the proviso. I do not understand why the agriculturist who happens to be the debtor of a scheduled bank should be punished in this way. As a matter of fact Government by excluding the scheduled banks from the operation of the Bengal Money-lenders Act has accepted the principle that the interest which these scheduled banks charge is legally payable and recoverable. If that is the position, then the agriculturist who has got to pay interest legally should be given the concession which is legally payable by him. With these few words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment. It is not very likely that the scheduled banks would charge interest at a rate higher than that prescribed in the Bengal Money-lenders Act and an assessee need not pay an interest which is not legal in the case of other money-lenders. I think therefore that this is a reasonable and salutary provision. If I may go to the history of the present clause, I may say that the proviso was introduced by the Select Committee of the Assembly. I think it is a very reasonable proviso and it should be retained.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 6 of the Bill, the proviso to sub-clause (2) be omitted.

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

AYES—11.

Rai Bahadur R. B. Roy.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The Ayes—11 and the Noes—17. The amendment is, therefore, negatived.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I beg to move: That in sub-clause (3) of clause 6 of the Bill, the words "as interest" in line 1 be omitted.

Sir, this is a very useful amendment. There are other sums which are paid towards loans and they should be included in the allowances. I hope this amendment will be accepted.

With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (3) of clause 6 of the Bill, the words "as interest" in line 1 be omitted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to support the amendment which has been moved by my honourable friend Mr. Mazumdar. The amendment seeks to remove the word "interest" from the clause. If we read the clause, we find "any sum paid by him in the previous year as interest on any loan taken by him under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, 1884, or the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883, in respect of such land." Now, Sir, it will be clear that the loans incurred by an agriculturist under the Agriculturists' Loans Act and also under the Land Improvement Loans Act are required generally for the purpose of improving the land, for the purpose of bringing the land under cultivation, for the purpose of purchasing seeds and for various other purposes which are recognised under these two Acts. It is therefore not clear at all why only the interest should be included and not the entire loans for other purposes as described above. I, therefore, submit that this amendment seeks to give facilities to the agriculturists for the purpose of paying off their debts, otherwise it may be that they would keep the debts hanging for all time to come only paying interest every year.

This will also hamper the agriculturist in borrowing money for the purpose of improving his land. If he has got to pay tax on the capital sum which he has to spend for the purpose of improving his land, then it would retard improvement of the land, and would affect the grow-more-food campaign of which we are hearing so much. As a matter of fact, I would request the Agriculture Minister to consider whether his grow-more-food campaign should be confined only to regular advertisements in the Gazette or whether he should not give real shape to the campaign by giving facilities for the purpose to the agriculturist. With these few words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, allowances can be made in respect of repayment of interest; but allowances cannot be made for repayment of a capital nature. I, therefore, object to the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that in sub-clause (3) of clause 6 of the Bill, the words "as interest" in line 1 be omitted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. BIRENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOUDHURY: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (3) of clause 6 of the Bill, the words, figures and commas "under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, 1884, or the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883" be deleted.

Sir, this amendment is allied to the previous amendment. But I want to make it clear that if an agriculturist takes loans for improving his land either from Government or from other ordinary money-lenders, then he should obtain some facilities from Government. Sir, I am moving this amendment with a purpose which should not be misunderstood. The limitation imposed by reference in this clause to the Agriculturists' Loans Act and the Land Improvement Loans Act has been rather unwise. It is not merely under these Acts that loans are taken for the improvement of landed estates. The zemindars and talukdars have very often to incur debts in other ways also for improving their estates and developing agriculture. The loans are in fact not usually taken for improving estates under any specific Act. These are included in the general debts of the estate-holders. It can however be shown from their books that the loans were taken not for their personal benefit but for the improvement of their property. The clauses should consequently be amended and redrafted, so that the interest paid on these loans may have the benefit of exemption under the section.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved that in sub-clause (3) of clause 6 of the Bill, the words, figures and commas "under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, 1884, or the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883" be deleted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I would like to support the amendment that has been moved by my friend Mr. Roy Choudhury. In supporting the amendment I would like to point out one fact which possibly has escaped the attention of the framers of the Bill or it may be their intention, I do not know. Now, so far as sub-clause (3) is concerned, an agriculturist is supposed to borrow money under the Agriculturists' Loans Act or the Land Improvement Loans Act for the purpose of improving his land in order that he might derive a better income from the land itself, and therefore that money ought to be deducted by way of allowance under the clause. If we look to sub-clause (10), I do not know whether the Hon'ble the Finance Minister wants to include expenditure of such nature by way of allowances, we find that it runs as follows:—

"(10) any other expenditure of the assessee, not being in the nature of capital expenditure or personal expenditure laid out wholly and exclusively for the purpose of deriving such agricultural income from such land."

Now if an agriculturist borrows money for the purpose of deriving his agricultural income from the land and for the purpose of the improvement of the land itself, then the entire sum is to be allowed under sub-clause (10).

If that is not intended to be included under sub-clause (3), there seems to be some inconsistency, because if a man borrows under the Agriculturists' Loans Act or under the Land Improvement Loans Act for the purposes specified in sub-clause (10), is he not entitled to this allowance also? There seems to be an inconsistency which I think ought to be removed, by deleting the reference to these two Acts. And as has already been pointed out by the mover himself, a person may borrow money for purposes apart from those mentioned in the Agriculturists' Loans Act and there is no reason why he should not get this deduction. With these words, I support the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Birendra Kishore Roy Chowdhury.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Do the honourable members realise that this amendment if accepted would actually restrict the scope of the allowances, for an allowance in respect of interest on capital borrowed for improvement of land has already been provided for in sub-clause (2)? This sub-clause (3) is intended to provide for an allowance under the two Acts specified. I am not, therefore, inclined to accept the amendment as it would really restrict the scope of the Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (3) of clause 6 of the Bill, the words, figures, and commas "under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, 1884, or the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883" be deleted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, may I have your permission to move as a short-notice amendment the amendment No. 93 standing in the name of Mr. Nur Ahmed? It is a very important amendment and I hope, Sir, you will please allow me to move it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid, Mr. Mazumdar, I cannot accept a short-notice amendment unless it is really of a substantial character. I said the other day that I would discourage short-notice amendments.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I remember that, Sir, and it is on that basis that I have asked your permission to move it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am sorry, Mr. Mazumdar, I cannot give you leave. Regarding the next three sets of amendments, namely, Nos. 94, 95-96 and 97, they are practically the same. In fact, Nos. 94 and 97 are exactly the same with this exception that there is an addition of the following words, namely, "and religious purposes of a customary nature" in amendment No. 97. Motions Nos. 95 and 96 are included in these two. I suggest therefore that there should be one discussion on all of them but I will put them to vote separately.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I beg to move that in clause 6 of the Bill, the following be inserted at the end of sub-clause (3), namely:—

"any sum paid by him as interest in the previous year on loans for payment of land revenue or rent and any local rate or cess in respect of such land; any amount of penalty paid by him in the previous year on the arrears of land revenue; any sums spent by him in the previous year for charitable purposes not covered by section 4(b)."

Sir, this amendment is quite self-explanatory. The penalty paid by the landholders towards the revenue in arrears should be included in the allowances as also the charities which are not included and not covered by section 4(b) should be included in the allowances. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move that in clause 6 of the Bill, after sub-clause (3), the following sub-clause be added, namely:—

"(3a) any sum paid by him in the previous year as interest on loans for payment of land revenue or rent and any local rate or cess in respect of such land; any amount of penalty paid by him in the previous year on the arrears of land revenue; any sum spent by him in the previous year for charitable and religious purposes of a customary nature not covered by section 4(b)."

Sir, the amendment practically speaks for itself. But I would add a few words by way of explanation. We all know that landlords who are not able to pay their revenue in time are allowed under the present system to pay up their revenue with penalty and with other expenses to the Government for the purpose of saving property from being sold in auction for arrears of revenue. As a matter of fact, it is only inability of the landlords to pay revenue in time that leads to penalty under the provisions of the Revenue Sale law. I do not know why this provision has not been inserted in the clauses where allowances are allowed to the agriculturists with regard to the expenses legitimately incurred by them on account of their properties. Then there is another clause the last clause in my amendment which seeks to allow some expenses to the agriculturists in the previous year for charitable and religious purposes of a customary nature not covered by section 4(b). I would request you, Sir, and through you to the Hon'ble Finance Minister and the honourable members of the House that there are many expenses of a religious and charitable nature which is customary and though there is no legal document and they are not legally binding they have the force of law and people have to incur these expenses just as other items of compulsory expenditure for the purpose of meeting the expenses of the periodical religious ceremonies and also for charitable purposes connected with the religious observances which they have to perform. These allowances are not covered by clause 4(b) of the Bill. There we find it stated that before one can claim allowances with regard to expenses of a religious and charitable nature he has to corroborate it by a documentary provision. But it is well-known and I hope the Hon'ble Finance Minister knows himself personally that there are expenses of a customary nature for charitable and religious purpose which a man has to bear even though he holds no property for that purpose out of the income of the agricultural property he holds. Therefore, I submit that the Hon'ble Finance Minister should consider this amendment favourably and accept it. I can assure the Hon'ble Finance Minister that if he accepts my amendment, he would have no difficulty in getting it through the Assembly if it goes there in that form. As a matter of fact, it is not merely the Hindus but people of all nationalities have to incur such expenditure from their agricultural properties even though they do not hold the properties in trust. I, therefore, submit that this amendment should be accepted by the House.

With these few words, I move my amendment.

MR. PRESIDENT: Amendments moved:

That in clause 6 of the Bill, the following be inserted at the end of sub-clause (3), namely:—

“any sum paid by him as interest in the previous year on loans for payment of land revenue or rent and any local rate or cess in respect of such land; any amount of penalty paid by him in the previous year on the arrears of land revenue; any sums spent by him in the previous year for charitable purposes not covered by section 4(b).”

That in clause 6 of the Bill, after sub-clause (3), the following sub-clause be added, namely:—

“(3a) any sum paid by him in the previous year as interest on loans for payment of land revenue or rent and any local rate or cess in respect of such land; any amount of penalty paid by him in the previous year on the arrears of land revenue; any sum spent by him in the previous year for charitable and religious purposes of a customary nature not covered by section 4(b).”

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support the two amendments which cover almost the same ground. The amendments seek to exclude from taxation certain items of expenditure. The first item is the interest paid in the previous year on land revenue or rent or local rate or cess. Now, many estates, large or small, have got to pay land revenue, rent, local rates and cesses. But the payment of interest on these items is an ordinary charge on the estate, and in spite of best precautions sometimes there is shortage of money or other reasons may compel a party to pay interest. This is a legitimate charge on the income and there should be deduction on this account.

The second item of expenditure is the penalty paid for arrears of land revenue. This is also an item which should be excluded from taxation. Sometimes, on account of causes beyond the control of the party it happens that land revenue is not paid in time. This may be due to a variety of causes, and the penalty that is levied by the Government in consequence is a legitimate charge on the estate.

The next item is the expenditure on charitable and other religious purposes not covered by clause 4(b). This requires a little explanation. Under clause 4(b), expenditure for charitable and religious purposes is excluded where there is a trust property, that is, where there is a trust, such as a wakf, debattar and the like, which is created by a deed or established by tradition or by operation of law. The exclusion is dependent upon whether the charities fall under clause 4(b); if so, whatever may be the amount spent, large or small, it would be excluded. But on principle, charities which are not covered by clause 4(b) should not be shut out. These unofficial charities are very common in Bengal and are ingrained in our nature and should be on a par with official charities. There should be no distinction between the two classes of charities. In the circumstances, I think that these three items are legitimate exceptions and the amendment should be accepted. As Mr. Mukherjee has pointed out, probably these items have escaped the attention of the draftsman. I, therefore, support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, the scope of the allowances provided is wide and ample, and I do not see any necessity for further allowances which might embarrass the Income-tax Officers. So I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Now I propose to put Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee's amendment first, because if that is carried, then Mr. Haridas Mazumdar's amendment will not arise.

The question before the House is that in clause 6 of the Bill, after sub-clause (3), the following sub-clause be added, namely:—

“(3a) any sum paid by him in the previous year as interest on loans for payment of land revenue or rent and any local rate or cess in respect of such land; any amount of penalty paid by him in the previous year on the arrears of land revenue; any sum spent by him in the previous year for charitable and religious purposes of a customary nature not covered by section 4(b).”

Mr. PRESIDENT: I shall now put Mr. Haridas Majumdar's amendment. The question before the House is that in clause 6 of the Bill, the following be inserted at the end of sub-clause (3), namely:—

“any sum paid by him as interest in the previous year on loans for payment of land revenue or rent and any local rate or cess in respect of such land; any amount of penalty paid by him in the previous year on the arrears of land revenue; any sums spent by him in the previous year for charitable purposes not covered by section 4(b).”

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 6 of the Bill, for sub-clause (4), the following be substituted, namely:—

“(4) any sum paid by him in the previous year for the maintenance of any irrigation or protective work or other capital asset.”

Sir, this is merely a re-arrangement of the words in this sub-clause. A mere comparison would suggest that the sub-clause has been written by one who is versed more in Bengali than in English. The exact sequence required by English usage has been lost sight of. The amendment is merely a re-arrangement of the words without any other change at all. I will merely read the Bill-clause and also read the amendment and say nothing else. The sub-clause in the Bill reads:

“(4) in respect of the maintenance of any irrigation or protective work or other capital asset the amount paid in the previous year on account thereof.”

I believe in Bengali, the passage would exactly stand like this but in English it should be slightly recast. The amendment is to the effect “(4) any sum paid by him in the previous year for the maintenance of any irrigation or protective work or other capital asset.” I think that this would read much better. In a legislative draft the rendering should be as perfect as possible, and the text should be written and re-written and there should be no sparing of effort to improve it.

Sub-clause (6) of this clause is exactly on the lines of my amendment. There is absolute want of uniformity and symmetry in the drafting of similar sub-clauses in this Bill. Sub-clauses (4) and (6) are written in different styles. Sub-clause (3) also is unlike sub-clause (4) as my friend Mr. Humayun Kabir points out. On these considerations, I believe that the context would be strengthened and improved by accepting the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved. That in clause 6 of the Bill, for sub-clause (4), the following be substituted, namely:—

“(4) any sum paid by him in the previous year for the maintenance of any irrigation or protective work or other capital asset.”

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the amendment. If we look at the clause itself, we do not know how this sub-clause (4) came to worded in the way in which it stands at present. Clauses (3), (6) and every other clause, and sub-clause (1)—they all seem to be understandable clearly; but when we begin to read sub-clause (4), we do not find what it purports to provide. It says “in respect of the maintenance of any irrigation or protective work or other capital asset”; then come the words “amount paid in the previous year on account thereof”.

I do not know whether it is English language or any other language and I wonder if my Scotch friends will be able to understand the language. But I submit that the amendment only seeks to improve the language and it would be in accordance with language used in other Acts and easily understandable. With these words, I support the amendment moved by my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, the language used is not certainly Hebrew; I do not say “Greek”, because that is really not understandable by us. But I think the emphasis is in the right place. Therefore, I do not see any necessity for this drafting amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 6 of the Bill, for sub-clause (4), the following be substituted, namely:—

“(4) any sum paid by him in the previous year for the maintenance of any irrigation or protective work or other capital asset.”

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move that in sub-clause (4) of clause 6 of the Bill, after the words “protective work” in line 2, the words “or applying manure” be inserted.

Sir, I do not know why this was not included and why the framers of a Bill like the Agricultural Income-tax Bill altogether forgot about the money which an agriculturist should spend for the purpose of applying manure to his land in order to get more yield from the land itself. As a matter of fact we now hear so much about increasing the productivity of soil by means of manure. I may refer in this connection to what Sir Joginder Singh, a Member of the Government of India, has said. He said that attempts were being made for the purpose of manufacturing scientific manure on a large scale in order that agriculturists may be supplied with such manure for the purpose of improving the productivity of the soil. As a matter of fact, it has been admitted on all hands that the produce of the soil can be increased twice its present yield in the course of a few years by application of scientific manure. Expenses for securing scientific manure would not be inconsiderable. So some provision should be made for this purpose in clause 4. If the Hon'ble Finance Minister assures us that the agriculturists should be entitled to a deduction under clause 10 of what expense he has to incur for applying manure, that would be a quite different thing; otherwise the amendment should be accepted by the House, especially when we find the member supporting the Government are so much solicitous for the cause of agriculturists I hope they should unanimously support my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (4) of clause 6 of the Bill, after the words "protective work" in line 2, the words "or applying manure" be inserted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support this amendment. The amendment is particularly useful, especially for the Burdwan Division. It is well-known that Burdwan Division was highly advanced in agriculture long before the British occupation. But after centuries, the fertility of land has enormously deteriorated and the manuring of land is an indispensable necessity everywhere. In Eastern Bengal there is probably no such need. Applying manure to land is therefore a productive and legitimate expenditure for cultivators. If this provision has not already been included in some other place, then the amendment should be accepted. Such expenditures should be excluded from taxation.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I am sorry that two of my eminent lawyer friends are under the misapprehension that this applies to agriculturists so far as their agricultural income is concerned. Section 6 is for income from rent and section 7 for income from agriculture in which there is definite provision for deduction of cost. Here we are dealing with rent and revenue. We are not dealing with the real agriculturists at all. So this amendment is out of place here. As regards manure and other things, everything has been put under sub-clause (1) of clause 7.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I had no intention to take part in the debate but the remarks of my honourable friend who has just sat down provoke me to ask him one or two questions. It is quite true that so far as normal expenditure on agriculture is concerned, it is provided under clause 7, sub-clause (1), but capital expenses which have already been incurred will not be calculated in assessing the income-tax on agriculture. In this connection, I would ask the Hon'ble Minister to consider whether it is not a fact that today in Bengal the question of supplying manure is not one which can be satisfactorily tackled by ordinary cultivators. My honourable friend who spoke earlier referred to the Burdwan Division and said that there was deterioration in the quality of soil and application of manure was an essential condition for the improvement of agriculture. I would ask him to consider that it is the case not only with regard to the Burdwan Division, but also with practically the whole of Bengal. It is no doubt true that till very recently the question of manure was not so important in East Bengal as there were regular inundations. You know, Sir, that the position of rivers in East Bengal is not so satisfactory today as it was before. In any case, except in certain selected areas, the problem of application of manure in Central Bengal and East Bengal is a very serious question. The expenses of successful manuring is generally beyond the capacity of most ordinary or middle class agriculturists. Therefore, even though clause 6 deals mainly with the income derived from rent or revenue, I would ask the Hon'ble Minister to consider whether the question of application of manure does not come under such permanent improvements. This is a sort of capital investment on land. The rate at which the soil is deteriorating makes it clear that unless steps are taken very soon and on a sufficiently large scale, the position will almost be beyond recovery. We know that in certain areas of Jessore, Nadia and Faridpur, and I have special knowledge of Faridpur, the land has gone almost out of cultivation because the deterioration is so great that the question of manuring those lands is beyond the means of ordinary cultivators or even beyond the means of middle class agriculturists. In some cases, even the landlords themselves find it difficult to bear the entire cost of supplying manures. It is a big problem which Government should tackle but they may say that their schemes are not ready. As my honourable friend the leader of the Coalition Party stated on an earlier occasion, the Government have allotted more money to the Agricultural Department than they know how to spend. If that be the case, they should at any rate encourage the landlords who are relatively better off to invest their money in improving the soil through the use of artificial manure, through the application of different kinds of manures. For this reason certain amount should be ear-marked to exempt these costs from the operation of the Tax and it should be provided in clause 6 and not in clause 7.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN:

On a point of personal explanation, Sir. Clause 6 does not deal with this subject at all. The question of the cost of manuring comes under different section altogether, clause 7. So, he has misunderstood the point altogether.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I oppose the amendment, because our clause as it stands covers the application of manure undoubtedly, if this is necessary for the purpose of securing an agricultural income. Sub-clause (1) covers the point.

MR. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (4) of clause 6 of the Bill, after the words "protective work" in line 2, the words, "or applying manure" be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (4) of clause 6 of the Bill, in the Explanation, for the word and inverted commas "Maintenance", the words and inverted commas "The expression 'maintenance'" be substituted.

Sir, the amendment is of a drafting nature but its implications are serious. As I have already submitted, a word which is defined in the Bill, invariably begins with a capital letter if for obvious reason the word has been used with a capital letter in the text of the Bill. But where it is used with a small letter in the text, then in the definition clause the word is never used with a capital letter. There are many examples in this Bill itself, and I need not go to other Bills and Acts for examples. In the definition clause there are a large number of instances, such as, "Agricultural Income-tax Officer, Assistant Commissioner, Commissioner" and so forth. They begin with capital letters because in the Bill also they begin with capital letters. In this case, in sub-clause (4), in line 1, the word "maintenance" begins with a small letter but in the Explanation, which defines it, it begins with a capital letter. Now, in this case there is one difficulty; for the word "Maintenance" is the beginning of the sentence. Thus, for reasons of grammar, it should begin with a capital letter, but for reasons of drafting symmetry, it should begin with a small letter. The question is: whether the two principles could be reconciled, i.e., if its agreement with the word in the text as well as the grammatical rule could be reconciled. The usual device in such cases is to interpose a word or two before the first word and thus to remove the offending word from the beginning and thus remove the necessity for using a capital letter. The Explanation begins like this "Maintenance" includes and so forth". In the amendment a little change has been suggested. That would satisfy both the requirements; grammar would be satisfied and legislative drafting would also be standardised. In the circumstances, there is ample reason for adopting this course. Going through a large number of Acts and Bills I find that this device is adopted in a large number of Acts. I am indebted to Mr. Nur Ahmad for the next amendment which deals with this very question. He has also put his finger at the right spot, but I think there is some inadvertent omission in his amendment; but, nevertheless, he has located the disease. He would substitute "the word Maintenance". I have attempted to substitute "The expression 'maintenance'". Possibly, Mr. Nur Ahmad's idea was that the word "word" should be used to denote a single word and the word "expression" should be used to denote a large number of words—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Sahib, that amendment is not before the House.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I was trying to strengthen my amendment by referring to that of Mr. Nur Ahmed.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May be, but you ought to know that technically that amendment is not before the House.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I know that, Sir. I was merely trying to strengthen my amendment by referring to that amendment which is identical with my amendment; criticism was not my objective. I know that that amendment will not come before the House and that this amendment would be lost to this House. I only observed that Mr. Nur Ahmed also placed his finger on the same weak spot and located the disease. I gave you, Sir, the other day an idea of the amount of labour we have to undergo before we come to the House; although a large number of supporters of Government prove their existence only by loud and sonorous, "Noes", the work involved in the matter of this legislation on our part is very great. Sir, I have gone through the history of—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think you should go into all these details; it is not necessary nor quite relevant.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: All right, Sir, I may say that the drafting of my amendment is in consonance with established usage not only in India but also in England. I have gone through a large number of enactments and can assure the House of the accuracy of the statement. There is an exact parallel in the Bengal Tenancy Act in section 178. There, in the Explanation the passage is "The expression 'horticultural' lands". If the sentence began with the word 'horticulture', the 'h' would have been a capital word, while the word itself in the text begins with a small letter.

But in order to avoid this anomaly, the form used in the Explanation is "the Expression 'horticultural land' ", and I can satisfy the House that the word "Expression" can be used for a single word. It is a perfect model and can be safely followed. As I have submitted, the two opposite requirements can be satisfied by the interposition of the two words "The expression". The rules of good drafting as well as those of grammar will be satisfied by this simple device. I think that for all these reasons this amendment should be accepted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, the advice of our drafting experts is that this amendment is unnecessary.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (4) of clause 6 of the Bill, in the Explanation, for the word and inverted commas "Maintenance" the words and inverted commas "The expression 'maintenance'" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, may I move amendment No. 100A of Mr. Nur Ahmed as a short-notice amendment?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am sorry, I cannot allow short-notice amendment on the line of Mr. Nur Ahmed's amendment. You better move your amendment No. 101.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: All right, Sir. I beg to move that in the Explanation in sub-clause (4) of clause 6 of the Bill, for the words "for repairing" in line 4, the words "for replacing or reconstructing any dykes or embankments or repairing" be substituted.

Sir, I think this is a very essential amendment and should be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in the Explanation in sub-clause (d) of clause 6 of the Bill, for the words "for repairing" in line 4, the words "for replacing or reconstructing any dykes or embankments or repairing" be substituted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Haridas Mazumdar. It seems that the clause as drafted does not include the expenses which is sought to be added by the amendment. The existing clause runs as follows:—

" 'Maintenance' includes current repairs and includes also in the case of protective dykes and embankments all such work as may be necessary from year to year for repairing any damage or destruction caused by flood, or other natural causes."

Possibly the Hon'ble Finance Minister knows and every one of us who has got some experience of this class of embankments and dykes knows that apart from current repairs and expenses for repairing damages and destruction we have sometimes to replace the dykes and embankments and also to reconstruct them. The restrictive words used in the clause seem to exclude such expenses mentioned in the amendment itself. I do not think the framers of the Bill intended to exclude expenses for replacing and reconstructing dykes and embankments which are totally destroyed, and therefore I submit that the amendment should be accepted. As a matter of fact, every one who has known or has seen the havoc caused by the cyclone in the district of Midnapore year before last knows fully well that large expenses had to be incurred by the people for the purpose of protecting the embankments. Only the other day I had occasion to meet the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Communications and Irrigation for the purpose of requesting him that expenses in connection with the several embankments and dykes which have been destroyed and were being replaced ought to be taken up by Government. The landlords themselves were unable to meet the expenses although they have combined for the purpose of pooling their resources together. It is therefore essentially necessary that the clause should be cleared up and special provision made for allowance for the expenses mentioned in the amendment. It may be suggested that the word "destruction" is there in the explanation. But I think there the word is not so clear and therefore the amendment should be accepted for the purpose of clearing up the doubts and difficulties of the assessing officers in this respect.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I also rise to support the amendment. In the original Bill clause it is only confined to repair of damages and so forth. Any expenditure incurred for repairing protective walls and so forth is excluded.

But in the amendment proposed the cost of replacing or reconstruction and such other thing is sought to be included. I submit the cost of protective works is also a necessary element. It is not capital expenditure. The fact that it is incurred at once does not make it capital expenditure.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, the capital expenditure of reconstruction or replacing cannot be allowed in this tax; but allowances for reconstruction and replacing that may be necessary by way of repairing damages caused by flood have been provided in the sub-clause. We cannot make allowance for capital expenditure.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what he means by capital expenditure and recurring expenditure?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Mukherjee, I am on my legs and actually putting the question to vote; so you cannot ask any question.

The question before the House is: That in the Explanation in sub-clause (d) of clause 6 of the, for the words "for repairing" in line 4, the words "for replacing or reconstructing any dykes or embankment or repairing" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: That in sub-clause (4) of clause 6 of the Bill, in the Explanation, for the words "other natural causes" in lines 5 and 6, the words "other causes beyond his control or not arising out of his default" be substituted.

Sir, in the Bill-clause, the exemption from taxation is confined to "damage or destruction caused by flood and other natural causes"; but the expression "natural causes" is of doubtful import and ambiguous. The point is that if any damage is caused for which the tenant or the owner is not responsible or which is not due to his fault or negligence, I think the cost of repairing that damage should be included in the allowance. We have distinguished members of the business community in our midst and they will, I hope, assure the House that any loss which is caused not by his default or negligence, should be legitimate charges against expenditure and should be excluded from taxation. An examination of the accounts of a well-managed limited company would show that these are included.

The idea is based upon sound principle. The principle is that the loss caused by reasons over which he had no control or not arising out of his default must be excluded. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved that in sub-clause (4) of clause 6 of the Bill, in the Explanation, for the words "other natural causes" in lines 5 and 6, the words "other causes beyond his control or not arising out of his default" be substituted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I support the amendment moved by my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. As a matter of fact, I think there is an admission with regard to the nature of the damage as indicated in the amendment itself. Now, as it is, it may be stated that there cannot be any destruction of an embankment or a protective work except by flood or by natural causes. I think I may illustrate it for the elucidation of the honourable members of this House by reference to one or two instances. There may be huge bunds scattered near a large area of agricultural lands. Due to the default of the owner of the bund there may be breaches in the embankment or the bund itself, and flood water or rain water may enter in huge torrents and damage the agricultural lands below as also the miniature bunds protecting these lands. We have got experience of such damages of lands by flood water which is not protected by the embankment itself. For repairing the miniature bunds and for removing the sands which cover these lands, the agriculturists have to incur huge expenditure. I therefore submit, Sir, that the expenditure should not be restricted only to damages due to natural causes but, as indicated in the amendment itself, to causes beyond his control and not arising out of his default. With these few words, I support the amendment.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I would add a few words for the consideration of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister. I would refer especially to cases where it may be due to action of persons other than the persons who are responsible for the maintenance of the protective dykes or the embankments. I think it will be agreed by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister that there may be cases where water has accumulated and unless the water is allowed to go through quickly, it may damage crops. I think it will be within his experience that in such cases, the villagers have at times taken the law into their own hands. They have made a small opening in the protective dyke or the embankment with the result that the water has been allowed to go out; perhaps such a step was necessary at the time it was taken. But nevertheless the damage to the embankment remains and obviously this damage would not be the fault of the persons who were responsible for the maintenance of the dyke or the embankment.

Again, Sir, I do not know if my honourable friend the Finance Minister has caught the infection as yet; but many persons with whom he is associated see saboteurs and dream of saboteurs all around. It may be there may also be cases of sabotage. If there is a case of sabotage and a protective dyke or embankment is damaged, is the person,—the landlord or whoever he may be who is responsible for the maintenance of the dyke,—going to be charged with that damage? Therefore, Sir, when reference is made to damage caused only by flood or other natural causes, the picture is incomplete. I would submit that the opening of a portion of the dyke or the embankment by the action of the villagers in an open manner should also be covered along with the damage caused by flood or by other natural causes.

Such repairs may involve expenditure on a fairly heavy scale. I would like to know from the Hon'ble Finance Minister what his attitude is with regard to any damage that may be caused to an embankment in either of the ways which I have pointed out. If it were necessary, one could go on multiplying instances; there are all kinds of ways in which damage could be caused to an embankment without there being a flood or a tempest or a storm, or other natural causes. I would like to hear the Hon'ble Finance Minister on this point.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I think the provision is quite adequate. In fact, that the Explanation provides for an allowance for grants for repairs as well as repairs necessitated by floods, etc. As regards natural causes, I do not see how the matter can come in in an Income-tax Bill. As regards damage of the type referred to by Mr. Kabir, I think the courts are there and damage can be recovered there. I do not think an Income-tax Bill of this kind can provide for this thing.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is; that in sub-clause (4) of clause 6 of the Bill, in the Explanation, for the words "other natural causes" in lines 5 and 6, the words "other causes beyond his control or not arising out of his default" be substituted.

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The Ayes being—10, and the Noes—21, the amendment is negatived.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move that after sub-clause (4) of clause 6 of the Bill, the following be inserted, namely:—

"(4a) in respect of maintenance of the parents, sons and daughters and wives and servants of his family, the amount paid in the previous year and on account thereof."

Sir, this follows the English law. Now, Sir, in England so far as agricultural income-tax is concerned, agriculturists are allowed to deduct the costs in respect of the maintenance of parents, sons and daughters, etc. In our part of the country the agriculturists have also got to maintain all these persons. So, they should in all fairness be allowed to deduct all these expenses. With these words, I move my motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That after sub-clause (4) of clause 6 of the Bill, the following be inserted, namely:—

“(4a) in respect of maintenance of the parents, sons and daughters and wives and servants of his family, the amount paid in the previous year on account thereof.”

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: The expenses mentioned in the amendment has nothing to do with the earning of agricultural income. I would invite the honourable member's attention to the fact that we are dealing with clause 6. Therefore, I think, the amendment has come at an inappropriate place.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is. That after sub-clause (4) of clause 6 of the Bill, the following be inserted, namely:—

“(4a) in respect of maintenance of the parents, sons and daughters and wives and servants of his family, the amount paid in the previous year on account thereof.”

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I beg to move: That for sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, the following sub-clause be substituted, namely:—

“(7) in respect of the cost of collection of such rent or revenue including the cost of maintenance of any katchari or other capital assets and any expenses of litigation, any expenditure actually incurred for collecting such rent or revenue for maintaining any katchari or other capital assets and for litigation in connection with the realisation of such rent or revenue.”

Sir, this is a very important amendment and I hope it will be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That for sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, the following sub-clause be substituted, namely:—

“(7) in respect of the cost of collection of such rent or revenue including the cost of maintenance of any katchari or other capital assets and any expenses of litigation, any expenditure actually incurred for collecting such rent or revenue for maintaining any katchari or other capital assets and for litigation in connection with the realisation of such rent or revenue.”

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, flat rate is the best method in this case, because it avoids friction and it is administratively more convenient. We think that a flat rate of 15 per cent. is adequate. Moreover, there is a further deduction allowed for those who keep their accounts properly. In the circumstances, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that for sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, the following sub-clause be substituted, namely:—

“(7) in respect of the cost of collection of such rent or revenue including the cost of maintenance of any katchari or other capital assets and any expenses of litigation, any expenditure actually incurred for collecting such rent or revenue for maintaining any katchari or other capital assets and for litigation in connection with the realisation of such rent or revenue.”

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

AYES—8.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The Ayes being—8, and the Noes—21, the amendment is negatived.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move that in sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, the words "or other capital assets and any expenses of litigation" in lines 3 and 4 be deleted.

Sir, the object of my amendment is that these expenses should not be included within the 15 per cent. which the Hon'ble Finance Minister allows to landlords for the cost of collection of rents. We all know that a landlord is hardly able to make his collection on the 15 per cent. basis that is provided for in the Bill and if that is added to capital assets or expenses of litigation, then landlords will be nowhere.

Expenses of litigation should be provided somewhere else. For that purpose, I have made some provision in the amendment which I have proposed. But I would submit that it is inequitable to lump up costs of collection with expenses of a capital nature and expenses of litigation. I therefore, submit that the amendment which I propose should be accepted in order to relieve the landlord from the harsh clause which has been incorporated in the Bill. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, the words "or other capital assets and any expenses of litigation" in lines 3 and 4 be deleted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, katchari and other capital assets necessary for collecting rent—these have been included. Whether 15 per centum is adequate or not depends on many circumstances. We feel that for general class of landlords that is an adequate allowance—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: May I know his personal experience in the matter?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Well, it depends on the different properties. In the case of some properties we can collect very easily, by post even; and in others we have to incur some expenditure. But I think 15 per centum is an adequate figure and I do not think that in prescribing 15 per cent. we have allowed too little. In that view of the matter, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, the words "or other capital assets and any expenses of litigation" in lines 3 and 4 be deleted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I beg to move that in sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, for the words "fifteen per centum" in line 4, the words "actual cost exceeding twenty-five per centum" be substituted.

Sir, I have just heard the Hon'ble Finance Minister to say that 15 per centum includes the cost of litigation. In considering the famine conditions prevailing and dearness allowances granted to the naibs and gomasthas and other workers, I think 15 per cent. is not at all sufficient and 25 per cent. should be a reasonable compromise. In the circumstances, I think this amendment at least should be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I would suggest that other amendments on the same lines should be moved together.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move that in sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, for the words "fifteen per centum" in line 4, the words "actual cost not exceeding twenty per centum" be substituted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendments moved: that in sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, for the words "fifteen per centum" in line 4, the words "actual cost exceeding twenty-five per centum" be substituted; also that in sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, for the words "fifteen per centum" in line 4, the words "actual cost not exceeding twenty per centum" be substituted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by Mr. Haridas Mazumdar and Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. The amendment which has been moved first should be accepted because the assessee will have to prove whether he has actually incurred the costs. 15 per cent. which has been allowed is not at all adequate. It has been arbitrarily fixed and should not be allowed to remain in the Statute Book. We all know the landlords get into difficulty to collect rent. Sometimes tenants of a whole village combine against the landlord and refuse to pay rent. The position of landlords in such cases becomes precarious and he has to launch a wholesale litigation for the purpose of realising rent. The landlords have been deprived of the power of certificate procedure. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister has, of course, stated that rents are sometimes collected by post. I think it is only in exceptional cases that rent is paid by some tenants by post. But where there is dispute between landlords and tenants with regard to the amount of rent, then the landlord has got to institute rent suits for the purpose of realising rent. Therefore, it is not possible to keep these expenses within 15 per cent. which has been allowed in the clause. I, therefore, submit that the amendment should be accepted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, the only thing that I have to add to my previous speech on the subject is this that Bihar has provided for only 12 per cent. and in the Indian Income-tax Act the allowance is only 6 per cent.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Does the Hon'ble Minister follow Bihar in all aspects?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is: That in sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, for the words "fifteen per centum" in line 4, the words "actual cost exceeding twenty-five per centum" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is. That in sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, for the words "fifteen per centum" in line 4, the words "actual cost not exceeding twenty per centum" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I beg to move: That in sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, for the word "fifteen" in line 4, the word "twenty" be substituted.

I hope, Sir, this amendment at least should be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, for the word "fifteen" in line 4, the word "twenty" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, for the word "fifteen" in line 4, the word "twenty" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, for the word "fifteen" in line 4, the word "eighteen" be substituted.

Sir, I hope this amendment would be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, for the word "fifteen" in line 4, the word "eighteen" be substituted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Mazumdar. This is indeed a test to see whether the Hon'ble Minister will accept the request of the Opposition. 15 per cent. is not much. Just now he referred to the Bihar Agricultural Income-tax Act. I rise to support it only for the purpose of making some reference to the Bihar Agricultural Income-tax Act to which the Hon'ble the Finance Minister just now referred. I hope the Hon'ble the Finance Minister will remember the Bihar Agricultural Income-tax Act when we move other amendments and would agree to follow the example of Bihar and introduce similar provisions with regard to the assesses in this Province. I hope the Hon'ble the Finance Minister knows that in Bihar the process of realisation is not so difficult as in Bengal, and therefore the Bengal landlords are very much hard hit with regard to their expenses for collection and the 15 per cent. which has been provided is hardly sufficient for the purpose. I had something to do with the Bihar landlords and tenants, and I have some experience which I may tell the Hon'ble the Finance Minister. In Bihar the landlords and collectors are in majority of cases the same individual. The landlords till their own soil, and there is no such elaborate system of sub-tenancies as we find in Bengal. If the Hon'ble the Finance Minister will refer to the case of Barisal where sub-infeudation prevails, he will remember in what difficulties the landlords are put in the matter of collecting rents from their sub-tenants. In the circumstances, I hope the Hon'ble the Finance Minister will accept at least 3 per cent. additional allowance for the landlords and allow the amendment to be passed. With these few words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, for the word "fifteen" in line 4, the word "eighteen" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House stands adjourned till 3 p.m. tomorrow.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944, No. 67.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Friday, the 28th July, 1944, at 3 p.m., being the sixty-seventh day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Rice position in Bengal.

240. Mr. NARESH NATH MOOKERJEE: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state what is the position with regard to rice in this Province?

(b) Is there any system of control at present with regard to price, sale and movement of rice from one district to another?

(c) If so, what are the details? If not, do the Government propose to ensure the sales of rice to the public at a fair price?

(d) What is the total quantity of rice and paddy purchased by the Government under the "Demand Policy"?

(e) Has any portion of this been released to the market or for any other purpose? If so, what were the circumstances that led to such release?

(f) Is it a fact that such releases are entirely at the discretion of the Government of India?

(g) Do the Government propose to buy further quantities of rice? If so, do they propose to buy it through registered dealers who will finance this and sell the rice at a fixed price on permits issued by the Government?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN (on behalf of the Hon'ble Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy): (a) The Government of India have undertaken the responsibility of making supplies of rice for the requirements of Calcutta and the Industrial area. The Bengal Government have provided (under the Aman scheme) for procurement and movement of rice from surplus to deficit areas.

(c) The price of rice and paddy has been controlled from time to time by the fixation of statutory maximum prices throughout the Province. Copies of these notifications are laid in the Library.

The movement of rice and paddy from one district to another has also been controlled in respect of the following 12 surplus districts from which export is not allowed without a permit except in the case of consignments of 2½ maunds carried as personal luggage on railways:

- (1) Midnapore.
- (2) Bankura.
- (3) Birbhum.
- (4) Burdwan.
- (5) Malda.
- (6) Dinajpur.

- (7) Jalpaiguri.
- (8) Rajshahi.
- (9) Bogra.
- (10) Mymensingh.
- (11) Bakarganj.
- (12) Khulna.

Control has also been instituted in respect of the sale of rice from rice mills under the Bengal Rice Mills Control Order, 1943; rice mills have been prohibited from selling rice to any person except a Government Purchasing Agent or a permit-holder.

In view of the above answers, the latter part of the question does not arise.

(d) to (f) The total quantity of denial rice was 30,000 tons of which 27,400 tons were released for the Civil population in Bengal; 2,500 tons were exported to Ceylon and the remaining 100 tons were supplied to the Army.

(g) Government are already purchasing rice and paddy through 4 Chief Purchasing Agents who are operating on their behalf on a commission basis. Government are selling this rice and paddy to consumers in deficit areas as and when necessary.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Are the Government aware that as a personal luggage a consignment of 2½ maunds of rice is not allowed on steamers and on railways also, as Rai Bahadur Keshab Chandra Banerjee says, at times?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: May be that on account of any rules promulgated by the railways or steamer companies themselves, they cannot allow such consignment of rice. But we have nothing to do with that.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Since this is a Government order, will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether or not it is desirable to communicate this order to the Joint Agent of the Steamer Companies?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Well, Sir, the Government order is only permissive, that one can take so much but if the railway authorities find transport difficulties or if there are other more important articles to carry, then I do not think Government can issue any instruction to these companies to alter the rules.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether they will inform the steamer authorities of this Government order permitting the carriage of 2½ maunds of rice as a personal luggage?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Copies of the order may be sent to the steamer agents, as desired by the honourable member.

Purchase of rice by Messrs. Isphani & Co., from Bihar and Orissa and the Eastern Agency States.

241. Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state—

- (a) how many maunds of rice and at what rates Messrs. Isphani & Co. purchased as an Agent of the Government of Bengal from Bihar and Orissa and the Eastern Agency States during the period the embargo on rice remained withdrawn;
- (b) how much of this rice and at what rates the said Company could deliver to the Government and how much yet remains to be delivered; and
- (c) if it is a fact that the local authorities of the Provinces and the States concerned are not affording proper facilities for transporting to Bengal a large quantity of rice purchased by Messrs. Isphani & Co., if so, what steps Government have taken to transport this rice into Bengal?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN (on behalf of the Hon'ble Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy): (a) and (b) A statement is laid on the Table. The prices charged to Government were in all cases the prices actually paid by Messrs. Ispahani & Co.

(c) As regards purchases in the Eastern States, transport difficulties have delayed movements. As regards the Bihar and Orissa purchases, there have been difficulties in securing export permits from the Provincial Administrations concerned. The matter is, however, being actively pursued.

Statement referred to in reply to question No. 241, showing the quantity of rice purchased by Messrs. M. M. Ispahani Ltd., as an Agent of the Government of Bengal, from Bihar, Orissa and Eastern States during the period when the embargo remained withdrawn and the deliveries made against it up to the 16th May, 1944

Province or States.	Quantity purchased	Average rate per maund	Quantity delivered	Balance remain to be delivered.
	Mds. srs.	Rs. a p.	Mds. srs.	Mds. srs.
Bihar	369,703 20	24 8 0	290,584 20	79,119 0

Eastern States	235,297 0	16 0 0	190,202 15	45,094 25

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether this question is 10 months or a year old?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The honourable member knows it better than I do.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be good enough to tell us if the difficulty of exporting rice from Bihar on account of transport difficulty has been removed and if Messrs. Ispahani & Co. has been able to get back the rice?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I think the matter has not been settled yet.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is the Hon'ble Minister is not certain about it?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: For definite answer of that I want notice.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Arising out of (c), in view of the difficulties in securing export permits from the Provincial Administrations concerned, will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether any communication has been made to the Government of India and whether they have been informed of these difficulties?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Certainly; we are in correspondence with the Government of India with regard to this matter.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether Messrs. Ispahani & Co., have got any profit out of this transaction?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: It is definitely stated in the printed answer that the prices charged to Government by them were in all cases the prices actually paid by Messrs. Ispahani & Co. So there is no question of profit.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: If there is no question of profit, then Messrs. Ispahani & Co. must have incurred loss as a result of this transaction?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, they have incurred loss.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I know what is the amount of loss?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: That I cannot say; but I know that they have incurred loss.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: What is the motive behind incurring this loss on the part of Messrs. Ispahani & Co.?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: In order to help the League Ministry to tide over the rice situation last year.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: To help the League Ministry?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: What commission did they charge?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: There was no question of commission last year.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: What about this year's commission?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Question of this year's commission does not arise out of this.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is any commission being given this year to compensate the loss incurred by the Ispahani & Co. to help the League Ministry last year?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The question relates to transactions of the last year. So that question does not arise.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether this year Messrs. Ispahani & Co. has been granted commission as a compensation for the loss incurred by them to help the League Ministry?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I have already said that the question about transactions relating to this year does not arise in this question. It has been stated clearly that last year no commission was paid to them. They actually charged only the cost price.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Is the Hon'ble Minister entitled to say that as the question relates to last year, the question about this year does not arise?

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Hon'ble Minister volunteered certain reply and said that on account of the last year's transaction Messrs. Ispahani & Co. incurred loss. This year there is some provision of commission and I think Mr. Das wanted to know whether this year's commission was for covering the loss incurred last year. To that the Hon'ble Minister said that the question does not arise out of the present question. Of course, strictly speaking, it does not arise. But it is for the Hon'ble Minister to volunteer a reply if he so desires.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Now that the Hon'ble Minister has been pleased to state that he has granted commission to Messrs. Ispahani & Co. this year, did the League Ministry in settling the commission take into consideration their last year's loss and tried to compensate them?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SA'YED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: No, Sir.

Purchase of rice by the Government.

242. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if it is a fact that the Civil Supplies Department of the Government Bengal has already through their agents started purchasing rice from the surplus districts of Bengal;
- (b) if so, who are the agents making such purchases and from when these purchases have commenced;
- (c) if the Government have organised non-official food committees in all the subdivisions of each district in terms of their declared plans; if not, why not;
- (d) if the Government propose to take steps in consultation with the non-official food committees so that each subdivision may be quite self-sufficient in regard to its stock of rice before any quantity of rice or paddy is removed from that area; if not, why not;
- (e) if the Government contemplate carrying out its procurement plan by purchases of rice or paddy from the surplus rural areas and removing same to the deficit areas before the price of the said foodgrains falls to a fixed minimum level, if so, why;
- (f) if it is a fact that the Government of Bengal is appointing four Chief Agents for the purchase of paddy and rice from rural Bengal in accordance with their own procurement plan and on the sole responsibility of the Provincial Government; and
- (g) if so, what is the nature of the said procurement plan and when this plan has been finally settled and accepted by the Cabinet?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SA'YED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN (on behalf of the Hon'ble Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy): (a) Yes

- (b) (1) Messrs. M. M. Ispahani, Ltd.
- (2) Messrs. Daulatram Rauthmall
- (3) Messrs. Shaw Wallace.
- (4) Messrs. Raja Sreenath, Raja Janakinath Roy, Sitanath Rai Bahadur.

Purchases commenced on 21st December, 1943.

(c) The work of setting up food committees has been practically completed in all the subdivisions of the Province. In the few instances where committees have not yet been set up the work of constituting them is well in hand.

(d) Government are taking all possible steps to see that sufficient reserves are left for local needs before any stocks are moved to other areas and it is part of their policy to consult local non-official food committees on all matters pertaining to local supplies.

(e) No, because deficit areas which are in need of supplies cannot be allowed to starve until prices in surplus rural areas come down to a fixed minimum level.

(f) Yes; the Bengal Government's procurement plan has, however, been drawn up in consultation with the Central Government.

(g) Reference is invited to the Press Note issued on 2nd December, 1943, a copy of which is laid in the Library.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Arising out of reply (c), may I enquire from the Government whether the committees have been set up in those localities?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: No, they are being constituted and although the question is old the reply is up-to-date.

Ration for digger, carrier, etc.

245. Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state what quantity of rice per day he has provided for—

- (a) digger, male and female;
- (b) carrier, male and female;
- (c) working children, male and female; and
- (d) adult dependant, male and female, of a family of cultivators and labourers in determining the requirements of a particular area?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN (on behalf of the Hon'ble Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy): Presumably the honourable member refers to rural areas. The answer is—

The total quantity of rice per week is 2 seers for adult (not below 12) and half the quantity for children between 2 and 12, children below 2 being neglected. If sufficient supplies are available in any area or if the shortage is grave in any area the quantities of ration may be increased to a maximum of 4 seers per week for adult and half the quantity for children between 2 and 12, children below 2 being neglected.

No special provision has been made for any particular class of workers (diggers, carriers, etc.) and no distinction has been made between workers and dependants or between males and females.

School health service.

246. Mr. NUR AHMED: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Education Department be pleased to state whether any self-supporting school health service has been created in Bengal for the benefit of the students?

(b) Is it a fact that a self-supporting health service for the European schools is proposed to be established in Bengal?

(c) Is he aware that owing to deficiency in diet, the health of the students during the period of war emergency is rapidly deteriorating in Bengal?

(d) If so, do the Government propose to establish a self-supporting health service for the Indian schools in Bengal to bring about an all-round improvement in the health of Indian students? If not, why not?

MINISTER in charge of the EDUCATION DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Mr. Tamizuddin Khan): (a) No. There is, however, a scheme in operation for the medical inspection in the Government and the Government-aided secondary schools for-boys in the city of Calcutta. A scheme has also been inaugurated for systematic medical examination of girls in the Government and the Government-aided colleges and schools in Calcutta. Medical examination and supervision of students in 7 Government high schools in the Presidency Division are also being done.

(c) No statistical information is available in support of the complaint.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if he contemplates to establish self-supporting health service for the examination of the health of the students of East Bengal?

The Hon'ble Mr. TAMIZUDDIN KHAN: Yes, Sir, it will have to be done along with the post-war reconstruction proposals which are under consideration now.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state why only Calcutta and Presidency Division were selected in collecting the health statistics out of the districts and subdivisions?

The Hon'ble Mr. TAMIZUDDIN KHAN: Government could not start the examination throughout the Province all at once. A beginning had to be made somewhere and it appears that the previous Government who started the work began from Calcutta.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what he means by medical examination and supervision of students?

The Hon'ble Mr. TAMIZUDDIN KHAN: Doctors visit the institutions from time to time and look after the general health of the students. I think this is what is meant by medical examination and supervision of students.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what steps Government propose to take if as a result of the medical inspection the health of the students is found to be bad?

The Hon'ble Mr. TAMIZUDDIN KHAN: I do not know all the details of the scheme. But apparently a boy or a girl if found deficient in any respect, medical treatment is arranged for; and if any other steps are found to be necessary these are also taken.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state how much it will cost the Government if a comprehensive scheme is launched for the whole of Bengal?

The Hon'ble Mr. TAMIZUDDIN KHAN: That will be taken into consideration when the scheme will be prepared.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state how long has this scheme been in operation?

The Hon'ble Mr. TAMIZUDDIN KHAN: I do not think I can give a very accurate answer; but from my own personal impression I think it has been in operation for quite a considerable time, say for five or six years or more.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Is it a fact that the scheme has been in operation for more than 10 years?

The Hon'ble Mr. TAMIZUDDIN KHAN: May be. I do not contest it.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether the reports submitted by the medical officers reveal a very satisfactory state of things so far as the health of the students are concerned?

The Hon'ble Mr. TAMIZUDDIN KHAN: There has been no recent report to that effect.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Will the Hon'ble Minister please tell us whether these medical visitors are required to submit any periodical reports to the Government?

The Hon'ble Mr. TAMIZUDDIN KHAN: Apparently so, Sir.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: May we know if there is any system that these medical visitors must hold periodical inspection and submit reports?

The Hon'ble Mr. TAMIZUDDIN KHAN: For these details, I want notice.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to give us a comprehensive reply to this question stating the health of the students as revealed in the reports of the medical officers?

The Hon'ble Mr. TAMIZUDDIN KHAN: Sir, the question is vague. The questioner himself is of the opinion that the scheme has been in operation for ten years or more. If so, then a large number of reports must have been submitted during all these years. If my friend wants a comprehensive reply as to all the reports that have been submitted, I cannot surely give it off-hand.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Questions over

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I may mention a very urgent matter with regard to the bhog ration statement? Since the Hon'ble the Leader of the House is giving replies on behalf of the Minister of Civil Supplies, may I enquire if any meeting of the Bhog Committee has been held since the announcement of the personnel of the said committee?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Mazumdar, either you have to table an ordinary question or a short-notice question in order to get any information in this matter. I cannot allow such a question being put off-hand. That is not the practice of the House.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I have already put in a short-notice question regarding this matter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If you have tabled a short-notice question, then why are you following it up by putting questions on the floor of the House?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I want to know whether the Hon'ble Minister will answer my question.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is never the practice to ask such questions on the floor of the House.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, with regard to short-notice questions, I may inform you that quite a large number of such questions are lying with Government unanswered.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is very unfortunate, I agree. But when you have put a short-notice question, you should wait for its reply. You cannot put a short-notice question and then follow it up by putting another question on the same matter on the floor of the House. This is not the practice.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: When we come with adjournment motions, the Ministers suggest that it is better that we should put in short-notice questions on the subject, and when they are so put they are kept hanging fire for a pretty long time for months together. I seek your protection that this matter should be brought up before the House as early as possible.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If short-notice questions are not being answered, it is unfortunate; I hope that Government will pay attention to this matter. That is all that I can say.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: May I enquire if this question may be taken up next Monday, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: But you have already tabled a short-notice question?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Yes, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have not seen it yet; it has not yet been placed before me.

Extension of time for presentation of Select Committee's Reports.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, may I have your permission to move two formal motions? It is regarding the extension of time to submit the reports of two Select Committees which have been appointed by the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. NUR AHMED: I beg to move that the time to submit the report of the Select Committee on the Eastern Bengal and Assam Disorderly House (Amendment) Bill, be extended till the 31st January, 1945. The time-limit expired on the 14th July last.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Your suggestion is that the time-limit should be extended till the 31st January, 1945?

Mr. NUR AHMED: Yes, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that the time be extended for the presentation of the report of the Select Committee on the Eastern Bengal and Assam Disorderly House (Amendment) Bill till the 31st January, 1945. As there is no objection, leave is granted. What is your other motion?

Mr. NUR AHMED: I beg to move that the time for submitting the report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Suppression of Immoral Traffic (Amendment) Bill be extended till the 31st March, 1945.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Is it the pleasure of the House to extend this time?
(Cries of "yes".)

(The leave for extension of time was granted.)

Point of Privilege.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: On a point of privilege, Sir. Yesterday when the Council meeting was going on, I was going through a copy of the "Amrita Bazar Patrika" in the Library but before the Council dispersed at 5 o'clock I went back and did not find the copy. On enquiry I was told by the Librarian that it had been taken away by the Secretary of the Legislative Assembly. May I enquire whether these journals and newspapers are intended only for the use of the members of the Legislative Assembly and not for the members of the Council as well? And also whether the Secretary to the Assembly Department is justified in removing copies of newspapers from the Library before the Council meeting terminates?

Mr. KRISHNA CHANDRA ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, I too had a similar experience. I went to the Library for a couple of papers but was told that they were at the moment not in the library but with the Assembly Secretary and that if I could wait they could be procured for me. That is the situation that happens there sometimes, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: This matter will be enquired into.

I will now take up the Special Motion of Mr. Lalit Chandra Das regarding recruitment of army officers for civil posts in this province.

Special Motion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move that this Council disapproves of the action of the Bengal Government applying to the Central Government for services of a large number of army officers to hold civilian posts in this province to the detriment of the claims of the Bengalees to those posts intensifying at the same time the problem of unemployment in Bengal.

Sir, it appears that the Hon'ble Home Minister is not here and we are to discuss this very important matter in his absence. I hope some Hon'ble Minister on his behalf will be in a position to reply to what I have to say.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, I have come prepared.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, we have fallen on evil days with evil tongues compassed round. Sir, when in justice we want bread, our legitimate claims are brushed aside with caustic casuistry. In Bengal the problem of unemployment of educated young Bengalees belonging to the middle classes is a serious one. Thousands are sitting idle. I say this without any fear of contradiction. Many of them were brilliant students in their educational career holding University diplomas on all conceivable subjects—general, scientific, mechanical, electrical, commercial or technical. You can have any number of them. And yet, Sir, the Bengal Government have asked for an indent of a large number of army officers from the Central Government,—the Central Government promising to give to the claims of the Bengal Government for army officers its first consideration—to fill the civil posts in this province to the detriment of the claims of the children of the soil. It may be argued with some show of plausibility that persons with specialised knowledge and experience, such as the Food Rationing Adviser or the grain storage expert, etc., cannot be had in sufficient numbers to meet the requirements of the situation for which special indent in a few cases has become necessary. But to import as many as 100 persons to fill civil posts and that from unorthodox source such as the army is altogether a different proposition for which there can be no justification whatsoever.

The Hon'ble the Chief Minister says that all these officers are required to fill vacancies caused by the expansion of work particularly in the Civil Supplies Department which the existing cadre of the Indian Civil Service, Bengal Civil Service, etc., were not designed to meet. Granted that; but pray why rush to the army to fill the posts? May I ask, Sir, if the Government advertised these posts and invited applications from candidates with requisite qualifications? Did the Government make any effort for local recruitment before moving the Central Government for supply of officers from the army? Sir, it is surprising that our army should be suffering from a superfluity of officers in spite of the fact that the war is now at its zenith and that very severe fighting is now going on both in the East as well as in the West. It seems mysterious, really, that many of them in such crisis would be found willing to leave the army and join the civil department.

Sir, the Gregory Committee laid down that what was required of officers in the whole range of civil supplies including the food administration was energy, devotion, knowledge of the area and of its people and practices of local trade and, above all, the ability to administer. Surely the knowledge of the area and of its people and practices of local trade will be largely unknown to the army officers, whereas each and every one of those qualities will be found in an abundant measure with the children of the soil.

Sir, the Bengal Civil Service and Bengal Junior Civil Service command a strength of 928 officers. There are besides the Indian Civil Service people. As between them they have contributed a total of 193 officers to the Civil Supplies Department. Of these 193 officers, 23 were contributed by the Indian Civil Service and 50 by the Bengal Civil Service, the rest being taken from the Bengal Junior Civil Service.

I wonder why the Bengal Civil Service and Bengal Junior Civil Service could not contribute the quota of officers required by the Civil Supplies Department from time to time, from their higher ranks. You can easily make up the depletion by promotion from lower rungs of the ladder and by recruitment at the base. We have countless splendid materials lying idle. Are they of no use? Then again, were searches made for the required persons from the judiciary or from the Bar? Did Government try to ascertain from the Bengal National Chamber of Commerce, the Muslim Chamber of Commerce, Indian National Chamber of Commerce, even Marwari Chamber of Commerce if they would supply experts and non-experts with requisite qualifications to fill up the civil posts? If not, why not? Can it possibly be, Sir, that this communal Government thought that in the present expansion of services in different departments of the Government with the minimum qualifications required, it would not be possible to maintain communal ratio and that in the event of local recruitment, most of these appointments would go to the Caste Hindus and so the alternative of army officers would serve their purpose better? We do not know. Let us hope, Sir, the Leader of the House will not attempt to delude us with the expression "long term" and "short term". Long term is long term. Short term is but the thin end of the wedge. Why should even short-term appointments go elsewhere when in the province itself the Bengalees are starving and can ill-afford to lose a single job? Sir, the Bengal Government in tamely submitting to the dictates of the Central Government or to the whiphand nearer home have sacrificed the best interests of the province for which they deserve censure. Surely, Sir, all the new appointments do not require expert knowledge. We would like to know from the Government here and now how many of them required expert knowledge and how many did not and whether use is or is not being made of the word 'expert' as a pretext for Europeanization of certain services. I wish the Government to remember that not only Britain, the Middle East, Syria or even Australia, but India is also the homeland of experts and that they can be had here in any number.

Sir, this policy of importing army officers for civil posts at a time when Gandhiji held out the olive branch of peace to break the deadlock suggesting the handing over of the civil administration to National Governments at the Centre and in the Provinces, this new policy of militarization or Europeanization of the civil services, be it by 50 to 50 ratio, has filled me with doubts if the British Government ever intended or intends to concede Independence to India after the war. It seems to me crystal clear that what they have, the origin of it being aggression, they will retain. Sir, the Allies have a clear field in India on the military side to put forth their best efforts to win the war. In this, they have the co-operation and the best wishes of all of us. But if the British interfere with the civil side also in spite of the fact the civil authorities are out to co-operate sixteen annas in war efforts and help in the winning of the war, they leave no doubt whatever that they want to tighten their grip on India to the point of suffocation. Sir, why should the British care if they really intend to concede self-government to India after the war which let us hope will end in a couple of years at the most, why should the British care for the ratio of the European element in the services? Sir, between European ratio and communal ratio, efficiency, honesty, nationalism and even independence have been put to a pretty tight corner indeed.

Sir, while commending the resolution to the acceptance of the House, permit me to record my emphatic protest against this weak-kneed policy of the Bengal Government which in my opinion has once more proved itself unfaithful to the best interests of the province.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved; that this Council disapproves of the action of the Bengal Government applying to the Central Government for services of a large number of army officers to hold civilian posts in this province to the detriment of the claims of the Bengalees to those posts intending at the same time the problem of unemployment in Bengal.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Sir, I rise to give my qualified support to the motion. It was only the other day that my attention was drawn to a report published in the Calcutta newspapers regarding the decision of the Government of Bengal to recruit a large number of army officers for civilian posts for the purpose of carrying on the day-to-day administration of the province.

It occurred to me that it was a novel procedure. Never before has recruitment been made on this basis. After the Great War of 1914-18 a certain number of army officers—persons who had served in His Majesty's Forces—were appointed to the Indian Civil and Medical Services and posted to different provinces. Sir, the problem of unemployment in Bengal is very acute. No doubt, the war has absorbed a good number of our unemployed young men, but it does not touch even the fringe of the problem. There are still a large number of qualified young men who are roaming about in search of service. It is unfortunate that when the situation in Bengal in regard to unemployment is so serious, the Provincial Government should have thought fit to approach the Central Government for securing the services of the army officers in order to carry on the civil administration of the province. Sir, I said at the outset that I would give my qualified support to this motion, and I shall state my reasons for doing so. The point is that if the appointment of the military officers ultimately lead to administrative improvement, I shall have no objection. But it is difficult to say whether the step taken by the Government of Bengal is sound or justifiable having regard to the peculiar conditions of the province. Sir, we do not know and perhaps I shall not be far from wrong if I say that other Provincial Governments have not requisitioned the services of the army officers for carrying on the administration of their respective provinces. There are only four or five provinces in India where Provincial Autonomy is functioning and no Provincial Government has perhaps approached the Government of India for securing the services of army men for this purpose. It is reported that 50 per cent. of these appointments will go to Europeans and 50 per cent. to Indians. Personally, I do not grudge Europeans being appointed to responsible posts. The point for consideration is: whether or not the Provincial Government was justified in asking the Government of India to lend the services of army officers and whether or not it was desirable to be satisfied that they are properly qualified to hold such posts judging by the standard of the I.C.S. examination. Not only is the policy wrong as I have already explained, but I think efficiency of administration will be greatly impaired if qualified men such as we had in the past—the type of men belonging to the Indian Civil Service who were recruited on the results of competitive examinations—are not appointed to responsible posts. The administration is bound to suffer if properly qualified and trained men are not appointed. Sir, it is not stated in the reports published in the newspapers as to how many army officers will be placed at the disposal of the Bengal Government. There are in this province a large number of capable men who by experience and education are in no way less competent to hold such appointments in provincial administration.

Sir, I do not know how many of these officers will be Bengalees; but I think the number of Bengalees, if any, will be very small. It is well known that Bengalees, though qualified, find it extremely difficult to secure jobs in other provinces. Even prominent Congressmen like Dr. Rajendra Prasad and others cannot shake off their prejudice against the Bengalees. Everybody is aware of the Award given by Dr. Rajendra Prasad on the Bengalee-Behari question which never saw the light of day. This was when the Congress Government was in power in Bihar. Similar prejudice prevails against Bengalees in the Punjab, the United Provinces and other Provinces. It is, therefore, unfortunate that when starvation and misery stalk the land, non-Bengalees should be appointed to hold responsible positions in the administration of the province. It has been an extremely unwise step and Government should have consulted non-official public opinion before approaching the Government of India on the subject. With these words, I support the motion.

Mr. C. E. CLARKE: Mr. President, Sir, in our deliberations on this motion we are united in our conclusions. We consider that it is most regrettable that a responsible member of the Opposition should have brought forward a motion of this type. We should have thought that in view of the difficult time through which we have passed and are passing, all parties would be united in welcoming the step taken by Government to strengthen the administration. We do know that the Opposition day in and day out criticise the administration for inefficiency and corruption. But it now appears that when steps are taken to strengthen the administration, the Opposition are equally critical. Either they state that the Government's object is to create a large number of posts for the purpose of patronage or they state that Government's object is to bring in non-Bengalees from outside the province to the detriment of the Bengalees. I can only say that even if we had not heard the statement of the Hon'ble Chief Minister and His Excellency's broadcast, we would have found it difficult to believe that a popular Ministry responsible to the people of Bengal would recruit non-Bengalees if suitable Bengalees were available.

The Opposition cannot be unaware of their responsibility in this matter. If it happened that their criticism was successful and Government was prevented from strengthening the administration in the manner proposed, the responsibility for the situation which would then arise would lie with the Opposition. That situation has been described to us by the Chief Minister. The general administration has been seriously weakened by the drain to the Civil Supplies Department and that department is still short of personnel. There is particularly a shortage of officers for senior administrative posts. This, Sir, is a state of affairs which can give us no confidence that the administration strengthened as it has been would be able to cope with another disaster and the responsibility for such a contingency would lie with the Opposition.

Members will recall the situation in January, 1943. There was no food organisation worthy of the name, and to the repeated demands from 1942 onwards that a proper organisation should be set up the reply was always that the necessary officers could not be found. The fact was that the administration had been seriously weakened over a period of many years by a steady drain of officers to the Government of India and for service in other provinces. If it is also remembered that as a war measure recruitment to the Indian Civil Service was stopped, the reasons for the fact that the administration were unable to cope with the food crisis of 1943 will be apparent. Even today when the Food Department has been expanded beyond recognition, the personnel is still inadequate for a population of 60 million people. Moreover, the general administration in order to satisfy the needs of the Food Department has been seriously weak. There has been a very large increase in the work of the ordinary administration. District Magistrates are exceptionally overburdened and the Subdivisional Officer has become a bird of passage here today and gone tomorrow. I know, Sir, that in one important subdivision, the Barrackpore subdivision, there have been no less than six changes during the past year and the explanation given is shortage of officers. The administration cannot function efficiently in such circumstances, and it cannot be expected to cope with any sudden emergency.

It is important that this motion should be viewed in its proper perspective. Mr. Das accuses Government of applying for the services of a large number of army officers. What is this large number? According to the Chief Minister's statement 23 military officers have already been recruited and Government have applied for a further 93. I do not know the comparative figures of Bengalees recruited for the Civil Supplies Department and for general administration, but I do know that many hundreds must have been recruited. For example, in connection with the recent expansion of the Civil Supplies Department, I believe that the department attempted to recruit no less than 500 Inspectors, and in addition to this the number of licensing officers, storage officers, etc., must run into many hundreds and yet these figures do not take into account the large number of officers who have been recruited in Bengal for the medical and public health services.

Moreover, there are two points to be kept in view in connection with the recruitment of army officers. The first point is that this recruitment is for the purpose of filling administrative posts for which qualifications of previous training in administration is required. This is the most important point, Mr. President. The only possible channels for filling such posts in Bengal are either by promotion from subordinate services or by recruitment of retired Government officers. One cannot recruit Bengalee officers without previous training in administration for these posts. We have been assured, Sir, both by His Excellency the Governor and by the Chief Minister that everything possible has been done to fill these posts either by promotion or by recruitment of retired Government officers, and honourable members must be aware that considerable number of retired Government officers have actually been recruited in Bengal. It has also been made clear to us both by Government of India statements and by the Chief Minister that it is not possible to obtain any further officers from other provinces. In these circumstances, Sir, it seems to us that the only alternative left open to Government was to apply for army assistance, and if Government had not done so, in our opinion, they would have been failing in their duty to the province.

The second point is that it has been made clear both by the Government of India and by the Chief Minister that this recruitment of army officers is for a temporary period only. To quote a Government of India Press Note: the services of these army officers will be lent for the duration of the war in the Far East and probably for a limited further period thereafter. At a Press Conference it was explained by the Home Secretary, Government of India, that "this is a temporary scheme of reinforcement and not a way of tying the hands of future Provincial Governments. There is no such intention. The scheme is designed to tide us over the interim period until permanent recruitment to the Civil Service is resumed". I can only add, Sir, that the army can ill-afford to spare officers and that it ill-befits this House to criticise the assistance which has been so generously afforded to this province by the army.

Mr. Das has suggested that the recruitment of these army officers will intensify the unemployment problem in Bengal. It is difficult to see how the recruitment of 120 army officers can affect the unemployment problem in this province materially in any way. We know, on the other hand, that it can strengthen the administration and we know that Bengal's primary need at present is a strong administration. So far as the labour classes are concerned, we know that there is no unemployment and, in fact, honourable members must be well aware that there is at present a serious shortage of labour in the province. There may be a middle-class unemployment problem, but the reasons for this are also well known to members. They were referred to by His Excellency in his recent broadcast in the following terms:—

"I believe that the prudent thing is for us now to set about the training of our own men particularly in technical employments so that we will have a supply of young men ready after the war to fill the many jobs that will have to be filled in the various branches of Agriculture, Forestry, Engineering, Veterinary Science, Fisheries and the many other practical sciences and professions. I make no secret of my own belief that India in the past has gone in too much for law and too little for the more practical professions and employments."

In our opinion the only solution of the middle-class unemployment problem lies along these lines. It is certainly regrettable that Government should have to go outside the province for officers, but we must face the fact that Bengal does not have an adequate number of young men trained for practical work or for administration. I would conclude, Sir, by emphasising what His Excellency the Viceroy has already stressed that the problem in Bengal is now mainly administrative. The province now has adequate food supplies and the problem is to create an organisation which can procure and ensure the equitable distribution of these food supplies. In our opinion, Sir, honourable members who attempt to hamper the creation of this organisation or the strengthening of the general administration are doing the greatest disservice to the people of Bengal.

Mr. BIRENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, I am participating in the present discussion with a very heavy heart. It is very unfortunate that on this issue the Muslim League and the other parties in this province are not absolutely united.

The importation of military officers into civil employment has to be condemned on more than one ground. In fact, Sir, the Government has failed to make out any case for such an extraordinary step. Throughout the long history of British administration in India, a clear distinction has been maintained between civil and military administration and no military officers were ever drafted to civil duty at least in the Regulation Provinces. It was only in non-regulation areas that a certain proportion of civil posts were filled at one time by military officers. This practice also was discontinued a quarter of a century ago with the progress of civilisation in the non-regulation areas. It is a fact, Sir, that employment of military men in civil posts has always been regarded as a symbol of backwardness in administration and civilisation. It is regrettable that in the middle of the twentieth century when we had earned so much experience of progressive government, this retrograde step is being taken by the Government of India with the approval of the Government of Bengal.

The main argument which has been advanced in favour of the present step is that recruitment to the Indian Civil Service has been temporarily stopped and on that account there has been a shortage of superior officers to be employed in responsible posts. This argument, Sir, makes absolutely no appeal to me. Stoppage of further recruitment to the Indian Civil Service and the Indian Police has been demanded with absolute unanimity by Indian opinion for the last twenty years. Even such an ardent Moderate as Sir Sivaswami Aiyer urged the Lee Commission in 1924 to recommend the discontinuance of such recruitment. It is not necessary here to refer to the subsequent history of this controversy; but it is pertinent for me to emphasise that the continuance of recruitment to the Indian Civil Service has been regarded by all shades of Indian opinion as inconsistent with constitutional development of this country. It was good from this point of view that for the last two years no new appointments were made to the Indian Civil Service. But it would have been better still if the posts usually occupied by them were filled permanently by men trained in the Provincial Services. Instead of taking such an action, the Government of Bengal has imported and are now importing military officers temporarily to fill the gap. In other words, this importation is taking place only by way of keeping alive the reservation for the I.C.S. and I.P. officers. In 1922, Mr. Lloyd George made his famous "Steel Frame" speech as the British Prime Minister and in this he declared that whatever might be the form of Government of India, the Indian Civil Service would continue to be the backbone of Indian administration and safeguard thereby the interests of British Imperialism. The present policy of the Government, as evidenced in the importation of military officers, appears only to be the offshoot of that declaration. After 15 years of dyarchy and 7 years of provincial autonomy we find ourselves in the same stage of administrative development as we were 25 years ago. This is certainly a state of things which the Ministry ought to have resisted more effectively than it did.

Sir Nazimuddin has pointed out in his statement that the importation of military officers would not affect in any way the promotion of officers of the Provincial Services to superior and listed posts. He has not, however, supplied us with the actual figures of such promotion. The total number of Superior Executive and Judicial offices, commonly known as Listed Posts, was in 1942 twenty-two but including temporarily held offices it was thirty-one. What is the total number of Listed Posts held by officers promoted from the Provincial Services today? In education, in training and in general outlook there is hardly any difference between average members of the Indian Civil Service and those of the Provincial Services. I do not say that the administrative calibre is very high and outlook very wide in either service but what I do emphasise is that members of the higher service are not more efficient than officers of the lower organisation. If the latter are promoted to superior posts at a comparatively early age, they may prove as good as average Civilians. In view of this fact, shortage in the ranks of the Indian Civil Service is no argument for the importation of outsiders into the provincial administration. It is on the contrary an argument for the wider employment of Provincial Officers in more responsible posts. What is again true of Civil Service posts is true also of the posts of superior Police Officers in Bengal. The Provincial Police Service is the backbone of Police administration in Indian Provinces. It will, on this account, be highly discreditable on the part of the Government to import outsiders to such superior posts to the exclusion of trained Provincial men.

Apart, Sir, from the grounds of constitutional progress and general equity and justice, there are ordinary administrative reasons also why the military officers should not be drafted to civil duty. Military organisation and civil governmental organisation are two entirely different things. They have become still more different with the growth of specialisation in military work. In view of this fact, I do not understand how a person simply because he has experience of military work will prove efficient in civil work as well. Bengal is at this moment passing through a crisis in more than one sense. In order that this crisis may be met squarely, boldly and effectively, men who are already trained are necessary to fill up superior administrative offices. But instead, Sir, I find that the Government is adopting the policy of importing military men without any experience of civil administration. Ordinarily, an officer of either the Provincial or the Indian Civil Service requires at least two complete years' training before they can be entrusted with any responsible work. Will not the military officers now being brought into the civil administration require this training? Without it they will only make confusion worse confounded and if they are to be given this training they will become during the period of emergency out of all responsible work.

I repeat, Sir, that the Government which is bent on making this experiment is doing justice either to the people of Bengal or to its own officers.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Mr. President, at the very outset I would like to make it absolutely clear that on principle I am definitely against importation of officers, military or otherwise, to this province. There was a time when Bengal used to lead the whole of India. The greatest of Indian politicians once declared "What Bengal thinks today, India thinks tomorrow". Not only in politics and literature but even in the Services Bengal used to lead the whole of India.

It is a fact, Sir, that during the earlier part of British rule when the Hindus accepted foreign domination as a fait accompli the Muslims boycotted not only English education but also State Services under the British. As a result, the British considered the Muslims of Bengal to be "arch rebels" and shut them out of the administration of the country. But of late the Muslims also have changed their policy and are now getting their rightful share in the administration. Due to transfer of capital from Calcutta, Bengal has already been deprived of many of her privileges and if in normal circumstances officers are imported from outside, progress of our province will naturally be hampered. Undoubtedly, we are passing through bad days, but that does not go to prove that Bengal cannot produce sufficient numbers of young men to fill up the cadre of the Indian Civil Service. So, if our Government accepts the general policy to import officers, Hindu Bengal will be relegated to the background and the growth of Muslim Bengal will be stifled. But, Sir, before disapproving of the action of our Government—we must remember that it is a popular Government and our Government we should look into the circumstances which compelled them to accept officers from outside. In the case of Services also as in other cases, the theory of demand and supply operates. We all know, Sir, that all of a sudden the Government of India stopped recruitment to the Indian Civil Service and the Indian Police Service. As a result, our Government have been deprived of their annual quota of I.C.S. and I.P.S. men. At the same time, due to emergency and the critical food situation, demand for high officers has increased. Only one department, namely, the Civil Supplies Department, has absorbed hundreds of our best officers including several members of the Indian Civil Service. And there is demand for even more. Bengal Government tried their utmost to cope with the situation. Sir Nazimuddin made a statement the other day that promotion from the Bengal Civil Service to the listed posts had been well above the average for the last two years; while there was a proposal that about 50 officers of the Bengal Junior Civil Service should be promoted temporarily to the Bengal Civil Service and 175 temporary promotions had been made to the Bengal Junior Service from the Bengal Subordinate Services. And not only that, Sir; in many big subdivisions we find that Sub-Deputy Collectors are carrying on the duties of the Subdivisional Officers. Lawyers have been appointed as Magistrates. Retired officers have been reappointed to fill up responsible positions.

When, Sir, all the sources have been exhausted, our Government had no other alternative but to look elsewhere. It has been suggested that Government ought to have recruited men from our province and given them appointments after proper training. But the question of training does not arise here, because necessity demands trained men. Heavy deputation to the Civil Supplies Department have already rendered the state of the general administration precarious. This is why the importation of military officers trained in Syria and other places was agreed to. Extraordinary situation always justifies extraordinary measures. We also can support this as an emergency measure. What is after all the number of officers to be imported? The Chief Minister has declared something like one hundred. We have been told it is a "purely short-term reinforcement scheme extending for a period of one year". We have also got the assurance that this arrangement will not adversely affect the normal expansion or promotion of officers in the Bengal Junior Civil Service and the Bengal Civil Service.

But, Sir, we must not forget that the Government of India have stopped recruitment of Indian Civil Service and Indian Police Service with a view to the appointment of war candidates and they have under consideration the question of strengthening the Civil Service in India on a long-term and all-India basis for duration of the war and for some years thereafter. When this scheme and other all-India schemes for post-war economic industrial and educational development will be given effect to, Bengal is bound to suffer.

I would request the honourable members opposite to consider this point calmly and oppose all long-term all-India schemes before criticising short-term scheme for emergency, for their own Government. With these words, I oppose the motion.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Sir, I had no intention of taking any part in the debate today. But Mr. Clarke's speech has compelled me to speak a few words. There is a Persian proverb "Ozr-i-Gunāhbad tae azgunáh ast''. It means that if you commit a bad act that is bad enough, but if you put forward an excuse for that it is worse. I am not aware of the details of the administration and I must quote another Persian proverb to justify—if justification is possible for the action of Government in this case: "Ramooz-i-Sultanat-i-Khesh rá Khushruwán danand", meaning the necessity or secrets of their administration is known to the Kings themselves. The Chief Minister considers this recruitment necessary. I do not want to criticise him but when Mr. Clarke gets up and supports this action of Government and in doing so he gives a left-handed compliment to the Bengalees, I think I must demur. The cry of efficiency in the administration of this country has been raised and more efficient men in administration have to be imported from outside—that is what Mr. Clarke said, I believe.

Well, when we have got so many efficient men here in Bengal, why recruit military men from outside? I presume military officers have absolutely no experience of administration. They do not know Bengal, they do not know the language of the country, they do not know the manners and customs of the people here, still they are efficient! Mr. Birendra Kishore Roy Chowdhury has said that even the I.C.S. people have to undergo training for a period of two years before they take up any responsible posts. But here the military officers are relieved of their military works and they come to administer us straightaway and we are expected to be very much obliged to Government! This is a state of things we cannot understand. Government are recruiting military personnel for civilian posts while there is a dearth of military personnel in the army itself. I should think that these army officers who are being spared are unfit for military service. (The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAYED MUHAMMAD-UD-DIN HOSAIN: They have stopped recruitment to the Indian Civil Service.) I have no charm for the Indian Civil Service and the Hon'ble Minister himself also knows much of the I.C.S. people. He should not have any charm for the I.C.S. people also. At present there are 60 per cent. Indians in the I.C.S. cadre, and I.C.S. does not necessarily mean that they should all be recruited from the military. So that argument does not hold good. What about the recruitment of lawyers to certain posts, as has already been referred to? It is true that some lawyers have been recruited but there are many still who are doing nothing. They do not require any training. They are people of the country, they have been educated here, they deal with the cases of the people of this province, they know the weakness and the strength of character of the people here, they know how to deal with the people. Of course, the Civil Supplies Department is taking every available man we can spare: why, nobody knows why? I am not in it. But it will be difficult to accept the position that the Civil Supplies Department is starving for men. Mr. Clarke has said that in the Department of Food Supplies we want officers from outside, perhaps to consume them or what? I say it is very wrong indeed. We produce the food supplied here but we cannot distribute them! To say that Bengalees are not competent or that Indians are not competent is very bad. If that is so, then all these shouts and cry for local self-government become meaningless. If you can recruit officers for civilian posts, then you can as well recruit Brigadiers as Cabinet Ministers (Mr. W. B. G. LAIDLAW: You won't like that). It has been stated that military officers are being recruited temporarily. I do not believe it. We all have heard about the "thin end of the wedge". It is going to be that thin end of the wedge. From personal experience I know how military officers recruited as temporary District Magistrates eventually retired as Divisional Commissioners. And at that time there was no question of dearth of officers in this province. Sir, I do not wish to dilate further on this point. But I must say that this is a move which is not a popular move. I will not go so far as to say that the Government has committed a mistake. Ordinary people would say that Government would be committing a mistake if they imported military men for civilian posts in Bengal, but I say that it will be a suicidal policy of Government. As I said before, I do not know what their requirements are in this respect, and so I would not go to the length of opposing them in this matter, but I would much prefer that Government had taken the non-officials into their confidence before they took such action as they have taken.

Alhadj Khan Bahadur SHAIKH MUHAMMAD JAN: Mr. President, Sir, I support the motion moved by my friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. I do not look at this question from the point of view of Mr. Das. I do not ask: why 100 or more military officers are employed in the Civil Department of Bengal when there is unemployment among the educated civil population of the province. I look at the question from a different point of view and it is this: As there is a talk of compromise between the Congress or the people of India and the British Government, they want to keep the key positions in their hands in spite of all settlements. That is why they intend to take effective measures to counteract this move even after the war and so they are sending these military officers to the Province of Bengal in the first instance. We are not certain but very probably the India Office made this proposal to the Government of India who in its turn passed it on to the Government of Bengal. They have readily accepted the proposal and after this acceptance by the Government of Bengal, other provinces also will follow suit. The present proposal is to send a contingent of 100 military men to Bengal temporarily. But no time-limit of their stay in Bengal is fixed. It may be for a limited period of one year, ten years or, who knows, it may be for ever. The Government Party who are in favour of this scheme very probably do not realise its full implications and I would request them to think over the matter seriously before they decide one way or the other. With these words, Sir, I whole-heartedly support the motion moved by my honourable friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das, and I hope that my friends opposite will also disapprove of this proposal and support this motion.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the motion that has been moved by my friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. I need not read out the motion again, because it is well-known to the members of the House, but I would like to refer to one or two passages from the statement of the Hon'ble the Chief Minister which he made the other day in connection with this matter. Sir Nazimuddin said that their demand for officers was so great that in spite of promotion from other services and recruitment Government had got to have at least 93 officers from the military. The Civil Supplies Department has expanded so much and it requires so many officers that it would be impossible to fill the posts with the men they have. I would request the honourable members to mark the word "impossible" in the statement of the Hon'ble the Chief Minister.

Next, I would refer to the question as to whether this policy is a short-term policy or a long-term policy, because I find that there is some amount of misapprehension in the minds of the honourable members with regard to this matter. The Hon'ble the Chief Minister stated that owing to the stoppage of recruitment to the Indian Civil Service and the Indian Police Service, with a view to the appointment of war candidates in the vacancies in these Services the Government of India had under consideration the question of strengthening the Civil Service in India on a long term and on an all-India basis for the duration of the war and for some years thereafter. Here I pause for a moment and I would request the honourable members to mark the words "for some years thereafter". Then again, I refer to another passage in the statement of the Hon'ble Chief Minister which is still more surprising and seems prejudicial to the interests of the officers in Bengal. The Hon'ble Chief Minister stated that Mr. Dash, the Chairman of the Public Service Commission, Bengal, had been placed on special duty to investigate the relative urgency and importance of the demands by the various departments of Government and reinforcement under the scheme and on the basis of his report the Government of India had been approached for 93 officers—75 officers to fill I.C.S. posts and senior B.C.S. posts and 18 to fill I.P. posts. Now, Sir, I have done with the Chief Minister's statement. I would now request the honourable members of this House to consider the seriousness of the situation and the position which the Hon'ble Chief Minister takes in this statement. The Hon'ble Chief Minister states that it is impossible to fill up the posts which he requires with the officers which he has got at present. I would like to know from the Hon'ble Minister what efforts he made for the purpose of recruiting these 93 or 100 officers' posts which he requires. I understand that he requires these posts for the Civil Supplies Department—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. There is too much humming in the House.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: If I am mistaken, Sir, I may be corrected but I think the statement indicates that the officers are required for the Civil Supplies Department. Now, I am glad, that Mr. Clarke has spoken and I am glad to find that it was Mr. Clarke's speech that provoked my friend Khan Bahadur Momin to speak in reply to that speech; otherwise possibly we would not have heard condemnation from the other side of the House in such clear and unmistakable terms about the action of Government, although having regard to his position in that Party he had to soften down some of his wrath when he ended by saying something which he thought was necessary in order to support Government. I find that he has gone away and possibly he will not appear again today. I submit that so far as the policy is concerned the Hon'ble Chief Minister states that in Bengal he has not been able to find 93 officers to fill posts in the Civil Supplies Department which he wants. I submit this is a slur which he has cast not on Bengal but upon himself as well. He has cast an aspersion on the members not only of his own community but on the entire Bengalee population.

I can assure the honourable members that even among the Muslims they will find not 93 but 900 men who could fill up the posts vacant in the Civil Supplies Department creditably. So far as the Hindus are concerned, I need not say anything more. I submit that the statement of the Hon'ble Home Minister, to say the least of it, has been made without the least consideration for his countrymen and for the people of Bengal. I submit that this is a serious aspersion upon the province of Bengal as a whole. My honourable friend Mr. Mohd. Habibullah Chowdhury just now said that at one time Bengal was leading India on all matters and the saying was that what Bengal thought today the rest of India thought tomorrow. I am not going to take my stand on this because my European friends may not accept that as true. But I can say this much that the people of Bengal have shown their merit in the Indian Civil Service and in all the departments of Government and it has been admitted by people in very high quarters even in England and America and in other parts of the world that Bengalees can do their jobs equally, if not better than others. If that is the position, I submit that it is clear from the statement of the Chief Minister that it was the present Ministry which made this request. There is another aspect of the question which I would like the House to consider. If the Hon'ble Chief Minister really thinks that he has not got sufficiently well-equipped officers to fill up 90 or 100 posts, does he really think that he is advancing the cause of Bengal—nay of India? Today he is in the Muslim League Party where they are claiming Independence for India. If he is of opinion that there are not enough men to fill these appointments, he should admit that India is not fit for self-government. The Hon'ble Chief Minister should have thought seriously before he took up this attitude. As a matter of fact, it is not a true fact. Even the British Government, Mr. Churchill and Mr. Amery, are of opinion that India is fit for self-government but that the only obstacle which stands in the way is that they are not able to present a united front. That is the only difficulty which is being pointed out by Mr. Churchill and Mr. Amery. There is no question that they are not fit, no question that they are not able to govern India if left to themselves. If that is the position accepted by our Rulers, I think it would be a very detrimental policy which the Chief Minister enunciated—that in Bengal we have not got enough officers to fill up the posts which he wants to fill up by recruiting men from the army. I do not know what is the reason for recruiting these army officers. It has been pointed out by Khan Bahadur Momin that army officers are not fit for these jobs and that they would be quite inefficient for the purpose for which they are being brought in. These officers have no experience of Bengal: they do not know our language and they will not be able to do the work which is going to be assigned to them for a considerable time to come and they will have to depend entirely upon their subordinate officers for the purpose of carrying out their work which is entrusted to them.

I submit, Sir, that the policy which the present Government is adopting for the recruitment of army officers from outside is not a sound policy and there cannot be any support from this side of the House. I appeal specially to the Indian members who are supporting the Government that they should not support this suicidal policy. If they support this policy, it will sound the death-knell of the prospects of the officers of Bengal. We should protest against this policy combinedly and induce the present Government to recruit officers from Bengal alone. I would further request the Government supporters to support this motion which is not a motion of no confidence against the Ministry but is really meant to assert the rights of the officers of Bengal. Mr. Lalit Chandra Das has pointed out that it would be detrimental to the interests of the officers of Bengal and would intensify the unemployment problem in Bengal.

Now, as regards the appointment of lawyers to the civil posts, I can assure the Hon'ble Minister that if he wants 93 he will get 900 from the Bar. He has already recruited lawyer-Magistrates. If he makes an attempt to get more lawyers, he will be glad to find many lawyers who will do credit to the posts they will be appointed to and discharge their jobs more efficiently than the military personnel. Sir Nazimuddin ought to know that it would be a dangerous policy which he is inaugurating. As a matter of fact Bengalees are at a discount everywhere. No province has requested Bengal to send men there. Why officers from outside should come to fill the posts here?

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Mr. President, Sir, I congratulate my friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das on his bringing in this motion before this House which is of a far-reaching consequence to Bengal. I was also glad to hear the speech of the Leader of the Coalition Party, Khan Bahadur M. A. Momin, who has supported the views of the Opposition and has replied effectively, probably more effectively than we could do, to the speech of Mr. Clarke. The policy of the Government is to bring certain army officers to this province to fill some civilian posts and the previous speakers have dealt with the matter in minute details. I do not intend to dwell on those points any more. The views which have been expressed by Khan Bahadur M. A. Momin, Leader of the Coalition Party, in regard to such a vital matter which concerns both the Hindus and the Muslims, is a healthy sign and if this is maintained, I think the political salvation of India will be within an easy distance. It is regrettable that Government did not consider the pros and cons of an important matter like this beforehand.

Sir, I am in doubt whether or not these military personnel have been thrust on Bengal Government. It is impossible for us to know what is the secret behind this proposal. It may be, as the Leader of the Coalition Party has said, that some inefficient military officers are being thrown over to us or I should think that the officers who have become fatigued in this war are coming to Bengal to enjoy their leisure at the cost of the Province of Bengal. In any case, army officers are being placed in charge of the administration of a province of which they know nothing.

Even the European I.C.S. officers, when they are sent to this country, have got to undergo a training in the matter of office procedure under their own subordinate officers. I personally know of European I.P. officers being put under a senior Indian Deputy Superintendent of Police to learn office procedure for six months. After the training he became a superior and asked the said Deputy Superintendent of Police, who taught him office procedure to call him "Sir". So it is useless for us to discuss how these officers will be efficient at all.

As for corruption and bribery, it is not unknown in the Military Department. Rather we would not be untrue if we say that the Military Department in war time has been the hot bed of corruption. In the last war, a large number of European military officers were involved in a bribery case which is quite well-known, and these officers had to go back home on retiring furlough. My European friends very probably know of this case. So Bengalees are not the only persons who are liable to corruption. With these words, I support the motion.

Mr. W. B. G. LAIDLAW: May I speak for a few moments? Mr. Clarke's speech seems to have been to some extent misunderstood by the House. In the first place, please allow me to point out that he spoke throughout of army officers. There are many, many Indian officers in the army but no distinction was made in his remarks as between European officers and Indian officers.

The next point is this: that a good deal has been said about army officers having no experience of administration, but I may say that that is one of their principal lessons, their whole business is administration. Let me in this connection take the example which you must remember the Hon'ble Chief Minister gave us only two days ago. He told us—this is no matter of opinion but a matter of fact—he told us that out of a comparatively small number of army officers, both British and Indian, 12 had actual experience of food administration in Syria. (Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Conditions in Syria are quite different.) May be, Sir, but I ask you to consider if, when you are sick and you send for a physician, you enquire whether he understands the language you speak, or you enquire whether he has experience of the complaint from which you are suffering or when the province gets into a mess like it did last year, is it not the most sensible thing to send for people who had actual experience of a similar situation quite recently? Let me also refer to the wonderful and noble work which was done by army doctors during the last famine in the way of providing medical relief. (Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: That is altogether a different matter.) If Khan Bahadur Momin were here, I would have asked him if his memory is so short that within 6 months he has forgotten all that, if he has forgotten the fact that there were sections of the province which got medical relief to the distressed such as had never been known before; and not only that, nobody has ever heard anybody saying anything but good of the work which the army did on that occasion.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I support the motion of my friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. This special motion of my friend bristles with difficulties and has to be viewed from many points. Bengal is now in a sad predicament and her future should be our prime consideration. Anything else should be subordinated to that. I had occasion a few days ago to refer to the recent statement of Dr. B. C. Roy that two crores of people are suffering from diseases. I have just a suspicion that the Council gets tired of the same thing being repeated here again and again. But we have come here for business and for doing this we are paid handsomely out of the provincial exchequer. I feel flattered because I find that Lord Faringdon in the Lords' debate on India referred to this very statement of Dr. B. C. Roy which should now be considered the pivot round which all our legislative activities must move. If these two cores of people die, the future historian will record that while Bengal after one year's terrible experience of famine was still burning with distress and suffering, the Neros of the province were fiddling in an air-conditioned legislative chamber. How to save the race? That should be our primary concern. If it be proved conclusively that people cannot be save except by the import of army officers, I for one would support such procedure. Even if educated Bengalee bhadratog youths, Hindu and Muhammadan, are deprived of some posts of Deputy Magistrates and Sub-Deputy Magistrates for a year or two on that account, the more important consideration of the suffering and death of tens of thousands should weigh with us and lead us to accept the proposed arrangement cheerfully. Things have come to such a pass in Bengal that all indications convey the impression that replacement of the present type of permanent officers from the Indian Civil Service including its British members down to the Sub-Inspector of Police is highly desirable. The appointment of army officers provides an opportunity in that direction. Last year the services rendered by the military in famine relief were splendid. Under the circumstances one would ordinarily welcome the proposed arrangement. But the causes of inefficiency of the Services here lie deeper. A corrupt, communal and capricious Ministry at the head has demoralised the Services. A Deputy Magistrate in a far-off district knows that the criterion of his future appreciation will not be his efficiency but the degree of assistance he can render to the party caucus that rules at the moment. When a Minister visits the town, the former will be busy securing addresses of welcome for the guest from the municipality, district board or a body of flunkys. He knows that if he can do this successfully, he will be in the good books of the Ministers who in their turn will publish in the "Bengal Weekly" photographs of a large gathering welcoming popular Minister Mr. so and so. As regards the normal hard day-to-day work the Deputy Magistrate knows that he can neglect it with impunity. I have heard from a retired Subdivisional Officer who rose to be an acting District Magistrate that even a Sub-Registrar cannot be transferred without the interference of the Minister or his Chief Whip who is guided by communal considerations and will select good centres, which were so long regarded as rewards for meritorious work, for men of his own community. The Indian Civil Service is well-known to us. We must admit that in the past it set up a high standard of purity and efficiency in administration. But with the inauguration of the Montford Reforms it underwent a change. We remember how many British members of this Service resigned then and other British members had to be pampered with lee concessions. The British members with honourable exceptions who still have the whip hand from the Himalayas to Cape Comorin have never been known for their sympathy with Indian aspirations. One will not be far wrong in assuming that they feel that they will lose nothing if democracy be discredited in this country. They are therefore sitting on the fence. But this attitude on the part of permanent Services which constitute the "steel frame" in the administrative system not only in this country as once described by Mr. Lloyd George but everywhere else on earth, cannot be helpful to a poor country which has to maintain these white elephants. Such attitude may work with tolerable injury in fair weather but is positively dangerous in a time of famine or war or both. As regards the Indian members of the I.C.S., they are neither Indians nor Europeans and nowhere in last year's famine could they justify the heavy salary bills on their account. Among them, of course, as among the British members there are honourable exceptions. Sir Thomas Rutherford whose transfer last year from Bihar to Bengal was not much relished even by Congress organs and who rendered yeoman's service to this province in the short time at his disposal is such an honourable exception. He it was who accepted khadi dress from Rajaji in Madras. I have given the etiology of the administrative breakdown in Bengal which now calls for a large drafting of army personnel. In Bihar the same I.C.S. is working wholeheartedly. If a patriotic Ministry come into power here, it can hold the bayonet of resignation at the head of the I.C.S. in case it pursues the policy of sitting on the fence any further. We know Mr. Amery's concern to show to America that democracy and autonomy is prevalent in so many provinces. The I.C.S. will work then in right earnest and seize as in Bihar last year rice and paddy stocks which now remain hoarded all over the province specially by those who own more than 100 bighas of land and whose number has been growing for some years and has been accentuated as the result of the famine. Unless that is done, the situation will not improve. If that be done, the price of rice will soon reach the figure of Rs. 11 as in present-day Bihar. If the Ministers were not weak and subservient and could give up their jobs any moment like the ends of cigarettes, the I.C.S. would work and there would arise no need of importing army men here. Taking this view of things, I wholeheartedly support the motion.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, in the course of this debate, two reasons have been advanced for the step taken by the Government. One is the prevalence of corruption. The second ground is that Bengal lacks sufficient efficient officers. With regard to the first ground—corruption—it is so prevalent in Bengal that it has attracted the notice of a comparatively newcomer to the Province like His Excellency the Governor of Bengal. But corruption will not be eradicated simply by bringing in high officials from the military. Corruption has entered into the core of our system. It is now more prevalent in the higher circles than in the cadres below. I need not proceed further upon this matter because it is so very well known, or rather notorious. You cannot root out the corruption by recruiting some military officers from outside. His Excellency the Governor has requested the people to report instances of corruption and bring in witnesses to prove them, so that the canker of corruption might be eradicated. No doubt, trained Bengalee officers have been taken away to different departments, but there are still enough honest and efficient young men in Bengal to fill the required posts. But in supporting the motion I do not disparage the work done by the military during last year's troublesome days in Bengal. The military did yeomen's service during the terrible famine and their work was highly appreciated. Their work was really extraordinary. There was, however, the shadow of war then overshadowing Bengal. In those circumstances, the advent of the military was not unwelcome. The support that I am going to give to the motion is not due to any want of appreciation of the services of the military. The question rests more upon principle than upon the dearth of experienced men. Famine is far fading away; the military situation is improving; the jobs are receding; Assam is already cleared; Burma is being half-cleared. The fear of war and the danger of invasion have all gone. In fact, if you examine the repercussion of the news of the war on the share market, you would be at once struck with the extraordinary strength that first-class shares are disclosing for the last one month and a half.

The extraordinary circumstances and the difficult situation which called for the employment of the military for civilian work are absolutely gone. On a question of principle, therefore, it is impossible for us to agree to a proposal like this. If you appoint some military men, probably the fringe of the services where there is corruption would be improved; but it will be no real improvement of the situation unless you put in some military men at the very centre of the Government. Now, Sir, discipline is absent from anything connected with the food administration. Honesty has left the place and the remark that we have just now heard from the Leader of the Government Party, strongly criticising the Government in this respect and supporting the motion, is revealing. I do not know what the members of the Government Party will do. There is the voice of their Leader speaking one way and there is the voice of another leader speaking another way. There is absolute breach of discipline in their ranks. There is corruption; but there are still honest men, if you will only select them. I support the motion on the ground that Bengal possesses sufficient ability, sufficient honesty and sufficient capacity to supply officers of the requisite standard. With these few words, Sir, I support the motion.

Mr. LATAFAT HOSSAIN: Spoke in Urdu.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The debate has not concluded. So it will be taken up on the next Special Motion day. The House now stands adjourned till 2-15 p.m. on Monday.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 68.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Monday, the 31st July, 1944, at 2-15 p.m., being the sixty-eighth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Strike in the Indian Rubber Manufactures Ltd at Lillooah.

247. Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Commerce, Labour and Industries Department be pleased to state if he is aware that there has been a strike of the workers at the Indian Rubber Manufactures, Ltd., Lillooah, since the 10th July, 1944?

(b) Is he aware that a notice of the strike was sent to the Management of the company on the 26th June, 1944, and the copy of the notice was forwarded to the Labour Commissioner?

(c) Is he aware that there was a strike in the said concern in December, 1943?

(d) Is he aware that the said company has recently introduced a shift of ten hours per day including one hour for tiffin instead of the usual shift of eight hours per day including half-an-hour for tiffin?

(e) Is he aware that the Management of the company did not allow the shift duty workers to resume duty since 3rd July, 1944?

(f) Does he propose to direct an enquiry by the Labour Commissioner into the grievances of the workers?

MINISTER in charge of the COMMERCE, LABOUR and INDUSTRIES DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Mr. K. Shahabuddin): (a) Yes. The strike actually started on the 3rd July, 1944. Some of the workers who did not join the strike on the 3rd July, 1944, did so on the 10th July, 1944.

(b) and (c) Yes.

(d) The company introduced a shift of 9 hours excluding the period of rest from the 3rd July, 1944, in the place of a shift of 7½ hours excluding rest period.

(e) On the 4th July, 1944, the strikers had reported for work but as they refused to work more than 7½ hours, work was not started.

(f) The matter was taken up by the Labour Commissioner and as no satisfactory settlement could be reached it has been referred for adjudication under rule 81A of the Defence of India Rules.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: May I ask the Hon'ble Minister if he is aware that any work in excess of 7½ hours has to be paid for as over-time?

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SHAHABUDDIN: I would not like to express any opinion on this question as it appears from my reply in (f) that the matter has been referred for adjudication.

Mr. SRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: How long it will take to complete the adjudication?

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SHAHABUDDIN: It will take its usual course.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I have an adjournment motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, I have considered your adjournment motion and I am afraid I cannot give my consent to it. The position is this—it is an expression of opinion by Sir Nazimuddin as Home Minister on a situation that is long over. At best, it is merely a post-mortem analysis of the situation that is long past. So I do not think it is a matter on which adjournment of the House could be justified.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Is it your final ruling on this point, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, as a similar motion was negatived earlier, I do not move the next motion on the list which stands in my name.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House will now resume further consideration of the Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move: That in the proviso to sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, the words beginning with "subject to a maximum" in line 8 and ending with "derived" in line 12 be omitted.

Sir, I do not think any speech is necessary.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in the proviso to sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, the words beginning with "subject to a maximum" in line 8 and ending with "derived" in line 12 be omitted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, a ceiling is necessary where expenses are concerned. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in the proviso to sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill, the words beginning with "subject to a maximum", in line 8 and ending with "derived" in line 12 be omitted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. SRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, I beg to move—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Chakraverti, will you please wait a minute? I was trying to find out whether there has been any decision on an amendment like the one you are moving now. Well, I find that there are several amendments like the present one. So, the House having already given its decision on similar amendments, you cannot move this amendment.

Mr. SRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: But here it is a little bit different. Here I am suggesting that the person who keeps his accounts in a proper form and gets them certified by Accountants should get some allowance.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You want to increase the concession further? Well, then you move it.

Mr. SRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, I beg to move: That in clause 6 of the Bill, in the first proviso to sub-clause (7), for the words "twenty per centum" the words "twenty-five per centum" be substituted.

Sir, the proviso to clause 6, sub-clause (7) runs:—

"Provided that in the case of an assessee who can produce his accounts audited and certified to be correct by an Accountant, and at the option of such assessee recorded in writing the allowance shall be, instead of such sum, the actual cost of collection incurred during the previous year as determined by the Agricultural Income-tax Officer on the basis of such accounts, subject to a maximum equal to twenty per centum of the total amount of rent or revenue which accrued to him in the previous year in respect of the land from which such rent or revenue is derived".

In this case, Sir, as the proviso is worded it gives discretion to the officer to fix the percentage in the end. What I propose is to enable the officer to use his discretion to the extent of 25 per cent. if he is satisfied in regard to the manner in which the account is maintained and certified by the accountant, as provided in the Bill. So I think, Sir, our demand is very moderate and I hope the Hon'ble Finance Minister will accept it.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, I support this amendment on the simple ground that when the accounts of an assessee are really audited, we can find out what legitimate expenses has been properly incurred and their remains no room for doubt that this has been actually incurred. If the assessee has actually incurred expenses exceeding 25 per cent. and if it is proved before the Income-tax officer by audited accounts, then only the limit should be up to 25 per cent. My submission is that if really an assessee produces before the Income-tax Officer audited accounts with proper vouchers and adduces a clear proof that he has actually incurred more than 25 per cent. of expenses, then the Income-tax Officer should have the discretion to allow the expenses up to a limit of the maximum of 25 per cent. Twenty per cent. seems really too low. You cannot really foresee the actual expense incurred in agricultural pursuits. There may be circumstances where an agriculturist may have to spend more than 20 per cent. or more than 25 per cent. So, if legitimate expenses are to be deducted, the audited accounts should have some special advantage. If it is found that the expense ratio went up higher than 25 per cent. then there is no reason why you should not give him at least the maximum of 25 per cent. allowance which is not unreasonable. With these remarks, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: We have made allowances for all assesseees keeping accounts properly.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is: that in clause 6 of the Bill, in the first proviso to sub-clause (7), for the words "twenty per centum" the words "twenty-five per centum" be substituted.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being 9, and the "Noes" 20, the amendment is negatived.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I beg to move that in clause 6 of the Bill, the Explanation to the first proviso to sub-clause (7) be omitted.

Sir, this amendment seeks to extend the benefit of the allowance to the generality of the assessees who keep their accounts in the traditional manner and cannot employ registered accountants enrolled in the register of accountants maintained by the Central Government under the Auditors Certificate Rules, 1932, or the holder of a restricted certificate under the Restricted Certificate Rules, 1932, or a member of an Association of Accountants recognised by the Central Board of Revenue. It is not possible for the sake of economy for a comparatively small number of people living in villages or subdivisions or district towns to requisition the services of registered accountants who generally carry on their business in Calcutta. The effect of this clause as it stands will be that those who have a large agricultural income and can, therefore, afford to take the help of highly qualified accountants—they will get the benefit of this allowance of 20 per cent. as the cost of collection; while the poorer people will get only the allowance of 15 per cent. As the number of smaller assessees is much larger than the bigger ones, the Bill will prove a veritable engine of oppression to them. Moreover, this unscientific and crude piece of legislation will then be not for the benefit of the people but for the benefit of the Ministry and its supporters. Since the time of the discussion of the budget, we have been crying ourselves hoarse that the heavy expenditure incurred on account of the "grow-more-food campaign" has resulted in a big zero and we are glad to find that what we had said months ago was admitted by the Statesman in its issue of 29th instant. It said that the "grow-more-food and vegetable campaign" undertaken by the Government which has cost the public exchequer lakhs of rupees since 1941 does not appear to have yet produced any appreciable improvement on the general condition and the supplies are continuing to be far short of the demand. If no tangible improvement could be made, why this taxation measure? Clause 6 provides for an allowance of all expenditure actually incurred for the income. It is common experience that books of accounts kept in Bengali or any other Indian language by ordinary sarkars, who have no knowledge of the English language, not to speak of being a registered accountant, are accepted by the income-tax officer as accurate and trustworthy. Why should there be a costly standard of account in this famine-ridden land? If these accounts pass through the scrutiny of the accountants and are found to be accurate and trustworthy and if they are found correct by the Income-tax officers, then why insist on such a costly procedure? With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 6 of the Bill, the Explanation to the first proviso to sub-clause (7) be omitted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, the speech delivered by the honourable member is in respect of some other amendment and so it is not to the point. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 6 of the Bill, the Explanation to the first proviso to sub-clause (7) be omitted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being 11, and the "Noes" 20, the amendment is negatived.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 6 of the Bill, in the Explanation to the first proviso to sub-clause (7), for the word and inverted commas "Accountant" the words and inverted commas "The expression 'accountant'" be substituted. In the definition clause in the first sentence the word "Accountant" should begin with a small letter; but as it is the first word in the sentence, it has been given capital letter. So I have attempted to insert two words before it, so that the rules of legislative etiquette and those of grammar would be reconciled. In the circumstances, I think this amendment should be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 6 of the Bill, in the Explanation to the first proviso to sub-clause (7), for the word and inverted commas "Accountant" the words and inverted commas "The expression 'accountant'" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I oppose the amendment. The drafting experts consider the amendment unnecessary.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 6 of the Bill, in the Explanation to the first proviso to sub-clause (7), for the word and inverted commas "Accountant" the words and inverted commas "The expression 'accountant'" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I beg to move that the second proviso to sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill be omitted.

This proviso lays down that an assessee who once exercises the option of having an allowance for actual cost on the basis of his accounts shall not be entitled to claim the alternative allowance of 15 per cent. granted to those who do not produce accounts. The need for omitting the proviso would not arise if the present Bill were reasonable and just and allowed all expenditure incurred for earning the agricultural income instead of fixing a maximum of 20 per cent. The Privy Council in its judgment in Raja Pravat Chandra Barua's case (34 Calcutta Weekly Notes, page 1017) held that if agricultural income had been included within the scope of the Income Tax Act, the income from zemindaries would have been taxed under section 12 of the Act and that section lays down:

"Such income, profits and gains shall be computed after making allowance for any expenditure (not being in the nature of capital expenditure incurred solely for the purpose of making or earning such income, profits or gains, provided that no allowance shall be made on account of any personal expenses of the assessee".

The collection charges under the management of the Court of Wards are said to have exceeded 20 per cent. As the price of rice, the staple food of the province, is four times the normal rate and vegetables and fish sell even higher, the cost of living has increased enormously and the cost of collection has gone up accordingly. The sircars and gomastas cannot work unless they get food. European merchants of Clive Street know how much more they have to spend nowadays on their clerical staff. Viewing this country even as a human cattle farm, one has to assure the worker a living wage.

If prices increase further, collection charges will record a further increase but our omniscient Government will not allow more than 20 per cent. Even now in numerous cases the cost is not less than 30 per cent. This is sheer injustice to the poorer section of the assesses. If, however, conditions improve and the price of rice goes down, the cost of collection in some cases will be less than 15 per cent., and so the proviso is carefully inserted in order that the assesses may not get the benefit of the 15 per cent. rule. How we wish that in devising beneficent measures our Ministers displayed half the zeal which they devote denying small mercies to small people! Bengal in that case would have been a better place to live in. The Ministry seems not to have comprehended two axiomatic facts, namely, that the income of rent-receivers is inelastic and that the cost of collection is bound to go up and down in relation to war-time prices.

Sir, with these words, I move my amendment, and I hope that this being a very reasonable amendment, the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Finance will accept it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that the second proviso to sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill be omitted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support this amendment for this reason that if a man submits an account in a certain form he would not be allowed without the special permission of the officer to check it. It is no good saying to a man that if you decide to be born a man and act accordingly, you cannot thereafter change into a woman. In matters of accounting there is no such finality or absoluteness. I submit that the convenience of the tax-payer should be consulted and this inconvenient rule should be changed. With these words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that the second proviso to sub-clause (7) of clause 6 of the Bill be omitted.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being 10, and the "Noes" 21, the amendment is negatived.

Mr. BIRENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOWDHURY: I beg to move that in sub-clause (8) of clause 6 of the Bill, for all the words, figures, brackets and commas beginning with the words "in respect of" in line 4 to the end of the sub-clause, the following be substituted, namely:—

"any sum which was received by the assessee in the previous year as rent or revenue but which accrued to him before this Act came into operation".

Sir, the object of my amendment to this clause is very simple. It is but common knowledge that the tenants fall very frequently into arrears in respect of the payment of their rent. It is but usual in many instances with them to postpone payment of rent for two or three years. In years which are especially lean, the tenants are unable to clear their dues to the landlord. After a year or two, however, when their conditions improve, they either clear all their dues, past and current, or clear only the arrears. The estate-holders have to accept this arrangement in the interest of the welfare of the tenantry. But simply because the zemindars and talukdars have allowed on this ground their rent to fall into arrears, it will be absolutely inequitable and unjust to impose taxation upon such arrears. This will amount to legislation with retrospective effect. Such legislation, Sir, has been disapproved all over the world on just grounds. With these few words, I move the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (8) of clause 6 of the Bill, for all the words, figures brackets and commas beginning with the words "in respect of" in line 4 to the end of the sub-clause, the following be substituted, namely:—

"any sum which was received by the assessee in the previous year as rent or revenue but which accrued to him before this Act came into operation".

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, the whole basis of the Bill is receipt and not accrual. So I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (8) of clause 6 of the Bill, for all the words, figures, brackets and commas beginning with the words "in respect of" in line 4 to the end of the sub-clause, the following be substituted, namely:—

"any sum which was received by the assessee in the previous year as rent or revenue but which accrued to him before this Act came into operation".

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAP: I beg to move: that in sub-clause (10) of clause 6 of the Bill, after the words "personal expenditure" in lines 2 and 3, a comma be inserted.

Sir, this amendment has evoked some amount of mirth in this House. I believe smaller men like us have to take notice of small things like commas. I have found the position of a comma making much difference in meaning though according to the theoretical rules of interpretation they are not so regarded. But still they make a lot of difference. For the consideration of the House, I shall cite an illustration. There was a notice board saying—

"এখানে প্রয়াব করিও না, প্রয়াব করিলে সাজা পাইবে।"

A mischievous boy removed the comma one place to the left and the notice now read—

"এখানে প্রয়াব করিও না প্রয়াব করিলে সাজা পাইবে।"

The translation is—"do not commit nuisance here: if you do, you will be punished". The passage, after the comma is moved, would mean "commit nuisance here; if you do not commit nuisance, you will be punished". A comma may thus make a lot of difference in meaning. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (10) of clause 6 of the Bill, after the words "personal expenditure" in lines 2 and 3, a comma be inserted.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I support the amendment of Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad knowing full well that this amendment will not be accepted, as the honourable members opposite have not the right even to remove a comma or insert a comma.

With these words, I support the amendment and if it is not accepted; I shall press it to a division.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: As the comma is not absolutely necessary, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in sub-clause (10) of clause 6 of the Bill, after the words "personal expenditure" in lines 2 and 3, a comma be inserted.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Oh, I am sorry—Noes have it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But, Sir, after declaring that the "Ayes" have it, can you recall your decision now?

Mr. PRESIDENT: No; but that was a slip of tongue

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of order, Sir. When you put the amendment before the House, you never take into consideration as to whether "Ayes" will have it or "Noes" will have it. You never take into consideration the Opposition party or the Government party. It is left to the discretion of the party concerned to challenge your decision when you say "Ayes" have it or "Noes" have it. There is no rule in our Council Procedure Rules to show that you can recall your decision when the Government party is sleeping over it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Let me look into the question and let us proceed with the business in the meantime.

Mr. BIRENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOUDHURY: I beg to move that after sub-clause (10) of clause 6 of the Bill, the following sub-clause be added, namely:—

"(11) any portion of agricultural income other than such as referred to in clause (b) of section 4 spent in the previous year by the assessee for charitable purposes."

Under sub-clause (b) of section 4, agricultural income derived from property held under trust wholly for religious or charitable purposes has been excluded from taxation. But, Sir, it is not simply the income derived from such trust property which is devoted to religious or charitable purposes. Every year the estate-holders have to spend a large proportion of their income from property which is not so ear-marked to this end. In fact, the income derived from trust property is only a very small proportion of the total sum which is spent by the zemindars for religious or charitable purposes. It is necessary on this account that all the expenditure made by them under this head should be exempted from taxation. The purpose of my amendment is thus very clear and I have no doubt about it that the Government will be only doing justice by accepting this amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that after sub-clause (10) of clause 6 of the Bill, the following sub-clause be added, namely:—

"(11) any portion of agricultural income other than such as referred to in clause (b) of section 4 spent in the previous year by the assessee for charitable purposes."

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that after sub-clause (10) of clause 6 of the Bill, the following sub-clause be added, namely:—

“(11) any portion of agricultural income other than such as referred to in clause (b) of section 4 spent in the previous year by the assessee for charitable purposes.”

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The “Ayes” being 9, and the “Noes” 23, the amendment is negatived.

Now, as regards the amendment regarding which I made a mistake in giving my decision, I have considered the point. What I really meant was “Noes have it”. I did not mean “Ayes have it”. It was merely a slip of tongue on my part. I find it stated in sub-rule (8) of rule 8 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules: “If any member enters a lobby and discovers either before or after voting that he has come to the wrong lobby, he shall immediately inform the President and the President may in his discretion allow the member's vote to be expunged from the division list of such a lobby and to be entered in the division list of the lobby in which the member desired to vote, provided that such a mistake is brought to the notice of the President before the result of the division is declared.”

In this case, I really meant “Noes have it” but it was purely a slip of tongue on my part.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will you kindly allow us to discuss the point, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: If you will kindly permit me to start discussion on the point, I would like to say that the analogy pointed out by the Chair with the recording of votes in a wrong lobby does not hold good in respect of the present situation. It is not at all on the same line and on all fours with the present case. Now, Sir, what you actually meant may be a different proposition; but what you actually uttered is the only thing that matters in this matter of “Ayes” and “Noes”: because it is not always that the Chair has to say “Noes have it”. It may occasionally be that the President is called upon to say “Ayes have it”. The fact that both parties present in the House have got the inherent right to challenge the utterances of the President goes to show that it is actually the utterances of the President that really matter—for no party can divine what is actually in the mind of the President. When you, Sir, utter any one of those formulae, whether by mistake or deliberately, there is the Government party sitting there and the Opposition here and they could easily challenge your utterances. If the Government party did not challenge your announcement, it is not our fault. If we knew that it was by mistake on your part that "Ayes have it" was uttered by you, then we could have called for a division. After the words "I think the Ayes have it", the words "Ayes have it" became final and nobody need divine what was actually in the mind of the Chair. After all, it is a question of challenge.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am just now told that Mr. Sultanuddin Ahmed did actually say "Noes have it" by way of challenging my decision; that is what I am told by the Secretary. I did not hear that word: I missed it. I missed what he said; but the point is that I really meant "Noes have it". It is a bona fide mistake on my part and I immediately corrected myself. I think that was all that had happened.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will you kindly—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: That is the reason why I did not call a division. You, Sir, twice said "I think the Ayes have it" and then "The Ayes have it". Thereafter, when it was pointed out that it should be "Noes have it", you said that it was a mistake on your part. Therefore, I am the wronged party, the aggrieved party, because we were deprived of our right to call a division.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, you can take it from me that I realised the mistake immediately; really, it was merely a slip of tongue on my part. After all, a member who moves a motion or speaks on it may say many things by mistake which he does not actually mean and no exception is taken to it. I may honestly say that I did not mean what I did say.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will you kindly allow me to say a word or two?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, you have said just now that there was somebody who challenged a division and that from the other side somebody said "no", but that you yourself did not hear it. It is not the hearing of the Secretary which matters. When you put a certain amendment you say "Ayes have it" or "Noes have it". But your declaration may be challenged by calling for a Division and it should be done immediately after what you say. The word "no" does not matter. If a division is to be called, the words "Noes have it, division" are to be uttered. In case there is no challenge, you for the second time say "Noes have it" or "Ayes have it" as the case may be. We are told that the word "no" was uttered after you finally declared that "the 'Ayes' have it". Did he utter "no" immediately after you said "Ayes have it"? Evidently, he did not call for a division; otherwise he would have challenged it in a regular way—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. It was a case of a bona fide mistake on my part and I think there should be no controversy over this matter. The Opposition should not take advantage of a mistake on the part of the Chair. You have every right to challenge a division, so have the Government. I take the responsibility of the mistake on myself.

Mr. AMULYADHON ROY: Sir, we are not going to take advantage of your mistake. It is far from our intention to do so. On this point I entirely agree with you; but the question is: whether you are mistaken or whether you are right is absolutely immaterial. You passed a verdict and everybody has a right to challenge it. But in this case without challenging it they submitted to your verdict.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What I really meant was "Noes have it". But it was a slip of tongue and I said "Ayes have it".

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: If that had been the case, we would have called for a division. We have lost our right to ask for division.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, there are precedents; we can go back to the clause again and put it to vote. In the Money-Lenders Bill I find that when there was such a mistake, the whole clause was put to vote de novo—that is what I find. With regard to Money-Lenders Bill the House proceeded with the discussion of this Bill before obtaining the previous consent of the Governor under section 299(iii). It was put to vote and the President declared and then it was found that the Governor's consent was not taken.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: In that case it was done because it was the unanimous wish of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: When such a mistake occurs, it is always a bona fide mistake.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Sir, whether you have done it through mistake or not will really be of no help to us. In this particular case the whole thing has been quite regular so far as our Rules go. I find from our Rules that after a question is put, the President shall ascertain the views of the House on an amendment by asking whether "Ayes" will have it or "Noes" will have it. If the decision of "Ayes" or "Noes" is not challenged by any member of the parties concerned, the President announces his decision. After the result has been announced, whether it is due to mistake or due to an oversight is not the question. The only question is: whether it can be re-opened. As regards judgment in a court, the mistake can be rectified by a higher tribunal; but in case of proceedings in a Legislature the President nowhere has been given the right to review his own announcement. It is not a question of mistake, it is a question of the honour of the House, it is a question of the tradition of the House, it is a question of the privilege of the House. As soon as the pronouncement is made, it is final. The only remedy to rectify this mistake is to send the Bill to the other House. If you, Sir, yourself go to rectify the mistake, then that would be creating a dangerous precedent.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, I think Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta referred to inherent right.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: No.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, every tribunal has got an inherent right and it is sensible to correct a decision. If a Judge finds a mistake, he can certainly correct it when it is a clerical mistake. So, here suppose a member of the House goes and votes in a wrong lobby and then comes to the Chair to say that he has committed a mistake by voting in the wrong lobby, then that mistake can be rectified. This ABC of law is known to everybody. In this case also you say, Sir, that this has been done through mistake. Therefore, the honourable members of this House should be sensible, they should not be irrational, they must take a rational view of the matter. This is almost a technical mistake. It is evident that you wanted to say "Noes" have it but you actually said "Ayes" have it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, you are the custodian of the rights and privileges of the House. Now, it is a right of the other side to say "No" when you say "Yes." Supposing instead of saying "Yes", by mistake, you actually utter the word "No", neither of the parties here can know what was in your mind when you uttered the word. If there is a mistake there is no procedure to show that you can go back upon it. If a convention is created, a great difficulty will follow. There are two parties and each party has the right to challenge and when that mistake was not challenged and since you are the custodian of our rights and privileges, please do not create a convention.

Mr. SULTANUDDIN AHMED: So far as this question is concerned, as soon as for the first time you called out "Ayes have it". I stood up and said "Noes". You did not catch it but the Secretary did. You then realised your mistake: so before your utterance had become final in this House you realised your mistake and gave us your correct decision. This case is much more favourable than the one cited by my friend, Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury. That is a much more serious position than the present one. In this case while you were still on your legs and before you finished you realised your mistake. Your corrected utterance, namely, "Noes have it" was final and that decision cannot be challenged.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order I have carefully considered the matter—

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I wish to say a few words in this connection. With regard to the question of bona fide mistake, I do not challenge it. The fact that one of my friends on the Government side actually uttered "Noes have it" which unfortunately was not heard by the President, must be accepted. The only way a President can communicate his decision and invest the decision with finality is by a word of mouth, and whether the President is right or wrong, his decision is absolutely final. So far as the decision of the President is concerned, the only opportunity of challenging it is at the first announcement. After the first announcement some time is given, and honourable members on both sides should be quite alert, and if, in the opinion of any member, a wrong announcement is made, the member may at once challenge it; but I have never heard that the second announcement, which is the final decision, can be challenged. The rule is that the President's ruling is final; whether it is right or wrong, does not matter. In the circumstances, your ruling that "Ayes have it" has the stamp of finality. It can be corrected and there are provisions for it in the Act. If the amendment is accepted in this House, the only constitutional way of correcting it is to send back the Bill to the Lower House. Now, in the circumstances, your ruling is final. The very finality which attaches to your ruling is an answer to the view that is propounded. Therefore, I submit that the President's decision, given rightly or wrongly, is absolutely final. In May's Parliamentary Practice or in the rules, or in the collection of the rulings of the late President of this House or in the collection of the rulings in the Central Legislature you will never find a case like this that the President's ruling could be challenged and corrected on the ground that it was wrong or given by mistake. The President's authority is superior to all these things. He is above mistake and above wrong. In the circumstances, his ruling is absolutely final and it cannot be corrected. I place this matter before you as being a matter of serious technicality and a matter of law. It raises a very interesting constitutional question, and you have got to decide it as best as you can.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have very carefully considered this matter and I agree with you that the President's ruling ought to be final, provided it is a ruling which he really meant to utter. The word that I uttered in the present case was merely a slip of tongue and so it cannot be interpreted as a ruling. The usual method of challenging a ruling is by challenging a division. Here in this case a division was challenged but unfortunately I did not catch it—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Then there is an end of the matter—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, you need not repeat all those things again and again. I am disposed to hold that the Chair has the inherent right of at least correcting a slip of tongue on his part; if the Chair had not got that right, things would be impossible.

Mr. SRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: May I say—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Chakraverti, you know very well that when the Chair is on his legs he should not be interrupted. However, I would like to consider the matter further. I am not prepared to cover up my mistake by giving an arbitrary ruling. I want to weigh this matter very carefully and try to find out precedents one way or the other and shall give any final ruling or decision in a couple of days' time.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SHAHABUDDIN: May I speak a few words, Sir? Just now you informed the House that you observed that the decision or the ruling was a slip of tongue on your part and there it ended definitely—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: No, no, he did not say any such thing.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SHAHABUDDIN: The Chair said that it was a mistake on its part and that the decision should be "Noes have it". Therefore, I do not know, Sir, if after giving a considered ruling it is open to you to reconsider your decision. You, Sir, have pointed out that the only thing that the Chair can do under such circumstances is to correct any mistake which has been due to a slip of the tongue. I am not a lawyer; but as a layman the thing appears to me to be very simple and I do not know why such hair-splitting arguments should go on over such a simple matter. Let us now take the situation as it has actually happened. You got up from the chair, Sir, and in giving your decision you perhaps unconsciously uttered words which you did not mean. (Cries of oh, oh, from the Opposition benches.) Sir, it is not a question of crying "oh, oh"; if the Opposition benches cry, "oh, oh" in this connection, then perhaps they mean to doubt whether the President actually made a bona fide mistake. I say, Sir, that the Chair uttered those words unconsciously and if my friends on the other side do not accept that statement, then they are inconsistent and it is no use arguing with them. You have said, Sir, that you unconsciously uttered the words "Ayes have it" while the thing that you really meant was "Noes have it". It is a question of fact. (Interruptions.) Well, Sir, if they go on interrupting like this, I do not mind. As soon as those words came out of your mouth, my friend Mr. Sultanuddin Ahmed immediately challenged your ruling by crying out "Noes have it". (Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: None of us on this side heard it.) If I understand aright, Sir, it is the established practice in this House that in challenging the verdict of the Chair instead of calling a "division" always the contrary phraseology is used, namely, if the Chair's decision is "Ayes have it", it is met by the challenges of "Noes have it". That is the practice, Sir, of calling a division everywhere but recently Mr. Mazumdar has taken to the practice of calling "division" instead of actually using the contrary expression "Noes have it". Actually, Sir, your verdict of "Ayes have it", was immediately challenged by Mr. Sultanuddin Ahmed and two others. (Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: The Chair did not hear it.) It is not a question of hearing—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, you must allow the Hon'ble Minister to speak without interruption.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SHAHABUDDIN: As I have said, Sir, such things do happen quite unconsciously and when you gave your verdict "Ayes have it", as you did and as in doing so you were under the impression that you were pronouncing the right verdict, you did not realise that a challenge had come from this quarter. When this was brought to your notice, you, Sir, very rightly declared that by mistake you uttered the words that you did and mentioned exactly what actually did happen.

Mr. SRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, the Hon'ble Minister is putting words into your mouth, words which you did not use.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SHAHABUDDIN: Sir, I am stating only the facts, and not distorting them like my friends. Immediately after, you said "Noes have it", and the Opposition are distorting—

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: On a point of order, Sir. The Hon'ble Minister has said that the Opposition are distorting facts. I take serious objection to it and unless and until you decide that point and ask him to withdraw the expression—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Shahabuddin, I think you should withdraw it.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SHAHABUDDIN: Sir, I bow to your ruling and withdraw it. But I submit that I was not saying anything unparliamentary. As I was saying—immediately after you said "Noes have it". That was the final word. I was going to say that it was admittedly the rule everywhere that if a mistake is corrected in the same breath, there can be no objection. I may tell you that in games referees are allowed to correct bona fide mistakes in important games where there are heavy stakes. Here, Sir, what you have done? You said by mistake "Ayes have it" and immediately your attention being drawn to the mistake, you gave the right ruling that the "Noes have it"; and when the matter was further sought to be discussed, you said that "that is my ruling—Noes have it". How, then there is any room for further consideration. In this connection, I may just recite an incident which took place in the other place—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Which place?

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SHAHABUDDIN: I think it is the parliamentary practice to call the Assembly "other place".

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, what happened in the Assembly has nothing to do with us in this House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is the difficulty?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: The Hon'ble Minister was referring to what happened in the Assembly. I object to it.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SHAHABUDDIN: Sir, I think it is permissible to refer to the incidents that take place in the Central Assembly and in our Assembly. Sir, in support of an adjournment motion, as you know, 50 members are required to rise in their seats, and when the members rose the Opposition objected. The Secretary then counted the number and found that 48 members had risen in their seats. The Speaker said that the requisite number—

Mr. SRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Is it allowed, Sir, to give details of what happened in the Assembly? Many times you ruled that there should be no mention about the incidents in the other House—there should be no mention of the proceedings of the other House.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SHAHABUDDIN: Sir, I most humbly submit this by way of illustration and for your consideration—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Shahabuddin, I fully understand your point. Please sit down—

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SHAHABUDDIN: Sir, I have finished; only a few seconds more. Now, the Speaker declared that as requisite number of members had not risen in their places, the motion was out of order. Immediately that decision was challenged and it was found on second counting that more than 48 members were present—

Mr. SRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: On a point of order, Sir. Can the Hon'ble Minister give us the details of what took place in the other House?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Shahabuddin, you may better not mention the reference to the other House and simply state the facts.

The Hon'ble Mr. K. SHAHABUDDIN: Now, Sir, my first point is that you first gave your ruling immediately your attention was drawn to the fact when you said "Ayes have it". Then again, hearing Mr. Lalit Chandra Das and some other hon'ble members you again got up and said that the amendment was lost. Therefore, after all these, I do not think the matter is still open to further consideration.

Maulvi MD. HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Sir, as soon as you said "Ayes have it", you realised the mistake and in the same breath said "Noes have it". I myself and Mr. Sultanuddin Ahmed got up and said "Noes have it". Perhaps our voice did not reach your ears but the Secretary heard us.

Mr. SRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, you said several times that you wanted to hear the Opposition on this point.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, I wanted to hear the Opposition on this point. Now, as regards the fact, there is no dispute that the Chair unconsciously uttered "Ayes have it". There is also no dispute that Mr. Sultanuddin challenged the decision but I could not hear him and so I said "Ayes have it". That was a decision I gave unconsciously. I realised my mistake and I corrected it. Now, the point that has been tried to be made out is: whether having uttered that "Ayes have it" or "Noes have it", the Chair has got any right to correct even any bona fide mistake and on that I am inclined to hold that the Chair must have some inherent right to correct such mistakes; otherwise it would be impossible to carry on the business of the House. However, I would like to look into the precedents and give my decision day after tomorrow.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, will you hear us before your decision is given?

Mr. PRESIDENT: If necessary.

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, who will call for the discussion?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I shall call for it; if you want to say anything new on this point you may do so.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Suppose a telling is over; and 35 is for the motion and 5 against the—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury, I have understood everything and I have not the slightest doubt in my mind that it was purely a bona fide mistake and that I unconsciously said "Ayes have it". Now, as the Leader of the Opposition thinks that the Chair has no right to correct himself, I want to find out whether there is any precedent like that or not.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, there is another point you will please consider, namely, who is to give the decision in the matter. I think it is the House and not the President. The President only declares the decision of the House. When the members of the House go to the lobby to vote, you count the votes and when you find one party in majority you declare the decision in their favour. The analogy of the court does not apply here.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, you are repeating your arguments.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, you mechanically announced the decision of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You mean to say that even though I mechanically uttered the words "Ayes have it" and unconsciously too, still I have no right to correct the decision?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: You, Sir, have no right to correct the decision of the House.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, when you said—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I understand your point Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: How can you understand me when I have not spoken? I say that when you said "Ayes have it", you had all the time in your mind that "Noes have it" So it is a bona fide mistake.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Exactly so. I have said that 10 times. I quite follow you.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: As regards the question of shouting, who has shouted louder, whether "Ayes" have shouted louder or "Noes" have shouted louder? That is the basis of your decision; and then you gave an opportunity to challenge that decision immediately. As a matter of fact, I would have called for a division at that time—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, all these points were argued in your absence. Let us now proceed with the discussion of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 7 of the Bill, for the word "Agricultural" in line 2, the word "agricultural" be substituted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 7 of the Bill, for the word "Agricultural" in line 2, the word "agricultural" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: In a similar amendment I gave my reasons for opposing the amendment. I oppose this amendment also.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 7 of the Bill, for the word "Agricultural" in line 2, the word "agricultural" be substituted.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Dr. K. Talukdar.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being 9, and the "Noes" 23, the amendment is negative.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move that in the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 7 of the Bill, after the words "hired labourers" in line 5, the words "or bargadars" be inserted.

Sir, I think it is not the intention of the Government that the bargadar should be excluded from the consideration of the question of allowance. The proviso runs as follows: "provided that in the case of an agricultural income derived from land possessed by an individual or a Hindu undivided family and cultivated by such individual or by members of such family with or without the aid of servants or hired labourers or of both, the allowance admissible under this clause shall, instead of such cost, be a sum equal to fifty per centum of the market value of the produce from such land". I want that the bargadar should be included in it. With these words, I move my amendment.

MR. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 7 of the Bill, after the words "hired labourers" in line 5, the words "or bargadars" be inserted.

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das, because I think it is a clear omission in the clause. I think the Hon'ble Finance Minister knows and every one of us know here except my European friends that there is a system of cultivation by bargadar prevailing in Bengal and the bargadar does not come within the definition of servant or labourer. Therefore, unless the words "or bargadars" are added, it would mean that where cultivators have taken the help of bargadars he would not get any deduction at all. With these words, I support the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I also rise to support the amendment. I think it is a clear omission. There is a custom of owner of land cultivating himself his own land or with the help of servants or other members of the family. There is also a custom very common of having cultivation with the help of bargadars. So there is no reason why bargadars should be excluded. It is a clear case of omission, as has already been said by the previous speaker. If the amendment is accepted, it will supply a gap which has been left out carelessly by the draftsmen.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I would say in a few words why the insertion of these words would be quite inappropriate here. The question of the cost of cultivation arises when the owner cultivates himself or with hired labourers. When it is cultivated by a bargadar, the bargadar does the cultivation and retains a portion of the produce and its cost. In that case, it does not include cost and the cost should not be deducted over again. If the possessor has to supply certain things, for example seeds and other things, such things will be allowed under sub-clause (9). Will the honourable member kindly see sub-clause (9) to see the force of my answer?

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a point of information, Sir, will the Hon'ble Minister clear up one point—whether this amount has been included in clause 9?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I cannot supply that information.

MR. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 7 of the Bill, after the words "hired labourers" in line 5, the words "or bargadars" be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

MR. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: I want to move the next two amendments together. This clause 7 relates to the principle—

MR. PRESIDENT: You please move the amendments first

MR. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Oh, I am sorry, Sir.

MR. PRESIDENT: So, mistakes do happen.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Sir, as regards the mistakes of members they can always be rectified; but as President's word is final, mistakes committed by the President cannot be rectified. Even the Judge cannot amend his judgment.

Sir, I beg to move: That in clause 7 of the Bill, in the proviso to sub-clause (1) for the words "equal to fifty per centum" in lines 7 and 8, the words "not less than fifty per centum" be substituted.

I also beg to move: That in clause 7 of the Bill, in the proviso to sub-clause (1), the following be inserted at the end, namely:—

"or such other higher sum as may be proved to the satisfaction of the agricultural income-tax authorities".

This clause seeks to lay down the principle which is to be adopted in assessing the tax on the cultivators of the soil. As certain allowance has been made in respect of the costs incurred by actual cultivators, this amendment has been proposed with a view to see that a fair allowance may be deducted in assessing a tax. The majority of the cultivators are illiterate or semi-illiterate and certainly they are not expected to keep proper accounts of the expenses they have to incur in the matter of cultivation. As a matter of fact, it is well known that in our country cultivators really do not know whether they really derive any income if they include their own labour into the cultivation. Their labour they do not take into account while adjusting the profit. But they have to engage labourers and in that connection they have to undergo certain expenses, I think that amount should be included in the allowance. It has been provided in the proviso that "..... a sum equal to fifty per centum of the market value of the produce raised from such land". I say this is not adequate relief. The allowance ought to be higher but this proviso leaves no room for giving relief in cases like that. We all know the chronic poverty of the cultivators of our country. We also know that the cost of cultivation is daily growing higher. By clause 6 we are going to tax the people who are incompetent to protect their own interests. As illiterate people keep absolutely no accounts of the expenditure undergone in course of cultivation, it will be very fair to make provision for allowance which would give them a good margin free from liability, and I do place my motion before the House and recommend it for acceptance. I would appeal to the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Bill to accept the amendments at least for the benefits of the persons who do not keep any accounts of expenditure incurred for cultivation purposes.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in clause 7 of the Bill, in the proviso to sub-clause (1) for the words "equal to fifty per centum" in lines 7 and 8, the words "not less than fifty per centum" be substituted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in clause 7 of the Bill, in the proviso to sub-clause (1), the following be inserted at the end namely:—

"or such other higher sum as may be proved to the satisfaction of the agricultural income-tax authorities".

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I like to support the amendments that have been moved by Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta. In doing so I would like to point out that the proviso fixes the allowance to an uncomfortable sum equal to 50 per cent. of the marked value. As has been pointed out by the hon'ble mover, there are other expenses. The proviso only includes the case of agricultural income derived from land possessed by individual or a Hindu undivided family cultivated by such individuals or by the members of such family with or without the aid of servants or hired labourers.

Now, Sir, so far as the labourers are concerned, it is well-known that the rate at which labourers are now paid is very high and if besides paying their wages they have to be fed—and it is well known that at the time of cultivation the labourers have not only got to be paid cash but they have got to be fed as well—the expenses become more than 50 per cent. and in such cases the cultivator will not be able to get any relief from the actual amount deducted as allowance. As a matter of fact, to touch the profit a cultivator should have got possibly more than 100 bighas of land and in such cases it is absolutely necessary that hired labourers have got to be employed. The moment you speak of hired labourers you have got to consider the actual amount spent and the actual amount spent will, according to the present rate, go beyond 50 per cent. I, therefore, submit that the limit of 50 per cent. ought not to be there and that it should be left to the income-tax authorities to be fixed as the case may be. With these words, I support the amendments.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I think there is a certain amount of confusion in the minds of the mover and the supporter. First of all, if actual cost has got to be calculated, there is no purpose for providing for a presumptive cost. The necessity for provision of presumptive cost arises only in case of certain persons who do not keep accounts and actual cost cannot be calculated. The basis of actual cost was entirely at the discretion of the assessing officer. It may be added that 50 per cent. is considered very fair in view of the extensive prevalence of the Barua system, according to which a bargadar retains 50 per cent. as cost of cultivation. I, therefore, oppose both the amendments.

MR. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that in clause 7 of the Bill, in the proviso to sub-clause (1) for the words "equal to fifty per centum" in lines 7 and 8, the words "not less than fifty per centum" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

MR. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 7 of the Bill, in the proviso to sub-clause (1), the following be inserted at the end, namely:—

"or such other higher sum as may be proved to the satisfaction of the agricultural income-tax authorities".

(The amendment was negatived.)

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 7 of the Bill, in the proviso to sub-clause (1), the following be added at the end, namely:—

"besides the cost of procuring live-stock and maintaining live-stock and the cost of purchasing manure".

I submit, Sir, that the provision which has been made in the Bill does not include these costs. As a matter of fact, I submit that besides the cost of procuring and maintaining live-stock and the cost of purchasing manure there are other costs which have got to be met by the cultivator if he has to cultivate his land. Anyone having practical experience of cultivation in the province would know that cultivators have very often to purchase live-stock for the purpose of carrying on the work of cultivation. The clause provides only for expenses in connection with upkeep of cattle for the purpose of such cultivation. The purchase of cattle is as necessary as upkeep of cattle and cannot be relegated to the position of a capital expenditure which is not entitled to any allowance. It would be a great hardship on the cultivators if they were not given allowance for purchasing live-stock and also costs of purchasing manure. We would be doing a great harm to the agricultural population of the country if we assess income-tax upon agricultural income on the same principle as the Indian Income-tax Act and exclude expenses of a capital nature which a cultivator has to incur in order that he may carry on the cultivation work with profit. Majority of the cultivating population depend solely on their agricultural income. If they have to incur any expenses of a capital nature for the improvement of cultivation and such expenses are not deducted from the amount of income on which the tax is to be assessed, many necessary works of improvement may have to be postponed if not given up altogether and that would be harmful to the cause of agriculture. I hope hon'ble members will bear in mind that for the purpose of giving proper incentive to carrying on works of improvement and thus to help the "Grow More Food Campaign" it is essentially necessary that expenses which may ordinarily be termed as capital expenses should be deducted from agricultural income.

With regard to the question of manure, unless we make some provision granting allowance for the cost of purchasing manure, cultivators will be discouraged from investing large sums of money for purchasing scientific manure in order to increase the yield and this would again affect the "Grow More Food Campaign" of the Government. I have already laid great stress on the question of applying scientific manure in order to increase the yield of the food crops of Bengal, specially rice, to twice its present yield and unless liberal provision is made giving allowances for the purchase of scientific manures, I am afraid we will be doing greater injustice to the cause of the "Grow More Food Campaign".

As a matter of fact, when I was moving this amendment regarding the purchase of manures in connection with clause 6, the Leader of the House pointed out that this would really come under clause 7 and not under clause 6. It was pointed out at the time that it would come under clauses 6 and 7—under clause 6, because the landlords who derived rent from tenants might even if they received cash rents encourage cultivation by supplying manures so that he might get proper and quicker realisation of rents, and in respect of clause 7 no objection can be made and express mention should be made with regard to this item of expenditure in this clause. If the Hon'ble Finance Minister wants to say that clause 9 shall include these expenses with regard to the purchase of cattle and other things, then I would like to hear from him on that point. Otherwise, I would submit that the word "capital" brings in an idea of vagueness and should be removed and I hope the amendment should be accepted by the House. With these words, I move my amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I support the amendment. The cost of procuring and maintaining live-stock and the cost of purchasing manure— all this is a legitimate charge on cultivation and they are necessary for the purpose of improvement. If we allow for these things, it will enhance production. In these circumstances obviously, this should be excluded. As was pointed out by the Hon'ble Leader of the House the other day, this matter really relates to clause 7; now, this is also to be found in clause 9. The cost of improvement of cultivation should be a legitimate charge on it and I therefore support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, the presumptive cost is proposed to cover items (1) to (4) in sub-clause (I). Therefore, a separate provision for any one of them is not necessary, as proposed in the amendment. I, therefore, oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 7 of the Bill, in the proviso to sub-clause (I), the following be added at the end, namely:—

"besides the cost of procuring live-stock and maintaining live-stock and the cost of purchasing manure".

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I think, Sir, it would be better if I moved amendments Nos. 162 and 163 together, because they are connected. Have I your permission, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move that in clause (3) of clause 7 of the Bill, the word "borrowed" in line 6 be deleted.

Also beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 7 of the Bill, for the words "the amount of any interest paid by him in the previous year in respect of such capital" in lines 6, 7 and 8, the words "the capital so used" be substituted.

Sir, the object of my amendment, as will be clear from the words which I intend to delete from the clause, is that any amount which has been spent by the cultivator whether it is borrowed or not should be given deduction of. The entire capital sum which is spent for the purpose of improving the land and for the purpose mentioned in the clause should be deducted. The clause runs thus: "where his interest in such land is subject to a mortgage or other capital charge, the amount of any interest paid by him in the previous year in respect of such mortgage or charge, and where such land has been acquired, reclaimed or improved by him by the use of borrowed capital, the amount of any interest paid by him in the previous year in respect of such capital." As a matter of fact, Sir, when I was moving a similar amendment in connection with clause 6, it was objected to by the Leader of the House and the Finance Minister that you should not give allowance even where the property is acquired. I could see the force of their objection at once. But I do not know why these three words have been placed together "acquired, reclaimed or improved". My amendment would really affect the question of reclamation or improvement. I submit, Sir, that even if the cultivator improves the land without borrowing capital and if he improves the land by the income of the produce that he gets from the agricultural land, he should get deduction of the entire amount because he is improving the land which will improve the yield of the land hereafter. The objection that even if the cultivator acquires a land, the capital should not be allowed to be deducted is no doubt substantial; but I submit that if you consider the fact that generally these cultivators acquire lands from income derived from their holdings, I think you will realise the weight of the argument. Suppose, a cultivator has got a small plot of land alongside the land he is cultivating on behalf of others and if he acquires land from the income derived from the produce of his own land, there is no harm in allowing the deduction from the tax. It will serve as an incentive to the agriculturist to improve his land and thus increase its income from the next year and so on.

With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendments moved: That in sub-clause (3) of clause 7 of the Bill, the word "borrowed" in line 6 be deleted.

That in sub-clause (3) of clause 7 of the Bill, for the words "the amount of any interest paid by him in the previous year in respect of such capital" in lines 6, 7 and 8, the words "the capital so used" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I was glad to hear that the mover of the amendment saw some force in the argument I advanced in opposing amendment Nos. 84-85 to clause 6. I need not repeat those arguments and in order to economise time, I simply oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (3) of clause 7 of the Bill, the word "borrowed" in line 6 be deleted.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 69.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Tuesday, the 1st August, 1944, at 2-15 p.m., being the sixty-ninth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Bengali Novel "Dukkha Mochan".

248. Mr. KRISHNA CHANDRA ROY CHOWDHURY: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state if he is aware that Mr. Annada Sankar Roy, I.C.S., is the author of several Bengali novels including "Dukkha Mochan" published by the D. M. Library, Calcutta, and that the abovementioned fiction is full of indecent suggestions, is of a low moral tone and is full of sex appeal?

(b) Is there any check on the Government servants writing novels with sex appeal? If so, will Government be pleased to take action?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN (on behalf of the Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) I am aware that Mr. A. S. Roy, I.C.S., is the author of several Bengali novels including "Dukkha Mochan". I am not aware that there is any special emphasis of an indecent character on the subject of sex in the book mentioned.

(b) No; Government servants who write novels are subject to exactly the same restrictions in regard to the moral tone of their work as are non-official writers.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether he has gone through the book "Dukkha Mochan"?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: No; but it was examined by the Government Librarian and passed as not objectionable.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state who is the authority who examined it?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The Bengal Librarian.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether he or the Home Minister took the trouble of reading the book and see if it is a fit book for publication?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The matter was referred to the Bengal Librarian and he said that there was nothing objectionable. But if the honourable member desires that it should be further examined by some other officer, it will be done.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I know if it was personally examined by the Hon'ble Minister in charge and if it is his opinion that such a book is fit for publication?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: He may not be a competent man to give any opinion. Sir Nazimuddin is not so conversant with the Bengali language as to give an opinion.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that while good books are being proscribed without proper examination, more objectionable books are being allowed to be published and sold like hot cakes.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think that question arises.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: It has been stated in the answer that Government are not aware that there is any special emphasis of an indecent character on the subject of sex in the book. Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if there is anything approaching indecent in this book?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: From the report we find that there is nothing objectionable in the book.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Are we to understand from the answer (a) that the book is partly objectionable and partly not objectionable?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will you please repeat your question?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: In answer (a), the reply is "I am not aware that there is any special emphasis of an indecent character on the subject of sex in the book mentioned." The Hon'ble Minister said that there was nothing of an objectionable character in the book. So, will he please reconcile the two answers?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I do not think there is any discrepancy in the two answers. I have made it quite clear.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if the book will be further examined by Government?

Mr. PRESIDENT: That question has already been answered.

Adjournment motion.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, there is an adjournment motion standing in my name.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Regarding your adjournment motion, Rai Bahadur, I am afraid you have not taken the earliest possible opportunity, because yesterday there was a notice of an adjournment motion particularly on the same line and on the same subject and the motion was not moved. So, you have lost the chance. The practice is, as you know, that it must be moved at the first available opportunity.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, I would like to explain the position. So far as I am concerned—

Mr. PRESIDENT: There is no question of your being concerned or others being concerned. The motion should have been moved yesterday. As a matter of fact, there was a notice to this effect but the motion was not moved. So, I am afraid it cannot be moved today.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: On a point of information, Sir. An adjournment motion was before the House yesterday and we expected that the honourable member who gave notice of that adjournment motion would move that; but for reasons best known to him and which we cannot guess the motion was not moved. I want to know whether this 24 hours' delay will technically debar the motion being moved.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If I admit an adjournment motion after the first available opportunity has been missed, that will be creating a rather bad precedent.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: I was going to ask whether there is any rule which prevents this motion being moved today simply because it could not be moved yesterday but which is otherwise an urgent matter of public importance. This is only a delay of 24 hours.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Moholanabish, I may just refer you to a decision of the President of the Central Assembly in which he held that the member should move a motion at the earliest available opportunity; and in the present case the earliest opportunity was yesterday. So we must stick to the practice.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, on many occasions urgency question was waived and you gave opportunities to the members of the Ministerial party to bring such things at a suitable time.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Mazumdar, I think you know that I have never given any opportunity to the Ministerial party; they do not bring adjournment motions, but the Opposition does it. So, if the question of urgency was waived, it was waived in favour of the Opposition.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move that at the end of the proviso to sub-clause (3) of clause 7 of the Bill, the following be added, namely:—

Sir, it is provided in the proviso to sub-clause (3) of the Bill that the interest allowable under this clause shall not exceed the interest which the assessee is liable to pay in respect of such mortgage, charge or capital as a borrower under section 30 of the Bengal Money-lenders Act, 1940. I want to add the above-mentioned words to it. My reason is: that if this clause is amended, as suggested, the interest is to be an allowance in calculation of agricultural income for which taxes are levied. I think that following the example of the Bengal Money-lenders Act, 1940, the words “or any law for the time being in force” should be there.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that at the end of the proviso to sub-clause (3) of clause 7 of the Bill, the following be added, namely:—

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support this amendment. The Money-lenders Act is confined to those classes of cases where the money-lender is a professional money-lender. When a man lends money only casually, he is not a money-lender within the meaning of the Money-lenders Act. The assessee may, therefore, have to pay interest not only at the prescribed rate under the Money-lenders Act but also at much higher rates. Then in the Money-lenders Act there are a number of exceptions. The Scheduled Banks are entitled to charge any rate of interest without any restriction. Similarly, various other bodies are exempted from the operation of the Money-lenders Act. If it is intended to allow exemption to an assessee on the ground of payment of higher rates of interest under any Act, the addition of the words would seem to be necessary. With these words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: The Money-lenders Act prescribes the maximum rate of interest that can be charged and neither the honourable mover nor his supporter gave us any indication as to which other Act which might be mentioned here. We have allowed exemption with regard to interest up to the limit prescribed by the Bengal Money-lenders Act, 1940. If debts are incurred at higher rates, then the borrower will be obliged to pay higher interest. I do not see any necessity of an additional clause like the one which has been moved, namely, "or any law for the time being in force".

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But if the Money-lenders Act goes, then what will happen?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Then it will be for the Legislature to look after the poor borrowers.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that at the end of the proviso to sub-clause (3) of clause 7 of the Bill, the following be added, namely:—

"or any law for the time being in force."

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (4) of clause 7 of the Bill, the words "as interest" in line 1, be omitted.

I am reading sub-clause (4) which runs as follows:—

"(4) any sum paid by him in the previous year as interest on any loans taken by him under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, 1884, or the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883, in respect of such land."

Sir, if the words "as interest" be left out, it would read as follows: "any sum paid by him in the previous year on any loans taken by him under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, 1884, or the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883, in respect of such land."

The reason why I say, Sir, that these allowances should be made is that when such loans are taken by the agriculturist, it is for the purpose of improving his land which will bring forth an agricultural income upon which tax will be imposed. It is for this purpose that loans are generally taken, although loans may also be taken under the Agriculturists' Loans Act in times of great distress to keep body and soul together. Under these circumstances, when loans are taken under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, whatever is paid by the agriculturist should be deducted in calculating the agricultural income upon which assessment is made.

With these words, I move this amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (4) of clause 7, of the Bill, the words "as interest" in line 1, be omitted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to support the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. Now, everyone knows that when an agriculturist approaches the Agriculture Department or the Government for land improvement loan, he is really in dire distress and has not been able to procure loans from anywhere else. As a matter of fact, we know that when loans under this Agriculturists' Loans Act are advanced there are various procedures the poor cultivator has to follow before he can actually get the amount of the loan from the Government authorities. As a matter of fact, these loans are incurred: firstly, for the purpose of maintaining themselves; and secondly, for the purpose of cultivating the lands and purchasing seeds, cattle and other things. Now, so far as the land improvement loan is concerned, this is merely for the purpose of improving the agricultural lands so that the lands which are not yielding any food crops may yield some crops. In such cases, I submit, that not only the interest but any amount which the agriculturist has to pay to the Government either towards interest or towards principal should be remitted by way of allowance. With these few words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I oppose the amendment on the ground that it is only on the interest on the loan that we are allowing an allowance. In this clause, we do not propose to take into consideration any amount of loan incurred by a cultivator to maintain himself and his family.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (4) of clause 7 of the Bill, the words "as interest" in line 1, be omitted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in clause 7 of the Bill, for sub-clause (5), the following sub-clause be substituted, namely:—

"(5) any sum paid by him in the previous year for the maintenance of any irrigation or protective work or other capital asset."

The amendment, I submit, is only a rearrangement of the words in the sub-clause. A mere reading of the sub-clause in the Bill would show the necessity of this amendment. In the Bill the sub-clause stands thus:—"in respect of the maintenance of any irrigation or protective work or other capital assets the amount paid in the previous year on account thereof". And the amendment stands thus: "any sum paid by him in the previous year for the maintenance of any irrigation or protective work or other capital asset". I think this will give the reader the least amount of trouble in appreciating the sub-clause. On a plain comparison of the Bill-clause with the amendment, it would appear that the amendment is better and simpler. The House may be pleased to consider some classic Acts of India. They are written in the plainest style. The sequence is so natural that no effort is needed to appreciate them. Law is already sufficiently intricate and abstruse; therefore, the responsibility of the draftsmen is very great and no pains should be spared to make the enactment simple and logical. In these circumstances, in the hope of making the text simpler and more intelligible, I have submitted the amendment before the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 7 of the Bill, for sub-clause (5), the following sub-clause be substituted, namely:—

"(5) any sum paid by him in the previous year for the maintenance of any irrigation or protective work or other capital asset."

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sub-clause (5) of clause 7, corresponds to sub-clause (4) of clause 6 and in speaking on a similar amendment on the last occasion I pointed out that our draftsmanship in regard to this clause is not at all at fault. I can understand the English quite clearly.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 7, of the Bill, for sub-clause (5), the following sub-clause be substituted, namely:—

"(5) any sum paid by him in the previous year for the maintenance of any irrigation or protective work or other capital asset;"

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: I beg to move that in sub-clause (5) of clause 7 of the Bill, for the word "assets" in line 2, the word "asset" be substituted.

Sir, the amendment is so clear and its purpose so free from any ambiguity that I need not at all speak at length on the purpose of this amendment. The fact that this amendment was tabled by two members of the Government party shows that they very much realised the necessity of this amendment. I think the substitution of the word "asset" for the word "assets" will give a clear meaning to the clause. With these words, I move this amendment for the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (5) of clause 7 of the Bill, for the word "assets" in line 2, the word "asset" be substituted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to support the amendment which had been tabled by Mr. Biren Roy but has just been moved by my friend Mr. Moholanabish. I do not know why Government changed their mind and did not want to proceed with the amendment which they proposed deliberately. There cannot be any doubt that the word "assets" is a mistake and the word "asset" should be the proper word which ought to be there. If that is so, the amendment ought to have been moved by the Government party and with the support of the minority party it would have been unanimously passed by the House without any obstacle. But apparently the only objection is that the Hon'ble Finance Minister will have to go to the Lower House if an amendment is accepted by him and he is afraid of facing the Lower House. Either the Government has got a majority or not. If they have a majority, they might accept these amendments and face the Lower House and get the Bill passed; but if they have not got a majority, they should clear the position and say that they have no majority and that they do not want to go to the Lower House. The Hon'ble Finance Minister thinks that he has a clear majority in the Lower House. If that is so, why is he afraid of going to the Lower House and get through the Bill as a perfect thing with all the mistakes corrected?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I may tell Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee that we have a very fair majority in the Lower House and not only I am not afraid of the Lower House but in due course and at the right time we shall show him that it is so. Now, Sir, my point is that an unnecessary amendment should not be accepted. The time of the House is valuable, the time of the Government is valuable and it is also necessary that the Bill should be passed without avoidable delay. That is the only reason why it is not at all necessary to accept this amendment in order to make the meaning clear. Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (5) of clause 7 of the Bill, for the word "assets" in line 2, the word "asset" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: That in clause 7 of the Bill, in the Explanation to sub-clause (5), for the word and inverted commas "Maintenance" in line 1, the words and inverted commas "The expression 'maintenance'" be substituted.

Here also in the text the word "maintenance" begins with a small letter. But in the definition clause, contrary to the usual practice in such cases the word has begun with a capital letter. If the offending word is removed from the beginning of the sentence by the interposition of these two words, the rules of grammar and the etiquette of draftsmanship would be met. In these circumstances, I move the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 7 of the Bill, in the Explanation to sub-clause (5), for the word and inverted commas "Maintenance" in line 1, the words and inverted commas "The expression 'maintenance'" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, the advice of our drafting expert is that the amendment is unnecessary.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in clause 7 of the Bill, in the Explanation to sub-clause (5), for the word and inverted commas "Maintenance" in line 1, the words and inverted commas "The expression 'maintenance'" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: That in clause 7 of the Bill, in the Explanation to sub-clause (5), for the words "other natural causes" in lines 5 and 6, the words "other causes beyond his control or not arising out of his default" be substituted.

Sir, this is not a drafting amendment: it is really an important amendment. The Bill-clause says that "the expenses of current repairs" and "maintenance from year to year" and "cost of repairing damage or destruction caused by flood or other natural causes" shall be included in "Maintenance". Natural causes, as are known to the law, are "acts of God", those which are irresistible acts of nature, which cannot be foreseen and if foreseen cannot be prevented. Flood is one of such natural causes. In the books we find that the natural causes are, storm, tempest, earthquake, excessive rain, severe flood, etc. The Bill-clause allows expenses for repairing damage caused by these natural causes. But exemption should also be given for the damage caused by other causes beyond one's own control or not arising out of his own default. Natural causes are not opposed to unnatural causes. Natural causes point to acts done by Nature and not by human agency. But damages may also be caused by wild boars and wild elephants as well as human enemies and mischief-makers. Damage caused to protective dykes by these agencies and causes are legitimate charges on the income and should be excepted. The Bill-clause does not include these causes but they come within the amendment. If an assessee has to incur expenditure for improving a dyke or repairing a damage, it should not be confined to natural causes. I have therefore attempted to introduce the expression "other causes beyond his control or not arising out of his default". Exemption should be granted for cost of repairing damages which are caused by agencies which are not natural causes. In fact, if the assessee is not at fault and if the damage has not occurred by his own default, then there is no reason why the exemption should not be allowed. In the circumstances, I submit that the amendment should be carefully considered and should be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in clause 7 of the Bill, in the Explanation to sub-clause (5), for the words "other natural causes" in lines 5 and 6, the words "other causes beyond his control or not arising out of his default" be substituted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I rise to support the amendment moved by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. I do not want to repeat the arguments which have been advanced. I only want to add that I do not appreciate Khan Bahadur's appeal only to the lawyer members of this House because every one having some knowledge of the cultivators' work in the villages knows it very well, and I hope the Hon'ble Finance Minister if he does not know it will try to know it from his friends and supporters, that it is not merely natural causes that cause damage to the cultivators' land but there are other causes; and therefore the amendment should be accepted in order that allowance might be obtained by these unfortunate cultivators when calamities other than natural causes destroy their lands and huge sums are required for the purpose of improving and restoring their land to the previous condition. With these words, I support the amendment.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: With regard to the exemption I beg to point out that under the Income-tax Act in cases of assets or income lost by human agencies and mischief by similar cause, allowances are not allowed and if you follow that principle, this amendment should not be accepted. But my submission will be that that principle should not be followed here; because, so far as the Income-tax Act is concerned, you can keep money or assets well guarded and therefore if there is any loss by theft to a certain extent you are responsible for your negligence. Therefore, under the Income-tax Act that allowance is not granted.

One cannot, similarly, guard his lands or fields. It is not possible or feasible for any man to guard his fields in such a way that no mischief-maker can do any mischief or that wild elephants may not come and destroy the bunds or embankments or things of that nature. So I think that there ought to be a sensible difference between the principle adopted under the Income-tax Act and the principle that is to be adopted in this Act. I, therefore, support this amendment but on different grounds.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, the relief sought by this amendment is beyond the scope of the Income-tax Bill. Any compensation for damages caused by agencies other than natural should be found elsewhere than in the Income-tax Officer's office.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 7 of the Bill, in the Explanation to sub-rule (5), for the words "other natural causes" in lines 5 and 6, the words "other causes beyond his control or not arising out of his default" be substituted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (7) of clause 7 of the Bill, for the words "loss of or damage to" in lines 2 and 3, the words "loss or damage to" be substituted.

Sir, in the Bill-clause the contraction "loss of or damage to" has been used. But it should be seen whether the word "of" or "to" would really apply to the case. Analysing the passage in the text it should stand thus: "insurance against any loss of such land or any damage to such land." I submit that what is meant in the context is that if any loss occurs to land and if there is any insurance against this and if any premium is paid, then that payment of the premium would be allowed as an exemption. The whole point of this amendment lies in a short compass. It is whether any "loss to land" should be preferred to "loss of land." The House will be pleased to consider the difference and the effect of the difference. The authorities say that the word "loss" is applicable where a thing is lost altogether. If a lady loses her husband the whole of the husband is gone and if a ship is lost, it is gone altogether. But if the husband is damaged or if the ship is damaged, the thing remains but only there is some loss or damage—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Sahib, is husband a thing?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, in the hands of powerful lady a husband is sometimes less than a thing (laughter).

Sir, in the circumstances, the question is: whether you would be permitted to say "loss of land", for that would mean that the land is entirely gone. This view is supported by an authoritative book on the subject, namely, Ferland's English Synonyms and Antonyms. It is an American publication and is meant for persons like us who have not much knowledge of the English language, that is as much knowledge as my friend Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury claims—for them the best thing is to use these standard books. There is the other book—Crabbe's Synonyms which is also equally authoritative book. It is held in these books that "loss" is applicable to complete vanishing of a thing and "damage" to partial loss. In any case the question here is: whether we are permitted to use "loss of land". I submit that the meaning that the draftsman wants to convey is really loss "to" land or damage "to" land. Instead of repeating the word, the usual contraction, which is a favourite drafting device, has been employed in the amendment. That is, for the words "loss of or damage to land" it has been attempted to substitute "loss or damage to land". The result would be in exact accordance with the accurate use of the English language. Accordingly, this humble amendment, which is backed by the highest authorities, should evoke the sympathy at least of the literary section of this House. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (7) of clause 7 of the Bill, for the words "loss of or damage to" in lines 2 and 3, the words "loss or damage to" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I beg to submit that our drafting experts meant exactly what they have written, namely,—against loss of or damage to such land or any crops, so that there is no case for making a change in the wording of the sub-clause. I oppose the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: On a point of personal explanation, Sir. I never suggested that the draftsmen did not mean what is implied by the sub-clause. The question is whether they succeeded in making the meaning clear in the expression which they have used. It was not for me to suggest that their draft was unintelligible or their intention could not be understood.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (7) of clause 7 of the Bill, for the words "loss of or damage to" in lines 2 and 3, the words "loss or damage to" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move that the following be inserted after sub-clause (7) of clause 7 of the Bill:—

"(7a) any sum spent by him in the previous year for charitable purposes not falling within section 4(b) out of his total agricultural income from agriculture of that year"

Sir, charitable purpose has been defined in clause 4 of the Bill as relief of the poor, education, medical relief, and advancement of any other object of general public utility. If recognition is given to such sums which are spent by the agriculturists for charitable purposes, then I think it would be of great encouragement to charitably disposed persons. A limit has been put to expenditure for charitable purposes by the words "trust or legal obligation;" so that when sums are spent by the agriculturists not under trust or under legal obligation, they would not be taken into account in giving allowance while calculating the agricultural income. Therefore, I think provision for allowance should be made for relieving the agriculturists in calculating income whenever they spent any sum for charitable purposes even though that expenditure may not be covered by any trust or legal obligation. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that the following be inserted after sub-clause (7) of clause 7 of the Bill:—

"(7a) any sum spent by him in the previous year for charitable purposes not falling within section 4(b) out of his total agricultural income from agriculture of that year;"

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, may I move a short-notice amendment to this amendment?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid that would be rather difficult. I am not inclined to permit you to do so.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I want the deletion of the—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Are you supporting the amendment?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I was proposing to delete the words—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I cannot allow you to do so.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: In that case, I support the amendment as it is. My intention was to improve the amendment further. But I think the House is not in a mood to make any improvement at all. The amendment is very desirable. In fact, we have accepted amounts spent for charitable purposes and religious purposes. But we have been careful in confining our exemption for charitable purposes in recognised trust. As is well-known, acts of charity are common in Hindu, Muslim, Christian or other religion. In the circumstances, if charities created by document are to be exempted, I do not see why charities not created by document should not also be exempted. The point is that the amount spent on charity should be exempted. The exemption should not be in respect of only charities recommended by document and not of those not recommended by document. Both are charities—one supported by a document and the other without a document. But if charity is to be protected and encouraged, this amendment should be accepted. With these words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, it is necessary to make a distinction between income alienated by trust or other obligation for the purpose of charity and casual expenditures on charitable objects. This is a definition without which we cannot successfully administer an Income-tax Act. Some casual acts of charity may have other effects than slight relief from the income-tax authorities. Persons will, for instance, not even be called in Heaven without them.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That the following be inserted after sub-clause (7) of clause 7 of the Bill:—

“(7a) any sum spent by him in the previous year for charitable purposes not falling within section 4(b) out of his total agricultural income from agriculture of that year.”

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, I beg to move: That the proviso to sub-clause (8) of clause 7 be omitted.

Now, sub-clause (8) speaks of allowing depreciation on account of plants and machinery, but it is subject to a proviso which says “Provided that such amount is actually written off in the books of the assessee”. We want to delete this proviso for the simple reason that in the first place you may, in assessing the agriculturists find that there are persons who are not in the habit of keeping accounts or others who are illiterate and do not employ clerks to write out their accounts. Therefore, in the cases of these agriculturists perhaps no allowance will be given under this head. That, I submit, is rather unkind and improper. Then, with regard to the main idea of having written down values of plants and machinery, I may say at once that this theory or this idea of keeping accounts has been very recently introduced in the Indian Income-tax Act. For half a century the Indian Income-tax did not make any provision for this writing down values and depreciation were allowed on a certain well-known basis. At the time of submitting returns, the assessee used to send the particulars of acquisition of such plants and machinery and upon that deductions used to be made. I think on the basis of this new idea the Hon'ble Minister wants to introduce the idea of the writing down of values of plants and machinery; but the Hon'ble Minister should take into account the difference between the assessee who have to pay income-tax and the assessee who shall pay the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax. There is a good deal of difference between the two classes of assessee. I should, therefore, like to say that if you like to give any allowance on account of depreciation of plant and machinery, you should omit this proviso. You are showing on paper that you are allowing certain depreciation; but the proviso takes away the allowance. Perhaps more than half of the assessee will fail to write down on their books of account the depreciation value and thereby lose the benefit of the allowance. So I submit, there should be a certain percentage of depreciation for different classes of plant and machinery and that allowance should be given automatically, and you should not insist on writing it down in the books of account. With these words, I commend my motion to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that the proviso to sub-clause (8) of clause 7 of the Bill be omitted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I support this amendment. There are very good reasons. The mover of the amendment has clearly indicated the reasons behind. Neither the Agricultural Income-tax Act nor the Indian Income-tax Act makes it obligatory on the part of any assessee to maintain an account and there are many persons, many agriculturists who do not keep any regular account. The proviso will only be taken advantage of by big companies like the Bidnapore Zemindary Company and not the semi-literate and illiterate agriculturists who require more protection. In fact, as Mr. Moholabish explained, the depreciation will be allowed to well-known companies only. This proviso would shut out many from securing depreciation and its deletion would harm no one, while ordinary householders would be able to take advantage of this clause. We have not yet been able to make primary education compulsory. 93 per cent. of our people are still uneducated and to expect such men to keep regular accounts of machinery and other things in their books would be to ask them to do the impossible. In these circumstances, the proviso will be a stumbling block to many. If the proviso is deleted, no harm will be done. A very beneficent principle has been enacted in sub-clause (8) which, I believe, is taken away entirely in the case of those persons who require protection, namely, the ordinary cultivators. In these circumstances, I submit that the deletion of the proviso would be desirable on grounds of expediency and convenience. I, therefore, support this amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment. It has been rightly said that a similar proviso occurs in the Indian Income-tax Act. Sir, I submit that sub-clause (8) of clause 7 applies to people who use machinery, and it is not likely that the proviso will make the agriculturist poorer. I see, therefore, no point in having the proviso deleted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that the proviso to sub-clause (8) of clause 7 of the Bill be omitted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 7 of the Bill, sub-clause (10) be omitted.

Sir, sub-clause (10) is an all-embracing mischief. My honourable friends will be pleased to see the elaborate provisions beginning with sub-clause (1) and ending with sub-clause (9). These nine clauses describe with meticulous care the provisions which should be complied with in order to earn an exemption. But all this care and all this nice advertisement of wisdom is entirely thrown away by the introduction of sub-clause (10). Sub-clause (10), I submit, will have the effect of nullifying all the sub-clauses that lie before it. Sub-clause (10) exempts "any other sum which may be prescribed". This means that exemption can be granted arbitrarily by the rule-making power. If that is so, I think, a case has been made out for deleting the sub-clauses (1) to (9) outright. It is no use making elaborate provisions and then nullifying the whole by enacting an all-embracing clause like this. This sub-clause (10) raises an important question, and as the Hon'ble Minister has been pleased to refer to the Indian Income-tax Act, I submit, that this all-embracing power has not been given to the Central Government. This is a power which should never be given on principle. In fact, taxation is a matter for the Legislature. Principles of exemption should never be left to the Executive. Control over taxation is a most important right, and I submit that this taxation should really be controlled by the Legislature. I submit that sub-clause (10) gives absolute, arbitrary and irresponsible power to the Executive. They can say "Well, we like that such and such things should be exempted", and a rule will accordingly be made under this sub-clause. Thus, through this small loophole, anything may be done. We know that in these days of Provincial Autonomy when parties are growing strong, members are acquiring influence and pressure is put by the party on the Executive, very unsatisfactory result is bound to occur unless a limit is set to their scope of activities in this matter. I think on principle this sub-clause (10) is the most mischievous sub-clause. You cannot arm the Executive with an all-embracing power. I think Adolph Hitler did not acquire greater power in Germany than these rule-making authorities are going to acquire under this sub-clause. This sub-clause is a most inoffensive-looking but at the same time a most dangerous sub-clause. Sir, yesterday a small comma created so much trouble in this House, and this small sub-clause may create similar trouble afterwards. What is the use of defining exemptions with meticulous care and then again keeping the door open to undo the work? Just like locking the sadar door and keeping open the khirki door. You are particularly careful in enacting inclusions and exclusions; but at the same time you are going to draft rules which may undo the whole thing. In these circumstances, I oppose this sub-clause as the most mischievous provision in the Bill. With these words, I move the amendment.

MR. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 7 of the Bill, sub-clause (10) be omitted.

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. As has been pointed out, the words "any other sum which may be prescribed" seems to be analogous to another clause in the Bill, which is clause 49, where also the Provincial Government may by notification in the Official Gazette make provision for the granting of relief in respect of agricultural income and so forth. I do not know what is the hidden idea behind this clause; but I would remind my friend the Finance Minister of his attitude when we wanted to move amendments which would have really given some relief to the agriculturists; opposition was meted out to those amendments and all the amendments which we moved making specific provisions with regard to relief of the agriculturists were opposed and negated. I do not know what is the meaning of the words "or any other sum which may be prescribed". Either you have not specified everything which an agriculturist is entitled to under the previous clause or you have specified it. As a matter of fact, I heard the Hon'ble Finance Minister saying that under sub-clause (9) everything that was not covered by the other clause would be given effect to. If so, then why is this provision made for the purpose of enabling the Provincial Government to prescribe sums as allowance in respect of a particular class of assessee? I think it is only a weapon which Government want to keep in their hand for some ulterior motive and I hope that specially my European friends will consider the vague provision of this clause carefully.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I submit that sub-clause (10) is very appropriate here. No one denies that a taxation measure is entirely a matter for the Legislature. But I would just point out that the provision of this sub-clause relates to the possibility of some additional relief. Therefore, that principle does not apply. The honourable mover of this amendment may think that it would leave a loophole, but it is a loophole in the right place. Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 7 of the Bill, sub-clause (10) be omitted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 7 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move: That after clause 7 of the Bill, the following clauses be inserted, namely:—

"7A. The Assessee if he proves that for the year of assessment he has his wife living with him, or that his wife is wholly maintained by him during the year of assessment, and that he is not entitled in computing the amount of his income for that year for the purposes of the Income-tax under this Act and the Indian Income-tax Act of 1922, to make any deduction in respect of the sums paid for the maintenance of his wife, shall be entitled to a deduction of Rs. 1,200 annually from the amount of which tax is payable under this Act.

7B. If the Assessee proves that he is a widower and that for the year of assessment a person being a female relative of his or of his deceased wife is resident with him for the purpose of having the charge and care of any child of his, or he proves that he has no female relative of his own or of his deceased wife who is able or willing to take such charge and that he has employed some other female person to undertake the same, he shall, subject as hereinafter provided, be entitled to a deduction of Rs. 300 in respect of that female relative or other female person per year:

Provided that—

(b) no deduction shall be allowed under this section where the female relative is a married woman living with her husband, and the husband has claimed and been allowed a deduction of Rs. 1,200 under the provisions of this clause;

Explanation.—In this Section the expression 'child' means a child in respect of whom a deduction is allowed under this section;

(c) this section shall apply to a Assessee being a widow as it applies to an Assessee being a widower, with the substitution of 'her deceased husband' for 'his deceased wife'.

7C. If the Assessee proves that he is un-married and that he has living with him either his mother, being a widow or a person living apart from her husband, or some other female relative, for the purpose of having the charge and care of any brother or sister of his, being a child in respect of whom a deduction is allowed under this section, and that he maintains the mother or other relative at his own expense; and that neither he nor any other individual is entitled to a deduction in respect of the same person under this section or if any other individual is entitled to any such deduction that the other individual has relinquished his claim thereto, he shall be entitled to a deduction of Rs. 300.

7D. If the Assessee proves that he has been living at the year of commencement of assessment any child who is either under the age of 16 years or who, if over the age of 16 years at the commencement of that year, is receiving full-time instruction at any University, college, school or other educational establishment, he shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be entitled in respect of one child to a deduction of Rs. 360 and in respect of each subsequent child to a deduction of Rs. 240. The expression 'child' in this section includes a step-child.

7E. If the Assessee proves that for the year of assessment he has the custody of and maintains at his own expense any child who is under the age of 16 years at the commencement of that year, or who, if over the age of 16 years at the commencement of that year is receiving such full-time instruction as aforesaid, and that neither he nor any other individual is entitled to a deduction in respect of the same child under the foregoing provisions of this section or under any of the other provisions of this Act, or, if any other individual is entitled to such a deduction, that that other individual has relinquished his claim thereto, he shall be entitled in respect of the child to the same deduction as if the child were a child of his.

Explanation.—No deduction shall be allowed under this section in respect of any child who is entitled in his own right to an income exceeding Rs. 360 a year:

Provided that in calculating the income of the child for the purposes of this section no account shall be taken of any income to which the child is entitled as a holder of a scholarship, or other similar educational endowments:

Provided further that if any question arises as to whether any Assessee is entitled to an allowance under this section in respect of a child who is over the age of 16 years, as being a child who is receiving such full-time instruction as aforesaid, the Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax may consult the Head of the institution.

7F. (1) If the Assessee proves that he maintains at his own expense any person being a relative of his or of his wife who is incapacitated by old age or infirmity from maintaining himself, or his wife's widowed mother, whether incapacitated or not, and being a person whose total income from all sources does not exceed Rs. 360 a year, he shall be entitled to a deduction of Rs. 240 in respect of each person whom he so maintains, and a like deduction shall be made in the case of an Assessee who by reason of old age or infirmity, is compelled to depend upon the services of a daughter resident with and maintained by him or her.

(2) Where two or more persons jointly maintain any such person as aforesaid, the deduction to be made under this section shall be apportioned between them in proportion to the amount or value of their respective contributions towards the maintenance of that person.

(3) This section shall apply to an Assessee being a female person as it applies to an Assessee being a male person with the substitution of 'husband' for 'wife'.

7G. The deductions to be allowed under the foregoing sections would be allowed only where the Assessee proves that the agricultural income of the Assessee assessable under this Act and the total income of the Assessee under the Indian Income-tax Act of 1922 does not exceed Rs. 12,000."

Sir, although this is a very long amendment, it is necessary that honourable members should appreciate its importance. I was, indeed, very sorry when my honourable friend Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury stated that the amendment should be taken as read and need not be read out in the House. I do not know whether that attitude was proper.

I would like to refer the honourable members of this House to chapter 40 of the English Income-tax Act, 1918, being 8 and 9 George V. On referring to section 1, we would find that there the tax is levied in respect of all property, profits or gains described or comprised in the Schedules A, B, C, D and E of the First Schedule to the Act. Turning to the Schedule itself, we would find that the following classes of profits, gains and property are included therein:—

Schedule A deals with tax to be charged in respect of property on all lands, tenements, hereditaments and heritages in the United Kingdom. In looking to the details with reference to the assessment on the annual value of lands, tenements, hereditaments or heritages we would find that the tax is assessed on rack-rent of the property at which they are let and if not let at rack-rent they are worth. With regard to other kinds of lands and properties, various provisions are made, details of which I need not refer to the honourable members of this House.

Schedule B deals with tax to be charged in respect of occupation of lands, tenements, etc. The rules are prescribed in the said schedule.

Schedule C deals with tax to be charged in respect of all profits arising from interest, annuities, dividends, shares or annuities payable out of public revenue.

Schedule D deals with tax to be charged in respect of annual profits or gains arising or accruing (i) to any person residing in the United Kingdom from any kind of property whatever situate in the United Kingdom or elsewhere, (ii) to any person residing in the United Kingdom from any trade, profession, employment or vocation whether the same be respectively carried on in the United Kingdom or elsewhere (iii) and to any person whether British subject or not although not resident in the United Kingdom from any property whatever in the United Kingdom or from any trade profession, employment or vocation exercised within the United Kingdom (iv) and also on interest of money, annuities and other annual profits of gains not charged under schedules A, B, C or E and not specially exempted from tax. Various rules are made with regard to assessment under Schedule D, details of which it is not necessary for me to refer to the honourable members.

Under Schedule E tax shall be charged in respect of every public office or employment or profit and in respect of every annuity, pension or stipend payable by the Crown or out of the public revenue of United Kingdom other than annuities charged under Schedule C for every 20s of the annual amount thereof. Now if we look to the Provincial Legislative list under the Government of India Act 7th Schedule list II, we would find that items 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 48(a), 48(b) and 50 provide for taxation by the Provincial Government with respect to various classes of income. So far as agricultural income is concerned, it is specifically provided for in item No. 41. Looking to the report of the Indian Taxation Enquiry Committee of 1924, we find at page 37 the system of land taxation of other countries summarised. So far as taxation imposed is concerned, the following features are mentioned therein: (a) a flat rate on capital or annual value, (b) a progressive tax on income which includes the income derived from the land, (c) in most cases a death duty or other capital tax, in some cases both, and (d) a local rate. The principles underlying taxation may be stated in the words of Professor Seligman: "The relation of the individual to the local community is somewhat different from his relation to the State at large. The town is to a certain extent an association of business interest. While therefore the obligation of the citizen to contribute to the general burdens should be regulated by the principle of faculty or ability, it is eminently proper that in the case of the local bodies more tax should be paid to the principle of benefits. A tax on real state is a real tax, a tax on product. It is not a personal tax. The real State tax is a specially good local tax."

If we compare the system of land taxation in Britain and in British India, we will find that so far as land is concerned in Britain, it is taxed only once: the rate may be high or low. So far as British India is concerned, the Taxation Enquiry Committee considered the question as to whether land revenue is a tax or rent, in paragraph 78 of their Report and the following paragraphs. The Report examines critically the position with regard to land revenue and in paragraph 84 we find the following statement:—

“The contention that land revenue is a tax is reinforced by the facts that the State has never claimed universal ownership; that it has conferred proprietary rights in permanently-settled areas; and that it imposes no restriction of sale or mortgage and in the case of raryatari land. The argument that the levy differs from a tax and resembles a rent in the fact that it cannot be altered to suit the requirements of the State, in the long period for which it is fixed, and in the amenities given to the payers of land revenue in the shape of rent-free house-sites; the use of common lands, the grant of loans and otherwise is necessary by the fact that there are many functions of a landlord which the State does not perform”—I would pause here for a moment and would request the honourable members to consider this aspect of the question very carefully. It is clear that the State will not perform all the functions which are necessary for the protection of the people generally within the Province—“and that the process of assessment and collection is akin to that of a tax-collector”.

Sir, if we look to the history of Bengal during the last 150 years since the inauguration of the Permanent Settlement in 1793, we would find that the landlords are responsible for the establishment, maintenance and development of educational institutions, hostels, charitable dispensaries and other institutions for the benefit of the public which are ordinarily the functions of the Government. In the majority of cases the landlords also excavated tanks for the benefit of the agricultural population and had it not been for the help which the landlords ungrudgingly gave for the cause of public welfare specially education, I do not know what would have been the position of education in this country. We may quote the instance of the primary education tax and the attempt of the present Government to make primary education compulsory. I am sorry to say, Sir, that the Government have failed to introduce compulsory primary education in the whole Province and the way in which primary education is being conducted is far from satisfactory. The Report of the Indian Taxation Enquiry Committee has after referring to the two decisions of the Privy Council indicated that at the time of the Permanent Settlement the British Government were not the proprietors of the permanently-settled areas and that in accordance with the ancient Hindu law as also the Muhammedan law they were entitled to a certain share of the produce of the lands and so this was really a tax and nothing else. I will, however, warn my honourable friends through you, Sir, that they must not suppose that I am opposing the agricultural income-tax on that ground. My object is to show that this is really nothing but double taxation. Let us consider now what the landholders of Bengal have to pay in the shape of taxes by reason of their occupation of land. The first tax, as I have indicated above, is land revenue in the case of zamindars and rent in the case of subordinate tenants. They have next, Sir, to pay road cess and public works cess for the maintenance of roads and public works at a certain rate per rupee. They have next, Sir, to pay an education cess for the primary education of their children and also of the children of the locality. Next, Sir, these people have to pay the chowkidari tax which now is known as the union board tax. With reference to the chowkidari tax, the report of the Indian Taxation Enquiry Committee has mentioned various aspects from which the tax should be considered. The Report states that the chowkidari tax in Bengal sometime in the year 1924-25 amounted to 65.6 lakhs of rupees. The Report further states that the upper limit of the tax was raised from rupee one to rupees four, to be levied and spent by the union boards for improving local sanitation and disposal of civil and criminal cases. I do not know the amount of the union board tax now levied in Bengal from the landholding classes in the villages. I would request the Hon'ble Finance Minister to look up and see for himself the total amount of union board tax paid by the land-holding classes in Bengal. Thus, Sir, one finds that the Government is realising from the zemindars taxes in the shape of land revenue, in the shape of road and public works cesses, in the shape of education cess and in the shape of union board tax. These are the four different taxes levied on the cultivating classes in Bengal. Agricultural income-tax is the fifth tax that the cultivators have to bear and therefore in assessing the tax you have to consider most carefully whether or not the tax would hit the middle class and affect them seriously. I might remind the Hon'ble Finance Minister that in the amendment I have proposed I have fixed the maximum limit of income of persons to be Rs. 12,000 when they would be entitled to the deduction proposed by me. Sir, if I now refer once against to the English Statute, we find that the principle of the tax there is to have a portion of the surplus income of the assessee after making provision for the expenses of maintaining themselves and the members of their family. It is commonly said that the British people are groaning under the heavy tax of 10s. in the £. But even then, Sir, what is the actual position there? There is a surplus amount which is left to an assessee after meeting all primary expenses, which I have indicated and the scale there is much heavier than the one that I have proposed here, for it may be assumed without contradiction that we generally require less than the British people. Sir, I would request my honourable friends to my left, I mean the members of the European group, to consider the amendments which I have now proposed. I say, Sir, that they are on their trial today and it is up to them to support these amendments of mine, so that when they themselves claim relief from double taxation under the provisions of clause 49 of the Bill, they might make out a more plausible case. It would not be for the Hon'ble Finance Minister to say that the rate of tax he is levying is small compared with the tax that is being levied under the British Act. It is not uncommon to find in this country that the head of an ordinary middle-class family has got to maintain about 15 heads. If we look to the present ratio of expenses for maintaining with bare sustenance 15 men, the minimum requirements would be about Rs. 1-8 per day which means that he is to spend at least Rs. 700 per month for maintenance alone. Besides this, he has got to meet the expenses for clothing, medical expenses, expenses for repairing house, etc. I am not including the other expenses of cultivation because they have been deducted and the balance is only to be taxed. We would thus find that a man having an income of even Rs. 5,000 per annum cannot carry on without hardship if he is to pay the tax from the amount which is required for his maintenance. If however reasonable allowances are granted for the maintenance of himself, his wife and the other members of his family, and only the surplus income is assessed as in the British Act, I do not think, even if the tax is double, treble, quadruple or even levied for the fifth time, there should be any objection. In this connection, I would particularly request the Finance Minister to consider the plight of the middle-class people with an income from Rs. 5,000 to Rs. 15,000, having to meet all sorts of expenses, the most important of the expenses is the higher education of his children. Sir, if you want to raise the standard of living and the economic condition of the people of Bengal and if you want to give them some respite from worries and suspense, you will have to consider the allowances which I propose in my amendments relating to clauses 7(a) to 7(b). I hope, Sir, honourable members of this House will consider this amendment in a reasonable spirit. I would assure them that this is not meant as a censure on the Government in any way. They would only be giving due consideration to the requirements of the assessee whom they have the good fortune of representing in this House. I would like the honourable members supporting the Government to consider this matter from this point of view and not be carried away by the feeling that because the amendment happens to be moved by a member of the Opposition it must be turned down, no matter whether it is reasonable or not. Sir, I think the Hon'ble Finance Minister had stated in connection with his reply to the debate on the circulation and Select Committee motions that he was not suggesting that the tax was being levied on account of the inflated income of the people, although I tried to suggest that this was so. I submit Sir, if it is conceded that this tax is not going to be justified on account of temporary inflation due to war, I would ask him to consider whether or not these allowances should be granted. In considering the amendment to the schedules, the honourable members will find that I have proposed that in the case of incomes exceeding certain limit the tax may be raised up to 2-9 pies in the rupee. I hope, Sir, that in this way the loss which may accrue on account of the allowances I have proposed will be recouped to a certain extent from the increase of tax I have proposed from people who can afford to pay from their income. Hon'ble members will also consider that in this country we have no legislation making provision for the unemployed they have in Britain under the Unemployment Insurance Act. The number of unfortunate people in villages who cannot maintain themselves with barest necessities of life is not inconsiderable; they fall back upon their neighbours who are more fortunate and who are charitably disposed. As a matter of fact, we note the well-known Hindu idea that the guest is to be honoured above all people. I would remind the honourable members of the well-known Sanskrit sloke: अर्बुदभागेते शुकः. There are similar provisions in the Muhammadan law as well and they do not turn away a person who comes praying for some dole for their maintenance. If you hit these people by taxing them beyond their capacity, they will be compelled to refuse the help which they were giving so long. You will have to maintain poor houses and work houses: you will have to take the responsibility and hold yourself liable if a single individual dies of starvation. The deficit of the present year has been met from the grant which His Excellency the Governor has succeeded in obtaining from the Central Government of Rs. 10 crores of rupees and we must thank him for that. I must say, however, that by granting 10 crores of rupees to the Government of Bengal the Central Government does not in any way deserve to be congratulated. Sir, there cannot be any doubt that the deficit of the present year is due to the famine conditions that prevailed in Bengal during the last year and the acute condition that is now prevalent in Bengal. If it is once conceded that this deficit is due to war conditions and the death of about 4 million people of Bengal during the last year was occasioned by shortage of foodstuff which could have been prevented, I submit, Sir, honourable members will find that it was the incumbent duty of the Central Government to come to the assistance of the people of Bengal long before. As a matter of fact, Sir, we feel that but for the highly injudicious declaration of the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies during the last year after the present Ministry assumed office that there was no shortage of foodstuffs, the Government could have prevented the death of so many people and the money which came subsequently from the other parts of India and from the other parts of the world would have to a certain extent relieved the situation. But I am not referring to these matters now to condemn the action or inaction of the Ministry during the last year. Past is past and it is no use referring to the past for the purpose of criticism merely. We refer to the past only for the purpose of preventing such recurrence in future and our experience of the past is only a guide for that purpose. I am referring to the grant of the Central Government of a sum of Rs. 10 crores enabling Bengal Government to meet its deficits. Once it is conceded, as I have stated above that this deficit is due to war conditions: once it is conceded that Bengal was in the forefront of the war during the last year and during the present year, Bengal is actually in the midst of war, a grant of Rs. 10 crores by the Central Government is nothing. I hope, Sir, I have said enough for the purpose of inducing honourable members to accept the amendment that I have proposed and I hope they would accede to my request and accept the amendment proposed.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That after clause 7 of the Bill, the following clauses be inserted, namely:—

"7A. The Assessee if he proves that for the year of assessment he has his wife living with him, or that his wife is wholly maintained by him during the year of assessment, and that he is not entitled in computing the amount of his income for that year for the purposes of the Income-tax under this Act and the Indian Income-tax Act of 1922, to make any deduction in respect of the sums paid for the maintenance of his wife, shall be entitled to a deduction of Rs. 1,200 annually, from the amount of which tax is payable under this Act.

7B. If the Assessee proves that he is a widower and that for the year of assessment a person being a female relative of his or of his deceased wife is resident with him for the purpose of having the charge and care of any child of his, or he proves that he has no female relative of his own or of his deceased wife who is able or willing to take such charge and that he has employed some other female person to undertake the same, he shall, subject as hereinafter provided, be entitled to a deduction of Rs. 300 in respect of that female relative or other female person per year:

Provided that—

- (b) no deduction shall be allowed under this section where the female relative is a married woman living with her husband, and the husband has claimed and been allowed a deduction of Rs. 1,200 under the provisions of this clause;

Explanation.—In this Section the expression 'child' means a child in respect of whom a deduction is allowed under this section;

- (c) this section shall apply to an Assessee being a widow as it applies to an Assessee being a widower, with the substitution of 'her deceased husband' for 'his deceased wife'.

7C. If the Assessee proves that he is un-married and that he has living with him either his mother, being a widow or a person living apart from her husband, or some other female relative, for the purpose of having the charge and care of any brother or sister of his, being a child in respect of whom a deduction is allowed under this section, and that he maintains the mother or other relative at his own expense; and that neither he nor any other individual is entitled to a deduction in respect of the same person under this section or if any other individual is entitled to any such deduction that the other individual has relinquished his claim thereto, he shall be entitled to a deduction of Rs. 300.

7D. If the Assessee proves that he has been living at the year of commencement of assessment any child who is either under the age of 16 years or who, if over the age of 16 years at the commencement of that year, is receiving full-time instruction at any University, college, school or other educational establishment, he shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be entitled in respect of one child to a deduction of Rs. 360 and in respect of each subsequent child to a deduction of Rs. 240. The expression 'child' in this section includes a step-child.

7E. If the Assessee proves that for the year of assessment he has the custody of and maintains at his own expense any child who is under the age of 16 years at the commencement of that year, or who, if over the age of 16 years at the commencement of that year is receiving such full-time instruction as aforesaid, and that neither he nor any other individual is entitled to a deduction in respect of the same child under the foregoing provisions of this section or under any of the other provisions of this Act, or, if any other individual is entitled to such a deduction, that that other individual has relinquished his claim thereto, he shall be entitled in respect of the child to the same deduction as if the child were a child of his.

Explanation.—No deduction shall be allowed under this section in respect of any child who is entitled in his own right to an income exceeding Rs. 360 a year:

Provided that in calculating the income of the child for the purpose of this section no account shall be taken of any income to which the child is entitled as a holder of a scholarship, or other similar educational endowments:

Provided further that if any question arises as to whether any Assessee is entitled to an allowance under this section in respect of a child who is over the age of 16 years, as being a child who is receiving such full-time instruction as aforesaid, the Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax may consult the Head of the institution.

7F. (1) If the Assessee proves that he maintains at his own expense any person being a relative of his or of his wife who is incapacitated by old age or infirmity from maintaining himself, or his wife's widowed mother, whether incapacitated or not, and being a person whose total income from all sources does not exceed Rs. 360 a year, he shall be entitled to a deduction of Rs. 240 in respect of each person whom he so maintains, and a like deduction shall be made in the case of an Assessee who by reason of old age or infirmity, is compelled to depend upon the services of a daughter resident with and maintained by him or her.

(2) Where two or more persons jointly maintain any such person as aforesaid, the deduction to be made under this section shall be apportioned between them in proportion to the amount or value of their respective contributions towards the maintenance of that person.

(3) This section shall apply to an Assessee being a female person as it applies to an Assessee being a male person with the substitution of 'husband' for 'wife'.

7G. The deductions to be allowed under the foregoing sections would be allowed only where the Assessee proves that the agricultural income of the Assessee assessable under this Act and the total income of the Assessee under the Indian Income-tax Act of 1922 does not exceed Rs. 12,000."

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to support this amendment. I have not been able to carefully study the whole amendment (Cries of "Oh, oh" from the Treasury Benches), but I have full reliance on the honourable mover who has, with painstaking care, prepared the amendment. I have, however, to discharge a very general duty, that is, to deal with the general aspect of the case. When I said that I had not studied the amendment in detail, I did not mean to say that I did not know what the amendment means or that I did not know whether that amendment should be accepted or not. My honourable friends who are very merry over this admission really interpret their own mind. They are absolutely aloof from what is being said and done here and my admission is not really due to any absent-mindedness on my part as my honourable friends on the other side really showed yesterday. (Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: You are saying too much). However, Sir, so far as the proposed sub-clauses are concerned, the first sub-clause 7A deals with the case of a married man. 7B deals with a widower, 7C deals with an unmarried man. With regard to these three sub-clauses, the general principle underlying them is that those who have to maintain certain relations, the maintenance charges should be exempted from taxation. Then sub-clauses 7D, 7E, 7F, and 7G deal with persons who maintain children under 16 years, who are studying in the University and have not sufficient income of their own and those who maintain relations of the wife and other persons in the family. These proposed sub-clauses have been taken from the English Income-tax Act. As has been already pointed out by my friend Mr. Mukherjee that the English tax-payers though they have to pay a larger percentage of their income, still these deductions are allowed. As far as I can guess from what I know of the English society, they are not accustomed to maintain relations to the extent we Hindus and Muslims do. Every large family maintains a large number of relations and they are considered to be a legitimate charge on the estate. There are old persons having no income and there are children who have got to be provided for. Even in countries like England, where it is not as much a virtue to maintain relations, these exemptions are allowed. These exemptions should have apparently greater application to the conditions of Bengal. As has already been pointed out, this Agricultural Income-tax Act is going to be thrust upon the people all on a sudden; it will I believe create a great amount of dislocation in the income of the people and some amount of breathing time should be given to them. The difficult situation in which the landlords have been placed has very ably been discussed by my friend the mover. In fact, they have found themselves in very difficult circumstances. This agricultural income-tax will very badly affect them. I, therefore, think that the exemptions should be more equitable. Instead of allowing the Executive to create some loopholes and give exemption as they please, it is far better that exemption should be specifically mentioned on the lines indicated in the proposed amendment. It is the middle class families which will be badly affected. In the cases of a large number of middle class families with apparently good incomes which have to maintain a large number of relations, the large burdens which they have got to bear on this account have not been exempted. These natural charges deserve exemption. These proposed exemptions should be carefully studied and accepted. They are already accepted in the British Income-tax Act and there is no reason why you should not accept them here, specially in view of the fact that the relations have got to be maintained which is the moral duty of every family in the difficult circumstances through which the middle classes are now passing. It is all the more desirable that amendments of this type should be accepted, and exemptions should be allowed really on a more equitable manner. As I have already said, I support the principle of this tax but, at the same time, I give my support to the generous and legitimate exemptions. Income-tax should be levied on real income. Incomes charged with large burdens are only paper incomes. Net incomes alone should be charged with income-tax. In the circumstances, I believe, these exemptions should be accepted on principle. The amendment is based on humanitarian considerations. It is calculated to determine the real income of the people according to the condition of the country and to the feelings and sentiments of the people and they should therefore be accepted. With these few words, I support the amendments.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA CÔSWAMI: Sir, unlike the sponsor of the amendment, I have devoted all attention to the amendment that it deserved. I may at the outset say that I have a certain amount of sympathy for the amendment. But let us consider the amendment carefully. The proposed amendment seeks to introduce a few new clauses in the Bill. These new clauses are intended to provide that as long as a man's income, both under this Bill and under the Income-tax Act, does not exceed 12,000 rupees a year, he shall be entitled to a certain amount of fixed allowance in respect of his wife, women relatives, children, incapacitated relatives, etc. These suggestions take after the provisions for personal allowances in respect of wife and child in the British Income-tax Act. I would, however, like the House to consider certain points which would show the difference between the system adopted in the Bill, namely, the Indian system and the British system. In our Bill there is an exemption limit of 3,500 rupees as against the exemption limit of only £110 under the British Act—I take the figure of the year 1941-42. Secondly, in our Bill as well as in the Indian Income-tax Act, there is a free-slab of Rs. 1,500, although there is no free-slab in the British system. On account of these two points of difference in the two systems, there is no room for providing for personal allowance in our Bill. The free-slab provides for this adequately.

Finally, it may be pointed out that the impact of the British income-tax on the British tax-payer is much more than the impact of this Bill on the Bengal tax-payer. Even when an assessee in the United Kingdom has a big family and all his income is earned income, the effective rate of income-tax may rise as high as 19 shillings in the pound, I take the 1941-42 rates. The maximum rate in our Bill is only a few annas and six pies in the rupee and the effective rate is certainly much lower. In these circumstances, the criticism of the Bill on the lines that personal allowances are not provided for in it, as in the British Income-tax Act, is entirely unreal. This Bill not only provides for a much higher exemption limit and a complete free-slab—features which are not present in the British Income-tax Act,—but the effective rate of the tax in the case of the assessee is very much lower in our Bill in spite of the absence of express provision for personal allowances. Taking all these things into consideration, I would ask the honourable member who has moved this amendment to consider seriously whether the taxation measure, as it appears in the Bill, is not fair and just. I would, therefore, ask him not to press his amendment to a vote, or in the alternative we must oppose it as best as we can.

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a point of information, Sir. Hon'ble Finance Minister stated that there was no tax on the first 3,500. As a matter of fact, I find that in Schedule A to the proviso to sub-clause (2), the figure given is Rs. 3,500; but according to the provision of sub-clause (1), the tax is to be levied after the first Rs. 1,500. Will the Hon'ble Minister please clear up this anomaly?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I will explain that when I come to explain the slab system.

MR. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That after clause 7 of the Bill, the following clauses be inserted, namely:—

“7A. The Assessee if he proves that for the year of assessment he has his wife living with him, or that his wife is wholly maintained by him during the year of assessment, and that he is not entitled in computing the amount of his income for that year for the purposes of the Income-tax under this Act and the Indian Income-tax Act of 1922, to make any deduction in respect of the sums paid for the maintenance of his wife, shall be entitled to a deduction of Rs. 1,200 annually from the amount of which tax is payable under this Act.

7B. If the Assessee proves that he is a widower and that for the year of assessment a person being a female relative of his or of his deceased wife is resident with him for the purpose of having the charge and care of any child of his, or he proves that he has no female relative of his own or of his deceased wife who is able or willing to take such charge and that he has employed some other female person to undertake the same, he shall, subject as hereinafter provided, be entitled to a deduction of Rs. 300 in respect of that female relative or other female person per year:

Provided that—

- (b) no deduction shall be allowed under this section where the female relative is a married woman living with her husband, and the husband has claimed and been allowed a deduction of Rs. 1,200 under the provisions of this clause;

Explanation.—In this section the expression 'child' means a child in respect of whom a deduction is allowed under this section;

- (c) this section shall apply to a Assessee being a widow as it applies to and Assessee being a widower, with the substitution of 'her deceased husband' for 'his deceased wife'.

7C. If the Assessee proves that he is unmarried and that he has living with him either his mother, being a widow or a person living apart from her husband, or some other female relative, for the purpose of having the charge and care of any brother or sister of his, being a child in respect of whom a deduction is allowed under this section, and that he maintains the mother or other relative at his own expense; and that neither he nor any other individual is entitled to a deduction in respect of the same person under this section or if any other individual is entitled to any such deduction that the other individual has relinquished his claim thereto, he shall be entitled to a deduction of Rs. 300.

7D. If the Assessee proves that he has been living at the year of commencement of assessment any child who is either under the age of 16 years or who, if over the age of 16 years at the commencement of that year, is receiving full-time instruction at any University, college, school or other educational establishment, he shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be entitled in respect of one child to a deduction of Rs. 360 and in respect of each subsequent child to a deduction of Rs. 240. The expression 'child' in this section includes a step-child.

7E. If the Assessee proves that for the year of assessment he has the custody of and maintains at his own expense any child who is under the age of 16 years at the commencement of that year, or who, if over the age of 16 years at the commencement of that year is receiving such full-time instruction as aforesaid, and that neither he nor any other individual is entitled to a deduction in respect of the same child under the foregoing provisions of this section or under any of the other provisions of this Act, or, if any other individual is entitled to such a deduction, that that other individual has relinquished his claim thereto, he shall be entitled in respect of the child to the same deduction as if the child were a child of his.

Explanation.—No deduction shall be allowed under this section in respect of any child who is entitled in his own right to an income exceeding Rs. 360 a year:

Provided that in calculating the income of the child for the purposes of this section no account shall be taken of any income to which the child is entitled as a holder of a scholarship, or other similar educational endowments:

Provided further that if any question arises as to whether any Assessee is entitled to an allowance under this section in respect of a child who is over the age of 16 years, as being a child who is receiving such full-time instruction as aforesaid, the Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax may consult the Head of the institution.

7F. (1) If the Assessee proves that he maintains at his own expense any person being a relative of his or of his wife who is incapacitated by old age or infirmity from maintaining himself, or his wife's widowed mother, whether incapacitated or not, and being a person whose total income from all sources does not exceed Rs. 360 a year, he shall be entitled to a deduction of Rs. 240 in respect of each person whom he so maintains, and a like deduction shall be made in the case of an Assessee, who by reason of old age or infirmity, is compelled to depend upon the services of a daughter resident with and maintained by him or her.

(2) Where two or more persons jointly maintain any such person as aforesaid, the deduction to be made under this section shall be apportioned between them in proportion to the amount or value of their respective contributions towards the maintenance of that person.

(3) This section shall apply to an Assessee being a female person as it applies to an Assessee being a male person with the substitution of 'husband' for 'wife'.

7G. The deductions to be allowed under the foregoing sections would be allowed only where the Assessee proves that the agricultural income of the Assessee assessable under this Act and the total income of the Assessee under the Indian Income-tax Act of 1922 does not exceed Rs. 12,000".

(The amendment was negatived.)

Clause 8.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 8 stand part of the Bill.

Now, Khan Bahadur, do you want to move your amendment No. 191?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Yes, Sir; but I am afraid that amendment No. 189 has been passed over.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, this will re-appear as 193A. As regards this amendment of yours, I find that the House has already given its decision sometime ago on a similar amendment of yours. So I do not think you can move it.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I will simply move it without any speech. It was defeated indeed, but it was in another context.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But it is the very same amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: That may render the passage of the amendment difficult—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But it is a mere matter of drafting as you observed on the last occasion. I am afraid, therefore, you cannot move it. You can move amendment No. 192, if you like.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move: That in sub-clause (2) of clause 8 of the Bill, the words "as long as" in line 5 be omitted.

The words complained of by me appear in sub-clause (2) of clause 8. If the honourable members would read the clause, they would find that the words "as long as" have no definite meaning or purpose in the sub-clause. Perhaps the words "as long as" have some connection with certain later expressions. If the expression later on is inelastic, interposition of certain other words after them has separated these words from the context in which they should stand. I shall read the sub-clause so much as is necessary: "* * * * the agricultural income derived therefrom shall, as long as for the purposes of assessment of income-tax under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, the income derived therefrom * * * *". I think a man of ordinary intelligence would stumble over this clause and would have great difficulty in understanding what is meant. After very careful consideration, I have come to the conclusion that the words "as long as" are connected with the words "income derived * * * *" so on and so forth. But the interposition of these words is parenthetical and the other words connected with these words are hopelessly separated. Only the words and the parenthesis would have been better. With all the experience that I can claim of reading and interpreting statutes, my first impression was that the words "as long as" were absolutely necessary. But later on, after a great deal of thought, I found that they are connected with some later words and the confusing interposition of several other words have created havoc. That is another example of hasty and careless drafting. With these words, I beg to move my amendment simply to draw the attention of the Government to the difficult state of affairs that has been created by the introduction of the parenthetical expression in a wrong manner.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 8 of the Bill, the words "as long as" in line 5 be omitted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I was glad to hear from my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad that he realised that the words "as long as" were necessary and that they had a purpose. In that view, I oppose the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, may I have your consent to withdraw the amendment? It will take some time to ascribe any meaning to the passage. That was why I tabled this amendment. (The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: It is not my fault.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Has the honourable member leave of the House to withdraw his amendment?

(VOICES: Yes.)

(The amendment was then by leave of the House withdrawn.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 8 of the Bill, in the Explanation to sub-clause (2), for the words "attributable to" in line 4, the words "derived from" be substituted.

The passage where these words occur reads like this: ".....such portion of that income as is attributable to lands in Bengal.....". The words "attributable to" seem to me to be rather loose and vague. They are too general for the purpose in hand. I submit that the substitution of these words would really improve the draft. With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 8 of the Bill, in the Explanation to sub-clause (2), for the words "attributable to" in line 4, the words "derived from" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in clause 8 of the Bill, in the Explanation to sub-clause (2), for the words "attributable to" in line 4, the words "derived from" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move: That in the Explanation to sub-clause (2) of clause 8 of the Bill, for paragraphs (i) and (ii), the following paragraphs be substituted, namely:—

"(i) according to the proportion of the area in Bengal as compared with the total area within Bengal and without Bengal.

(ii) notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, in the case of tea [the plant Camellia Thea (Linn)] grown in Bengal and sold by the grower himself or his Agent after manufacture, the agricultural income derived therefrom shall be payable on the whole of such agricultural income."

I beg also to move: That in sub-clause (2) of clause 8 of the Bill, paragraph (ii) of the Explanation be deleted.

I would like to point out in support of my amendments that the clause as it stands in the Bill suggests that the proportion fixed by the authorities under the Indian Income-tax Act of 1922, is inflexible and as such must be accepted by the authorities assessing the agricultural income-tax. I would like to emphasise the fact that the Provincial Government should not be bound by the determination of the authorities under the Indian Income-tax Act of 1922 and the officers appointed under the said Act. Sir, it may be that many things escaped the attention of those authorities which our officers will be able to detect and it would not be fair to bind the Bengal Government with decisions arrived at by the officers appointed under the Indian Income-tax Act of 1922. The determination by the authorities of the Indian Income-tax Act may be received as prima facie evidence, but should not be taken as conclusive. I submit that with regard to tea, the officers appointed under the Provincial Government should have a free hand in the matter of assessing income-tax derived from tea planters and they should not be hampered in any way by any decision arrived at by any other authority. We should have a uniform system of assessment throughout the Province with regard to all sorts of cases and should not allow one class of assesses to be guided by decisions arrived at by a different machinery. I would submit, Sir, that if the amendments that I have proposed are carefully looked at, it will be found that they are really giving the authorities assessing the tax under the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Act better scope for examining the income of persons who are charged under the Indian Income-tax Act. This affects the growers whether they are Indians or Europeans and therefore I submit that in these cases my amendment should be accepted so that the decision of the Income-tax authorities may not be binding upon the provincial authorities. With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendments moved: that in the Explanation to sub-clause (2) of clause 8 of the Bill, for paragraphs (i) and (ii), the following paragraphs be substituted, namely:—

“(i) according to the proportion of the area in Bengal as compared with the total are within Bengal and without Bengal.

(ii) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, in the case of tea [the plant Camellia Thea (Linn)] grown in Bengal and sold by the grower himself or his agent after manufacture, the agricultural income derived therefrom shall be payable on the whole of such agricultural income.”

Also, that in sub-clause (2) of clause 8 of the Bill, paragraph (ii) of the Explanation be deleted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: This Explanation deals with the question of apportionment of agricultural income where such income is derived from lands partially in and partially without Bengal. It would be better where an apportionment on the basis of accounts has been made by Central Income-tax authorities to adopt that apportionment in Bengal rather than apportion them on the basis of area and I submit that paragraph (ii) of amendment 193 is irrelevant in this context and hardly means anything.

As regards amendment 194, I submit that if this paragraph is deleted, as proposed, it would be necessary to provide for the cases where the Central Income-tax authorities do not make the apportionment and I submit that such cases will not be infrequent.

(The amendments were negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (3) of clause 8 of the Bill, the words, commas and figures “a certified copy of an order of an assessment under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, or” in lines 2 and 3 be deleted.

Sir, the purpose of my amendment is that the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax authorities should not be bound by any decision of the authorities under the Indian Income-tax Act, but they should be able to look for themselves as to what would be the amount for which the assessee is to be taxed. I do not think it is necessary to add anything to what I have stated in respect of my previous amendments.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (3) of clause 8 of the Bill, the words, commas and figures "a certified copy of an order of an assessment under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, or" in lines 2 and 3 be deleted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, the words, commas and figures which the mover of the amendment proposes should be deleted are necessary and therefore they must be retained. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (3) of clause 8 of the Bill, the words, commas and figures "a certified copy of an order of an assessment under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, or" in lines 2 and 3 be deleted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Clause 8.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 8 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 9.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 9 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 10.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 10 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 10 of the Bill, after the words "shall not" in line 1, a comma be inserted.

Sir, as enough controversy has already been raised on a similar amendment, I would simply say that the introduction of this comma would rather make things clear. That is the only object of this amendment. I submit that it should be accepted. It would be an insult to the intelligence of this House to repeatedly submit sound amendments to be repeatedly voted down.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 10 of the Bill, after the words "shall not" in line 1, a comma be inserted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 10 of the Bill, in paragraph (a), for the words "has paid or will pay" in line 3, the words "is liable to pay" be substituted.

Sir, the reason for this amendment is that tax or its exemption would depend upon the liability to pay rather than actual payment. In the Bill-clause both the standards have been laid down, viz., "has paid or will pay". So, an anticipated payment will also be exempted. The best expression which will convey both will be "is liable to pay". The expression "will pay" is vague and indeterminate. The expression in the amendment is, I think, more simple and more accurate. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 10 of the Bill, in paragraph (a), for the words "has paid or will pay" in line 3, the words "is liable to pay" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I oppose the amendment.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in clause 10 of the Bill, in paragraph (a), for the words "has paid or will pay" in line 3, the words "has paid or is liable to pay" be substituted.

This is an alternative form of the last amendment: it is more comprehensive and may be the least unacceptable to the Hon'ble Minister. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 10 of the Bill, in paragraph (a), for the words "has paid or will pay" in line 3, the words "has paid or is liable to pay" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I oppose the amendment.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in clause 10 of the Bill, after paragraph (b), the following new sub-paragraph be inserted, namely:—

"(bb) any sum which he receives as a member of an association of individuals, the agricultural income-tax of which has already been taxed."

Sir, by sub-paragraph (b), any sum which a man receives as a member of a Hindu undivided family, which has been already taxed has been exempted on the ground that it would be double taxation. By this short amendment, I desire to extend the relief from similar double taxation to those people who do not come within the meaning of the "Hindu undivided family". A "Hindu undivided family" according to this Bill, as will appear from the definition section, really means a Hindu undivided family belonging to the Mitakshara school. It is well-known that Bengali Hindus do not generally form part of the Mitakshara family. Thus, the exemption allowed by sub-paragraph (b) to Hindu joint families belonging to the Mitakshara school will not get the benefit of this exemption. The exemption is just and should be extended to all persons who are members of a joint Dayabhaga family as well as to joint Muslim families. If double taxation is to be relieved, it should be relieved for all persons concerned. The Bill-clause exempts only Mitakshara family. Ordinary Bengali families, both Hindu and Muslim families, may be described as an association of individuals. If several persons belonging to a joint family have formed an association of individuals, and if their income has already been subjected to taxation, they should be relieved from further taxation. I submit that the principle of the amendment is just and should be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 10 of the Bill, after paragraph (b), the following new sub-paragraph be inserted, namely:—

"(bb) any sum which he receives as a member of an association of individuals, the agricultural income-tax of which has already been taxed;"

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, if the honourable mover of the amendment carefully reads paragraph (a), he will find that the case of Mitakshara family has been considered.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 10 of the Bill, after paragraph (b), the following new sub-paragraph be inserted, namely:—

“(bb) any sum which he receives as a member of an association of individuals, the agricultural income-tax of which has already been taxed;”

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 10 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 11 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, may I move amendment No. 205 standing in the names of Mr. Biren Roy and Mr. Meesbahuddin Ahmad?

Mr. PRESIDENT: That has been disposed of as neither of them wanted to move the amendment. If you wanted to move the amendment you should have stood up at the time when I called out the names.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, the difficulty is that we have to wait to see whether the amendment standing in the names of the Government Whips is moved or not—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order, I am afraid the amendment cannot be moved now.

The question before the House is that clause 11 stand part of the Bill:

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 12.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 12 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move: That clause 12 of the Bill be deleted.

Sir, in this connection I may read out clause 12 of the Bill. Clause 12 stands thus: “In computing the total agricultural—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, your amendment is a negative one.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, it is not a negative motion so far as the whole Act is concerned.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You can oppose the clause, but you cannot move that the clause be deleted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, may I submit that the decision of the Chair on previous occasions has been that if a clause is to be deleted, there should be a motion to that effect.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 12 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I would like to oppose this motion. Clause 12 reads thus:—

“12. In computing the total agricultural income of any individual for the purpose of assessment, there shall be included—

(a) so much of the total agricultural income of a wife or minor child of such individual as arises directly or indirectly—

(i) from assets transferred directly or indirectly to the wife by the husband otherwise than for adequate consideration or in connection with an agreement to live apart.”

The words of this clause are wide enough to catch persons who have got some properties belonging to wife or minor children. It would be a very good weapon for the Income-tax Officers; and the Assessors, who will assess the income-tax will be given a very good handle for the purpose of compelling the assessee to submit to any terms which the Agricultural Income-tax Officer might impose upon him. Now, what are the assets transferred directly or indirectly? What does "transferred indirectly" mean? I would like the Hon'ble Minister to explain what he means by expressions, such as, "indirectly to the wife" or "transferred directly or indirectly to the minor child". What is the indirect transfer which he wants to incorporate in this paragraph? A transfer is either directly made to wife or to minor child. I find the Hon'ble Minister is going to take help from the draftsman. I hope he will take proper help from him.

Now, Sir, I would submit that this clause as drafted should not be allowed to stand in the Bill. If there is any vague wording in any other Act, that should not be any ground why a vague word like this should be incorporated in the present Act, even when it is pointed out that such a word should not be incorporated in the Statute Book.

Now, Sir, I would refer the Hon'ble Minister to paragraph (b) which runs as follows:—

"(b) so much of the total agricultural income of any person or association of persons as arises from assets transferred otherwise than for adequate consideration to the person or association by such individual for the benefit of his wife or minor child or both."

I do not understand, Sir, how an association or an individual could transfer for the benefit of his wife or his minor child? The clause gives no meaning as it stands. On the other hand, it gives wide scope to the Income-tax authorities for the purpose of compelling the assessee to submit to his terms. I submit, Sir, that the entire clause should be deleted. As a matter of fact, if the wife has got an agricultural income from properties belonging to her or if a wife has agricultural income from properties which belong to the husband and which have been transferred by the husband in favour of the wife or by the father in favour of the minor child, the Income-tax Officer can assess the wife or the minor child, if the income is sufficient for that purpose, separately under the provisions of the Act. There is no bar to that assessment; but if you want to give such a wide power, this would act really as an engine of oppression and anybody and everybody can be harassed by reason of the provision contained therein.

With these few words, I oppose the retention of this clause in the Bill.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I would like to say why clause 12 should be retained. Clause 12 has been imported from the Indian Income-tax Act, and is designed to prevent fraudulent and unfair transaction. Sir, the honourable member asked me as to how property could be indirectly transferred by a husband to his wife or vice versa. The object of using the word "Indirectly" is quite clear. You can make an indirect transfer to another person in various ways. You can, for instance, have a benami transaction and you can put up a third party who will purchase the property on the understanding that it will be re-conveyed to your wife, etc. That is how an indirect transfer can take place.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a point of information, Sir. Will the Hon'ble Minister please state if it is his intention that a suit will have to be instituted in order that the Agricultural Income-tax Officer may ascertain whether a transaction is benami or swanami?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: The whole object of clause 12 is to prevent the evasion of taxation and to see that the machinery to prevent this evasion is adequate.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think we may stop here for today, and continue this matter tomorrow.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, before you adjourn the House, may I mention that on next Friday Shabi-harat, a festival of the Muhammadans, takes place, and the House may not sit that day on that account?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But Friday is a non-official day!

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The Hon'ble the Leader of the House says that Friday is a day of Muhammadan festival and Moslem members of the House would not like to meet that day. I take it that it is the general desire of the House that we don't meet that day—I mean Friday next?

(There was general agreement.)

All right; so there would be no meeting on Friday, the 4th August.

The House now stands adjourned till 2-15 p.m., tomorrow.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 2-15 p.m. on Wednesday, the 2nd August, 1944.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 70.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Wednesday, the 2nd August, 1944, at 2-15 p.m., being the seventieth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move: that in clause 12 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), after the words "association of persons" in line 2, the words "or the Ruler of an Indian State" be inserted.

The object of my amendment is to specifically mention the Ruler of an Indian State.

MR. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 12 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), after the words "association of persons" in line 2, the words "or the Ruler of an Indian State" be inserted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to support the amendment. The Ruler of an Indian State should be mentioned as other parties are mentioned, otherwise the clause would be incomplete.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I oppose the amendment. I do not think it is necessary in the context.

MR. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 12 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), after the words "association of persons" in line 2, the words "or the Ruler of an Indian State" be inserted.

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

MR. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being 18, and the "Noes"—21, the amendment is negatived.

Clause 12.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 12 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, when you said "Ayes have it", the Whip of the Government Party, challenged by saying "Noes have it".

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: No, Sir, I did not say that.

Mr. PRESIDENT: He says that he did not do it.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I cannot disbelieve my ears.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is probably a comedy of errors.

Clause 13.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 13 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 13 of the Bill, for the word "guardian" in line 12, the word "guardian" be substituted.

Sir, the word which is objected to has no meaning whatsoever. I do not know whether it is French, or German or even Chinese. It does not, I hope, represent the Bengalee word "গোবিন্দ". The more probable word would be "guardian". You will find, Sir, that in sub-clause (a) in line 1, there is the word "guardian" and again at the end, six lines from the bottom, the said word "guardian" appears. These considerations as well as its relation to the words "minor, lunatic, idiot," in the clause, would show the word should be "guardian". We cannot go behind the Bill as presented to the House or to consider how it was dealt with in another place. Assuming this to be a mistake, the only thing we can do is to pass the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 13 of the Bill, for the word "guardian" in line 12, the word "guardian" is substituted.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: What is the meaning of the word, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is meant to be "guardian", surely.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I oppose the amendment, Sir. The mistake is obvious.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 13 of the Bill, for the word "guardian" in line 12, the word "guardian" is substituted.

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

AYES—17.

 Dr. K. Talukdar.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided.

The "Ayes" being 17, and the "Noes" 22, the amendment is negatived.
 The question before the House is: that clause 13 stand part of the Bill.
 (The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 14.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 14 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: that in clause 14 of the Bill, the words "or trustees" in line 4 be deleted.

Sir, on a careful consideration of the Bill-clause, it appears that these words are redundant. The word "Trustee" used in singular is better than in the plural. This is not at all necessary. The Bengal General Clauses Act provides that these are redundant and therefore should be deleted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 14 of the Bill, the words "or trustees" in line 4 be deleted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 14 of the Bill, the words "or trustees" in line 4 be deleted.
 (The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: that in clause 14 of the Bill, for the words "trustee or trustees" in line 6, the word "mutawalli" be substituted.

Sir, the words "trustee or trustees" do not convey that meaning which is conveyed by the word "mutawalli". There are many important rulings on this point.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 14 of the Bill, for the words "trustee or trustees" in line 6, the word "mutawalli" be substituted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to support the amendment which has been moved by my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. It is well-known that these words "trustee or trustees" do not apply in some cases, either in connection with the Hindu Endowments or the Muhammadan Endowments. So, these words should be substituted by mutawalli. As a matter of fact, I think the words "trustee or trustees" will be inappropriate in relation to a Muslim Wakf. I hope my Muslim friends will seriously consider this fact before they oppose the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, it has been said that there are many rulings in support of this amendment but none has been quoted. I am satisfied that the words "trustee or trustees" will include a mutawalli.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 14 of the Bill, for the words "trustee or trustees" in line 6, the word "mutawalli" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 14 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clauses 15 and 16.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clauses 15 and 16 stand part of the Bill.

The question before the House is: that clauses 15 and 16 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 17.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 17 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: that in clause 17 of the Bill, after the words "association of individuals" in line 1, the following be inserted, namely:—

"Not being members of an undivided Hindu family governed by the Dayabhaga School or an undivided Muslim family."

In this clause, mention has been made of association of individuals. There are certain provisions relating to joint families belonging to the Mitakhara School. Obviously, "association of individuals" did not mean in the context joint families, either under the Hindu or the Muhammedan law. This exception should be provided, otherwise it may be argued that "association of individuals" would include joint families. In the circumstances, the proposed exception should be made to prevent misunderstanding.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 17 of the Bill after the words "association of individuals" in line 1, the following be inserted, namely:—

"not being members of an undivided Hindu family governed by the Dayabhaga School or an undivided Muslim family."

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I think this is unnecessary.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 17 of the Bill after the words "association of individuals" in line 1, the following be inserted, namely:—

"not being members of an undivided Hindu family governed by the Dayabhaga School or an undivided Muslim family".

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: that in clause 17 of the Bill, for the word "part" in line 8, the word "share" be substituted.

Sir, the word "part" is not precise. It does not convey any precise fraction of the income. The word "share" conveys the meaning of a specific share and so it is preferable to the word "part". That is the expression used in similar contexts. So I would prefer the word "share". With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 17 of the Bill, for the word "part" in line 8, the word "share" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, in this context "part" is a more proper word. Therefore, I oppose the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, with regard to this clause I wish to say a few words—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Sahib, that is never the practice. You had your right of speech when you moved this amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I want to say with regard to the clause itself.

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right, let me first place the clause before the House.

The question before the House is: that in clause 17 of the Bill, for the word "part" in line 8, the word "share" be substituted

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Sahib, now you may say what you have to say.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I find that in clause 17, in lines 6, 9 and 11, the word "share-holders" or "share-holder" has been used with hyphens between the two words. I believe this is not correct. Otherwise, landholders, householders, basketholders, etc., will have hyphens between them. In the circumstances, before passing this clause, this fact should be taken into account.

Clause 17.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is: that clause 17 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 18.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 18 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: that in sub-clause (I) of clause 18 of the Bill, for the words "Agricultural income-tax" in line 5, the words "the agricultural income-tax" be substituted.

Sir, this is a drafting amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (I) of clause 18 of the Bill, for the words "Agricultural income-tax" in line 5, the words "the agricultural income-tax" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I should submit that the amendment is unnecessary.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (I) of clause 18 of the Bill, for the words "Agricultural income-tax" in line 5, the words "the agricultural income-tax" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move: that in sub-clause (I) of clause 18 of the Bill, the word "solely" in line 8 be deleted.

Sir, I submit that the word "solely" seems to be mischievous and ought not to be kept. If we look to the clause itself, we find that it runs as follows:—

"Save as provided for in sections 13, 14 and 17 if a person receives agricultural income derived from land and such income is derived partly for his own benefit and partly for the benefit of beneficiaries or wholly for the benefit of beneficiaries, agricultural income-tax shall be assessed on the total agricultural income derived from such land at the rate which would be applicable if such income had been derived solely for his own benefit—"

Now, I do not know why an income which a person receives on behalf of a beneficiary and to which he has no claim should be added for the purpose of making him liable to pay higher rate of interest. He receives the income for his beneficiary and he hands it over to the beneficiary. The beneficiary is therefore to be taxed with reference to the amounts which he receives. He has absolutely no interest in the money which he simply hands over to the beneficiary. Therefore, I do not know why the words "derived solely" for his own benefit should have been used here and it has been provided that agricultural income-tax at such rate shall be leviable upon and recoverable from such person in respect of such income. The word "solely" may be omitted and then the clause will be understandable. The word "solely" seems to be a surplusage and may bring in vagueness in the interpretation of the clause itself. If the real intention is that the amount which he receives for his own benefit should be taxed, then the word "solely" should be deleted. With these words, I move my motion.

MR. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (I) of clause 18 of the Bill, the word "solely" in line 8 be deleted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support the amendment. The amendment is a very simple and a just one. If it is not accepted, a very great injustice will be done. Let us take the case of a person who has his own personal agricultural income, and he is also a trustee or friend or guardian of another person and receives income on behalf of the person whom he represents. The result of this would be that his own income and the income which he receives merely as a receiver or a friend or a guardian on behalf of another, would be added to his personal income for the purpose of the tax. I cannot think of a more unjust provision than this. A man who receives income for the benefit of another acts as a volunteer and he could not be taxed for another man's income. This amendment and the next one taken together will mean a complete provision. The effect of this amendment and the consequential amendment which follows it, is that if a man receives income on his own behalf and also on behalf of another, then they should be separated; that income which he receives on his own account alone will be taxed and the income which he received for another will be taxed only if it is otherwise taxable as a separate income of another individual. I think this is sheer justice and the amendment should be accepted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: It should be understood that clause 18 is intended to prevent fraudulent evasion of the tax. The cases where any person receives agricultural income on behalf of another under the provision of any law have been provided for in clauses 13, 14 and 15. I may inform the House that a similar provision occurs both in the Bihar Act (section 11), and in the Assam Act (section 12). I, therefore, oppose the amendment and shall also have to oppose the other amendments to clause 18 if they are moved.

MR. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (I) of clause 18 of the Bill, the word "solely" in line 8 be deleted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move: that in sub-clause (I) of clause 18 of the Bill, the following be added at the end, namely:—

"according to the benefit received by himself and the beneficiary separately".

Sir, although my previous amendment has been negatived, I think this amendment makes the position more clear and it ought to be accepted by the House. I do not know what the Hon'ble Finance Minister means by quoting Bihar and Assam Acts. We are not going to take our lesson either from Bihar or from Assam. I hope the Hon'ble Finance Minister realises that mere quoting the Bihar or Assam Agricultural Income-tax Act will not do. He must find out some other cogent and valid reason for assessing the person who does not derive any income for his own benefit. What justification is there for assessing him at a rate higher than what would be payable if the assessment were to be based on his strictly personal income? I hope the Hon'ble Finance Minister will realise this and instead of quoting Bihar and Assam Acts he will find out some other cogent reason for this. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 18 of the Bill, the following be added at the end, namely:—

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee. The effect of the amendment would be that the amount of his own income and the amount on behalf of another of which he is a trustee or guardian would be separated and that different incomes would be allocated to different persons. That income which appertains to his own account should be taxed against him and that part of the income which is for another person or persons, would be allocated to that person or those persons. I think it is only just that it should be so. Otherwise, not only higher rate would have to be paid but this would increase the amount of tax. In the circumstances, this amendment would remove an injustice. With these words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I have already stated my reason for opposing all the amendments under clause 18. It is not on the analogy of Bihar and Assam that I do so; but I have given cogent reason for not accepting any of the amendments under clause 18. Clauses 13, 14 and 15 provide the necessary relief.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 18 of the Bill, the following be added at the end, namely:—

“according to the benefit received by himself and the beneficiary separately”.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being 14, and "Nos" 22, the amendment is negatived.

The question before the House is: that clause 18 stand part of the Bill.
(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 19.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 19 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 20.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 20 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 20 of the Bill, for the word "without" in line 2, the words "out of" be substituted.

Sir, in this clause the expression used is "a person residing without Bengal". I should amend it to make it "a person residing out of Bengal". The word "without" does not convey any clear meaning unless it is contracted with the word "within". The expression "out of" would be more appropriate.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 20 of the Bill, for the word "without" in line 2, the words "out of" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I think "without" is a more appropriate word than "out of". I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 20 of the Bill, for the word "without" in line 2, the words "out of" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 20 of the Bill, for the words "for the purposes" in line 7, the words "for all the purposes" be substituted.

There are many purposes which the clause speaks of and the expression "all the purposes" is very complete and I have taken the expression from the corresponding section of the Indian Income-tax Act which is supposed to be so much sacrosanct. In these circumstances, the expression is not only very accurate but is supported by a great authority. I hope these words should be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 20 of the Bill, for the words "for the purposes" in line 7, the words "for all the purposes" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: This is an unnecessary amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is: that in clause 20 of the Bill, for the words "for the purposes" in line 7, the words "for all the purposes" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: that in the proviso to clause 20 of the Bill, for the words "an opportunity" in line 2, the words "a reasonable opportunity" be substituted.

Sir, the Bill-clause requires that the Agricultural Income-tax Officer should give a party, against whom he is going to proceed, an opportunity of being heard. The usual accurate expression in the circumstances is "a reasonable opportunity". An opportunity and a reasonable opportunity are entirely different things in the eye of the law. An opportunity may not be sufficient or may not be given at an opportune moment. The Income-tax Officer may be passing by the road and he may notice an assessee and may ask him a question point blank, "Well, what have you got to say to this and that?" The assessee may say, "I have not got the papers with me at the present moment. I have to consult a lawyer and do other things necessary before I can answer your question." As the Bill-clause stands, he has given him an opportunity. But a reasonable opportunity is a different thing altogether, and this expression has been used in many Acts, and whenever an opportunity is to be given, a reasonable opportunity is directly mentioned. Sir, instead of allowing the Income-tax Officer to act in his own way in the matter of giving opportunity, a reasonable opportunity should be mentioned. If "a reasonable opportunity" is not mentioned, injustice may follow. In the circumstances, I submit that "a reasonable opportunity" should be given, for an opportunity may be insufficient or inadequate. "Reasonable opportunity" is the stock expression used in many well-known Acts. In these circumstances, this stock expression has received the sanctity of time and so it should be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in the proviso to clause 20 of the Bill, for the words "an opportunity" in line 2, the words "a reasonable opportunity" be substituted.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, I rise to support this amendment, and in supporting it I may say that this expression which is sought to be introduced is almost universal in every enactment. Whenever the law intends to give a party an opportunity for doing certain things it invariably says that the party should be given a reasonable opportunity, for an opportunity by itself does not mean a reasonable opportunity. If a man is served with a notice only two hours before for showing cause and if he fails to do that, the Income-tax Officer will in the first instance say, "Well, I gave you an opportunity but you missed it", and the Appellate Court or a Tribunal might say, "Well the law says that you should have an opportunity. You got an opportunity but you missed it and so I cannot help you." But if the expression "a reasonable opportunity" is used, then it would be necessary for the Assessing Officer to give a reasonable time which would mean a reasonable opportunity for him to show cause or to do things necessary for him to do. And if any officer unreasonably or whimsically or capriciously disposes of a case without giving a reasonable opportunity to a man, the Appellate Court will at once say, "Well, you have not given the man any reasonable opportunity and every man is entitled to have a reasonable opportunity to show cause". Therefore, the amendment proposed is not only reasonable but I should say is really absolutely necessary to protect the rights of the assessees. You cannot tax any one without giving him sufficient time, sufficient opportunity to have his say. Instances are not uncommon when the peculiar wording of a particular enactment is taken advantage of by the officers who have to administer law, specially towards the end of the financial year in March. It sometimes happens that in order to dispose of cases, they generally issue notices to parties to show cause within a short and unreasonably short time and when people cannot comply with such notices they dispose of those cases and the cases go to the Appellate Court. That is what we, as lawyers, have experienced in the administration of law, so that it would be quite proper and reasonable for the Legislature to make a provision that such action on the part of officers may not affect the persons who are going to be taxed. It is, therefore, safe and reasonable to accept this amendment so that there may not be any question that the law does not require any reasonable opportunity to be given. If, however, it is said that this opportunity should always be regarded as a reasonable opportunity, then I would ask him to kindly look up the appropriate provision in several enactments and codes which are in force in Bengal; he will then find that wherever the word "opportunity" is mentioned, the Legislature has invariably used the words "reasonable opportunity". I, therefore, whole-heartedly support the amendment and I think that it should also find favour with the Hon'ble Finance Minister.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I rise to oppose the amendment. Opportunity always means reasonable opportunity in law as well as in common usage. One honourable member said that in almost every enactment where the question of reasonable opportunity being given is considered, the words "reasonable opportunity" are precisely used. Here, Sir, I have got the Indian Income-tax Act with me, and on turning over its passages I find that in connection with a provision with regard to liability in special cases, specially with regard to persons who are not ordinarily resident in India we have in the proviso to section 43 wording of this kind: Provided further that no person shall be deemed to be an agent of a non-resident person unless he has had an opportunity of being heard by the Income-tax Officer as to his liability. This Income-tax Act is a very important enactment, Sir, it is an Indian Act and this clause relates to the liability of persons resident outside India, and only the word "opportunity" is used and not the phrase "reasonable opportunity". So you can understand that if the word opportunity did not imply reasonable opportunity, this provision of the law would have acted very harshly on the people who are not residents in India. I, therefore, oppose the amendment.

MR. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in the proviso to clause 20 of the Bill, for the words "an opportunity" in line 2, the words "a reasonable opportunity" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

MR. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 20 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 21.

MR. PRESIDENT: Clause 21 stand part of the Bill.

MR. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: I beg to move: that in clause 21 of the Bill—

(1) in paragraph (b) of sub-clause (1) for the words "the Assistant Commissioner" the words "one or more Assistant Commissioners" be substituted.

If you read the clause as it is, it runs—"there shall be the following classes of agricultural income-tax authorities for the purposes of this Act, namely:—

(a) the Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax, Bengal;

(b) the Assistant Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax, Bengal."

I propose that in place of "the Assistant Commissioner" the words "one or more Assistant Commissioners" be substituted. It is perfectly clear that it would not be possible for one Assistant Commissioner to cope with the work that will be required to be performed by the Assistant Commissioner. Therefore, under this clause as it is, if the Government want to appoint more than one Assistant Commissioner, there will be difficulty and the law will not permit them to do so. The words "the Assistant Commissioner" clearly indicate that Government contemplate to appoint only one Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax. That I submit is obviously not the intention of Government or the author of this Bill. I propose that to obviate that difficulty which is very likely to occur, you should put in "one or more Assistant Commissioners" in place of "the Assistant Commissioner". If really you can do with one Assistant Commissioner, that is a separate thing; but in view of fact that this was an amendment tabled by the Government members, Government wanted to be empowered to have more than one Assistant Commissioner. I, therefore, submit that this was an oversight on the part of the draftsmen and I think that ought to be corrected by substituting the words "one or more Assistant Commissioners of Income-tax" for "the Assistant Commissioner". With these words, I move the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 21 of the Bill—

(1) in paragraph (b) of sub-clause (1) for the words "the Assistant Commissioner" the words "one or more Assistant Commissioners" be substituted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support this amendment. My learned friend who moved the amendment gave out the conjecture that the original draft was made by mistake. But it may be that at that time, or during its passage in another place, the appointment of only one Assistant Commissioner was in contemplation. The idea of more than one Assistant Commissioner may have developed later on as the administrative problem involved became more and more clear, or it may be that there was an oversight. At any rate, the amendment is a Government amendment and it is obvious that more than one Assistant Commissioner would be required to cope with the amount of the work. In the circumstances, it is necessary that Government should be armed with more than one Assistant Commissioner. The singular includes the plural only if there is nothing in the context to go against it. In the context there is only one Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax and it is not possible that Government would appoint more than one Commissioner but it is not so in the case of Assistant Commissioner. So, obviously they would require more than one Assistant Commissioner. In the circumstances, Government will not be able to fall back upon that safety-valve provided in the Bengal General Clauses Act. So, there is a very good reason why this amendment should be accepted.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Mr. President, Sir, I rise to usurp the function of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister as I want to oppose this amendment. My reason for opposition is merely the ground of economy. We all know that Bengal is over head and ears in debts and I do not want that Bengal should be saddled with further taxation. On this ground the amendment must be opposed. My friend, Mr. Mahalanobish, is going to give an instrument in the hand of Government and the Government will ultimately say that it is you who are in favour of appointing more Assistant Commissioners than one. No doubt it is a Government amendment but they have forsaken it for fear of meeting the Assembly. They thought of more than one Assistant Commissioner later on probably to make provision for their supporters. Therefore, Sir, apart from all other grounds, the ground of economy is the most formidable and on that ground I oppose the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: As Government's present intention is to appoint one Assistant Commissioner, I do not think we need amending this particular provision.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in clause 21 of the Bill—

(1) in paragraph (b) of sub-clause (1) for the words "the Assistant Commissioner" the words "one or more Assistant Commissioners" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Sir, I beg to move: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 21 of the Bill, after the words "the Provincial Government" in line 2, the following be added, namely:—

"on the recommendation of the Public Service Commission and in accordance with the Communal Ratio Rules"

Sir, if my amendment is accepted,—and I am sure it will not be accepted,—it will read as follows:—

"The authorities specified in sub-section (1) shall be appointed by the Provincial Government on the recommendation of the Public Service Commission and in accordance with the Communal Ratio Rules."

I want to make it clear that I have no special fascination for the Public Service Commission. As a matter of fact, if records are scrutinised, it will be found that there are many cases of injustice done to the Scheduled Castes both by the Public Service Commission as well as by Government. I feel that this amendment will serve as a check or rather a brake both on the Public Service Commission and the Provincial Government and this consideration alone has prompted me to move this amendment. Sir, in the year 1940, the Communal Ratio Rules were published by the Bengal Government. Although the Scheduled Castes are entitled, on population basis, to about 20 per cent. of the services, they were given by these rules only 15 per cent. It has been our sad experience that these rules have been observed more in the breach than in their observance. I now ask the Hon'ble Minister why a Committee has not yet been appointed although a unanimous resolution was passed by this House on this question, namely, to enquire into the observance or non-observance of the Communal Ratio Rules. Why this Committee has not yet been appointed? The Hon'ble Leader of the House says that the Home Department will take action. The resolution was passed more than six months back and no action has yet been taken. There is absolutely no certainty whether the Government will at all appoint the Committee. I am afraid they will not, because that would mean examining the past records for which they are responsible. Therefore, they do not dare to appoint this Committee at all.

Then, Sir, there is rule 14 of the Communal Ratio Rules, which provides for submission of periodical reports. Sir, on many occasions, questions have been asked on the floor of this House in order to elicit information from the Government whether the Communal Ratio Rules have been actually followed or not. The Hon'ble Minister has consistently refused to give any reply whatsoever on this question, although they are morally bound to disclose how far these rules are observed. Now, Sir, my friends on my right are asking me whether candidates have already been selected for these appointments. I want a definite reply from Government whether in filling up these appointments the Scheduled Castes are going to get their proper share or not.

I cannot force the Hon'ble Minister to accept the amendment. But I must get a definite reply from Government in clear language that in making these appointments the claims of the Scheduled Castes will not be ignored at all. If a proper reply does not come, the only power I have got is to call for division of the House on all the amendments that have not yet been moved. I give this warning to the Hon'ble Minister that I shall do this if he fails to give a definite reply as to the policy which will be followed by the Government in regard to this amendment. I shall not be ashamed of going alone into the lobby if I am not followed by my friends at all. If this warning is not taken seriously by the Hon'ble Minister and by the Government, I tell them in most clear terms that I shall not—

MR. PRESIDENT: Mr. Roy, the right of dividing the House is a privilege, but you should not divide the House just to spite some body.

MR. AMULYADHONE ROY: Sir, the rights of the Schedule Castes are much more valuable than that.

MR. PRESIDENT: All right, go on with your speech.

MR. AMULYADHONE ROY: Therefore, Sir, with this warning, I resume my seat. I think he will not take it lightly.

MR. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 21 of the Bill after the words "the Provincial Government" in line 2, the following be added, namely:—

"on the recommendation of the Public Service Commission and in accordance with the Communal Ratio Rules."

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support the amendment and the sentiments which have been expressed by the honourable mover of this amendment. There are only two appointments reserved in the previous sub-clauses, namely, (1) the Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax and (2) the Assistant Commissioner, and my honourable friend in speaking on the last amendment has definitely suggested that there should be no laxity in increasing the number of officers. Sir, there are only two officers to be appointed, and if we are to give effect to the Communal Ratio Rules, there are the considerations of the Caste Hindus, of the Scheduled Castes, of Muslims, and of Christians—both Anglo-Indians and Europeans and there may be others. There are many co-sharers to share the loaves and fishes of office. In the circumstances, I believe that in order to give effect to the sentiments expressed by my honourable friend, it is necessary to increase the number of officers. After all, there is enough money in Bengal,—as a matter of fact, it has been stated by a very responsible member of the Government Party that the Agriculture Minister has more money than he can spend—there is, therefore, no dearth of money, and, in the circumstances, if more persons are appointed to derive benefit under the increased receipts of the Government, there would be so much the benefit for the different communities. Therefore, I support the sentiments expressed by the honourable mover of the amendment, and I do not in the least yield to anyone in my support to this amendment. I should ask the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Bill to give effect to the suggestion which has been made and he should try to satisfy the claims of the community whose interests have been disregarded all along. With these words, I support the sentiments and also the amendment.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: I rise to support the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Amulyadhane Roy. It is a very desirable amendment. I agree that persons should be appointed by the Public Service Commission, as otherwise qualified and experienced officers would not be available. It has been the practice hitherto of appointing persons to suitable posts on the recommendation of the Public Service Commission; so there is no reason why the recommendation of the Public Service Commission should not be accepted in making appointments to these posts. Besides, there is a genuine grievance of the Scheduled Castes community that their interests are not being properly looked after. Therefore, in the case of these appointments, the communal ratio rules should be observed. With these words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I have no doubt that the Communal Ratio Rules regarding appointment will be observed in this case; but it is no duty of my department to prevent the application of the rules regarding the recommendation of the Public Service Commission and the Communal Ratio Rules in respect of appointments under this Act. They will operate automatically; there is no question of any assurance from me and therefore I think this amendment is unnecessary. The rules will automatically come into operation, and the appointments will be governed by the relevant rules. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. AMULYADHANE ROY: On a point of information, Sir. May I enquire of the Hon'ble Minister if appointments to these posts are already being made? I put this question in my speech but no reply has been given.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: No appointments have yet been made, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (2) of clause 21 of the Bill, after the words "the Provincial Government" in line 2, the following be added, namely:—

"on the recommendation of the Public Service Commission and in accordance with the Communal Ratio Rules".

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is; that clause 21 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 22.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 22 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in sub-clause (1) of clause 22 of the Bill, for the words "may be necessary" in line 2, the words "it considers necessary" be substituted.

This is something more than a drafting amendment. In the clause it is provided that "the Provincial Government shall from time to time appoint, as and when may be necessary for the purpose of hearing appeals". There is difference between the expression "may be necessary" and the expression "it considers necessary": the latter expression lays down a subjective standard. A similar expression evoked a heated controversy in the House of Lords. Sir John Anderson, who was for sometime the Governor of Bengal, was the Home Secretary at that time and he passed a detention order upon a person. This was the Liversidge case where the whole thing turned upon the difference between expressions like "may be necessary" or "considers necessary". I submit, there is a world of difference between these two expressions. There may be some difficulty in appreciating the subtle difference and it may be thought that things will be all right. But these are the places where correct drafting is required. The Bill-clause enables the Provincial Government to appoint members of the tribunal as may be necessary which will leave the question of actual necessity to a court of law. If we accept the amendment, the discretion of the Government will not be liable to be questioned by a Court. Trouble arose in the Liversidge case over a similar expression and the situation was saved by the majority of the Law-Lords by adopting special rules of interpretation for war time legislation. The present is a peace time legislation and a liberal standard will not be allowed. In the circumstances, these words are better and should be adopted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 22 of the Bill, for the words "may be necessary" in line 2, the words "it considers necessary" be substituted.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, I beg to support this amendment for the simple reason that the standard that is necessary is certainly higher than what is implied by the words "it considers necessary". I submit that in a case like this, the words "it considers necessary" are really very appropriate. With these few words, I support the amendment.

Rai KASHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Sir, I beg to support the amendment. I am not a lawyer; so I am unable to cite any ruling of the High Court. But as a layman, it appears to me that the expression "it considers necessary" is much better than the words "may be necessary" which occur in the clause. I think in matters like these, legal questions are raised which ultimately prove to be embarrassing for the authorities. So, I think in order to avoid future troubles, the words "it considers necessary" should be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I oppose the amendment, because it is a drafting amendment. We would like to stick to our own drafting.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 22 of the Bill, for the words "may be necessary" in line 2, the words "it considers necessary" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Sir, I beg to move: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 22 of the Bill, after the word "members" at the end, the following be added, namely:—

"of whom one shall be a member of the Scheduled Castes."

Under section 22(1), an Appellate Tribunal will be appointed consisting of three members. Sir, it has been our experience that if statutory provisions are not there, members of the Scheduled Castes are not taken on a body like this. The Public Service Commission is an example on this point. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister might say that the appointment of the members of the Public Service Commission has got nothing to do with the Hon'ble the Finance Minister, and that it is made entirely at the discretion of His Excellency the Governor. It may be true; but, Sir, there are other bodies where we find that members of the Scheduled Castes do not get any chance whatsoever. Therefore, the insertion of these words is absolutely necessary. As I have already stated, Sir, I feel that unless a provision of this nature is inserted in this Bill, Government will never appoint any member of the Scheduled Castes at any time in future.

With these few words, I move my amendment

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 22 of the Bill, after the word "members" at the end, the following be added, namely:—

"of whom one shall be a member of the Scheduled Castes".

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Sir, I rise to support this amendment. The Hon'ble Minister may say that the Communal Ratio Rules are there and will automatically come into operation; but we find that appointments are being made in the various branches of the administration without regard to the provisions of the Communal Ratio Rules. So I think there should be a specific provision in the Act regarding these appointments. It is a very modest demand. Out of 3 members to be appointed, there is no reason why one of them should not be a member of the Scheduled Castes.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, there is no reason whatsoever to suppose that members of the Scheduled Castes will not find a place on the Tribunal; but it may just happen that a member of the Scheduled Castes community possessing the requisite qualifications may not be found. There is no reason, however, to suppose that the Scheduled Castes will be excluded. I, therefore, oppose this amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 22 of the Bill, after the word "members" at the end, the following be added, namely:—

"of whom one shall be a member of the Scheduled Castes".

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 22 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the words "High Court of Calcutta" in line 2, the words "High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal" be substituted.

Sir, I venture to submit this amendment with the hope that this will receive special consideration at the hands of the members of the House. So far as the Chartered High Courts are concerned, they are always described as the High Court of Judicature and in the case of the High Court of Calcutta it is always mentioned as High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal. When the High Court was established, it was described like that in the Letters Patent and in some of the Acts dealing with High Court this courtesy has always been maintained.

You know, Sir, that the establishment of the Fort William was one of the earliest acts of the East India Company, and therefore the name of the Supreme Court and then of the High Court is ever associated with this Fort. It is due to us to show that sentiment of historical association and respect to this Court and we should describe the High Court with all the formalities due to that august tribunal. A legislative enactment is a document of the greatest amount of formality and in documents like this things should be expressed with all the necessary formality. As in this House we call each other honourable members although outside the House we do not do so, so in this Legislature it is highly necessary and extremely courteous to show courtesy to others. So far as the High Court is concerned, this is the well-known stock expression, and I think reference to a few Acts will be quite enough. There is Act V of 1936 dealing with the High Court. In these Acts High Court has been described as in the amendment. I shall briefly refer to a few other Acts, and will not dilate upon them. We have Act XIX of 1867 which is Darjeeling High Court Jurisdiction Act, 1867. It is a Central Act, and in section 2 of this Act, the High Court is described as the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal. Then there is Act XV of 1919—the High Court's Jurisdiction Act. In the Preamble of this Act the High Court is described as the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal. I have already referred to the Letters Patent of the High Court as well as the Charter of the Supreme Court where the High Court has been described as the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal and the Supreme Court as the Supreme Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal. Similarly, the High Courts of Madras and Bombay are invariably associated with two well-known Ports. I do not know why this time-honoured custom of mentioning the name of the High Court should be departed from. I think some respect is due to the highest and most independent Court in the Province. With these few words, I submit that this amendment should receive some amount of sympathy and at least some respect for the High Court.

MR. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 22 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the words "High Court of Calcutta" in line 2, the words "High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I would request the honourable mover who moved the amendment to consider the Government of India Act, 1935, which is a document of some little importance. I will refer him to section 219 of the said Act which has defined the meaning of "High Court" and which runs as follows:—

"The following courts shall in relation to British India be deemed to be High Courts for the purposes of this Act, that is to say, the High Courts in Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Allahabad, etc."

I do not think the British Parliament showed any disrespect to any of these august High Courts, nor is it our intention to mean any disrespect by not mentioning the Fort to which the High Court is attached. I therefore oppose the amendment.

MR. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 22 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the words "High Court of Calcutta" in line 2, the words "High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move: an alternative amendment to the last amendment as follows:—

That in sub-clause (2) of clause 22 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the words "High Court of Calcutta" in line 2, the words "High Court at Calcutta" be substituted.

Sir, I am grateful to the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Bill for referring to the section of the Government of India Act. I may say that I also had notice of that Act and this amendment in this alternative form is the result of a previous study of that very section. Now, the question is not that the framers of the Government of India Act wanted to show disrespect to the High Courts by that sort of nomenclature. But there the legislature was really giving a list of all the High Courts in India, some of them not connected with any Fort, and therefore perhaps they gave it short names, such as the High Courts at Calcutta, Bombay, Patna and so forth. Here, however, we are dealing with one High Court associated with Fort William and the invariable precedence in India has been, from the earliest times, to use that expression which was mentioned in the last amendment. But as I knew that the Hon'ble Minister might be led to refer to the Government of India Act, I have submitted this alternative amendment. The question is a choice between the language in the Bill-clause, namely, the High Court of Calcutta and the High Court at Calcutta. The expression "High Court of Calcutta" as in the Bill-clause does not mean anything. Is there any High Court "of" Calcutta, or rather, is it not the High Court "at" Calcutta? If you rely on the terminology of the Government of India Act, then by all means, stick to it. You must then accept the present amendment. There is a High Court "at" Fort William in Bengal but there is no High Court "of" Calcutta; that would be a wrong expression, and in dealing with expressions like these we should never be slipshod in our manner. That is why I propose the alternative amendment.

MR. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved, that in sub-clause (2) of clause 22 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the words "High Court of Calcutta" in line 22, the words "High Court at Calcutta" should be substituted.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: I remember to have read my English grammar long ago but now I have managed to forget most of it for reasons which I need not explain here. But I think that as my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad has pointed out, the expression "High Court of Calcutta" does not convey any meaning; the word "of" is meaningless. It would be better if it is substituted by the words "High Court at Calcutta" and my reasons are these. The High Court has its jurisdiction all over Bengal. If the word "of" is retained, it would mean that the Court's jurisdiction is only over Calcutta, the city of Calcutta only, whereas if the expression "High Court at Calcutta" is substituted for it, then it would convey a different meaning altogether. It would then mean a High Court that had its jurisdiction over the whole of Bengal and merely is located at Calcutta. These two things are different. That is why I think the amendment should be accepted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I am afraid, there is confusion in the minds of the honourable members. I think the amendment is unnecessary.

MR. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 22 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the words "High Court of Calcutta" in line 2, the words "High Court at Calcutta" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 22 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the word "professionally" in lines 3, 6 and 7, the words "as such" be substituted.

Sir, in the Bill-clause the expression occurs in the following context—
"the lawyer member shall be a barrister or advocate of the High Court of Calcutta or a pleader who has practised professionally for a period of not less than 5 years....." The expression that is used, namely, "practised professionally" need not be there. It should be "practised as such". The word "professionally" implies certain restrictions. Suppose, a pleader has practised unprofessionally or not professionally, would you debar him from the appointment? Obviously, you do not intend to do so. Then, Sir, the word "professionally" should not be used as a legal expression—lawyers should not use it, and the words "as such" are a better substitute for "professionally". In fact, it is the most artistic way of expressing the meaning. I think, therefore, that this substitute should be carefully considered and accepted. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 22 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the word "professionally" in lines 3, 6 and 7, the words "as such" be substituted.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Sir, this is another instance of bad drafting. It is bad English. The expression "has practised professionally" is bad English, just as the expression "he appeared unsuccessful in the examination". Sir, when I was a student in the College (that was long before, about 32 years ago) the Principal of the College gave a testimonial to a certain student before he left the college and in this testimonial he wrote that so and so "is a young man of aimable disposition. Unfortunately, he appeared unsuccessfully before the examination". He was a European professor and as we were reading at that time in the 4th year class, we at once noticed the language and it occurred to us that it was a defective expression. So also the expression "has practised professionally" is defective. Personally, I would like to eliminate the word altogether. But since my friend the Khan Bahadur has suggested the substitute "as such", I have no other alternative but to support it.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the amendment that has been moved by my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. I do not know how the word "professionally" has been introduced in clause 22 and who is responsible for this introduction. I do not know whether the Hon'ble Finance Minister will now cite the Bihar Agricultural Income-tax Act or the Assam Act or even the Indian Income-tax Act in support of it.

Sir, the words used here in sub-clause (2) of clause 22 of the Bill are "the lawyer member shall be a barrister or advocate of the High Court of Calcutta or a pleader who has practised professionally for a period of not less than five years." I do not know, Sir, whether the word has been used for the purpose of giving some handle to the income-tax authorities for refusing a pleader's appearance before a tribunal on the ground that he has not professionally practised for a period of not less than 5 years. I do not know what professionally practising means. If a pleader practises in a court of law, does he practise professionally or unprofessionally? If a pleader is guilty of unprofessional conduct, there are provisions under the Legal Practitioners' Act which make him liable for punishment. I do not know whether it is intended to give some handle to the authorities so that they may keep it for the purpose of some ulterior motive. I, therefore, submit that this amendment should be accepted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, the word "professionally" is not certainly good but we have no ulterior motive. It has been similarly used in the Indian Income-tax Act. I think it is a correct expression, if my opinion is of any worth. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 22 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the word "professionally" in lines 3, 6 and 7, the words "as such" be substituted.

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—12 and the "Noes"—20, the amendment is negatived.

Mr. BIRENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, I beg to move: that in paragraph (b) of sub-clause (2) of clause 22 of the Bill, for the word "five" in line 4 and line 7, the word "ten" be substituted.

The object of my amendment is very simple and straightforward. The Appellate Tribunal provided for in this clause will be a pivotal factor of the machinery for collecting agricultural income-tax. In order that the taxpayers may derive all the benefit from the Tribunal intended by the framers of the Bill, it is but fit and proper that its members should not only be experienced men but should have sufficient standing to inspire confidence in the litigant public. It is not enough that a lawyer or income-tax practitioner to be appointed to the Tribunal should have only five years' practice to his credit. Of course, I know that when actual appointments will be made, men far more experienced will ordinarily be chosen. But it is not wise to keep the opportunity legally open for the choice of a man still raw in the profession. What I desire, Sir, is to withdraw this opportunity. With these few words, I move the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in paragraph (b) of sub-clause (2) of clause 22 of the Bill, for the word "five" in line 4 and line 7, the word "ten" be substituted.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by Mr. Birendra Kishore Roy Chowdhury. Sir, five years is too short a period for a member of the legal profession to acquire sufficient experience, and in connection with the constitution of an appellate tribunal, I think more experienced men should be appointed. Five years' practice at the Bar is practically nothing. Five years' time is not sufficient for a lawyer, whether he is a barrister or an advocate or an ordinary pleader, to gather sufficient experience. Even in days gone by the members of the Indian Civil Service of not less than 12 or 15 years' standing were posted as District Officers. Why? The reason was that five years' or ten years' time was not considered adequate for the purpose, and I think that in the matter of making appointments in the Appellate Tribunal due regard should be had for the experience of the persons so appointed. So I think the word "ten" should be substituted for the word "five", as suggested by Mr. Birendra Kishore Roy Chowdhury.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I also rise to support this amendment. The question is one of appointment of members of the Tribunal, and in that Tribunal lawyers of some experience would be desirable. Within the first five years of his career, a lawyer may not be able to acquire sufficient experience. Another five years is necessary to become really experienced. Before ten years a lawyer does not attain maturity, and if five years' experience is considered to be enough to entitle a candidate to sit in the Tribunal, much injustice will be perpetrated. The Bill is badly drafted, and really good lawyers would be required to interpret it. For certain extraneous reasons not connected with the merits of the drafting, good amendments are being voted down.

If a lawyer shows particular brilliance and particular industry, even then ten years would be the minimum. I say this from long experience; it takes hard study and long experience to mature. Besides, before the Tribunal clever and experienced lawyers—experienced in mercantile and commercial law—will be taking part and will raise points which might well be beyond the capacity of a 5-year lawyer to appreciate. Then again, 5 years' experience would leave a loophole for encouraging favouritism. Young men from respectable and influential families might get appointed without much consideration and they might not be able to do justice to their appointment. A great deal of legal experience would be required of the incumbent. Longer legal experience would be highly desirable and my friend the mover of the amendment has done a service by drawing the attention of the House to this matter. I had 8 or 10 days' time within which I put in amendments and now I find that the Bill should be re-written wholesale. I confess that this point escaped my attention. This is a very important clause and it affects the efficiency, independence and ability of the members of the Tribunal, for they will have to decide abstruse questions of law, much more abstruse than are thought of by many members of this House. With these words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I think the minimum qualification should not be placed too high and a minimum practice of 5 years may be considered quite suitable. After all, there may be some brilliant young men who may make their mark within 5 years from the commencement of their professional career and they should not be shut out. In this view, I think this amendment is not necessary.

MR. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in paragraph (b) of sub-clause (2) of clause 22 of the Bill, for the word "five" in line 4 and line 7, the word "ten" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move: that in sub-clause (4) of clause 22 of the Bill, for the words "shall be President" in line 1, the words "shall be the President" be substituted.

Sir, the economy in words which has been resorted to in drafting this Bill makes the clauses suffer in accuracy and diction. "Shall be President" may be suitable in particular contexts, but if members of the House will read the passage, then it would at once be apparent to them that the word "the" is necessary. I would ask the honourable members who have not got a copy of the Bill.—(Khan Sahib NURU AHMAD: We have got copies of the Bill). I know that; that is why I said those who are not armed with a copy. I know every member has a copy because every member has been supplied with a copy. I meant those members who have not properly studied the Bill or are not attending to its terms. I am reading to them the offending passage which runs thus: "The judicial member shall be President of the Appellate Tribunal". I think, Sir, the appropriate expression should be "The judicial member shall be the President of the Appellate Tribunal". The omission of the word "the" is a wrong economy. It seems to me that the word "the" is necessary. There is nothing sacrosanct in a Government Bill and the addition of the word "the" should not offend their sentiment.

MR. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (4) of clause 22 of the Bill, for the words "shall be President" in line 1, the words "shall be the President" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, the proposed amendment would not be an improvement on our draft. I oppose it.

MR. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (4) of clause 22 of the Bill, for the words "shall be President" in line 1, the words "shall be the President" be substituted.

Clause 22.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 22 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 23.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 23 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move: that clause 23 of the Bill be re-numbered sub-clause (1) of clause 23 and the following new sub-clause be added as sub-clause (2), namely:—

"(2) the person referred to in section 18 shall furnish to the beneficiary a certificate of the amount of tax paid by him or to be paid by him on account of agricultural income for the share of the profits of the beneficiary.

Sir, I submit that the clause as it stands gives authority to the principal officer of every company at the time of distribution of dividends out of agricultural income received by such company to furnish every person receiving such dividend with a certificate to the effect that the company has paid or will pay agricultural income-tax on the agricultural income which is being distributed in the way of dividends.

Now, Sir, if we look to clause 18, we find that sub-clause (2) runs as follows:—

"(2) Any person receiving agricultural income as referred to in section 18 may, before paying to any beneficiary any share of such agricultural income to which such beneficiary is entitled, deduct from such share the amount of agricultural income-tax or its equivalent value in kind if such share is paid in kind rateably paid in respect of such share."

Therefore, really the tax which he has to pay is for the income of the beneficiary even though it may be at an enhanced rate to which the beneficiary may not be liable or the person receiving the income may not be liable. I submit, Sir, that the amount which he pays on account of the beneficiary and which he takes from the share of the money payable to the beneficiary, he should be authorised to give a certificate to the beneficiary that he has paid income-tax to the extent of the amount which he has paid or which he will pay for the beneficiary on account of the beneficiary's share of the income. It may be that the beneficiary is not liable to be taxed at all, and in that case the beneficiary will be entitled to a refund of the entire amount from the Government on the basis of the certificate which he receives from the person who has paid the income-tax on the basis of the income which he received himself. Although my amendment with regard to clause 18 was not accepted, I think this amendment should be accepted because it is of the same nature as the existing clause—with regard to shareholders in companies from whose share of the dividend the income-tax is paid by the company. I think either there was an omission or if it was not thought of I would like the Finance Minister to consider this so that it would be consistent with the other provisions of the Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that clause 23 of the Bill be re-numbered sub-clause (1) of clause 23 and the following new sub-clause be added as sub-clause (2), namely:—

“(2) the person referred to in section 18 shall furnish to the beneficiary a certificate of the amount of tax paid by him or to be paid by him on account of agricultural income for the share of the profits of the beneficiary”.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, as the tax would be collected from the recipients of the income and as no refund is allowable to the beneficiary, no provision for a certificate is necessary. I, therefore, oppose the amendment.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 23 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, although my amendment to clause 23 has been negatived, I would like to say a few words with regard to the clause—

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I suggest, Mr. Mukherjee, that you continue tomorrow. I think that would be better.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: All right, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Before I adjourn today, I would inform the House as regards the ruling that I proposed to give on the difficulty that has arisen due to my slip in putting one of the amendments to vote and declaring the decision, I am still considering the question and I propose to give my ruling later.

The House stands adjourned till 2-15 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 71.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Thursday, 3rd August, 1944, at 2-15 p.m., being the seventy-first day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62 (2) (a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

MR. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 23 stand part of the Bill.

The motion being put, a Division was challenged.

(When the Division bell was ringing.)

MR. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of order, Sir.

MR. PRESIDENT: There cannot be any point of order when the Division bell is ringing.

MR. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, amendment No. 254 should have been put to vote but you have put the whole clause.

MR. PRESIDENT: No, I remember Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee spoke yesterday on this amendment and after that the amendment was put to vote and negatived.

The question before the House is that clause 23 stand part of the Bill.

(Division was not pressed and the motion was agreed to.)

Clause 24.

MR. PRESIDENT: Clause 24 stand part of the Bill.

MR. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 24 of the Bill, for the word "may" in line 4, the word "shall" be substituted.

In clause (1) it is laid down that the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall publish in the newspapers notification calling upon persons to submit returns. Then in clause (2) it is said that if the Agricultural Income-tax Officer is of opinion that any person is liable to agricultural income-tax, he may serve notice upon him. The implication of both these clauses seems to be that the issue of a personal notice for submission of return is optional. That provision in the Indian Income-tax Act has been very recently adopted on the basis of the English Act, and during all these years—more than half a century—that provision was not in the Income-tax Act. In this country illiteracy is about 95 per cent. and newspaper-reading public is less than half per cent. Notices in newspapers are not very useful and issue of personal notices is incumbent and therefore I propose to substitute the word "shall" for "may". With these words, I propose this amendment.

MR. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (2) of clause 24 of the Bill, for the word "may" in line 4, the word "shall" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: In the context the word "may" is correct, as it is not contemplated that a notice shall be served in every case. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (2) of clause 24 of the Bill, for the word "may" in line 4, the word "shall" be substituted.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—17, and the "Noes"—22, the amendment is negatived.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I wish to speak on this clause, Sir. In this clause no arrangement has been made as to the person upon whom the notice should be served where the assessee is the ruler of an Indian State. This difficulty was thoroughly discussed in the House on an earlier occasion. Here the word person, which also includes the ruler of an Indian State, does not include his agent. According to the Civil Procedure Code, there is an arrangement for serving notices upon the agent of a Ruler of an Indian State. That was discussed at the time when the point of order was raised. There is this difficulty here also. There was an amendment which was not moved on account of the absence of the member at the time; but still there is this difficulty and it should be remembered at the time of passing this clause.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I also want to speak on this clause. Clause 24 appears in Chapter V which is the machinery of assessment chapter. Here for the first time we find that assessment is to be made upon the ruler of an Indian State on a certain principle and a return of agricultural income should be called for from such a ruler of State, like other assessees. If we look to the clause itself, we find that the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall, on or before such date in each year as may be prescribed, give notice by publication in such newspapers and in such other manner as may be prescribed—requiring every person, etc. We have in the definition of the word "person" included the ruler of an Indian State. Therefore, the ruler of an Indian State is going to be assessed under notice served by the Agricultural Income-tax Officer under the provisions of this clause. I submit that if we look to the definition section itself, we will find that according to sub-clause (12) of clause 2, "Principal Officer" used with reference to an Indian State, a company or any other association means the manager or agent in Bengal of the Ruler of the Indian State. I submit that you cannot in the first instance require the ruler of an Indian State to submit a return. If the Income-tax Officer proposes to call upon the ruler of an Indian State by publication in the Gazette that he should furnish the return of his agricultural income within a period of 60 days, and if he does not comply with the notice, there is no provision for enforcing it and therefore I submit that clause 24 as it stands is defective and we oppose the retention of the clause in its defective form. With these words, I say that the clause ought not to remain.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 24 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 25.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 25 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move that in clause 25 of the Bill, in sub-clause (2), after the word "person" in line 2, the words "or the recognised agent of an Indian State" be inserted.

Sir, I warn the Hon'ble Finance Minister and the supporters of the Bill that it would be dangerous if the Bill is allowed to stand in the form in which it stands at present. After all, we the members of this House have accepted the principle of the Bill and we want that as much tax as is possible should come to the coffers of the provincial exchequer from those who are able to pay. I am sorry that my attempt to give some relief to the middle class who are the backbone of the society has not been approved by the House. But in this case it is not a question of assessing persons who are unable to pay. We have got about 5 or 6 Rulers of State in Bengal and the amount we expect from them is considerable. If that is so, we ought to see that the provision for the enforcement of the tax and realisation of the same are not kept in a state in which the Rulers of Indian States may escape payment altogether. As a matter of fact, the question as to whether the Rulers of the Indian States are liable to pay this tax was raised and discussed and we agreed to the principle that the Ruler of an Indian State is liable to pay this tax. Now, Sir, you cannot by serving a notice on the Ruler of an Indian State enforce either assessment or payment of the money. We have also pointed out that there is a provision in the Civil Procedure Code for service of notices with regard to the cases against Ruler of an Indian State. I therefore submit that so far as this chapter—the chapter of assessment, is concerned, we ought to be very careful. I warn the Hon'ble Finance Minister to consider seriously whether he should not accept this amendment in order that he may not find it difficult afterwards to realise this tax from the Ruler of an Indian State.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 25 of the Bill, in sub-clause (2), after the word "person" in line 2, the words "or the recognised agent of an Indian State" be inserted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support this amendment. If we want to tax the Ruler of an Indian State, some serious constitutional question may arise. For this purpose there are provisions in the Civil Procedure Code which are analogous to that which is sought to be introduced by this amendment. If we interpose an agent or if we could arrange by correspondence with the Government of India, then we shall be able to fix up a man who would be responsible to the Ruler of the Indian State. In these circumstances, if this amendment is not accepted, the provision to tax the Indian Princes may remain a pious wish. In order to make the provision effective, this amendment should be accepted; otherwise there will remain a gap and the solemn provision for taxing the Indian Princes may become absolutely impotent and inoperative. Therefore, in order to strengthen the decision of the House to tax the Indian States, it is necessary to insert a provision like this. I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I am indeed glad to find that my honourable friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee has at last come round to the view that Rulers of Indian States should not escape assessment. That is a good sign; but I wish to assure my honourable friend that we have taken sufficient care in devising a machinery for assessing and collecting taxes from the Indian States. I do not think the Rulers of Indian States would be able to escape assessment. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House: that in clause 25 of the Bill, in sub-clause (2), after the word "person" in line 2, the words "or the recognised agent of an Indian State" be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: That in sub-clause (2) of clause 25 of the Bill, for the words, commas and figures "produce, to cause to be there produced" in line 7, the words "produce or cause to be produced" be substituted.

The passage which is affected by this amendment runs thus: ".....a notice requiring him.....to produce, to cause to be there produced, any evidence....." I think the word "to" is a mistake for the word "or". This mistake crept into the Bill as it was originally published in the Gazette. To rectify this mistake Government has given notice of this amendment. There is no difference of opinion among the different sections of the House that it is a mistake and the mistake has been acknowledged by the Government by their notice of this amendment. Government amendments are drafted by their experts; they are then passed by the Department concerned before being approved by the Hon'ble Minister and then they are given notice of by members acting on behalf of the Government. Therefore, this notice is a pukka guarantee that the amendment is a necessary one, and I hope this amendment would be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (2) of clause 25 of the Bill, for the words, commas and figures "produce, to cause to be there produced" in line 7, the words "produce or cause to be produced" be substituted.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the amendment. It is unfortunate that although Government realised their own drafting errors and although notice was given on behalf of the Government by a Parliamentary Secretary, the Hon'ble Minister is reluctant, as we have seen in connection with another amendment, to improve the language or remove any apparent defect in the drafting. As the Khan Bahadur has rightly pointed out, the word "there" is unnecessary and if retained would be meaningless. Evidently, it means the office of the Agricultural Income-tax Officer. Certainly, the amendment before the House, namely, "produce or cause to be produced" would be a distinct improvement on the expression that appears in the body of the clause. Therefore, I think that the amendment should be accepted.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I rise to support this amendment and for reasons which are obvious, at any rate, to the Hon'ble Finance Minister. I would ask him if he has any defence whatsoever for the position which, I am afraid, he is going to take up in a minute or two in respect of this particular amendment. It is not a mere drafting amendment: and if the sentence of the Bill-clause is read as a whole, particularly the clause as it stands now, it does not make any sense whatsoever. The undesirable clause was described by my friend Rai Bahadur Keshab Chandra Banerjee as an error but I think it can be more correctly characterised as a schoolboy howler. I shall read the relevant sentence as it stands. Sir, the clause as it now stands reads—I will leave the earlier portion governing the clause, because this is only a qualifying clause and does not affect the structure of the sentence as a whole. This is the substantive portion of the clause—".....he shall serve on such person, a notice requiring him, on a date to be therein specified, either to attend at the Agricultural Income-tax Officer's office or to produce, to cause to be there produced, any evidence on which such person may rely in support of the return." Now, Sir, I ask you what exactly does this mean? In the earlier half of the sentence, there is a notice which requires him to attend at the Agricultural Income-tax Officer's office. This is quite intelligible. The alternative is that the officer requires him to produce any evidence on which such person may rely in support of his return. This also makes sense. But as the clause now stands, it reads that he shall require him "to produce, to cause to be there produced,....." What is this "to cause to be there produced" which is again protected by two commas on either side? Commas have now become of historic importance in this House. These two commas take it outside the general flow of the sense of the sentence. Protected by these two commas, it is quite formidable. It has become a formidable obstacle to any interpretation of the clause as a whole, because, taken apart from the movement of the sentence as a whole, this "to cause to be there produced" governs the particular word "produce". Anyone with the least idea of either English grammar or English usage would simply wonder as to what it would mean if this particular clause "to cause to be there produced" governs the word "produce". I do not know if the Hon'ble Finance Minister, however subtle he might be, can skate over the difficulties into which his own drafting experts have landed him. I do not know how he is to pirouette out of this labyrinth. Government themselves felt it necessary to give notice of amendments to take out, first of all, the two commas which if removed will change the whole meaning of the sub-clause. Now, if the Government amendment were carried, then it would read quite simple as follows: "he shall serve on such person, a notice requiring him.....to produce or cause to be produced any evidence on which such person may rely in support of the return." This is quite intelligible. The officer shall serve on the assessee a notice and in virtue of this notice he shall appear there in person or he shall produce through some intermediary any evidence which he might have in order to justify the correctness of his return. But this is as it would be if the Government amendment were carried. If the Government amendment is not carried, and the clause remains as it stands now, that interpretation would not be open to the Hon'ble Finance Minister. I do not think any amount of verbal jugglery will permit him to say that this is a grammatical mistake or that it is a drafting amendment, and therefore it would be corrected either by the office or that there would be no difficulty in its interpretation. I think I have placed it sufficiently clearly, and I am confident that I have convinced you at any rate, although I may have failed to convince the Hon'ble Finance Minister who refuses to be convinced. There is a Bengali saying that if a man is asleep you can wake him, but if he is fully awake and feigns sleep, you cannot wake him and even Hercules would fail to wake him. That is the attitude which is being taken up by the Hon'ble Finance Minister. He fully realises that the clause as it now stands is not only nonsense but worse. It is mischievous and is liable to all kinds of misinterpretation and all kinds of difficulties. I have no doubt that many of my lawyer friends will be glad if these anomalies remain, and my friends on my left may also be glad if they remain in the Bill. They might therefore support this sort of—shall I say—mis-delivery of the departmental draftsmen of the Government. All those who are concerned with common sense and all those who are concerned with bringing out the Bill in a proper, healthy and normal manner, will, I am sure, feel that this clause as it stands now would simply not make sense. It is simply nonsense. Unless these two offending commas and the word "there" and the word "to" are taken out, I submit it is not going to make any sense at all. I will submit further that Government themselves would be landed in difficulties and I am sure the High Court itself will find it very difficult to give any interpretation whatsoever. I am here on safer grounds, for it is not a case of trying to wake up a man who is feigning sleep. If this matter is taken up to the High Court, I am quite sure the High Court will say that sub-clause (2) of clause 25 of the Bill does not make any sense. If it does not make sense, the whole Bill may be made inoperative. Since this is one of the operative clauses of the Bill, Government in their mortal terror of another place, in their reluctance to face public opinion, in their anxiety to avoid summoning the Lower House, might find that they are faced with a deadlock, which not all their ingenuity will be able to overcome. There are some other clauses in the Bill whose defects might not hamper the operation of the Bill as a whole; but this is a sub-clause which deals with the question of assessment and the method of determining the assessment. If there is any dispute on the question of the method of assessment and of compelling the person assessed to submit to whatever assessment is made by Government, if the clause dealing with these questions were held up and proved inoperative, then the whole purpose of the Bill would be defeated. The Finance Minister often tells us that he will not get a subvention from the Government of India unless this Bill is passed within a particular date. I can assure him that if the High Court rules that this sub-clause in the Bill is inoperative, the result might be just the same. The result might be that the Government of India might also say that since the most important clause in the Bill is not only defectively drafted but drafted in a manner which makes its operation impossible, then what would be the conclusion? (Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: we will have to amend the Act). Well, Sir, you cannot correct the Act without amending it. And that is what we are suggesting to the Government. I am very glad that my friend Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury, who has some legal acumen and perhaps some legal conscience, realises that amendment is necessary and corrections should be made if necessary. He thus realises the necessity in spite of a certain amount of discomfort because he is afraid of what the consequences might be if the Government were forced to face the Assembly. In spite of his discomfort he is not very vehement in his opposition to this amendment. I discern some reluctance in him to support Government in this case. When a member of his status who is ready to support Government reasonably or unreasonably,—when I find a member of that type rather reluctant to support the Bill-clause and willing to accept the amendment moved on behalf of the Opposition, I take it that the position of Government is rather serious. It is pretty bad indeed and if it were not so, then there would be no reason why he should not have been much more vehement in his opposition to this amendment. I would conclude by saying—

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: On a point of order, Sir. Can the honourable member speak for himself and for another member opposite at the same time?

Mr. PRESIDENT: It depends on his ingenuity.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I am glad, Sir, that you find nothing in the point of order. I certainly give the palm to my friend whose ingenuity in the House is quite well-known. However, to proceed with what I was saying, I may say that the Government themselves felt that the clause as it stands is just nonsense. That is why Government asked two of their Parliamentary Secretaries to give notice of an amendment—an amendment which was approved by them and drafted by the Legislative Department. In the normal course of events, that amendment would have been carried without doubt. But unfortunately Government have allowed extraneous considerations—the question of their waning strength, their fear of losing the position which they occupy today if they face the Lower House, to prevail over their duty. This is the burden of the song of the Hon'ble Finance Minister. When ever he gets up to speak, a whisper goes on in his mind. That whisper says, "Do not take us back to the other Chamber which is so hot and out of which we escaped with so much difficulty and skill. Once we have come out of that ordeal, do not push us back to that purgatory". If that is the argument of the Hon'ble Finance Minister, I leave it to the House to accept or reject that argument for what it is worth.

I know, Sir, that so far as my friends to the left—I mean the European Party, are concerned, they are not afraid of any violation of their mother-tongue so long as it serves the purpose of saving this particular Government from facing the ordeal of the Lower House. They submitted to a violation yesterday when an outrage was committed on the English language. By their vote a meaningless word "guardidan" was accepted and obtained legislative sanction. Whatever little chance there was to correct the spelling mistake, that has disappeared after the vote of the House yesterday. This word has been kept and its special spelling. The sound of it is something like "guardidan" and that has been accepted by my friends to the left. They will submit to a new violation of the English grammar today if this amendment is not accepted by them. This will be another violation of their mother-tongue. After all, I am a foreigner, and if I express any regret for such outrage it would be a half-hearted regret. Great difficulty will be created for them if the clause remains as it is. What I feel is that it is for them to decide what they should do about this amendment.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, I rise to support this amendment. But I shall not recapitulate the reasons already given by the honourable mover and the other two honourable members Rai Bahadur Keshab Chandra Banerjee and Mr. Humayun Kabir. I do not like to repeat those reasons for the simple reason that I consider it an insult to the intelligence of the honourable members of this House to explain to them over again that this amendment is necessary. It is so simple, it is so clear that it ought not to require any argument to convince any reasonable man with an ordinary knowledge of the English language to show that the amendment is necessary. During the last few days we have heard the debate in this House with regard to some of the amendments and we have found that apart from the question of principle on the question of drafting amendments when amendments were really necessary the House has turned them down for the simple reason that they will not allow any amendments to be passed.

Hereafter when the proceedings of this House will be published, people who would peruse them would perhaps think that the honourable members of this House were absolutely ignorant of the English language and would perhaps consider that no European members of the House were present in the House when all these drafting amendments were being discussed. We have not yet heard them speaking on this amendment or on the amendment which sought to correct the word "guardidan" yesterday. I do not know how any honourable member of this House could oppose an amendment like this. I do not consider that it is a matter which could be lightly talked out. It is a very serious matter and this House I consider is a House consisting of responsible gentlemen with education and experience. We are trying to improve the Bill by correcting the mistakes that are there. It is no use saying that I will have "guardidan" instead of "guardian", because that does not matter. I do not know whether the Hon'ble the Finance Minister was a student of merit or not in his younger days, but I can say that as he is not looking so dull now he was not dull either in his younger days and he ought to understand that the posterity will think of him as one who never cared for the dignity of this House or for the dignity of the business of the House. I do not know what any gentleman with a grain of common sense, with a grain of self-respect would think of this House when they will peruse the proceedings of this House. With these few words, I support the amendment.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the amendment that was given notice of by Mr. Biren Roy and Mr. Mesbahuddin

Ahmed and which has actually been moved by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad who is the sponsor of all amendments intended to remove all drafting defects in the Bill. Now, Sir, I do not like to say anything with regard to the question whether this amendment should or should not be accepted by the House. I think the fact that it was put as an amendment to be moved on behalf of Government sufficiently warrants the conclusion that at one time the Government wanted that this amendment should be moved and passed by this House. I cannot exactly say what was the point of time when this was decided. But before the amendments were taken up, a considerable time lapsed as the question of the competency of the Bengal Legislature to tax the Ruler of an Indian State arose and the consideration of the Bill had to be postponed for about a month, I believe, and then there was some uncomfortable developments that took place in the Lower House and suddenly that House was prorogued. We are not going to give the reasons why that House was prorogued but soon after the prorogation of that House, the Hon'ble the Finance Minister stated on the floor of this House that Government do not propose to move the amendments which have been tabled on their behalf. I need not say anything on the question whether this amendment should be accepted or not. The fact is clear that the amendment is necessary. The only question is, as Mr. Humayun Kabir pointed out, as to the attitude my European friends are going to take up. It has been stated by Mr. Kabir that they have supported the Government in opposing an amendment which was sought to be introduced yesterday with regard to the word "guaridan". Possibly the European members could not support the Opposition but had to go to the Government Lobby because otherwise there would be some disaster which I need not disclose again. But when I met the Leader of the House yesterday I was told that this mistake should be corrected as a clerical mistake. I must say that it can no longer be treated as a clerical mistake in view of the fact the amendment relating to this word was actually moved but was voted down by the Government majority. I do not know what the courts will think when they will consider the clauses of the Bill in which the amendments were opposed. As a matter of fact, the proceedings of the Chamber are not open to the courts and therefore they will think that the members of the Legislature were careless, were sleeping and were not attending to their business when this Bill was passed. It is for this reason that we are moving these amendments and are placing our views with regard to some of the mistakes which seem to be obvious. As a matter of fact, if courts find that no meaning can be attached to a particular clause of the section, then it will throw it out and possibly the whole thing may be thrown out as unintelligible and the machinery of assessment may fail on that account alone. If we look to the clause itself, I mean, clause 25, and also look to the offending place where the words stand, then, as pointed out by my friend Mr. Humayun Kabir in a very forceful language, we see that it does not make any meaning and that it seems to have no sense—I do not like to use the word "nonsense"—but I would like to use the words that it does not make out any sense. If that is so, I think the Hon'ble the Finance Minister should consider whether he should allow this mistake to remain in the Bill or whether he should not even now agree to have it rectified in the way proposed in the amendment. With these words, Sir, I support the amendment.

Dr. KUMUD SANKAR RAY: On a point of order, Sir. I am not conversant with law, but I want to know as a layman whether the President has not the right to disallow a question if that question is put in such a way as to convey no meaning at all; or whether, if a resolution or a clause of a Bill is introduced in a language which is neither English nor Greek nor French, the President has the inherent right to disallow that resolution or that clause on that ground.

Mr. PRESIDENT: As I am speaking offhand, I may not be very accurate; but I think that the President can only disallow a clause of a Bill

If it is ultra vires of the Legislature; the President cannot re-draft the Bill or make correction in the drafting of a Bill.

Dr. KUMUD SANKAR RAY: If a particular clause of a Bill appears to be meaningless, can the President allow that particular clause to be discussed in the House until it is modified in such a way as to convey some meaning?

Mr. PRESIDENT: The President has no power to do so. As regards questions, the President can disallow them if they appear to be defective or meaningless; but as regards Bills, except on the general question of ultra vires, I do not think the President has any power to modify them in any way.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, this obvious printing mistake does not reflect any discredit on the drafting capacity of Government draftsmen. The printing mistake is obvious, and I think that the administration of the Act will not be hampered by this obvious printing mistake. I think the amendment will be taken note of in the amending Bill that will come.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The Hon'ble Minister will please note that the same mistake appears in the copy of the Bill which was published first in the Calcutta Gazette. So it is not a printing mistake. The same mistake appears in the gazette copy as well as in the original copy and in another copy which was passed by the Assembly. So there are three copies in which the same mistake appears. Therefore, this is no printing mistake at all.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, as the Hon'ble Minister himself accepts that it is an obvious mistake, can he after that oppose the amendment? He says that it would be corrected in the amending Bill that will come. Therefore, having admitted that it is a mistake he cannot oppose the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I will not vote.

Mr. PRESIDENT: He has no vote in the House.

The question before the House is that in sub-clause (2) of clause 25 of the Bill, for the words, commas and figures "produce, to cause to be there produced" in line 7, the words "produce or cause to be produced" be substituted.

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—16, and the "Noes"—24, the amendment is negatived.

Dr. K. S. RAY: Sir, before you take up the next amendment may I refer to the point of order I raised? I still think with due deference to your ruling that the matter requires further consideration and I hope you will give your considered ruling on the point.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, a similar matter was raised in the House of Commons and the Speaker observed that the combined wisdom of the whole House will prevail—

Mr. PRESIDENT: That will do. Thank you. It is an interesting point and it should be looked into. In fact, I did not give any ruling.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, I may point out that—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think it is necessary to pursue this matter further. Mr. Das—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move that sub-clause (4)—

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: On a point of order, Sir. Before my friend, Mr. Das, proceeds with his amendment, I propose to raise a point of order. It is about sub-clause (4), which Mr. Lalit Chandra Das wants to delete.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The point of order is that sub-clause (4) is ultra vires.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That amendment is not yet before the House. Let him first move the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, may I explain the situation?

Mr. PRESIDENT: There is no proposal before the House, and your point of order cannot be on nothing. There must be something before the House on which you can raise a point of order.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: There is something before the House as you, Sir, have already said that clause 25 do stand part of the Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But his objection is with regard to the particular amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: No, Sir, the object is the same but we differ in the manner of approach. Sir, sub-clause (4) says in effect that "if assessment of any agricultural income is made under section 8(2), then that may be reopened by the Agricultural Income-tax Officer with the consent of the Commissioner." This clashes with the decision which you have already given. Sub-clause (2) of clause 8 deals with an important matter. It deals with the valuation or rather the assessment of the income in case of tea. It is well known that tea is a subject of cultivation and then it is subjected to a process of manufacturing. So far as the manufacturing profit is concerned, it is taxable by the Centre and so far as the agricultural profit is concerned, it is to be taxed by the Province.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is your point of order?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The point of order is this: under sub-clause (2) of clause 8 it has been conclusively settled what is to be allocated to the Province and what is to be taxed by the Centre. So, this matter cannot be reopened as it has already been decided by the House. Now, by this sub-clause, the whole thing will be reopened by the Agricultural Income-tax Officer with the consent of the Commissioner. You cannot pass a sub-clause which conflicts with an earlier sub-clause.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What you say is a conflict in law. I am afraid I cannot allow you to speak on this matter again.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The point of order arises in this way that the present sub-clause clashes with what we have decided already. We cannot pass conflicting provisions.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If it clashes, that may be decided in a court of law, it is not for the Chair to decide that.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move: That sub-clause (4) of clause 25 of the Bill be deleted.

Sir, I shall not repeat the arguments which have just now been advanced by my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad as to why this sub-clause should be declared ultra vires. In sub-clause (2) of clause 25 the Agricultural Income-tax Officer.....shall serve on such person a notice requiring him on a date to be therein specified either to attend at the Agricultural Income-tax Officer's office or to produce, to cause to be there produced any evidence on which such person may rely in support of the return. This is the procedure. Sub-clause (3) of the section lays down how assessment has to be made by the Agricultural Income-tax Officer. Now, Sir, I do not understand the reason why this procedure should not be followed in connection with a person who is an assessee under sub-clause (2) of section 8. I do not understand why the permission of the Commissioner should be at all necessary. So my submission is: that if this sub-clause is really deleted, then all advantages of the procedure of rules 2 and 3 will automatically go to a person whose agricultural income has to be assessed under the provision of sub-clause (2) of section 8 of this Bill. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that sub-clause (4) of clause 25 of the Bill be deleted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I support the motion of my friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das that sub-clause (4) be deleted. Now the point that was raised by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad is not altogether without any substance. I am not going against your ruling, Sir, but I am going to refer to what you observed a few minutes ago when Dr. Ray mentioned about the previous amendment, namely, that you can only rule out a clause if it is ultra vires. The question is that if it is pointed out to the House that one clause is repugnant to the other I am not going to say that it is—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I will just explain. I said that the Chair can only give its decision on a point of order which raises the question as to whether a particular clause or a particular Bill is ultra vires of the powers of the Legislature or not; but if there is repugnancy between two clauses, it is an entirely different question and that has to be interpreted by the courts of law.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: What I was going to say is that if repugnancy is detected on the floor of the House when we consider this Bill, we should do our duty in clearing up the mistake and removing the repugnancy. The Hon'ble Minister should seriously consider whether he should allow the repugnancy to remain although it is pointed out by the members. It may not have been detected in the Lower House. We are not concerned with that. We are going to place a Statute permanently in the Statute Register of the Province of Bengal. The Bill will remain for ever even if the Government changes and even if the form of the Government changes; and thus we will leave a legacy to the posterity showing that we have passed a Bill with repugnant clauses although we knew that the clauses were repugnant. That is why I ask the honourable members and the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to consider whether or not the clause is repugnant. For that purpose it is necessary to look more closely to the Bill.

Now, Sir, let us consider what is there in sub-clause (3) of clause 8 which runs as follows:—

“(3) For the purpose of the assessment of agricultural income-tax under this section or any rule made thereunder a certified copy of an order of an assessment under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, or a certified copy of an order of any appellate or revising authority or of the High Court or of His Majesty in Council altering or amending such order of assessment under the provisions of that Act shall be conclusive evidence of the contents of such order”.

Clause 25 appears in a chapter which deals with the machinery of assessment, and sub-clauses (2) and (3) of clause 25 provide for machinery of assessment and obtaining returns from the assessee. Sub-clause (2) reads as follows:—“If the Agricultural Income-tax Officer is not satisfied without requiring the presence of the person who made the return or the production of evidence that a return made under section 24 is correct and complete, he shall serve on such person, a notice requiring him, on a date to be therein specified, either to attend at the Agricultural Income-tax Officer's office or to produce, to cause to be there produced, any evidence on which such person may rely in support of the return.” Sub-clause (3) also provides that “on the day specified in the notice issued under sub-section (2) or as soon afterwards as may be, the Agricultural Income-tax Officer, after hearing such evidence as such person may produce and such other evidence as the Agricultural Income-tax Officer may require on specified points, shall, by an order in writing, assess the total agricultural income of the assessee, and determine the sum payable by him on the basis of such assessment.” Then sub-clause (4) says that “the powers conferred by sub-sections (2) and (3) shall not, except with the permission of the Commissioner, be exercised by the Agricultural Income-tax Officer in the case of agricultural income which is assessed under the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 8 and regarding which an assessee has submitted together with his return under section 24 a certified copy of an assessment order under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.”

Now, possibly the honourable members may question: where is the repugnancy? I would point out the repugnancy immediately. In sub-clause (3) of clause 8, it is decided that “the order shall be conclusive evidence of the contents of such order.” There is nothing for the Income-tax Officer to do after the order of the authorities under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922. Why it is written then in sub-clause (4) “the powers conferred by sub-sections (2) and (3) shall not, except with the permission of the Commissioner.....”. If you leave that power that he is entitled to go into the question under sub-clauses (2) and (3) of clause 25, in that case the position would be that if the Commissioner authorises him to do so, he is entitled to revise the order and take steps under sub-clauses (2) and (3). But so far as sub-clause (3) of clause 8 is concerned, it also deals with conclusive evidence of agricultural income of the assessee. Therefore, I submit that this clause should be deleted, not only because it is unnecessary but because it is repugnant. I may remind the honourable members of the House that so far as this clause 8 is concerned, I moved an amendment that so far as the words “a certified copy of an order of an assessment under the Indian Income-tax Act” being conclusive should be deleted and treated as evidence only. That amendment was not accepted however, and I therefore want to remove the repugnancy which is there in clause 25. I find that was not accepted and I propose that the repugnancy which is here should be removed. As the House has not accepted the previous amendment, here I want to do so and give the Provincial Government authority to have some check on the assessment order made by the authorities under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922. As a matter of fact, it may be said that attention was not drawn to certain things which might be detected by the Income-tax Officer under the Province of Bengal and therefore I want to remove the word conclusive evidence and want to say that it shall be treated as evidence only, pure and simple. With these few words, I support the amendment.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Mr. President, Sir, I beg to support the amendment though I might say that when the amendment was first moved was not clear about the purpose which this amendment had in view. The discussions that have followed and particularly the point to which reference was made by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad has convinced me that an amendment of the type would be necessary if the Bill is not to be open to dispute and probably stultification. You have ruled that whenever there is any conflict between any two pieces of legislation or different parts of a particular Act, the question of interpretation of that conflict will be left to the courts of law. That ruling is quite proper and that is as it should be. I want to draw your attention to another aspect of the matter, namely, that when this House has taken a particular decision in the course of a session, does it lie with it to go against that decision within the same session? Another aspect of the matter will have to be considered, and there you, Sir, are the final authority, not the court. So far as there is any repugnancy between different Acts of the Legislature or between different parts of the same Act, these would no doubt be interpreted by the courts of law; but when a decision has been taken in a session and that decision is sought to be modified and violated during a later part of the same session, it is for you to decide the question. . . . As I was submitting, when a decision has been taken and if later on during the same session that decision is sought to be altered, then, Sir, as the custodian of the rights of the House it would lie in your power to decide whether there is any such violation or not. I take it that Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad had in view this aspect of the matter to which he wanted to draw your attention. In clause 8 (2) we have already decided the procedure for the assessment of agricultural income-tax on income derived from land in which tea is cultivated. It has definitely been laid down that this assessment will be made by the Income-tax Officers acting under the Indian Income-tax Act of the Government of India and the Provincial Government will have no say in the matter. The assessment there will be clearly demarcated into two portions. The income due to the Government of India and the agricultural income-tax. In clause 8 we have already decided in this House that so far as agricultural income on tea is concerned, the Income-tax Officer of the Government of India will decide how much of that income is to be assessed as industrial income under the Government of India Income-tax Act and how much will be left out of computation for the purposes of Indian Income-tax as income derived from agriculture. Therefore, a finality has already been reached. We have already decided that agricultural income from tea will not be assessed by the Income-tax Officer of the Government of India. Now, in clause 25 (2) and (3) taken together, we find a new aspect of the same matter. Here, income derived from tea will no longer be determined by the Income-tax Officer acting under the Government of India. Here, the income-tax on tea will be decided, so far as the purposes of this Act is concerned, by the Agricultural Income-tax Officer. That I submit is an anomaly, for it is violating or upsetting a decision which the House has already taken. It cannot be said that there is any question of oversight here, because when clause 8 was considered, attention was drawn to this aspect of the matter, namely, that so far as the income from tea is concerned, the Provincial Government have practically given up all their rights. An amendment was moved by which the returns of the Income-tax Officer would have been recorded only as evidence, but not as a conclusive evidence. Government did not accept that amendment and took up the position that so far as the income from tea is concerned, the decision of the Income-tax Officer will be final. Thus, an opinion which had definitely been given is now sought to be modified. That is why we are drawing your attention to the question whether in the course of the same session and in considering the same piece of legislation, the House can give two contradictory opinions. There are degrees of contradiction. There is in philosophy contradiction as well as contrariety. There are certain points which may not be completely opposed to each other. Here it has been definitely laid down that the income derived from tea will be finally decided by the Income-tax Officer of the Government of India. That is a final and definitive position and the upsetting of that would, by implication, be contradictory. If it were a case of partial contradiction and if it were not a case of clear-cut opposition, then it could be said that in a case of partial contradiction both may be wrong though both cannot be true. But here a definite position has been taken that assessment will be under clause 8 and to alter that in any way is to deny it. The House is thus being asked to go back upon its own vote. I would draw this fact to your attention and to the attention of the members of this House.

It is for you to decide whether the House can vote upon a matter which has already been decided upon in this House. A decision has been taken and that decision is now sought to be upset by a back-door method, by a qualifying clause. I can see that one argument may be advanced on behalf of the Government. They may say that the Agricultural Income-tax Officer will not necessarily modify the return, but may actually accept the findings of the Income-tax Officer of the Government of India. To say this is to admit that he may but need not necessarily in every case do so. Whatever happens, it is going to contradict an earlier decision of the House. It is for you, Sir, to decide whether it is not actually upsetting the earlier decision of the House. In this view of the matter, I feel forced to support this amendment which has been moved by my honourable friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I also rise to support the amendment. I had partly discussed this matter when I raised the point of order. Now, the question is: whether we should pass sub-clause (4) of clause 25 in view of the repugnancy, and also on other grounds—on the ground of drafting anomalies which I shall point out shortly. Sir, it has already been decided by this House by the acceptance of clause 8(2) that so far as tea is concerned, the manufacturing income and agricultural income shall be determined according to the Indian Income-tax Act by the Indian Income-tax authorities. They shall decide or some higher authority under that Act shall decide what will be the manufacturing income and what will be the agricultural income in the case of tea. An upper hand is given to the Indian Income-tax authorities for the simple reason that the agricultural income has been defined in the Government of India Act to be as it is defined in the Indian Income-tax Act. The Indian Income-tax authorities have, therefore, been given the upper hand in this matter. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister, at an earlier stage of the debate, at the time of the first reading of the Bill, said that 60 per cent. of the income has been calculated as agricultural income and 40 per cent. as manufacturing income. Suppose, a tea company has an income of Rs. 1,00,000. Rs. 60,000 would be agricultural income and Rs. 40,000 would be manufacturing income. Sub-clause (3) of clause 8 says, "A certified copy of an award made by the Indian Income-tax authority will be conclusive evidence of the contents of such order" that the total income of the company is so much and such portion of that income is agricultural and such portion of it is manufacturing income. This has been accepted by clause 8 (3). Now, Sir, as has been pointed out by Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee, this amendment would have softened the rigours of the law, but that has been successfully negated. The rigorous character of the power of the Central taxing authorities, which was already conceded by this House by clause 8, has again been reaffirmed in the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 24. Now, Sir, let us examine the effect of sub-clause (4) which is attempted to be deleted. Under sub-clause (4) the whole thing is bound to be reopened by the Agricultural Income-tax Officer and the only formality required to undo what has been done is the consent of the Commissioner. All that will be necessary for the Agricultural Income-tax Officer to reopen the matter would be just to get the consent of the Commissioner under clause 25. Sub-clause (2) of clause 25 provides that when a return is submitted, the Income-tax Officer is to give notice to the party to attend his office and produce or cause to be produced accounts. Under this clause the agricultural income is assessed. But an exception has been made with regard to sub-clause (4) that in case the tax is levied under sub-clause (2), the Income-tax Officer cannot reopen the case unless with the consent of the Commissioner. That is another way of saying that he can exercise powers to ask for returns, giving notice to attend and produce account books and then reopen the assessment made by the Central Income-tax authorities. Now, Sir, there are, therefore, two provisions in the Act—one is the power given to the Income-tax authority in accordance with the provisions of the Government of India Act. Sir, having conceded final powers to the Indian Income-tax authorities to conclusively decide the agricultural income in case of tea, and having provided that a production of a certified copy of their order shall be conclusive evidence of the contents of such order, it is clear that the production of a certified copy would absolutely paralyse the Agricultural Income-tax Officer. He has no power to question it. The valuation is complete and cannot be reopened. Yet that is what the present sub-clause (4) attempts to undo. Then again, the amount of agricultural income is not determined under clause 8(2) but it is decided under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, by the Indian Income-tax authorities and clause 8(2) really allows the valuation to be accepted as a matter of course. So the valuation is not made under clause 8(2) but it is a mere acceptance of the valuation made by the Indian Income-tax authorities. So the phraseology used here wrongly assumes that the valuation is made under clause 8(2). Clause 8 is so far behind clause 25, and so many clauses intervene, that the real logic of connection between clause 8 and clause 25 has been lost sight of. The draftsman was under the impression that the decision as to valuation was made under clause 8(2) and he was also under the impression that it was revisable by the Agricultural Income-tax Officer; but if he had carefully considered clause 8(2), he would have found that the valuation was made by the Indian Income-tax authorities under the Indian Income-tax Act and not under clause 8(2). In fact, the interposition of so many clauses between clause 8 and clause 25 has caused this confusion. In these circumstances, the drafting of sub-clause (4) is defective. I think that if the whole clause is paraphrased, then sub-clause (4) will run like this: I suggest a way of re-drafting of sub-clause (4). I cannot amend it in this way but I would like to show that draft would have been better and would have avoided many objections and on a comparison with that draft the present draft of sub-clause (4) will be rejected. I have redrafted sub-clause (4) simply for the purpose of comparison and to give point to my argument. The draft should read like this.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, that draft is not before the House and can he refer to that draft?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think, Khan Bahadur, you cannot do so. You can only speak on the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The wording of the present sub-clause is defective, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But you have managed to speak so long even on that defective draft, please do not try to redraft.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: My object is not to have the draft before me accepted by the House; that I cannot do and I know that; I do not wish to do any such thing. My only object is to show to the House a better sample.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: We do not want that.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: We know that you do not like many good things.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Please do not talk of your draft any more, Khan Bahadur. It is not consistent with the amendment we are discussing. The amendment now being discussed is the deletion of sub-clause (4). So what is the good of your producing a re-draft when you are going to delete it altogether?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: For the simple reason that on the ground of drafting also the sub-clause should be rejected and I can give the House a better draft for comparison.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur, you are not re-drafting but you are doing away with the sub-clause altogether.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Well, Sir, I can show the House what an ugly boy is like, if I produce a handsome boy—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid that is not the question before the House. You need not pursue the point further.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: All right, Sir. My learned friend Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury has said that he will not have a good draft, he does not like it. Sir, I know that good things are not liked by many people. Quinine is good for people suffering from malarial fever, but it is not liked by many. My learned friend has repeatedly interrupted me. I think he has said that the collective wisdom of the House has rejected my proposals. I do not think, Sir, that it is the collective wisdom of the House that has rejected my amendments; rather it is the wisdom of the majority of the House that has done so. Of course, with regard to my European friends they too have joined the majority. In fact, the Europeans have joined the majority but the question is whether they are right. Is it the collective wisdom or the collective unwisdom of the House that is being displayed here? I would like to point out to them by an analysis as to what the draft contains. I think the matter would be brought to a short finish if I read the re-draft as a whole.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think that is absolutely irrelevant, and I have said so more than once. I again suggest that you need not pursue the point. Please resume your seat.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Your direction will be absolutely binding on me. But I am arguing as long as I think there is any room for argument; but as soon as you give your final ruling or direction, then it will be absolutely binding on me and you may be sure, Sir, that no one is more willing to obey your ruling than my humble self.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But you should not pursue the point about re-drafting please.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMED: Sir, may I reproduce it from memory? I know it so well that I can almost reproduce it—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I am constrained to say Khan Bahadur that it is pure waste of time. The time of the House is too valuable to be wasted like this.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I am sorry, Sir. Then I must say that the drafting of the sub-clause is very bad. I may, however, ask the honourable members to apply for copies of the draft which I have prepared—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur, I must ask you to resume your seat. I cannot allow you to go on in this way. Either you speak on the amendment or resume your seat. These are all irrelevant arguments that you are trying to advance.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, it is extremely regrettable that you think so. Of course, your ruling is binding on me and I bow to it—

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, he is challenging your ruling.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I am not challenging the ruling of the Chair. I have some objection to the clause and I am addressing the House giving various reasons and—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur, a man of your education and your station of life should have more respect for the decision of the Chair.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, in that case I am absolutely helpless. I may simply say that the sub-clause is badly drafted and on this ground it should be rejected. On the ground of repugnancy as well as on the ground of inconsistency, I support the deletion of sub-clause (4) of clause 25. Then, Sir, I would ask my European friends if they agree to the systematic defilement of their language. English is the greatest language in the world. The Europeans who are opposing these amendments know that the amendments are right. In the circumstances, I would ask them to consider whether they would be silent witnesses and be real abettors to the defilement of their own mother-tongue. I have always a feeling that the English language is the greatest language and am always for its propagation. As a matter of fact, it has been rapidly spreading. It is much more widely used than it was 20 years ago. English is the official language of India; English is spoken all over the continent. But the rate at which the English language is being spoilt, the Englishmen will have some day to go away from India. Boycott, non-co-operation and civil disobedience could not do anything to them but the way in which defilement of their mother-language is going on will compel them to give up this country in disgust. I think they should help us in our attempt to improve the English language and make it the lingua franca of India. We have great interest in maintaining the dignity and purity of the English language. But I think Europeans have a strong commonsense—they have a powerful conscience—and I ask them to apply them to the second reading of this Bill. With these words, I support the amendment.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, except the point raised by Mr. Humayun Kabir I do not want to enter into the learned discourse that was given in this House by Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee and by the last speaker in the midst of so many "circumstances". In his anxiety to support the amendment, the last speaker has overlooked certain things altogether. Something is meant for the Income-tax Officers appointed under this Act to do besides what has been done by the Officers under the Indian Income-tax Act. If you will kindly refer to that sub-clause which speaks of cases of "gardens" falling in more than one province, you will find that this task is left to the Officer appointed under this Act and in that case he will have to assess not only the portion of income that will fall in this province but he will also have to assess the total agricultural income. Section 8 lays down the procedure by which the income is to be settled. It says ".....in certain assessment the assessment made by the officer under the Indian Income-tax Act shall be conclusive....." but somebody will have to assess. So, some function is left even after the assessment is made by the officer under the Indian Income-tax Act. In the circumstances, he will be entitled not only to exercise the general power of calling the assessee to produce evidence regarding his agricultural income derived from the tea gardens but also other income and the assessee will also be called upon to produce evidence for his exemption. Therefore, the officer has been given the power to take evidence of apportionment of exemption between the provinces and for this purpose the officer will have to take the permission of the Commissioner. Therefore, Mr. Kabir's argument that there has been a decision on a similar motion as is now proposed by clause 25(4) and so there cannot be another decision is incorrect. There is no provision by which the Chair can intervene in a matter like this even if contradictory decisions—

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: On a point of order, Sir. What has just fallen from the honourable member is not correct, because there is a definite rule, rule 43(4) of our Council Procedure Rules, which says: "An amendment on a question must not be inconsistent with the previous decision on the same question given at the same stage of any Bill or motion". Therefore, what has been just now said that you, Sir, have no power to rule out an inconsistency or contradictory decision is not correct.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: I stand corrected. The other day it was pointed out that provisions made in respect of a motion are different from the provision made for Bills. Therefore, I overlooked it.

My point is that clause 8 is not negative and, therefore, it is not repugnant and so far all the arguments advanced on this basis are absolutely baseless.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Sir, I rise to support the amendment. I should like to do it on a different ground altogether. I do not at all agree with the contention that this sub-clause (4) is unnecessary and repugnant to sub-clause (2) of clause 8. As a lawyer, I can only say that sub-clause (2) of clause 8 lays down a substantive law as to the principle of taxation on agricultural income and also lays down the procedure as to how the income is to be assessed. One is substantive and the other is procedural. But at the same time I support the amendment. This amendment would tend to avoid distinction between tax-payers and tax-payers. This sub-clause was added apparently to give protection to the tea planters. The same procedure should be adopted everywhere and no distinction should be made between tax-payers and tax-payers. Apparently, this sub-clause (4) is only intended to placate the tea planters.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I submit that sub-clause (4) of clause 25 is neither ultra vires nor repugnant. Sub-clause (3) of clause 8 provides that a certified copy shall be conclusive evidence of the contents of the order, i.e., it shall be necessary to prove them under the Indian Evidence Act. But it does not take away the power of the Agricultural Income-tax Officer to make enquiries. On that point the Hon'ble Leader of the Opposition is in agreement with me. I submit that the object of this sub-clause is neither to protect any particular class of assessee nor to enact some inconsistency with other provisions of the Bill. The object of this sub-clause is simply this: that the order of the Income-tax Officer of the Government of India will be conclusive so far as the order of the officer is concerned. That order may be revised by higher authorities. Our Agricultural Income-tax Officer may supply information to the Indian Income-tax authorities if there is very good ground for their suspicion that the returns submitted by the assessee in question were faulty. It is the nature of administration of Income-tax law to be to some extent inquisitorial but it is necessary that there should not be too much inquisitiveness on the part of our Agricultural Income-tax Officers, because unless there is very good ground for suspicion there should not be unnecessary inquisitiveness. After all, we are accepting assessment made by the Indian Income-tax authorities. In most cases we have to presume that those orders are just, but there may be cases and we reserve for ourselves a power of enquiry into the returns submitted by a particular class of assessee to the Indian Income-tax authorities. If we did not take this power, it would have been impossible for our officers to enquire even when there were grounds of suspicion. So that far from protecting a particular class of assessee we are taking power to ourselves to see that obviously false returns are not made on the basis of which our portion of the income would be assessed, and there is both reason and justification for sub-clause (4) of clause 25. I hope the House will be completely satisfied with what I have said.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that sub-clause (4) of clause 25 of the Bill be deleted.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided the "Ayes" being—12, and the "Noes"—23, the amendment is negatived.

Mr. PRESIDENT: As regards the next amendment of the Khan Bahadur, namely, amendment No. 262A, I do not think it can be moved, because we find it stated in Halsbury's Laws of England, page 164, that the House of Parliament have nothing to do with the marginal notes. The same thing was also stated by Lord Hanworth in another case. In that view of the matter, I rule that this amendment cannot be moved at all.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The word "assessment" is the marginal note on the left side—this is in reference to the statute which is mentioned in the text. This is just to facilitate the search—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But it is in the same position—marginal note on the left side and reference to statute on the right margin.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Previously, such amendments were allowed—

Mr. PRESIDENT: If some mistake was made in the past, there is no reason why we should continue it. I think it is better not to move this amendment.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I refer to clause 24 as it stands. There we have in the right margin at the end "XI of 1922", and Khan Bahadur's proposal is that the same thing should be done in this case also.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The marginal references are in the same position in the left. What is the difference? Do you move your amendment, Mr. Mukherjee?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Yes, Sir.

I beg to move that in clause 25 of the Bill, after sub-clause (5) the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

"(6) In the case of the Ruler of an Indian State the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall, in case of the failure of the recognised agent of the Ruler of an Indian State to submit the return required by any notice given under sub-section (2) of section 24, or when the recognised agent has not made a return or a revised return under sub-section (3) of the same section or the recognised agent fails to comply with all the terms of the notice issued under sub-section (4) of the same section or the recognised agent having made a return fails to comply with all the terms of a notice issued under sub-section (2) of this section, ascertain the amount at which the Ruler of the Indian State shall be assessed for the purpose of Agricultural Income-tax Act and determine the sum payable by the Ruler of an Indian State on the basis of such assessment."

Sir, the purpose of the amendment would be clear when I refer to the clause itself. You will find in sub-clauses (2) and (3) that if the Agricultural Income-tax Officer is not satisfied without requiring the presence of a person to show that the return or the production of the evidence is correct and complete, he shall serve on such person—by person I mean here also the Ruler of an Indian State according to the definition—a notice requiring him on a date to be therein specified, either to attend at the Agricultural Income-tax Officer's office or to produce, to cause to be there produced, any evidence on which such person may rely in support of the return. There cannot be any doubt with regard to the position that we cannot require the Ruler of an Indian State to attend in person. That would be altogether ultra vires of the Legislature and of the officer concerned. In this connection, I would remind the Hon'ble the Finance Minister that I did not agree at any stage that a Ruler of an Indian State is liable to be taxed. As a matter of fact, I expressed doubt in the beginning and I expressed doubt throughout but I have proceeded on the basis that the Ruler is liable to assessment, leaving the matter to be decided in a court of law. As a matter of fact, so far as the Assam Agricultural Income-tax Act is concerned, I think litigations have already cropped up and this Act will also give rise to litigations between the Province of Bengal and Rulers of Indian States and it will be a gold mine to the profession to which I belong. Therefore, I may disabuse the Hon'ble the Finance Minister if he has any misapprehension that I have agreed with him that a Ruler of an Indian State is liable to be taxed. The question is: if you are entitled to tax the Rulers, then under clause 25(2) an Agricultural Officer may cause him to appear in person. That is a thing which you cannot attempt. Therefore, I want to make it legal by providing that if the Agricultural Officer is not satisfied he need not ask the Ruler of an Indian State to appear in person but he may assess "for the purpose of Agricultural Income-tax Act and determine the sum payable by the Ruler of an Indian State on the basis of such assessment". Now you have not provided any machinery under which you can compel a Ruler of an Indian State to appear before you and if they do not appear, you cannot assess them in terms of this Bill. Therefore, I say this new clause should be incorporated in order that there might be a legal provision for the purpose of assessing the Rulers of Indian States. With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in clause 25 of the Bill, after sub-clause (5) the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

“(6) In the case of the Ruler of an Indian State the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall, in case of the failure of the recognised agent of the Ruler of an Indian State to submit the return required by any notice given under a return or a revised return under sub-section (3) of the same section or the recognised agent fails to comply with all the terms of the notice issued under sub-section (4) of the same section or the recognised agent having made a return fails to comply with all the terms of a notice issued under sub-section (2) of this section, ascertain the amount at which the Ruler of the Indian State shall be assessed for the purpose of Agricultural Income-tax Act and determine the sum payable by the Ruler of an Indian State on the basis of such assessment.”

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, the House has already negatived an amendment moved by the honourable Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee (Amendment No. 44A) on the appointment of the recognised agent of the Ruler of an Indian State, and in view of that fact I do not think the House will now consider the amendment which has now been moved. In any case, I oppose the amendment on the same ground which was advanced by me in the case of the previous amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that in clause 25 of the Bill, after sub-clause (5) the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

“(6) In the case of the Ruler of an Indian State the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall, in case of the failure of the recognised agent of the Ruler of an Indian State to submit the return required by any notice given under sub-section (2) of section 24, or when the recognised agent has not made a return or a revised return under sub-section (3) of the same section or the recognised agent fails to comply with all the terms of the notice issued under sub-section (4) of the same section or the recognised agent having made a return fails to comply with all the terms of a notice issued under sub-section (2) of this section, ascertain the amount at which the Ruler of the Indian State shall be assessed for the purpose of Agricultural Income-tax Act and determine the sum payable by the Ruler of an Indian State on the basis of such assessment.”

(The amendment was negatived.)

Clause 25.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: May I speak a few words on this clause, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: But I am already on my legs, putting the clause to vote. You should have got up before I got up to put it.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I did so, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You did so when I was going to put it to vote.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I submit that the question of consideration of a clause comes in only when you have put it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Sub-clause (4) was moved in the very beginning and then amendments were moved. And when I was on my legs and was going to put the motion to vote then you stood up. I am sorry you cannot speak now; you are too late. So I must put the clause now.

The question before the House is that clause 25 stand part of the Bill. (The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 26.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 26 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: May I suggest that we adjourn now?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Why?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Because, I think we have done enough business today.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: No, Sir, we would like to proceed.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 26 of the Bill, for the figure "1945" the figure "1947" be substituted.

I would like to speak on this amendment by referring to the clause itself. Sub-clause (2) of clause 26 runs thus—"Where the total sum computed under both heads of agricultural income as that on which agricultural income-tax is payable by an assessee in any year, being a previous year not earlier than the previous year for the assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1945, is a negative quantity the assessee shall be deemed to have sustained a loss to that extent in that year, and such loss shall be carried forward to the following year and set off against the sum on which agricultural income-tax is computed to be payable in such year, and if such loss cannot be wholly set off in such year, the amount of such loss not so set off shall be carried forward in the same manner to the next following year and so on, but no amount of such loss shall be carried forward for more than six successive years."

Now, Sir, I would submit that the total sum computed under both heads of agricultural income is that on which agricultural income-tax is payable by an assessee in any year. I propose that for the year 1945, the figure 1947 should be incorporated, as we should leave two years during which the agricultural income should not be assessed. Therefore, the first year that I propose for the collection of this tax is 31st March, 1947.

Now, the words are "being a previous year not earlier than the previous year for the assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1945". The "previous year" would be the year ending 31st day of March, 1944. I submit that would mean that the Act comes into operation on the 1st day of April, 1944. What I propose in my amendment is that if we make it 1947, then we will have two years after the passing of the Act in which the loss and other things have got to be calculated. That is the reason why I propose the figure 1945 should be changed to 1947. Of course, strictly speaking, I may point out that as the amendment of the opposition was negatived to make it postpone the operation of the Act, this ought to have been 1946; but that does not matter. 1945 as it stands seems to be either a mistake or an oversight, because previous year will be 31st March, 1944. Therefore, I submit that my amendment should be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (2) of clause 26 of the Bill, for the figure "1945" the figure "1947" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, there is no reason why the figure 1945 should be changed. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (2) of clause 26 of the Bill, for the figure "1945" the figure "1947" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House stands adjourned till 2-15 p.m. on Monday next.

Adjournment.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 72.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Monday, the 7th August 1944, at 2-15 p.m. being the seventy-second day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

Obituary Reference.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, it is my melancholy duty to refer to the death of one of the sitting members of our House, Nawabzada Altaf Ali. Sir, he was only 57 years of age and after a short illness of only five days he passed away in his Calcutta residence. He was an old Parliamentarian and was a member of the pre-Reform days Council. He was the Chairman of the Bogra District Board and also the Chairman of the Municipality of Bogra. He was a keen sportsman and a well-known social figure in the city of Calcutta. Sir, this House mourns his loss which came so suddenly; nobody expected that he would be going away so soon. I should now like to move the resolution which runs as follows:—

"This Council records its sense of sorrow at the demise of Nawabzada Altaf Ali, a sitting member of the Council, who was a scion of an old aristocratic zemindar family, a public man of long standing, a prominent social figure, a keen sportsman and, above all, a perfect gentleman."

I hope this resolution will be accepted by the whole House

MR. PRESIDENT: Resolution moved: That this Council records its sense of sorrow at the demise of Nawabzada Altaf Ali, a sitting member of the Council, who was a scion of an old aristocratic zemindar family, a public man of long standing, a prominent social figure, a keen sportsman and, above all, a perfect gentleman.

MR. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Sir, on behalf of my Party, I associate myself with the resolution of condolence moved by the Leader of the House. Nawabzada Altaf Ali was indeed a person who was well-known for his non-communal and liberal outlook in regard to political issues. He was connected with almost all the beneficent public activities in this province and was loved and admired by all sections of the people for his charming manners and unflinching courtesy. With these words, I support the resolution which has been placed before the House.

MR. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Mr. President, Sir, on behalf of myself and the party to which I have the honour to belong, I associate myself with the resolution of condolence which has been moved by the Leader of the House on the death of Nawabzada Altaf Ali, of Bogra. Sir, the late Nawabzada has been taken away by a short illness of five days. Sir, it is our unfortunate lot that in almost all sessions of the House we have to mourn the loss of one or other members of this House. It reminds us that we really are living in the midst of death,—a fact which we so often forget. Sir, the Nawabzada was a gentleman to the tip of his fingers. He was the pink of courtesy and a man of very liberal views. Many of his endowments benefited evenly both the Hindus and Muslims. He was above all communal feelings. He was a scion of a premier zemindar family of Bengal, but his sympathies were always with the poor. Indeed, he was never ashamed to call himself a member of the Krishak-Proja Party in Bengal. If sorrow shared is sorrow relieved, I can assure his son, Khan Bahadur Muhammad Ali, Parliamentary Secretary to the Chief Minister, that he and his brothers, his mother and his sisters, in fact, all the rest of his family have our fullest sympathy in their great bereavement. May his soul rest in peace!

Mr. SACHINDRA NARAYAN SANYAL: Sir, with profound sorrow and grief I rise to associate myself with the condolence resolution which has been moved regarding the sudden death of Mr. Altaf Ali. I have seldom taken part in a matter like this before. But in spite of my ill-health I have come today to pay my tributes to the memory of the deceased. Mr. Altaf Ali needs no introduction. We knew each other for more than 20 years, and our cordial relationship has continued since then. This relationship grew more intimate since 1926 as both of us belonged to the same party in the Bengal Legislative Council.

Sir, regarding his political career, you personally know better than we do. He was born in the noble Nawab family of Bográ. His father was the late Nawab Nawab Ali Chowdhury Bahadur of Dhanbari, Mymensingh. Although he was born with a silver spoon in his mouth, he always rendered yeoman's service to the less fortunate section of the public. Mr. Altaf Ali was a keen sportsman. He joined politics quite early in his life. In politics he acted under the guidance of the late Mr. C. R. Das. Mr. Altaf Ali was unostentatious and unassuming, and a man of honest and firm convictions, who would do his utmost to bring about communal harmony in the province and so he was admired by all sections of the Public. His charities were wide, and he made no distinction between the Mussalmans and the Hindus; but these were mostly so private that few people knew of them. I need not say much about his political career. I hope his eldest son, Khan Bahadur Muhammad Ali, will follow in the footsteps of his late lamented father. I pray to the Almighty to give his soul rest and peace.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Mr. President, Sir, it with a deep feeling of sorrow that I rise to associate myself with the resolution. It has been my privilege to know the late lamented Mr. Altaf Ali for about half a dozen years but I have known about him for a very long time. He was a staunch nationalist and a member of the Swarajya party in the old Bengal Legislative Council. Although a member of one of the richest and most aristocratic zemindar families, his sympathies were always with the down-trodden peasantry of this province. When an opportunity came for election to the Upper House, he therefore chose the ticket of the Krishak Praja Party in preference to that of any other, even though it was perhaps easier for him to secure nomination from some other party. Be it said to his credit that throughout his political life he was steadfast and staunch to the party whose ticket he accepted. In this House he always carried out the mandate and the policy of the party faithfully, even at the cost of personal interest or the interest of the class which he represented. A man of wide sympathies, liberal culture and polished conduct, his equanimity of temper made him popular with all the sections of this House.

I associate myself with the resolution moved by the Leader of the House. I have no doubt that as is the custom in this House, further proceedings of this House will be suspended today in honour of his memory.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, on behalf of my party and on behalf of myself, I fully associate myself with the resolution moved by the Leader of the House. What has fallen from my friends here is fully shared by me. I can say that the late Nawabzada was a perfect gentleman in the truest sense of the term. What is more, he was truly a People's man. Although born of an aristocratic zemindar's family, he fully sympathised with and actually shared the weal and woe of the poorer sections of the people. By his death we have lost a sincere friend, a staunch party man, and a zealous fighter for the freedom of his country. With these words, I associate myself with the resolution that has been moved by the Hon'ble Leader of the House.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, I whole-heartedly associate myself with what has fallen from the previous speakers. I have known Nawabzada Altaf Ali for many years. Although born with a silver spoon in his mouth the Nawabzada was unassuming in his manners. He was the very pink of courtesy. His amiable disposition, affable manners and, above all, his courteous dealings with his friends and his subordinates made him an ideal nobleman of the day. He was the scion of an illustrious family which is well-known in Bengal for its generosity and public spirit. The Nawabzada attended the Council meeting only a few days ago and nobody could then think that his end was so near. He was not only popular with his tenants but with all classes of people, as will be evident from the huge crowd that assembled when the train carrying his dead body steamed into the Bogra station. Today we are mourning his loss not because he was one of our colleagues in the Council but because we feel that the void created by his death will be difficult to fill. Nawabzada Altaf Ali was a gentleman of liberal views and strove his utmost for communal harmony. He always shunned the lime-light. To do honour to such a man is to do honour to ourselves.

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: Sir, I wish to associate this party (European Party) with the terms of the resolution moved by the Leader of the House and to extend our sympathy to the relatives of the late Nawabzada Altaf Ali.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Sir, it is with a heavy heart that I associate myself with the sentiments expressed in the resolution moved by the Leader of the House. The death of Nawabzada Altaf Ali is a personal loss to me. In his younger days when Nawabzada Altaf Ali was a Deputy Magistrate of Noakhali, the members of our family came in contact with him. After resigning from this work he joined politics and became Chairman of the District Board and Municipality of Bogra and then a member of this House. His patriotic instinct induced him to join the Swarajya Party organised by the late Mr. C. R. Das. Although a member of the landholding class, his sympathy for the poor took him to the Krishak-Praja Party. In my opinion the most important trait of his character was his sportsmanship. We did not see eye to eye, but our difference never created any bitterness. Undoubtedly, Mr. Altaf Ali occupied a unique position in Bengal. With these words, I associate myself whole-heartedly with the resolution.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Before putting to vote the resolution which has been so eloquently moved by the Leader of the House, the Chair would like to associate itself with the expression of sympathy and grief by members representing the different groups of this House. Nawabzada Altaf Ali was the son of the late Nawab Nawab Ali Chowdhury Bahadur and a daughter's son and heir of the late Nawab Abdus Sobhan Choudhuri of Bogra. I had the privilege of coming in contact with him nearly 25 years ago as a member of the old Bengal Legislative Council. The late Nawabzada was associated with the Bengal Legislature from 1916 with a small break, when he was elected a member of the Council of State. I had also an opportunity of watching his civic duties, because he was for a long time the Chairman of the District Board of Bogra and also the Chairman of the Municipality of Bogra. Soon after the introduction of the system of elected non-official Chairmen for District Boards by the Government of Lord Ronaldshay, the late Nawabzada Altaf Ali was elected Chairman of the Bogra District Board and he continued in this office for a number of years. Consistently with his position as the premier landlord of the district, he kept himself above party politics and he used to be respected alike by the Hindus and Muslims of the district. His loss is a great blow to the Muslim community in particular and to Bengal in general. This House of which he was a valued and beloved member deeply mourns his loss.

I will now place the resolution which has been moved by the Hon'ble the Leader of the House:

"This Council records its sense of sorrow at the demise of Nawabzada Altaf Ali, a sitting member of the Council, who was a scion of an old aristocratic zemindar family, a public man of long standing, a prominent social figure, a keen sportsman and above all a perfect gentleman."

I would request the honourable members to rise in their places as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased.

(Honourable members rose in their seats.)

I believe it is the general desire of the House that a message of condolence should be sent to the members of the bereaved family.

(Many honourable members: Yes, Sir.)

The House stands adjourned till 2-15 p.m. tomorrow as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 2-15 p.m. on Tuesday, the 8th August, 1944

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 73.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Tuesday, the 8th August, 1944, at 2-15 p.m. being the seventy-third day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINOH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, we have not got copies of the short-notice questions.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Short-notice questions are not circulated.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Then the questions as well as the answers may be read.

250A. Mr. SRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTY: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Agriculture Department be pleased to state the causes of the unprecedented rise in prices of all kinds of vegetables and herbs to the extent of eight to ten times the usual price?

(b) Does he contemplate taking steps to control prices thereof? If so, in what manner and by what time?

(c) Does he contemplate taking similar steps regarding the prices of meat and fish, which have gone up about four times the usual price? If so, in what manner and by what time?

MINISTER in charge of the AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Saiyed Muazzamuddin Hosain): (a) Agricultural Department does not keep any information about herbs for which necessary question may be put to the Minister in charge of Medical and Public Health Department.

As regards vegetables, it is true that the prices have risen about 3 to 4 times of normal prices.

The following are the causes of rise in prices:—

- (i) Demand being more than supply owing to abnormal increase in the population of Calcutta city, the prices have risen to some extent;
- (ii) Transport difficulties;
- (iii) Sympathetic rise in prices due to rise in the prices of food crops;
- (iv) Stoppage of supply from adjoining provinces owing to embargo placed on exports;
- (v) Profiteering to some extent by the middlemen.

(b) (i) As regards English vegetables, the prices have been amicably controlled without resorting to Defence of India Rules and the system is working fairly satisfactorily. About 150 maunds of Darjeeling vegetables are being sold in Calcutta markets at the prices fixed by the Director of Agricultural Marketing in consideration of the prices prevailing at Darjeeling.

(ii) As regards country vegetables, the problem is beset with difficulties. The vegetables come from so many directions and such a large number of people are engaged in the trade, that without employing a huge staff it is not possible to enforce the controlled prices or to stop black marketing. It also seems that the controlled prices that may be fixed will not be substantially less than the prevailing prices. The growers of vegetables who are generally poorer agriculturists had to purchase paddy for their own consumption and other consumer's articles at about 3 times the normal prices and so they can reasonably demand 3 times the normal prices for their vegetables. It does not appear that the growers are charging more than parity price for their vegetables. It will be unwise therefore to do anything which is likely to affect the growers, as it will discourage them from growing more and more vegetables. It is only the middlemen who are in some cases making some undue profit and all that the Government can do is to reduce their margin of profit. But this cannot be done easily, as it is apprehended that if the market prices are reduced, the middlemen instead of reducing their margin of profit, will try to reduce the price they pay to the grower.

It is further apprehended that as soon as prices of vegetables are controlled, they may disappear from the open markets and may be sold in black markets or may be sold by street hawkers at higher prices. A huge staff hardly commensurate with the ultimate benefit to the consumers will have to be entertained if any control is to be made effective. Under the circumstances it is proposed that the Government instead of trying to control prices should purchase an appreciable quantity of vegetables from the growers, bring them to Calcutta by lorries and sell them at cost price through Government grain shops as in Bombay. There are however peculiar difficulties to be faced even in this system in Bengal but the Government is not in a position to disclose them, as they may open the eyes of mischief makers. Government is however having the proposal seriously examined and a decision is likely to be taken soon.

For the information of the House, I would quote the figures showing (1) prices charged by growers, (2) cost of landing in Calcutta, (3) profit of wholeseller (middleman), (4) expenses of retailers, (5) profit of retailers, (6) price paid by consumers, collected in respect of some of the principal items of vegetables after detailed enquiry:—

	Akkolpur Patal.	Berhampur Patal.	Krishnagar Pumpkin.	Bongaon Brinjal.
	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.	Rs. a. p.
1. Price charged by grower ..	6 0 0	7 12 0	1 8 0	8 0 0
2. Cost of landing in Calcutta ..	4 7 6	2 12 0	1 8 0	1 10 0
3. Profit of wholeseller (Middleman) ..	2 8 6	1 8 0	1 0 0	1 6 0
4. Expenses of Retailer ..	0 8 0	0 8 0	0 8 0	0 8 0
5. Profit of retailer ..	4 0 0	2 8 0	2 6 0	3 8 0
6. Price paid by consumer ..	17 8 0	15 0 0	6 14 0	15 0 0

MR. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Sahib, I am sorry to interrupt you. The Chair has got no copy of the reply that you are reading. I am sure there will be difficulty on the part of the honourable members to put supplementary questions bearing on so many figures that you have been quoting. Therefore, I suggest that copies of your reply to this question be made and circulated to the members tomorrow for the facility of putting supplementary questions and for the Chair to decide which supplementary questions should be allowed and which should not be allowed. Otherwise, it would be impossible to follow those replies. So I would request you to read your reply leaving out those figures.

MR. HUMAYUN KABIR: But some supplementary questions may be asked today also, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think that would be rather repeating the same thing twice over.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur Sahib, you may go on reading out your reply.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SA'YED MU'AZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: It will appear from the above statement that the wholesalers' profit ranges from 13 annas 9 pice to Rs. 2-8-6 per maund and that of retailer from Rs. 2 to Rs. 4 per maund. The retailer's profit apparently seems to be unreasonably high but allowance being made for rottage and loss on transit the profit will probably dwindle down to half.

There is another statement showing the comparative prices of April and July which I need not read. It will be seen from the above that there has been an abnormal rise in the price of potatoes and this is due to the fact that local potatoes have been nearly exhausted and Bihar, Assam and Madras having put an embargo on the export of potato the price is soaring sharply. But Government is in correspondence with the adjoining provinces for allowing its export to Bengal to a limited extent. Madras has already agreed to permit 500 tons of potato to be exported to Bengal in the month of August but Bihar and Assam have refused to allow the export of food potato to Bengal. The statement shows that the prices of brinjal, bittergourd have increased by 50 per cent. The prices of patal, pumpkin and onions have however appreciably decreased. It is hoped that with the coming in of the monsoon there might be a steady decrease in the prices of all kinds of seasonal vegetables. The control of price of meat and fish is also not an easy task. Various complications are likely to arise and the situation is likely to grow worse if control was attempted without assuring supply. As regards fish, however, it will be possible to bring down the price to some extent by controlling the supply of ice, which plays such a large part in the fish trade of Calcutta. Government have decided to appoint an Ice Controller and is trying to secure the services of a gentleman with experience and personality. It is hoped that the supply of fish to Calcutta will increase for the future, and that there will be automatic reduction in its price.

As regards the control of the price of meat, the matter has not yet been taken up. Government however is aware that the rise in the price of meat has been largely due to the embargo put upon the export of goats, cows and buffaloes by Bihar wherefrom a large number of animals used to come for the Calcutta slaughter-houses. Government is watching the situation carefully and will take the necessary steps.

State prisoner Babu Narendra Nath Chatterjee.

250. Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state whether Babu Narendra Nath Chatterjee is being detained as a State prisoner under Regulation III of 1818 in the Faridpur District Jail?

(b) If so, since when is he being so detained?

(c) Has any personal allowance for himself and a family allowance for the maintenance of his family yet been granted? If so, from when and at what rate? If not, why not?

(d) Are any books, newspapers and magazines supplied to him in the jail? If not, why not?

(e) Has he been informed of the reasons of his detention?

Minister in charge of the HOME DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) Yes.

(b) Since the 24th July, 1943.

(c) Yes, he has been granted a personal allowance of Rs. 30 per month since the 24th July, 1943, and a family allowance of Rs. 20 per month since the 23rd July, 1944.

(d) Two daily newspapers are supplied at Government cost and the prisoner can read books obtained from the Jail Library. The prisoner can also obtain other newspapers and books from outside subject to the usual restrictions.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state how many members a family consists of?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I want notice.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state why the family allowance of Rs. 20 per month was not granted from the 24th July, 1943, but from the 23rd July, 1944?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As far as the personal allowance is concerned, that was granted because he was a State prisoner—all State prisoners are given personal allowance, and that was sanctioned at that time. As regards family allowance, orders were passed later on after verification of facts.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Why was not retrospective effect given from 24th July, 1943, to the family, because the family had to be maintained?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I will make enquires. I ask for notice.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Arising out of (e), why was not this Regulation III prisoner informed of the reasons of his detention?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The procedure is in accordance with Ordinance C regarding the detention of prisoners and that has been followed in this case.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Did not that Ordinance require that every prisoner detained would be given the reasons for his detention and that he would be given an opportunity to reply?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The provision of the Ordinance has been complied with.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if the Ordinance would apply to Regulation III prisoners?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Strictly speaking, it does not apply.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether the Hon'ble Minister is prepared to extend that principle and give him the reasons of his detention in this particular case?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if, because the Ordinance does not apply, Regulation III of 1818 has been followed in this case of this prisoner?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: That is true.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I have got a short-notice question. I am fortunate to find the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Supply Department today—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Suhrawardy, are you going to answer it?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Yes, Sir.

256. "(a) If any meeting of the 'Bhog Committee' has been held since the announcement of the personnel of the said Committee;

(b) If so, when; if not, why not;

(c) Whether any Press Note has been issued by the Government informing the public to whom and when the sebhats, managers and trustees of the endowed debutters should apply for ration cards and other relief, if any; if so, when, if not, why not; and

(d) if the Government contemplate to take serious steps in the matter at an early date; if not, why not?"

The answer is as follows:—

"(a) and (b) The first meeting of the committee has been called on the 11th instant.

(c) No; details of requirements, etc., will have to be worked out first in consultation with the committee before arrangements for supplies can be made.

(d) Yes.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Has the Hon'ble Minister received representation from—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, that portion of your question was disallowed.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: But I have not been informed of it, Sir.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I sent certain short-notice questions with regard to the Howrah Municipality and I would like to know whether they have been admitted and would be replied to.

Mr. PRESIDENT: So far as the Council Department is concerned, the question has been admitted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Then I would like to know when it is going to be answered.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Whether the question would be accepted at short-notice or not depends on the Hon'ble Minister.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I had a short-notice question regarding the reports of hunger-strike by political prisoners in the Alipore Central Jail. I would like to know whether my short-notice question has been admitted by you, Sir, and if it has been admitted by you whether the Hon'ble Minister is prepared to answer the question at short-notice.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The short-notice question has been admitted so far as the Chair is concerned; as to whether that question will be answered by the Hon'ble Minister at short-notice or not, it is for him to reply.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, may I enquire through you of the Hon'ble Minister whether he is prepared to answer it?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I have not seen the question yet. I propose to do it tomorrow.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, there is another short-notice question—

Mr. PRESIDENT: As regards these short-notice questions, an unusual procedure is going to be followed and I am inclined to discourage it.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I am only asking whether my short-notice question regarding the Famine Enquiry Commission has been admitted or not.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You may find that out from the Secretary or the Council Department. The time of the House is valuable and we should avoid mentioning all these things in the House, as far as possible.

Adjournment Motions.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, I gave notice of three adjournment motions.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is rather unusual. One does not give notice of three adjournment motions at a time. However, which one you refer to now?

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Regarding the cloth situation.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is inadmissible, because the Government of Bengal has nothing to do in this matter. What is your next?

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, may I be permitted to have my say in the matter?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have given my ruling. You cannot discuss the matter.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: The next one is with regard to the increase of the individual ration of sugar—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not consider that to be of urgent public importance, because Government has not reduced the supply of sugar but has increased it.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, may I make my submission and show how it is of urgent public importance?

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is not urgent and I am afraid I cannot allow you to discuss it. Your next one?

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: The next one is a general question covering the food situation particularly with reference to rice.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Regarding your adjournment motion on the food-stuffs, I find from today's paper that the price of rice in Chittagong is going down. A similar motion was brought by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das in this session and it was negatived by this House. So, it cannot be moved.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, as regards the rice position in Midnapore, I had been to Midnapore on Saturday last and I found no rice selling there.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is the authority for your statement?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I personally went to Midnapore and I myself went to the market but I could not find rice from the shopkeepers. The situation there is very serious and the people were apprehending the repetition of the famine of last year. As a matter of fact, I was told that rice was not available except in the black-market and that too in a very small quantity at annas 8 or annas 10 per seer. I engaged a hackney-carriage coachman who was a Mussalman and he said that he could not get rice for the last few days except for paying annas 10 per seer. The situation is becoming serious and I submit that this matter ought to be discussed.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, a similar motion regarding the rice position in Midnapore was discussed at an earlier date.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Here the motion is something different. The honourable member refers to the position in Midnapore town itself.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, I have no knowledge of the facts. If the facts were brought to my notice, I would have looked into them. But I cannot understand why the position should be so at Midnapore when it is a surplus district and when to my knowledge there are sufficient food-grains in Midnapore. And moreover, Sir, annas 8 a seer is not a black-market rate either. (Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Annas 8 per seer is not a black-market rate!).

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I suggest one thing? It is an urgent matter no doubt and the honourable member makes a definite allegation from his personal knowledge. He says that he himself went there and he came to know that no rice was available in the market. Therefore, I would suggest that you enquire into the matter as early as possible and then make a statement.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I shall do that.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point of information, Sir. The Hon'ble Minister states that annas eight per seer is not black-market price—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, that question does not arise now. It has been disposed of. The Hon'ble Minister has agreed to enquire into the matter and make a statement.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: The matter is very urgent, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I quite realise that it is very urgent. The matter has been brought to the notice of the Hon'ble Minister and he is going to make a statement on the subject tomorrow.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I may be allowed to speak on the adjournment motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: First, let the Hon'ble Minister make the statement first and then if it is considered that the urgency continues, then certainly you will be allowed to speak.

Regarding your adjournment motion, Mr. Mazumdar, may I enquire how could you collect the information from practically half of Bengal in such a short time?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I have already submitted a cutting from the Amrita Bazar Patrika which you will find along with the adjournment motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have seen that. They refer to the situation in July.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: It is continuing.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, it is not continuing.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I have got definite information that the state of things is continuing.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think that information can be definite. That is exactly the point. How can you get information so quickly from such a large area? What is the source that collects that information for you? I am afraid, I cannot admit it. It is rather confusing. If it be in July, will that continue in the month of August?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: If a man lies down sick from malaria, can you say that he is all right within the month?

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: I can say that the report is correct.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, I cannot admit your adjournment motion. This particular question regarding supply of quinine was discussed more than once and the Hon'ble Minister, Public Health and Local Self-Government Department, made a definite statement regarding it only three weeks ago.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I have also raised another point, namely, that the quality of quinine is very poor. This point was never raised before in this House. This is certainly a very important matter.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: On a point of information, Sir. Mr. Mazumdar always speaks of a thing as reported. He does not take the responsibility for the facts.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: On a point of order, Sir. In the first place the Government of Bengal cannot be responsible for the quality of the imported quinine, and in the second place, Sir, the honourable member cannot assert that the quality of quinine is very poor. The honourable member had better try to administer it to himself first.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid, Mr. Mazumdar, that this is not a matter of urgent public importance.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Then what will be an urgent matter, I do not know.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Only the other day this particular question was considered; so I disallow it.

Point of Privilege.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: May I rise on a matter of privilege of the House? Once before I referred to this matter. The point about which I wanted a decision from you is: that if a matter is once discussed in this House through an adjournment motion about a particular question and if in the course of another week or in the course of another month a similar situation recurs again or there is a continuation of the same state of things which was discussed in the adjournment motion, will it be in order or will it not be in order to raise the matter again by a fresh motion of adjournment?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Humayun Kabir, you know it very well from your experience of legislative business that there are subjects and subjects, and you cannot apply the same principle or the same rule to all subjects. This is a matter which was discussed only the other day. This question of supply of quinine was incidentally considered by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Department concerned. He made a definite statement on the matter and so the point was thoroughly threshed out. Now, what is the new point or fresh urgency I fail to understand?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: It is true that the matter was fully considered. But the point that has arisen is: if the Hon'ble Minister concerned at that time made a certain statement about the supply of quinine or the incidence of malaria in the Province, the question will have to be decided whether the situation has been remedied or not. If the situation has not been remedied, and we assert that the prevalence of malaria is even more serious today, and as a matter of fact, His Excellency the Governor in his broadcast speech the other day said that—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Humayun Kabir, let me suggest one thing to Government. I hope Government will make a fresh statement on the entire situation—

Mr. HAMIDUL CHOWDHURY: On a point of order, Sir. Mr. Humayun Kabir has said that—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Let me first dispose of the matter. Will Government make a fresh statement on the entire malaria situation including the quality of quinine?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: I have got no notice.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You will have to make a statement not today but after ascertaining what the subject is.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: The general point raised by Mr. Kabir is misleading, and, Sir, by asking Government to make a statement you have to some extent countenanced it. It is particularly to be noted that for the discussion of an adjournment motion a particular procedure is laid down; simply because a particular question is discussed and it continues to remain a matter of public importance,—it does not follow that the matter will continue to be discussed whenever it is brought up. There are remedies for this, but this is certainly not the way; remedies of the problem must be found out in other ways. Therefore, adjournment of the House can only be agreed to if it comes within the rules and rule 99(ii) of our Procedure Rules prohibits the discussion of a subject which has been discussed—it does not matter whether the subject is continuing; therefore the motion cannot be discussed.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid, there is a certain amount of misunderstanding among ourselves in this matter. I entirely agree with what you say, Mr. Huq Chowdhury, as regards the principle that underlies the admissibility of an adjournment motion and that is why I said that the question had been recently discussed and the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the department had given his views as regards the supply of quinine and therefore the adjournment motion was not admissible. But in view of the fact that the situation may have been continuing and may have aggravated in the meantime or that the quinine supplied may not be up to the mark, I think, therefore, that it is in public interest that the House should be kept informed of the position regarding such an important matter; and it is in that view that I have made a special request to the Hon'ble Minister to make a statement on the whole malaria position, including the quality of quinine.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: Yes, Sir. I am prepared to make a statement.

Mr. PRESIDENT: When?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi JALALUDDIN AHMAD: Perhaps on the 13th or 14th of this month, or early next week.

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right, the Hon'ble Minister has agreed to make a statement on the subject early next week. I hope this will satisfy the House.

Let us now go back to the Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, may I have your permission to refer to a matter of very great importance to the country. I mean, the shortage of milk in Calcutta and the industrial areas?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid—not, because if you want to do it you should put in a short-notice question.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Since you are unwilling to allow an adjournment motion to be moved, will a short-notice question be answered?

Mr. PRESIDENT: How can I guarantee it?

Let us now go back to the Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

The question before the House is that clause 26 stand part of the Bill. (The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 27.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 27 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move: that sub-clauses (2) and (3) of clause 27 of the Bill be deleted and the following clause be added as sub-clause (2), namely:—

“(2) Where a person dies before the publication of the notice referred to in sub-section (1) of section 24 or before he is served with a notice under sub-section (2) of section 24 or section 38 as the case may be or without having furnished a return which he has been required to furnish under the provisions of section 24 or having furnished a return, which the Agricultural Income-tax Officer has reason to believe to be incorrect or incomplete, the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall serve a notice on the heirs of the deceased in terms of section 24 for submitting returns in respect of their shares”.

I may read the Bill-clause as it stands for the information of my honourable friends. Sub-clause (2) runs as follows:—

“(2) Where a person dies before the publication of the notice referred to in sub-section (1) of section 24 or before he is served with a notice under sub-section (2) of section 24 or section 38 as the case may be, his executor, administrator, or other legal representative shall, on the serving of the notice under sub-section (2) of section 24 or under section 38, as the case may be, comply therewith, and the Agricultural Income-tax Officer may proceed to assess the total agricultural income of the deceased person as if such executor, administrator or other legal representative were the assessee as if such administrator or other legal representative.”

I would request the honourable members particularly to consider the question that in this sub-clause, after the death of a person the Bill proposes that the income-tax should be assessed on the basis of the income of the person who dies, although the assessment was not complete in his lifetime. Sub-clause (3) runs thus:—

“Where a person dies without having furnished a return which has been required to furnish under the provisions of section 24 or having furnished a return which the Agricultural Income-tax Officer has reason to believe to be incorrect or incomplete, the Agricultural Income-tax officer may make an assessment of the total agricultural income of such person and determine the agricultural income-tax payable by him on the basis of such assessment, and for this purpose may by the issue of the appropriate notice which would have had to be served upon the deceased person had he survived, require from the executor, administrator or other legal representatives of the deceased person any accounts, documents or other evidence which he might under the provisions of sections 8, 24 and 25 have required from the deceased person".

The position, as enunciated in sub-clauses (2) and (3) of clause 27, is that even though the man is dead, his income should be assessed as if the person is not dead. Now, let us examine the position. If we look to clause 29—I do not know why this distinction has been made there so far as a company is concerned. I would now refer particularly to clause 29 which provides as follows:—

"Where, at the time of making an assessment under section 25, it is found that a change has occurred in the constitution of a firm or that a firm has been newly constituted, the assessment shall be made on the firm as constituted, at the time of making the assessment."

So far as companies are concerned, provision has been made that the assessment should be on the basis of the state of things as existed at the time of making the assessment. In the case of a person, the position has altogether been reversed. When a person dies leaving 4 or 5 children as heirs, his property is to be divided among his heirs. But still after his death when the time of assessment comes, the clause requires that the assessment should be made on the basis of the total agricultural income of the dead person who may have an income of, say, Rs. 10,000 leaving five sons. Now these five sons would inherit the income of Rs. 10,000 at the rate of Rs. 2,000 each. In the case of a company the clause provides that the existing state of things will have to be taken and assessment made on that basis. But in the case of the person these unfortunate heirs would be taxed on the income of their parents, although the property has been divided. So it is wholly inequitable. I do not know whether it was advisedly done or whether it is a mistake on the part of the framers of the Bill; but certainly it is a distinction which ought not to have been made. It may be that the company earned large profit and at the time of reconstitution it is shown that there is no profit. The company goes out altogether, but in the case of a person, when he dies leaving 4 or 5 children, the agricultural income will be assessed on the total income. Now, if we look to the Schedule, we will find what a heavy burden will fall on the children of the deceased if they are assessed on the basis of the total agricultural income of the deceased person. That is why I have proposed the amendment that if the person dies before the assessment has been actually made under clause 25, then you have to serve a notice upon the heirs of the deceased with reference to the income which they are entitled to separately.

With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That sub-clauses (2) and (3) of clause 27 of the Bill be deleted and the following clause be added as sub-clause (2), namely:—

"(2) Where a person dies before the publication of the notice referred to in sub-section (1) of section 24 or before he is served with a notice under sub-section (2) of section 24 or section 38 as the case may be or without having furnished a return which he has been required to furnish under the provisions of section 24 or having furnished a return, which the Agricultural Income-tax Officer has reason to believe to be incorrect or incomplete, the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall serve a notice on the heirs of the deceased in terms of section 24 for submitting returns in respect of their shares."

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I rise to support this amendment. It seems to me common sense that when the property of a person has been divided, the successors should not be compelled to pay the tax at the rate at which the person from whom they inherited would have been liable. I take it that the rate would be much higher in the case of such a person. In the case of his successors the income would naturally be much lower. If they are required to pay at the same rate as their predecessor in interest, then it would obviously, in certain cases, impose a great hardship upon the successors. In view of this fact, this amendment deserves the consideration of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister and I hope he will see his way to accept the amendment, if, of course, he dares to do so.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I also rise to support this amendment. It is based upon, I believe, sheer justice. If a man dies leaving a large number of heirs, the heirs get the first shock on the death of their ancestor. They then get the second shock when the joint notice is served upon them from the Agricultural Income-tax Officer. This tax is going to be levied for the first time in Bengal: so we should be cautious in its application. I, therefore, think it would be more equitable to levy the tax according to the share of each heir. It may reduce the rate of tax in many cases and in some cases may relieve the share-holder altogether. With these words, I support the amendment. I submit if this amendment is accepted, no harm will be done; on the other hand, considerable amount of justice will be done to the heirs of the deceased person in this way.

Mr. LALIT KUMAR DAS: There is another point and it is this. If it so happens that the person upon whom the notice was served under section 24 of this Bill dies before he received the notice, then what will happen? It is provided under section 27 that his executor, administrator or other legal representative will be treated as the assessee and will be made to pay the amount which would have been paid had he been alive. It will clearly operate as a great hardship upon the representatives, for, if the assessment is made jointly upon the legal successors of the assessee, then the Government can at once execute the income assessed and realise it from one of them. If a man dies leaving 3 or 4 heirs who are living separately and if they are to be assessed jointly, then the Income-tax Officer will be able under the law to realise the whole amount from one of these persons. That will be a great hardship. The liability should be according to the shares of the successors.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sub-clauses (2) and (3) had been taken from section 24(B) of the Indian Income-tax Act. Sub-clause (2) deals with a case where the assessee dies before the publication of a notice and sub-clause (3) deals with a case where the assessee dies after he has been called upon to submit a return or after submission of returns it is found to be incorrect or incomplete. In both cases the further duties of the assessee are imposed upon his executor, administrator or other legal representative. The amendment proposed is meaningless. It suggests that when a person dies his heirs shall be called upon to submit returns in respect of their share but the remission contemplated in this section is in respect of the agricultural income derived by the assessee before his death. In that income the heirs certainly have no share. That income was the assessee's alone. The proposed amendment, therefore, is absolutely meaningless.

As regards the analogy that has been sought to be drawn between this case and the case of companies, I would like to point out, first of all, that they are not disposed to tax the companies as such. That is not the scheme of the Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that sub-clauses (1) and (3) of clause 27 of the Bill be deleted and the following clause be added as sub-clause (2), namely:—

“(2) Where a person dies before the publication of the notice referred to in sub-section (1) of section 24 or before he is served with a notice under sub-section (2) of section 24 or section 38 as the case may be or without having furnished a return which he has been required to furnish under the provisions of section 24 or having furnished a return, which the Agricultural Income-tax Officer has reason to believe to be incorrect or incomplete, the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall serve a notice on the heirs of the deceased in terms of section 24 for submitting returns in respect of their shares.”

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The “Ayes” being—13, and the “Noes”—21, the amendment is negatived.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move that in clause 27 of the Bill, after sub-clause (3) the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

“(4) When the Ruler of an Indian State dies, his successor shall be liable to pay the agricultural income-tax assessed as payable by the Ruler of an Indian State or any agricultural income-tax which would have been payable by him under this Act if he had not died.”

The reason for this amendment is that in the case of a Ruler of Indian State possibly the proceedings contemplated under sub-clauses (2) and (3), namely, that notice should be served upon his executor, administrator or other legal representative does not apply; and in order to avoid the possibility that when the Ruler of an Indian State dies there may not be any machinery for either assessing the income-tax or realising the tax that definite clause should be inserted in order that the tax which has been assessed on such a ruler is realised by proper proceedings under the law. As a matter of fact, we know that some rulers of Indian States in Bengal are governed by the Mitakshara school of Hindu law and so far as the clause concerned there is no executor, administrator or other legal representative. Therefore, there is a hiatus and there is a defect and though the definition of the term “Person” includes Ruler of an Indian State, the assessment may not be realised altogether. Therefore, I submit that the amendment which I have proposed should be accepted in order that the defect may be removed and in the Act there may be a clear provision in regard to the Ruler of an Indian State.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in clause 27 of the Bill, after sub-clause (3) the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

“(4) When the Ruler of an Indian State dies, his successor shall be liable to pay the agricultural income-tax assessed as payable by the Ruler of an Indian State or any agricultural income-tax which would have been payable by him under this Act if he had not died”.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I support this amendment. It affects the Rulers of Indian States. This is a necessary provision and would remove a defect in the clause.

A loophole may be left if the amendment is not accepted.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, the definition of the word “Person” includes the company and the Ruler of an Indian State. Now, Sir, it has been pointed out by the Hon’ble Finance Minister that clause 27 covers the case of Indian Rulers; but I desire to point out that in the case of the death of an Indian Ruler the words in sub-clauses (2) and (3) are not sufficient to touch their successors. The words used are “executor, administrator or other legal representative” in place of the original assessee. I think the proper word should be “successor”, because an usurper may be a successor in the case of an Indian Ruler and subsequently he may be recognised as the person who is a Ruler of an Indian State. These words “executor, administrator” may not cover the case of a successor of an Indian State. It is for the purpose of being sure that the tax may be realisable from successor of the Ruler of an Indian State in the case of his death that this amendment has been suggested. I hope the Hon’ble Finance Minister should consider it and not reject it like others.

The Hon’ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I am entirely unconvinced that there is any necessity for this amendment in view of the definition of the word “person” already accepted by this House. I think they are quite safe with the provision as it has been drafted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 27 of the Bill, after sub-clause (3) the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

“(4) When the Ruler of an Indian State dies, his successor shall be liable to pay the agricultural income-tax assessed as payable by the Ruler of an Indian State or any agricultural income-tax which would have been payable by him under this Act if he had not died”.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—12, and the "Noes"—22, the amendment is negatived.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 27 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 28.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 28 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in sub-clause (1) of clause 28 of the Bill, after the words "association of individuals" in line 2, the words "not being members of an undivided Hindu family governed by the Dayabhaya school or an undivided Muslim family" be inserted.

Sir, I do not wish to submit any argument beyond what I have already stated.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (1) of clause 28 of the Bill, after the words "association of individuals" in line 2, the words "not being members of an undivided Hindu family governed by the Dayabhaya school or an undivided Muslim family" be inserted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: This amendment, I submit, is unnecessary. Clause 28 applies only to companies, firms and association of individuals and not to undivided families with determinable shares. Therefore, the amendment must be opposed.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (1) of clause 28 of the Bill, after the words "association of individuals" in line 2, the words "not being members of an undivided Hindu family governed by the Dayabhaya school or an undivided Muslim family" be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 28 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 29.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 29 stand part of the Bill. I find that the word "persons" in the text of this clause is correctly printed in my copy, though the ink is not quite distinct. So this amendment is unnecessary and need not be moved.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: But in my copy it is not quite distinct.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Ask the Government to print it in a better way, so that the "s" may be there.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I have been using several copies both in this House and in the Lower House and in all these copies, the "s" is not indistinct. It may be that in the new copies "s" is not very distinct.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 29 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 30.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 30 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (1) of clause 30 of the Bill, after the words "Hindu undivided family" whenever they occur, the words "governed by the Mitakshara school" be inserted.

Sir, I have already argued this point.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (1) of clause 30 of the Bill, after the words "Hindu undivided family" whenever they occur the words "governed by the Mitakshara school" be inserted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, in view of the definition of "Hindu undivided family" in clause 2, I submit that this amendment is unnecessary.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 30 of the Bill, after the words "Hindu undivided family" whenever they occur the words "governed by the Mitakshara school" be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (1) of clause 30 of the Bill, for the words "there is separate possession and enjoyment of such property" in lines 9 and 10, the words "there has been a separation of the undivided family" be substituted.

Sir, I would like to say a few words in explaining the amendment which I am moving. If we look to the clause itself as it stands, we find that the clause is in these terms: "Where, at the time of making an assessment under section 25, it is claimed by or on behalf of any member of a Hindu undivided family", I pause here for a moment and I would say that this refers to Hindu undivided family as defined in the Act, that is, the Hindu undivided family governed by the Mitakshara school of Hindu law. Now, in the subsequent lines of the clause the provision is that a partition has taken place among members or groups of members of such family, the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall make due inquiry thereinto, and, if a certified copy of a decree of a competent Civil Court for partition of the joint family property or a document purporting to show that there is separate possession and enjoyment of such property is produced. Now, the clause requires that unless a document showing separate possession and separate enjoyment is produced, such property is going to be assessed as if it was an undivided family. I would like the Hon'ble Finance Minister to note that it has been decided by the judicial courts up to the Privy Council that so far as undivided Hindu family governed by the Mitakshara school of Hindu Law is concerned, a declaration or a proclamation that they have divided is sufficient for the purpose of breaking the unity of the joint family. As a matter of fact, it has been held that a statement in a plaint that the family has separated—is quite sufficient and after that the members can no longer be referred to as a Hindu undivided family governed by the Mitakshara school of Hindu law, according to the definition of that term in clause 2(8) of the Bill. Therefore, I submit that there is a mistake here. The intention was that the members of an undivided family should get the benefit of their separation and be assessed separately after there has been disruption of the joint family. Therefore, my special appeal is that the requirement that there must be separate possession before such a member of a Hindu undivided family can claim separate assessment is not legal. There is some confusion. A Hindu undivided family is no longer a Hindu undivided family, as soon as there is disruption in the joint family by a declaration that the family has been divided. Therefore, there would be a loophole so far as this clause is concerned. It would not be a Hindu undivided family after this disruption and there would be no assessment at all on the basis of a Hindu undivided family. Therefore, the words "separate possession" should be deleted and the amendment that I propose should be accepted in order that the clause may be in consonance with the latest judicial pronouncements on the status of the Hindu undivided family governed by the Mitakshara School of Hindu law. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 30 of the Bill, for the words "there is separate possession and enjoyment of such property" in lines 9 and 10, the words "there has been a separation of the undivided family" is substituted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support the amendment. What is obviously meant by the text of the Bill-clause is that there has been a partition; and what is inserted instead is that there is a separate possession, etc. Separate possession is quite consistent, with joint property. In respect of joint properties, there may be separate possession as a matter of convenience. Many members of joint families enjoy and possess houses, tanks and buildings, fields, etc., separately as a matter of convenience. Separate possession is no test; it is merely an evidence of partition or separation, but not synonymous with it. This amendment makes the position absolutely clear and the learned mover of the amendment rightly cited in support of his amendment the latest judicial pronouncement relating to joint family property belonging to the Mitakshara school. With these words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: My honourable friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee seems to have a passion for making a simple thing complicated. The words used in the text are more definite than those he proposes to substitute in their place and I think the Privy Council ruling he has just quoted has no application to this matter at all.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister kindly take legal advice on the matter?

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 30 of the Bill, for the words "there is separate possession and enjoyment of such property" in lines 9 and 10, the words "there has been a separation of the undivided family" be substituted.

The motion being put a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—9, and the "Noes"—21, the amendment is negatived.

The next amendment stands in the name of Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, before the amendment is moved, may I mention an important matter? One of the honourable members of this House has been suffering from gout and he finds it difficult to move to the lobby. I suppose there are precedents where an honourable member can record his vote from the House without going to the lobby.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Certainly, if any honourable member finds it inconvenient to go to the lobby, his vote could be arranged to be recorded here.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Mr. Clarke may, therefore, be permitted to record his vote from here.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, Mr. Clarke need not go out every time to record his vote.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 30 of the Bill, all the words beginning with "the Agricultural Income-tax Officer" in lines 1 and 2 and ending with the word "and" in line 11, be deleted.

Sub-clause (2) of clause 30 stands as follows: "Where such an order has been passed, the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall make an assessment of the total agricultural income received by or on behalf of the joint family as such, as if no partition had taken place, and each member or group of members shall, in addition to any agricultural income-tax for which he or it may be separately liable and notwithstanding anything contained in clause (b) of section 10, be liable for a share of the agricultural income-tax on the agricultural income so assessed according to the portion of the joint family property allotted to him or it; and the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall make assessment accordingly on the various members and groups of members in accordance with the provisions of section 25."

Now, if we look to clause 25 of the Bill, we find that the assessment is made on certain principle indicated therein. I would submit that this is really a punishment to the members of the joint family. I find that in opposing the previous amendment the Hon'ble Finance Minister stated that the Privy Council decision which I referred to did not apply. This reminded me of the saying: "Many people rush in where angels fear to tread". I do not know whether the Hon'ble Minister knows the particular ruling to which I referred before. He said that that case did not apply to the Hindu undivided family. I would suggest that so far as this clause is concerned, what is suggested is that assessment is to be made where such an order has been passed notwithstanding anything contained in sub-clause (b) of section 10.

If we look to clause (b) of section 10, we find that "any sum which he receives as the member of the Hindu undivided family, the agricultural income-tax of which has already been taxed". That is a provision under which exemption is provided. If the intervening clauses are deleted, then I would submit that assessment will have to be made on the simple basis that the Hindu undivided family are separated and therefore they are to be assessed separately with reference to their respective incomes. I, therefore, submit that the clauses which I have indicated should be deleted in order that they might give a real relief to the persons who are going to be taxed. With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 30 of the Bill, all the words beginning with "the Agricultural Income-tax Officer" in lines 1 and 2, and ending with the word "and" in line 11, be deleted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, the words proposed to be deleted are very necessary. The case contemplated in sub-clause (2) is that of partition after the close of the previous year in respect of which assessment can be made. Hence, the assessment will have to be made in respect of the agricultural income of the whole family, though the liability to pay will be divided among the various members or groups of members according to the partition that has taken place in the meantime. Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 30 of the Bill, all the words beginning with "the Agricultural Income-tax Officer", in lines 1 and 2, and ending with the word "and" in line 11, be deleted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 30 of the Bill, the following words, brackets, figure and letter "notwithstanding anything contained in clause (b) of section 10" in lines 7 and 8, be deleted.

Sir, sub-clause (b) of section 10 of this Bill, deals with the cases of persons who get exemption from assessment of taxes in lieu of "any sum which he receives as a member of a Hindu undivided family, the agricultural income of which has already been taxed." Sir, sub-clause (2) of clause 30 of this Bill says:—

"Where such an order has been passed, the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall make an assessment of the total agricultural income received by or on behalf of the joint family as such, as if no partition had taken place, and each member or group of members shall, in addition to any agricultural income-tax for which he or it may be separately liable and notwithstanding anything contained in clause (b) of section 10, be liable for a share of the agricultural income-tax on the agricultural income so assessed according to the portion of the joint family property allotted to him or it; and the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall make assessment accordingly on the various members and groups of members in accordance with the provisions of section 25."

Now, these words "notwithstanding anything contained in clause (b) of section 10" are unnecessary and it would seem as though this provision in sub-clause (2) of clause 30 is an encroachment upon the exemption provision given in clause (b) of section 10. With these words, I move my motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 30 of the Bill, the following words, brackets, figure and letter "notwithstanding anything contained in clause (b) of section 10" in lines 7 and 8, be deleted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the amendment that has been moved by my friend Mr. Das. It is a necessary amendment in the sense that it seeks to clear up certain defects which are there in the Bill. Now, sub-clause (2) says ".....notwithstanding anything contained in clause (b) of section 10". In sub-clause (b) of clause 10, we have got the provision for exemption from assessment of the tax, and it says "agricultural income shall not subject to the provisions of section 17 be payable on that part of the total agricultural income of a person which is any sum which he receives as a member of a Hindu undivided family the agricultural income of which has already been taxed". Therefore, in the case of individual assessment, the person is not liable and is entitled to exemption with regard to income which has been already paid by the Hindu undivided family to which he belongs. Now, here if we look to the provision of clause 30, we find in sub-clause (2), the following expression "Where such an order has been passed, the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall make an assessment of the total agricultural income received by or on behalf of the joint family as such, as if no partition had taken place, and each member or group of members shall in addition to any agricultural income-tax for which he or it may be separately liable and notwithstanding anything contained in clause (b) of section 10, be liable for a share of the agricultural income-tax, etc., etc." I do not understand what is the reason for introducing this clause here, because so far as sub-clause (b) of clause 10 is concerned, I find that there is exemption with regard to income only because it has already been paid by him as a member of the undivided Hindu family. For every member of a Hindu family assessment is proposed to be made under the provisions of sub-clause (2) of clause 30 also. Therefore the words "notwithstanding anything contained in clause (b) of section 10" should be deleted, in order that there may not be any conflict in the two provisions. Therefore, I support the amendment moved by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I also rise to support the amendment. Sub-clause (b) of clause 10 prevents double taxation—a thing which looms so very large in clause 49. There is double taxation here and the amendment would prevent it. I would ask the European members to support the amendment, if they would desire support for clause 49. In clause 30, provision has been made for taxing men "notwithstanding anything contained in clause (b) of section 10, etc., etc." The expression would mean that if a case occurs where the income has been already taxed, it will be taxed again notwithstanding the provision barring out double taxation provided for in sub-clause (b) of clause 10. If there is double taxation, the Bill clause says: "never mind sub-clause (b) of clause 10, if it clashes with the provision in this new clause". As a matter of fact, if this is done the generous provisions of clause 10 would be done away with and would be absolutely nugatory. The effect of this will be that in many cases there will be double taxation and the justification of the double taxation will be found in the offending expression sought to be omitted. These words are really mischievous in effect. The amendment is extremely desirable and should be accepted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I submit, Sir, not a word has been said in support of the amendment in order to prove that the words proposed to be deleted are unnecessary and that in order to avoid contradiction between clause 10(b) and this sub-clause, this should be deleted: so there is no question of double taxation, I can assure my honourable friends.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 30 of the Bill, the following words, brackets, figure and letter "notwithstanding anything contained in clause (b) of section 10" in lines 7 and 8, be deleted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move that in the proviso to sub-clause (2) of clause 30 of the Bill, after the word "during" in line 2, the word "the" be inserted.

Now, if we look to the clause itself, we find that the word "the" is necessary in order that the language may be more definite and perfect. As a matter of fact, that is why the Government after seriously considering the matter and after consulting the Government draftsmen and taking the advice of their lawyers deliberately proposed this amendment. For some reason or other, they are now not moving it and that is no reason why we members of this House should allow this Bill to emerge in an imperfect form. As a matter of fact, I may point out that while discussing a Bill the members of this House should consider the matter seriously and they should not be in a jovial mood and support the Government even though there are mistakes in the clauses of the Bill which the Government themselves admitted. With these words, I move the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in the proviso to sub-clause (2) of clause 30 of the Bill, after the word "during" in line 2, the word "the" be inserted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support the amendment. The text of the Bill without the amendment would read like this: ".....property has been partitioned during previous year", and with the amendment it would read— ".....property has been partitioned during the previous year". This was a Government amendment and must speak for itself.

I think no honourable member whose ear has been tuned to the use of good English would object to this amendment. Of course, the Hon'ble Minister might say that his text will do or that the same clause will be able to walk and perform a journey and that would be enough. But I submit that legislative draftsmanship should be of the highest order and must be of perfect character. So, in the interest of good draftsmanship, I submit, this small amendment should be accepted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I submit that the reputation of the House will not be seriously impaired if this amendment is not accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in the proviso to sub-clause (2) of clause 30 of the Bill, after the word "during" in line 2, the word "the" be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move: That sub-clause (3) of clause 30 of the Bill be deleted.

Now, the sub-clause says "Where such an order has not been passed in respect of a Hindu family hitherto assessed as undivided, such family shall be deemed for the purposes of this Act to continue to be a Hindu undivided family". The reason why I object to the retention of this sub-clause is that this is an invitation to the Agricultural Income-tax Officer to be dilatory. The officer would think that when there is such a provision there is no hurry to dispose of the case. In fact, the provisions in clause 30, sub-clauses (1) and (2), would go to show that an order will be necessary for the purpose of assessment when there is a case of partition of the Hindu undivided joint family; but when it is deemed necessary to continue to be a Hindu undivided family in spite of the fact that there is no longer jointness of the family, it is clearly an invitation to the Income-tax Officer to be dilatory and the state of confusion will continue for years even. Therefore, I object to the retention of this sub-clause (3).

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That sub-clause (3) of clause 30 of the Bill be deleted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the amendment of Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. I would like to point out that this sub-clause is really a conflicting provision having regard to the other sub-clauses of the Bill. The sub-clause stands thus: "Where such an order has not been passed", I believe, this refers to the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 30,“in respect of a Hindu family”. We have got no definition of a Hindu family anywhere in the Bill. We have got a definition of a Hindu undivided family. Therefore, we have got a clause which has not been defined. It may be a Hindu family under the Dayabhaga system. So, this is a clause which has not been defined and which brings in confusion. I do not understand, Sir, why the Agricultural Income-tax Officer should be given the authority to treat a Hindu family as undivided family. The members of the family will have the right to show that they do not come under the definition of the Hindu undivided family as given in the definition clause. Here in clause 30 what is proposed is, first of all, to invest the Agricultural Income-tax Officer with an authority to decide whether they are continuing to be members of the Hindu undivided family in spite of the fact that they are living separately. Evidently, the assumption would be that though a divided family they can still be regarded as members of an undivided family. Therefore, the authority is given here to the Agricultural Income-tax Officer to decide something which would be in conflict with the definition clause. I, therefore, submit that this clause (2) should be deleted altogether.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support the amendment. The sub-clause seems to me to be confusing. It is said that a Hindu family in certain circumstances must be deemed to be a Hindu undivided family, but by a previous definition we have accepted a Hindu undivided family as Hindu undivided family governed by Mitakshara school. There is difference between Mitakshara and Dayabhaga, just as there is difference between the Shia and Sunni schools of the Islamic law. This provision would lead to much confusion and would ultimately affect the taxing power of the taxing officer and considerable difficulties may arise. I, therefore, think that clause (3) should be deleted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sub-clause (3) is necessary to provide for cases where joint family has been partitioned and assessment has not taken place in respect of agricultural income derived from the joint family as such. I, therefore, think that the retention of sub-clause (3) is necessary. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that sub-clause (3) of clause 30 of the Bill, be deleted.

((The amendment was negatived.))

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I want to speak on the whole clause.

Mr. PRESIDENT: There is another amendment, amendment No. 274A, standing in the name of Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, in deference to my honourable friend's request, I do not move it.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, may I now speak on the whole clause? The Opposition moved several amendments in order that the defects in clause 30 might be removed. In the first instance, we have seen, Sir, that so far as clause 30 (1), (2) and (3) are concerned, they refer principally to Hindu undivided family which expression has been defined in sub-clause (8) of clause 2 of the Bill. I pointed out that in sub-clause (1) there is a defect which would land the Agricultural Income-tax Officer in insuperable difficulties in coming to a decision with regard to the question as to whether a Hindu undivided family, that is, a Hindu undivided family governed by Mitakshara law is to be considered as undivided or whether there has been disruption in the undivided status of the family. Then, again with regard to sub-clause (2), I have pointed out, Sir, that there is a provision which is really in the nature of a punishment to the members of the Hindu undivided family. Now, having regard to these defects, it may be that when the Agricultural Income-tax Officer comes to consider the various provisions in clause 30 for the purpose of assessing the Hindu undivided family as defined, he will be faced with difficulties and litigations will surely follow and possibly he will have to refer the matter sometimes to higher officers and sometimes to the High Court. In order to avoid these difficulties, I submit, Sir, that clause 30 should not remain in the form in which it now stands, and therefore, I would oppose the retention of the clause in that form.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 30 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 31.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 31 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 31 of the Bill, after the word "provided" in line 2, the following be added, namely:—

"or where he proves that he did not receive the notice within a reasonable time".

Now, if we look, Sir, to clause 31, we find that it runs thus: "Where an assessee within one month from the service of a notice of demand issued as hereinafter provided satisfies the Agricultural Income-tax Officer that he was prevented by sufficient cause . . .". Now, here the assessee is allowed one month's time from the service of the notice. There is no provision where he did not receive the notice at all. Therefore, there should be some provision for cases where he did not receive the notice and the one month's time which is given is not only limited to one month from the service of the notice but he should satisfy the Agricultural Income-tax Officer that he comes within a reasonable time to oppose the assessment. As a matter of fact, this has occurred where the notice is mislaid and it is marked "served" and in such cases if an ex-parte assessment is made the assessee finds himself in difficulty and as soon as one month expires he is met with a plea that his objection cannot be taken as he has come long after the time. I will give, Sir, one or two instances with regard to assessment of taxation under the Sales Tax Act which came to my notice. In the year 1942 in December after the first air-raid by the Japanese in Calcutta several merchants left this city. One of them went to Hyderabad. He was dealing in jewellery, and notices were sent to him some of which actually reached him in Hyderabad long after one month which is provided in the Sales Tax Act. He came back to Calcutta after 5 or 6 months. He wanted to lodge a rejoinder but was told that it was barred by limitation and there was absolutely no remedy for him in this case. Therefore, it is very necessary that some such provision should be made to remedy such cases of hardship. With these remarks, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 31 of the Bill, after the word "provided" in line 2, the following be added, namely:—

"or where he proves that he did not receive the notice within a reasonable time."

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment, because I think cases of non-receipt of notices have been considered under sub-clause (4) of clause 24 and clause (2) of clause 25.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 31 of the Bill, after the word "provided" in line 2, the following be added, namely:—

"or where he proves that he did not receive the notice within a reasonable time."

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 31 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 32.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 32 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 33.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 33 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 34.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 34 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move that the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 34 of the Bill be deleted.

Sir, the proviso lays down that no appeal shall lie against an order under sub-section (1) of section 45 unless the agricultural income-tax has been paid. Section 34 deals with appeals against assessment under the Act. If you retain a clause like that, namely, that payment of agricultural income-tax will be a pre-requisite condition for a man wishing to appeal, then it will be putting an embargo upon his right to appeal. The utmost that could be said or laid down would have been a security to the satisfaction of the appellate officer; but instead of doing that, what has been provided for is that no appeal shall lie against an order under sub-section (1) of section 45 unless the agricultural income-tax has been paid. This is in another way almost taking away the right of appeal.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 34 of the Bill be deleted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the amendment that has been moved by Mr. Das. In supporting the amendment I would like to say that the honourable members should remember that we are going to tax a class of people who are already paying some sort of tax for the purpose of Government expenses. They are paying rent, they are paying revenue and this is an additional tax which you are going to impose on them. Now, suppose by some misfortune if the assessee could not satisfy the Agricultural Income-tax Officer as to his income, he has been assessed at a very high figure and he is unable to deposit the amount in court, should his right of appeal be taken away as in the case of an ordinary tax under the Indian Income-tax Act? Possibly the Hon'ble Finance Minister will say that there is a similar clause in the Indian Income-tax Act. We are hearing this ever since we have been considering the Agricultural Income-tax Bill. We are hearing about the Indian Income-tax sometimes, sometimes Assam Income-tax and sometimes Bihar Income-tax Act. But I would ask him to consider the position of the agriculturists of Bengal. He should consider that Bengal is not Assam; Bengal is not Bihar (The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Bengal is India.) Before citing Assam or Bihar he should consider the condition of the agriculturists in Bengal. Therefore, I should say that this proviso, as pointed out by Mr. Das, has taken away the right of appeal and so it ought to be deleted. There should be a clear right of appeal. As soon as the appeal is decided, the money will be realised in due course.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I also rise to support the amendment. The proviso which is objected to provides that if an order is passed under sub-section (1) of the section, no appeal shall lie under sub-section (1) of section 45 against the order. Appeals are provided for in section 45(1), where it is laid down that where an assessee is in default in making a payment of income-tax, a penalty of a sum not exceeding half that amount would be levied: and this proviso provides that, if that is not paid, no appeal shall lie against the order. Of course, from the point of view of discipline, this proviso is very good—you have not paid the tax, hence you must pay a penalty and, if you do not pay the penalty in advance, you have no right of appeal. But it may be that, due to hardship or to some mishap, the assessee is unable to pay the tax in time; and if the income-tax officer somehow or other, feels that his dignity has been questioned and the defaulter should be punished, then the result would be that an indigent man will be saddled with additional expenses before he can file an appeal. The provision is that there will be no such right of appeal unless he pays the penalty in advance. Now, if a well-to-do man fails to pay the tax, a penalty may be justified. But there may be cases of real hardship, where a person is really unable to pay: in cases of such hardship, a more liberal policy should be adopted. An appellate authority is more likely to be a man with experience and wider outlook of life, and it is likely that he would take a lenient view in such cases. No embargo should be placed on his right of appeal. I, therefore, support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: The amendment is probably based on a misconception. In appeals against orders under sub-section (1) of section 45, the amount of the tax is not disputed. It is only the penalty that has been imposed for default that is sought to be reduced or avoided, if possible. Hence in such cases it is obviously desirable that the amount of the tax which is not in dispute should be paid before the assessee can make a prayer for remission of the penalty imposed for default. I would like to draw the attention of the honourable members to the position that this is a case where the amount of tax is not disputed but it is only the penalty that is disputed. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of information, Sir. I want to know from the Hon'ble the Finance Minister as to what he means by saying that the amount in respect of income-tax is not disputed.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: That is penalty for default.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 34 of the Bill be deleted.

The motion being put, a Division was challenged: but when the motion was put for the second time, Division was not pressed.

(The amendment was then negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move: "That in the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 34 of the Bill, the following be added, namely:—

"or security to the satisfaction of the Appellate Officer has been furnished."

Sir, we have just now heard from the Hon'ble Finance Minister that the appeal referred to in the proviso is really an appeal against the order in respect of the penalty. If we look to clause (1) of section 45, we find the following:—

"When an assessee is in default in making a payment of agricultural income-tax, the Agricultural Income-tax Officer may in his discretion direct that, in addition to the amount of the arrears, a sum not exceeding half that amount shall be recovered from the assessee by way of penalty."

Now, let us consider whether the appeal which is mentioned in the proviso is limited to orders under sub-clause (1) of section 45. Clause 34 runs as follows:—

“Any assessee objecting to the amount of agricultural income assessed under section 25 or section 31 or the amount of loss computed under section 20 or the amount of agricultural income-tax determined under section 25 or section 31 or denying his liability to be assessed under this Act or objecting to a refusal of an Agricultural Income-tax Officer to make a fresh assessment under section 31 or objecting to any order under section 30 or section 32 made by an Agricultural Income-tax Officer or objecting to any order imposing any penalty.....”

Let us pause here for a moment. Here we have got a definition that an assessee in objecting to any order imposing any penalty under sub-section (1) of section 45 or objecting to a refusal on the part of an Agricultural Income-tax Officer to allow a claim to a refund under section 47, 48, or 51 or the amount of the refund allowed by the Agricultural Income-tax Officer under any of these sections, may appeal to the Assistant Commissioner against the assessment or against such refusal or order. There is a general provision with regard to appeal. With regard to all the orders which are mentioned in sub-section (1)..... Then the proviso comes in where it is provided that no appeal shall lie against an order under sub-section (1) of section 45. Under sub-section (1) of section 45, a penalty is imposed not exceeding half the amount of the tax. It is not a very inconsiderable amount, and with regard to the penalty the provision is that penalty has been paid or the agricultural income-tax has been paid. I do not understand what he refers to there, whether he refers to the penalty itself or to the tax itself. I, therefore, propose that in order to give relief to the assessee and to see that the right of appeal is not hampered in all cases, the Agricultural Income-tax Officer may demand security for the satisfaction of the amount, and therefore in the amendment I propose “or security to the satisfaction of the Appellate Officer has been furnished”. As a matter of fact, we all know, Sir, that in case of money decrees, the execution of the decrees states that he shall satisfy, etc. I do not see why that facility should not be given here. Otherwise, if the amount is remitted by the Appellate Officer—we all know the great difficulty we find in getting a refund of the money which has already been deposited in Government offices. It is, therefore, necessary that instead of requiring the person to deposit the amount, he may be allowed to furnish security to the satisfaction of the Appellate Officer in order that he might appeal against the order. I do not see any reason why if security is furnished to the satisfaction of the Appellate Officer, he should be compelled to deposit the amount in cash. I, therefore, submit that the amendment which I propose may be accepted by the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved that in the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 34 of the Bill, the following be added, namely:—

“or security to the satisfaction of the Appellate Officer has been furnished.”

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, my honourable friend must have read the clause many times in order to understand it clearly. The tax is not in dispute and the question of any security cannot arise; it does not really arise.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 34 of the Bill, the following be added, namely:—

“or security to the satisfaction of the Appellate Officer has been furnished.”

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 34 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 35.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 35 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in paragraph (c) of sub-clause (4) of clause 35 of the Bill, after the words "fresh order" in line 4, the word "or" be inserted.

Sir, this is a most innocent-looking amendment but it seems to me to be extremely important. Without it the Bill would be absolutely lame and its balance would be absolutely lost. It is a Government amendment, but now it thinks that it is unnecessary for the purpose of understanding the text.

In paragraph (c), various powers are given to an Agricultural Income-tax Officer. We are not concerned with all these alternatives. I shall read that portion which is immediately important. It says ".....The Assistant Commissioner may either direct the Agricultural Income-tax Officer to make a further inquiry and pass a fresh order.....". Then I shall read paragraph with the amendment—"or to make an assessment in the manner laid down.....". These two powers are given in the alternative. We have begun with the word "either", so the second alternative must be preceded by the word "or". The words "either" and "or" make a happy pair and should be there. Without the one the other will be lonely and unhappy. They are a happy couple and in the English language they are always together. So without the word "or" the passage will be meaningless. With the word "or" the result will be that the powers given to the officer would be alternative. He will have to choose the one or the other. But the effect of the omission of the word "or" would be not only that the alternative sense would be lost but the passage would convey no meaning. The amendment will cure a lacuna in the clause and I feel that this lacuna should be removed. Vital words should not be deliberately omitted. That is not the way of drafting legislative measures. The word "or" is essential. Without the amendment the clause will be understood only in the China Bazar and in the New Market or possibly in the Chandni Chawk but that is not the kind of draftsmanship which would enhance the reputation of this House. The Hon'ble Minister will perhaps say that the reputation of the House will not suffer if this amendment is not accepted. I think, Sir, there should be some distinction between persons with leaning towards clarity of expression and those who are absolutely immune from that feeling. So for the sake of those sensitive persons this word "or" should be inserted. With these words, I submit my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in paragraph (c) of sub-clause (4) of clause 35 of the Bill, after the words "fresh order" in line 4, the word "or" be inserted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I would like to say at the outset that I do not share, in supporting the amendment, the same feeling which the Khan Bahadur, the mover of the amendment, held. It is not a question whether the reputation of the House will be affected or not, it is not also a question whether the feeling of persons who are sensitive to the English grammar should be respected or not. I say, Sir, as I am saying all along, that this amendment is necessary in order to give some meaning to the clause as it stands. Now, let us consider clause 30, sub-clause (1) which is referred to here. By this sub-clause you are giving the Appellate Officer, a superior officer and not a lower officer, the powers of hearing an appeal and providing what the officer has got to do when he hears an appeal.

Now, Sir, so far as the hearing of appeal is concerned, the clause says that an order under sub-section (1) of section 30 means an order on either a member of a Hindu undivided family or a family whose jointness has been disrupted. That is an order to consider with reference to Hindu undivided family under clause 30, sub-clause (1). In the case of an order it can direct the Agricultural Income-tax Officer to make further enquiries and pass a fresh order to make the assessment in the manner laid down in section 30. Now, I submit, that this would be meaningless because he is not given an opportunity to pass an order under sub-section (1) of section 30. Whereas the opportunity has been given to the Appellate Officer to pass an order under sub-section (1) of section 30 he is directed to make further enquiry and pass fresh order in the manner laid down in sub-section (2) of section 30. Unless the word "or" is there, you do not assign any meaning which the Appellate Officer has got to direct. The word "or" should be there in order to make the sub-clause really effective. I therefore support the amendment moved by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I presume my honourable friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee read the Bill through. I do not find any amendment proposed to clause 35 excepting the amendment in the names of Mr. Biren Roy and Mr. Mesbahuddin Ahmed. So am I to presume that my honourable friend had no difficulty in understanding clause 35? In view of that, Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. BANĀKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a point of personal explanation. I did not refer to the defects of the Bill as a whole, but I wanted to point out the defect in the substantive portion of the Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is all right. The question before the House is that in paragraph (c) of sub-clause (4) of clause 35 of the Bill, after the words "fresh order" in line 4, the word "or" be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 35 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

The House stands adjourned till 2-15 p.m. to-morrow.

(House reassembled after adjournment.)

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mr. PRESIDENT: Supplementaries on the short-notice question No. 250A which was read out by the Hon'ble Agriculture Minister yesterday may be put now.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Agriculture Department please state whether or not the high price of vegetables is due to the large supplies that are made for the use of the army?

MINISTER in charge of the AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Saiyed Muazzamuddin Hosain): Sir, an answer to this question has already been given. It is due to the demand being more than the supply. The army has made its own arrangement for vegetable supply; but it is believed that a certain portion of such vegetables goes from the civilian market for the use of the army also.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Is it not a fact that contractors supply large quantities of vegetables for the use of the army?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I am not in a position to say. The army has also got its own arrangement for supply of vegetables: that I know definitely.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: From what other provinces are vegetables coming to Bengal?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: From Bihar only, so far as I am aware.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Is it not a fact that vegetables come mainly from the neighbouring districts and the suburban areas of Calcutta?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, most of them do come from suburban areas and neighbouring districts.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Then, is it correct to say that vegetables are imported from adjoining provinces from a distance of hundreds of miles to Calcutta?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: It is nowhere stated in my answer that it is imported from adjoining provinces; only one vegetable, namely, potato is imported from outside Bengal.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Is it the experience of the Hon'ble Minister that as soon as prices are controlled the articles disappear from the open markets and are sold in black markets or by street hawkers at higher prices, as stated in the answer?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, that is the apprehension unless it be stopped by vigilance and by stamping out the black markets.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Is this apprehension based on experience in the case of other articles where control has actually been imposed?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, based on experience as well as on imagination.

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: With reference to (b)(i), will the Hon'ble Minister please state: out of 150 maunds of English vegetables how much is intended for the Stuart Hogg Market?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I do not know; but 150 maunds is the total quantity, of which some quantity goes also to other markets, namely, the College Street market and the Bhowanipur market. Therefore, I am not able to say exactly how much of these English vegetables goes to the Hogg market.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: The Hon'ble Minister has said in his reply that regarding country vegetables the problem is beset with difficulties. The vegetables come from so many directions and such a large number of people are engaged in the trade that without employing a huge staff it is not possible to enforce the controlled prices or to stop black-marketing. If that be the case, what are the measures Government propose to adopt in order to deal with black-marketing?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: That is mentioned in paragraph 3.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if out of these 150 maunds of vegetables brought from Darjeeling any share goes to the military or they are for the consumption of the civil population—do the military take a share of these 150 maunds?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The military is not supposed to take a share of it. It is really meant for the civil population. But I cannot say if some of their servants take a share from the market.

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: Arising out of the last answer, is it a fact that nobody can purchase more than two seers of the vegetables at a time out of these 150 maunds?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, that is so.

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: Are inspections made in the Stuart Hogg market by the Government staff or by the market authorities or by both acting in co-operation?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The Government of Bengal marketing staff inspect the Hogg market from time to time.

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: If it is a fact that not more than two seers of vegetables can be purchased at a time, how is it possible for the army to take any substantial quantity out of this 150 maunds?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: That is why I said that the army is not supposed to take any share from this 150 maunds from the Hogg market; but if their servants take one or two seers I do not know and I think nobody can detect it.

Mr. C. E. CLARKE: Does the Hon'ble Minister consider that the obvious inflation of prices is justified solely by the causes stated, namely, abnormal demand?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: There are several causes stated—as many as five causes mentioned—of which one is abnormal demand.

Mr. C. E. CLARKE: Arising out of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 5, is it not a fact that a large staff is employed in Calcutta for the control of consumers' goods some of which are definitely luxury items and is it not a fact that the general foodstuffs are much more important and should be brought under some type of control as obtained in the case of food-grains?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, certainly. As I have said, on the whole the prices of vegetables are not very much in excess as the prices of food-grains. The current prices of food-grains are 3 to 4 hundred per cent. higher than the normal prices.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Arising out of answer (b)(ii), the Hon'ble Minister said "It also seems that the controlled prices that may be fixed will not be substantially less than the prevailing prices." Does the Hon'ble Minister mean thereby that no useful purpose would be served by imposing the system of control?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, without affecting the growers no substantial reduction in prices could be effected.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Will the—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Rai Bahadur, you should take permission of the Chair before you put a supplementary question.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, under (b)(ii) of the reply in the second paragraph it has been stated, "It is apprehended that as soon as prices of vegetables are controlled, they may disappear from the open markets and may be sold in block-markets or may be sold by street hawkers at higher prices." Does the Hon'ble Minister place vegetables on the same footing with other articles for consumption? Vegetables by nature are perishable and cannot be hoarded like other food-grains.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Certainly not. I have not stated that. I have said: they may be sold in the black-market, in the streets and unless I have a very big staff I shall not be able to stop that profiteering.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Have you got any experience in this matter? So far as our experience with regard to hawkers is concerned, we know they sell articles at much cheaper rates than those available in the market, because they have no establishment expenses and other things.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: When the control is effected, people generally go to the place where there is no control or inspection. They want to sell these vegetables outside the city of Calcutta.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Does the Hon'ble Minister want to say that the hawkers would sell the vegetables outside the city of Calcutta and in places where there are no men?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Chakraverti, put your question in a proper form.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: What leads the Hon'ble Minister to the conclusion that the hawkers would sell the vegetables outside the limits of the city of Calcutta and at a higher price?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The natural tendency of the people is to sell articles at a place where there is no inspection or supervision or control. It is human nature to do so. That is our experience.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Have you become absolutely hopeless so far as prices of vegetables are concerned?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I have definitely said that the prices are not very much in excess of the parity prices of food articles and other consumers' articles; and if these prices are to be controlled further, the growers would be affected. If we can reduce the middle-man's profit, certain reduction can be made. But for all this a huge staff will be necessary which will be hardly commensurate with the ultimate benefit to the consumers. Even if we do employ this huge staff, the benefit will not be substantial, the prices may be reduced by anna 1 to 2 annas per seer. If we try to control prices, the middle-man instead of reducing their margin of profit will try to reduce the price they pay to the growers.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Am I to understand that Government does not find it possible to do anything?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: It has been definitely stated that Government does not like to control the prices without being sure of the supply and without having a bigger staff to control effectively. All that Government propose to do is to purchase vegetables and sell it at cost price in the city, as they have started in Bombay.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: When do you expect this to materialise?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: After certain enquiries on account of peculiar conditions in Bengal. We find that there are certain conditions peculiar to Bengal and do not exist in Bombay; certain difficulties may arise which will have to be met and it may take 2 or 3 weeks to come to a decision.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: What are the difficulties?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I cannot disclose them.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Arising out of (b), will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to say if the 550 maunds of potato that will be available from Madras will be sold at controlled price to approved dealers?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, Government will place them in charge of the Director of Agricultural Marketing with whose permit only things can be sold.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Will Government control the prices at which these people will be selling them.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, Government will keep strict supervision over the sale.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to say if Government is going to fix the price for these articles?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, in consultation with other provinces.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether his attention has been drawn to a report published in the columns of Statesman, dated 29th July, 1944, under the caption "Food Front and big increase in prices of vegetables"?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes; I have not carefully gone through it but have given it a cursory glance.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Do the prices of different classes of articles mentioned in that table differ materially?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I have not compared them.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if the 500 tons of potato brought from Madras will be distributed in different districts in Bengal?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: No, it will be distributed among dealers who have applied for permits and will not be restricted to Calcutta. Permits will be given to those who apply for it and who are really dealers in potato.

Mr. J. W. R. STEVEN: Arising out of (c), will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether he has considered the question or done anything about licensing of slaughter-houses?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, slaughter-houses are under the strict supervision of the officers of the Veterinary Department.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: The Hon'ble Minister has said that there will be an appreciable increase in the supply of fish in the near future. May I ask where does this supply come from?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: It comes from Goalundo, Khulna and Sara Ghat and places from where it ordinarily comes. The difficulty is that for want of ice it is not coming in sufficient quantities; but with the appointment of a Controller of Ice we expect that sufficient quantities of ice will be available for fish being brought to Calcutta, and that is why I expect that the supply of fish in Calcutta will be increased in the near future.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Will the appointment of a Controller of Ice automatically increase the production of ice or will it make the distribution of ice proper for the fishing trade?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: He will only control distribution of ice and see that ice is reserved for the fishing trade as much as possible.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: What proportion of the available ice is being allotted to the civil population?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I am not in a position to say that. Now the whole thing will have to be re-considered and revised probably in consultation with the military.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Will the proportion be less than 50 per cent., as it is at present?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I am not in a position to say that.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state how long Government will take to watch the condition and do something to ameliorate the present condition?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The Government is watching the situation in respect of meat, but as regards other items we have already proceeded very far. As regards fish, we have said that with the increase in the supply of ice we will be able to increase the supply of fish in Calcutta. It is only in respect of meat that I have stated that the situation is being watched closely.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: In view of the fact that ice is the real bottleneck in the matter of the supply of fish, what steps Government of Bengal has taken to re-open the non-working ice factories by procuring from the Government of India parts that are available and also chemicals?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Steps have already been taken. For want of diesel oil many manufacturers of ice closed down their factories. We are in consultation with the Government of India officer who is in charge of diesel oil. He has been pleased to allot larger quantities of diesel oil so that larger quantities of ice may be manufactured particularly for the fish trade. We are further in negotiation with him.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Arising out of answer in (b)(ii), viz., "It is further apprehended that as soon as prices of vegetables are controlled, they may disappear from the open markets and may be sold in black-markets or may be sold by street hawkers at higher prices. . . ." If that be the opinion of the Government, will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state why the system of price-control has been introduced on other commodities such as rice, and other articles of food?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: There is a huge staff for making the price-control system effective, namely, the Detective Police and others who are always on the watch for black-marketeers and those persons who are trying to hawk in the streets. But I have got no such staff. That is why I have already stated: "A huge staff hardly commensurate with ultimate benefit to the consumers will have to be entertained if any control is to be made effective. . . ."

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: On a point of order, Sir. That is not the answer which was wanted by me.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Rai Bahadur, that is not a point of order. Please allow the Hon'ble Minister to finish his answer.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I have already answered the point that the honourable member was making that in the case of rice price-control was made. I said that rice is a staple food and for that Government had to employ a huge staff—not only for seeing that the controlled price was made effective but also to find out and bring to book the black-marketeers and other people. I have not got such a huge staff and if I had to employ such a huge staff, then the cost thereof would not be commensurate with the benefits that would ultimately accrue from it. That is what I have already pointed out, Sir.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: May I know what is meant by the words "other people"? The Hon'ble Minister says "black-marketeers and other people". Who are these "other people"?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Hoarders.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Is there any other people?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I do not know. I have nothing to do with rice and therefore I know as much as the honourable member knows.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Cannot Government employ the same staff which is doing work against hoarders and profiteers in rice about these articles as well— in addition to their usual duties?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I do not think it is possible; if that had been possible then the control of fish and vegetables would never have been transferred to the Agriculture Department from the Civil Supplies Department. They said that they could not deal with this matter; they had so much work to do that they made over the whole thing to the Agriculture Department.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: As regards the supply of ice the Hon'ble Minister has not stated clearly whether the Government of India is going to supply the machinery parts to the factories which have closed down on account of the defects in parts and if so, whether he is taking further steps to see that the ice that is manufactured by these aided factories do not pass to the black-marketeers again?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: All these arrangements have been made. So far as I am aware, the factories that have closed down, that is mainly due to the want of diesel oil and not for want of machines being out of order; but if there be any such difficulty we will certainly try to get the machinery that have gone out of order, if necessary, by approaching the Government of India. If these factories are going on working, we will then certainly see that that ice is utilised for the fish trade exclusively.

Mr. MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: It has been stated in the answer that an embargo has been placed by Bihar on the export of sheep, goats, buffaloes, etc. What steps have been taken by Government up till now to induce the Bihar Government to facilitate the export of cows?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: We have approached the Bihar Government for permitting us to bring down some plough cattle, not cows really. We have asked them for 5,000 pairs, but only 250 pairs have been given.

Mr. MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: But that is so far as I remember for agricultural purposes?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, that is so.

Mr. MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Nothing for food?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: For that purpose we have not yet made any request to the Bihar Government.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: It appears from the reply contained in (b)(ii) that Government's apprehension is that as soon as prices of vegetables are controlled, it may have the effect of driving vegetables underground—

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Not underground to be hoarded, but to the black-market.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Disappear from the open markets and may be sold in black-markets, etc., or may be sold by street hawkers at higher prices. If that is the conclusion of Government, will the Hon'ble Minister please state as to why they have imposed a system of price-control on rice?

Mr. PRESIDENT: So far as that question is concerned, it has been answered by the Hon'ble Minister already, for he has said that given a sufficient number of staff his department also is prepared to undertake the control of vegetables, etc. That is what the Hon'ble Minister has already said, and you must have heard it over and over again.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: It is not a question of employing a huge staff, Sir. The point is as regards the principle—namely, that if a system of price-control is imposed, it will have the effect of driving vegetable underground.

Mr. PRESIDENT: So far as I understand his answer is this: That without sufficient supervision there is every risk that these articles will be driven underground—that was the answer.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: In view of the fact that Government realises that one of the ways of really bringing down the prices of vegetables is to open Government stores, will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if the Government will be in a position to come to a decision in this matter in the course of this month?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I have already stated that we hope to come to a decision within two or three weeks.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Is it not a fact that in every market there is already a certain staff—Deputy Inspector-General or something like that—to look after the affairs there, to prevent hoarding and to bring to book the culprits? If there is already a staff stationed at every market, and I have personal knowledge of this, why then is it not possible for this staff to look after other foodstuffs such as meat or fish or any other commodities that the Hon'ble Minister chooses to control?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I do not know of any such staff.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if Government will see that the controlling staff posted in various markets are located in prominent places in the market so that the suffering purchasers may approach them easily and get redress?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I have got no such staff and I am not in a position to give any assurance about that.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: As regards Stuart Hogg market the Hon'ble Minister has said that there are certain staff there to supervise the vegetables that come from Darjeeling. Will the Hon'ble Minister consider whether any grievances may be reported to them?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: That might be considered. We have only 6 or 7 officers in the Marketing Department.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: From the answer that has been given by the Hon'ble Minister just now, shall we be wrong if we come to the conclusion that for the present Government is unable to take any steps to ameliorate the present conditions of the prices prevailing and make foodstuffs available at reasonable prices?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Certainly you would be wrong in coming to that conclusion. After reading the whole thing let the public judge what it means.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House will now take up further discussion of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a point of order, Sir. The Hon'ble Finance Minister who is in charge of the Bill is not present. As he is piloting the Bill, we cannot proceed with the Bill without him.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I understand that the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Agriculture is going to reply on behalf of the Hon'ble Finance Minister.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: But, Sir, I do not know if this can be done——

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, it can be done: any Hon'ble Minister can speak on the provisions of this Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: But he is in charge of the Bill——

Mr. PRESIDENT: Even then anybody can speak on it. In case of a motion this cannot be done. In the case of a motion nobody except the Minister in charge can reply. But there is no motion today. The Hon'ble Minister in charge of Agriculture will only be replying to some of the amendments and I think that can be done by any one.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: But we record our protest and I think it will be a part of the proceedings of today.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, it would go into the proceedings today.

Milk situation in Calcutta.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, before you proceed with the Bill, may I draw the attention of the Government to the abnormal rise in the price of milk to which I referred yesterday and you were kind enough to direct me to raise this question today.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: It will be universally admitted that milk has become scarce in Calcutta. The price of milk has risen to 2 seers per rupee and in some cases to 12 annas per seer. It has become very difficult to keep babies alive and we do not know what will happen to the future generation if this state of things continue for some time more. I do not know whether Government have taken into consideration this important point. So far as I remember, a report appeared in yesterday's newspaper, in the columns of the Hindusthan Standard to the effect that Bengal Women's League or some such organisation has already addressed a letter to the Government drawing their attention to the serious situation that has arisen owing to the high price of milk and in some cases want of milk in the market. So, I would like to have a statement from the Hon'ble Minister concerned as to what is actually the position and what they propose to do in this matter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Are the Government in a position to throw any light on this matter?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, briefly the position is this: Milk position has become acute, it is true, but in order to relieve this situation the real cause of it should be found out. The real cause lies in the fact that for our milk supply we have to depend entirely on the agriculturists generally and our agriculturists are so very poor that they cannot fill their own belly, so how would they be able to feed their cows. The result is this scarcity. We all now realise that we must do something to establish big dairies. Government are seriously considering this matter and as an experimental measure Government are going to start a few dairy farms and demonstrate to the people how these dairies can be run on a business line and on profit. For this purpose Government is going to bring two experts from New Zealand, a country which is famous for dairy farms and dairy products. Government has already started negotiations. We are soon going to have the experts and with their help we are going to start one or two dairy farms within a month or two. We want to demonstrate to the richer people so that they may take up this dairy farming on a commercial basis. By starting these dairy farms alone, we can solve the problem of milk supply, otherwise we will have to depend on the agriculturists who are themselves ill-fed and poorly clad and we can never expect to solve our milk problem by depending on them.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: On a point of information, Sir. Is it not a fact that scarcity of milk and the consequent rise in the price of milk is due to the prevalence of cattle epidemics and a large number of deaths in the cattle population in Bengal and also to the slaughter of milch cows? The last one is a very important point for consideration and will the Hon'ble Minister please state what steps if any have Government taken to stop this slaughter of milch cows? This scarcity is due not only to the inability of the agriculturists to feed the cattle population but—

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: On a point of order, Sir. Can he be allowed to go on speaking in this way?

Mr. PRESIDENT: So far as I remember he rose on a point of information. Yes, Rai Bahadur.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: In the circumstances will the Hon'ble Minister please state what steps the Bengal Government have taken to increase the supply of milk and to preserve the cattle population, mainly milch cows?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I have given only an off-hand reply as regards the supply of milk.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is a very important question and I find a large number of honourable members are interested in this matter. So, are Government in a position to make a comprehensive statement, say, at a later date convenient to Government? I think that will be more satisfactory?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, Sir, I propose to do it later on.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that over 2,000 maunds are required for preparation of various milk products?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think the whole question may be answered in the course of a statement by Government. Now we turn to the Bill.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Clause 36.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 36 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 36 of the Bill, for the words "objects to", in line 1, the words "disagrees with" be substituted.

Sir, in sub-clause (2), where the words occur, the idea that is intended to be conveyed is that if the Commissioner objects to any order made by an Appellate Court, then that court has to follow certain procedure. In fact, if an inferior court finds that it is not in agreement with the order of a superior court, then it may have to go through some procedure. In the circumstances, the word "disagrees" would be more appropriate to the text and I hope this amendment will be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (2) of clause 36 of the Bill, for the words "objects to" in line 1, the words "disagrees with" be substituted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I rise to support the amendment moved by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. The proposal is that in sub-clause (2) of clause 36 of the Bill, for the words "objects to" in line 1, the words "disagrees with" be substituted. Now the clause stands in this way: "The Commissioner may, if, he objects to an order passed by the Assistant Commissioner" I do not understand what the framers of the Bill means by the words "if he objects to". The Commissioner is the Appellate Tribunal and it is not the question of objecting to. The trial court passes an order and the Appellate Court reverses that order; or if it does not reverse it agrees with it. Therefore "disagrees with" are better words to introduce there than the words "objects to". I therefore submit that this simple amendment will be accepted by the House.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYID MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I think the words "objects to" are more appropriate. But here the Commissioner is not the Appellate authority. But only a party. Just as in the sub-clause (1) an assessee objecting to an order passed is a party, similarly the Commissioner is also a party here. He objects to an order passed. He directs an appeal to be preferred to the Tribunal. Here, he is not an Appellate authority. He is an executive head and as an executive head, he objects to it just as an assessee can object to an order. The words as they exist are more appropriate. So I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that in sub-clause (2) of clause 36 of the Bill, for the words "objects to" in line 1, the words "disagrees with" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (4) of clause 36 of the Bill, for the word "twenty-five" in line 4, the word "ten" be substituted.

Sir, sub-clause (4) of clause 36 of the Bill says, that "an appeal to the Appellate Tribunal shall be in the prescribed form and shall be verified in the prescribed manner, and shall, except in the case of an appeal referred to in sub-section (2), be accompanied by a fee of twenty-five rupees." Sir, this fee of Rs. 25 is too high and so I propose that instead of Rs. 25, it should be reduced to Rs. 10 only. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (4) of clause 36 of the Bill, for the word "twenty-five" in line 4, the word "ten" be substituted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I would like to support the amendment that has been moved by my friend Mr. Das. I think the clause as it stands making an inflexible fee of Rs. 25 in all cases is not at all proper. As a matter of fact, there are provisions with regard to other matters where a maximum fee is prescribed and there is a fee for smaller assessee prescribed with regard to smaller amounts which are challenged by way of an appeal to the Appellate Tribunal. Therefore, I would like to support the amendment that has been moved that for the word "twenty-five", the figure "ten" be substituted. As a matter of fact, this will have to be paid by the assessee for filing an appeal to the Appellate Tribunal in every case, and therefore if the Government had proposed a smaller fee for smaller assessee, we would not have objected to that; but instead of that a single figure has been put. I think the figure of Rs. 25 is too high and so it should be reduced to Rs. 10.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYID MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, the fee is already low, and cannot be further reduced. Under the Indian Income-tax Act, the corresponding fee for such an appeal is Rs. 100. Here the fee is only Rs. 25 as against Rs. 100 in the Indian Income-tax Act. Therefore, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that in sub-clause (4) of clause 36 of the Bill, for the word "twenty-five" in line 4, the word "ten" be substituted.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Proceedings of the entire sitting declared null and void.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, may I rise on a point of order? It seems that the proceedings so far carried on today are null and void, because when you first entered the Chamber you had to adjourn the House for want of quorum. You then adjourned the House for 15 minutes; but you cannot do so under the Standing Orders. According to President's Standing Orders No. 16, you should have adjourned till the next sitting day. Rule 16 of the Standing Orders says: "If it appears, on notice being taken or upon report, after a count has been made, that a quorum is not present, the President shall order the bell to be rung for two minutes. If after such interval a quorum is still not present, the President shall adjourn the Council without the question being put, until the next sitting day; and the hour of such adjournment, as also the names of the members present, shall be printed in the proceedings of the day."

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is your point, Mr. Das?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: My point is: that you should have adjourned the House till the next day and not simply for 15 minutes, as you had done. My next point is that all proceedings of today should be considered null and void.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, I think that will simplify matters and the rule is very clear in this respect.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The rule is very clear that before the House is adjourned, the bell shall be rung for two minutes, and I am told that the bell was not rung. Therefore, I think rule 16 does not apply. How can it be assumed that there was no quorum, when the bell was not rung. A large number of the members were in the lobby and if the bell was rung, they would have come and there would have been quorum. So there is no reason why the proceedings of this sitting should be considered null and void.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The point is this: that the bell was rung at the beginning for five minutes, and when I came into the Chamber I found that only 8 members including the Chair were present in the House. Therefore, I adjourned the House and then re-assembled after 15 minutes after having rung the bell for 3 minutes as usual, and since then we have been carrying on the proceedings. That is what has happened.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Had the honourable members known that there was no quorum, they would have come in if they heard the bell ringing which is a summon for the meeting. But no bell was rung.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It was an irregularity, and with the unanimous consent of the House, I am inclined to suggest that the proceedings should be treated as null and void. If this is agreed to, let us do it and let the House stand adjourned till 2-15 p.m. tomorrow.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the proceedings of today be regarded as null and void?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Let the Honourable Chief Minister give his views on the point.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Well, the Chair has already declared that the proceedings of today will be null and void.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The point is: that this Bill has been going on for a very long time. As I had stated once before—

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, can he rise on a question of privilege of this House; this matter does not concern an administrative policy of the Government—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order, I have heard the Opposition and certainly the Chief Minister should also be given a hearing.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: The Hon'ble the Leader of the House is here, Sir, and—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, but the Hon'ble Chief Minister's responsibility is in no way less than that of the Hon'ble the Leader of the House in this matter. So, let us hear him. Sir Nazimuddin.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, as I have said, this Bill has been going on for a very long time. It is a taxation measure and Government are most anxious that this Bill should be passed as quickly as possible. Besides this, there is the question of Ramzan that is coming and it will be extremely inconvenient for Moslem members of this House if they have to sit during the Ramzan period. I feel that if the Bill is not finished before the next week, we shall have to ask leave of the House to have all-night sittings till the Bill is finished. There will be no other option left to us but to press for it.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Is this a threat?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Not a question of threat. It is not something that is unparliamentary; rather it is the usual practice of all parliamentary bodies and there are precedents for this even in the Bengal Legislature.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I interrupt the Hon'ble the Chief Minister for a while? I quite realise that it is an important Bill—a taxation measure certainly of very great importance, and I would appeal to the House that the Bill should be finished early, because this is the one important business which has been before the House for a long time. But unfortunately the proceedings of today have become irregular. So I think it will be proper for us to declare the proceedings of today null and void and to adjourn the House.

Mr. SULTANUDDIN AHMAD: Why not adjourn the House now and not take up the business afresh from this time, namely, 3-50 p.m.?

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, we cannot do so. We would rather begin at 2-15 p.m., tomorrow and in order to make up for the time that we have lost today, we may have to extend our sitting, for 10 to 15 minutes for a few days.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: No, Sir, no.

The Hon'ble Khawaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: You are suggesting this step with the unanimous consent of the House and I beg to submit from this side that unless the House agrees to sit late hours... ..

Mr. PRESIDENT: I would request the Hon'ble the Chief Minister not to raise this question at this stage. I would leave it to the good sense of the House and I am sure every member of the House would look to the convenience of others. I am almost sure that Hindu members of this House would not like to put the Muslim members to inconvenience so far as Ramzan is concerned.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, we shall be all willing to come in the morning.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If that difficulty arises, you will have to accommodate your colleagues and it is only fair. So I suggest that with the unanimous consent of the House that the proceedings that we have already transacted today should be considered null and void, and we adjourn till 2-15 p.m. tomorrow.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Your proposal, Sir, is eminently reasonable and we accept it, and I hope that Government also will agree to it.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On behalf of the Opposition, I accept your suggestion.

Mr. SULTANUDDIN AHMAD: May I make a suggestion, Sir, in this connection?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, what is it?

Mr. SULTANUDDIN AHMAD: It is this: When you heard that there was no quorum, you ought to have continuously rung the bell for two minutes, then to take count and find out whether there was a quorum present or not. If after that you found that there was no quorum, then your duty was to adjourn the House till next day. I submit that if you adjourn the House now, at 10 minutes to four, you can as well proceed with the business of the House and carry on up to 5 o'clock and there would be no harm. At 2-15, when you found that the House had no quorum, you did not adjourn the House till 2-15 p.m., tomorrow. That you have not done. So what you have done after has become irregular. But if you can under the rule adjourn the House now because there was no quorum at 2-15 p.m., you can as well proceed with the discussion—

Mr. PRESIDENT: That can be done with the unanimous consent of the House. If the House agrees, that can be done. But if there is a dissentient voice, then the Chair is in a helpless position. Your suggestion is reasonable but the Opposition does not seem to be agreeable to it—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: No, Sir, we object.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: May I speak a few words in the matter—

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is not necessary to speak any longer. May I have the Hon'ble Chief Minister's consent to the suggestion made by me?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, if you think that it is the wisest course, I agree.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Thank you. It is decided with the unanimous consent of the House that the proceedings so far gone through should be considered as null and void and we meet at 2-15 p.m., tomorrow.

The House stands adjourned till 2-15 p.m., tomorrow.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 2-15 p.m., on Thursday, the 10th August, 1944.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 75.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Thursday, the 10th August, 1944, at 2-15 p.m., being the seventy-fifth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Detention under rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules.

251. Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

- (a) the number of persons still kept in detention under the provision of rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules under the direction of the Provincial Government;
- (b) if the provisions of rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules have been declared ultra vires by the Federal Court;
- (c) if the Government are aware that the ordinance promulgated by the Governor-General of India validating rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules has been declared ultra vires by the Hon'ble Judge of the High Court of Calcutta;
- (d) if the Government are aware of the fact that the detention of persons under the provision of rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules has been held by the High Court of Calcutta to be illegal on an application under section 491 of the Criminal Procedure Code;
- (e) if the Government are going to give direction for the release of all the persons now in detention under rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules; and
- (f) what step the Government contemplate to take in respect of all the persons who are being detained now under direction given under rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur S. M. HOSAIN (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) On 14th July, 1944—3,749.

(i) Political security prisoners—1,251 males and 18 females.

(ii) Criminal security prisoners—2,480.

(b) to (f) When on the formation of the present Ministry I resumed charge of my office as Minister in charge of the Home Department the validity of some of the orders of detention under rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules made during the regime of my Hon'ble predecessor in office was under examination in judicial proceedings before the Hon'ble High Court. The final judgment in the matter was pronounced by the Federal Court who held that no order of detention under rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules could validly be made except after the Governor had personally applied his mind to the case and been satisfied that the making of such an order was necessary. Although an appeal against this decision has already been filed before the Privy Council, immediate steps were also taken to institute a review of the cases of all the security prisoners then under detention in the light of the law as laid down by the Federal Court with a view to issue fresh orders in the cases in which continued detention was considered necessary. All such cases have already been reviewed. The materials in each case under review were examined by the department and by myself and the case submitted to His Excellency the Governor for his consideration and orders. The same procedure has also been followed in the cases of all prisoners arrested and detained since the pronouncement of the Federal Court decision referred to above.

The Restriction and Detention Ordinance (Ordinance III of 1944) promulgated on the 15th of January, 1944, enacts in a self-contained instrument the provisions relating to restriction, detention, etc., hitherto embodied in rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules but introduces the following new features :—

- (i) Provision is made for communication to the security prisoner on the grounds on which he is detained so far as this can be done without disclosing facts which it would be against the public interest to disclose. Persons detained also now have right to make if they so wish a representation against the order and they are to be informed of this right and given the earliest practical opportunity of making such a representation.
- (ii) The duration of an order of detention is now restricted to 6 months unless within that period a further order of Government is made, after a review of all available materials (including the prisoners' representation, if any) for its extension.
- (iii) Provision has been made for submission to Government for confirmation or cancellation of all orders of detention passed by subordinate authorities in the exercise of delegated powers.

These provisions will apply to all orders previously made under rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules. These are validated by the Ordinance and are given effect as if they had been made under the Ordinance and necessary measures have been taken to give effect to these provisions as early as practicable.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Question No. 250A and answers thereto were read out yesterday; but in view of the arrangement agreed to at that time, supplementary questions may be put again today.

Mr. SRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Yesterday, a number of supplementaries was put. Those questions together with the answers given thereto may be incorporated in today's proceedings.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The proceedings must be regular. You can put supplementary questions today also.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that the price of fish has been fixed beyond 100 per cent. higher than what it was in July, 1943?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: At what percentage I cannot say, but it has gone up substantially.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is he aware that the price of rice is less now than in July, 1943?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Certainly, it is very much less.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Then how is it that the price of fish and vegetables has gone up 100 per cent. since 1943?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Vegetable has not increased, it is only the fish.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that as reported in the Statesman of July 29, 1944, the price of vegetables has increased in some cases from 100 to 166 per cent. and in no case less than 50 per cent. since July, 1943?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I do not accept that. I have my own figures here.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether his attention was drawn to a report published in the Statesman of the 29th July, 1944, in which a table showing the prices of the different kinds of vegetables in the market was given? How is it that the prices mentioned therein do not tally with the rates mentioned in the Hon'ble Minister's reply.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I am not responsible for the figures quoted in the paper referred to; but we have our figures from our Marketing officers.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether on a perusal of the report published in the Statesman of 29th July, he had necessary enquiries made in order to ascertain what the prices actually were?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I did not think it necessary, because I got my figures quoted by responsible officers.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ: Does the Hon'ble Minister vouchsafe for the correctness of the figures quoted by him?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: As regards the statement I cannot say.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Arising out of (1), will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to say whether the high prices of vegetables, fish and meat are due to a great extent to the supply of these articles to meet Army requirements?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I cannot say that: the Armies are having their own supplies arranged but to what extent of their consumption I cannot say.

Mr. SRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: If as has already been said that the figures quoted in the Statesman are not correct, does the Hon'ble Minister consider it desirable to contradict them?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Every paper can publish anything it likes. I have published my own figures.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that the prevalence of malaria this year is very largely due to devitalisation of people owing to lack of proper nutriment?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Evidently, it is so.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that this lack of nutrition is very largely due to the high price of fish, meat and other foodstuffs including vegetables all over Bengal?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: That I could not say, because it is only the richer people who go in for these costly luxuries now. The people who are suffering from malaria are the poorer agriculturists who can hardly afford to buy these things. They generally live on dal; bhat and whatever they catch and whatever they can grow.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to inform us whether he is aware that the military or the persons brought here in connection with the war are going to civilian markets and purchasing vegetables there?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I am not aware. There may be some purchases made by the military.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether he has made any inquiry and found out if the military have got their own arrangements for the supply of fish?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The military have their own arrangements for the supply of fish.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Are they not encroaching in any manner upon the civilian supplies?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, to some extent.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Is it a fact that the military have got their own scheme for the supply of vegetables? If so, has that scheme been brought into operation?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The scheme has been brought into operation in Darjeeling, Chittagong and other places.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what quantities of vegetables are produced in Darjeeling, Chittagong and such other places?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: These are military secrets. I cannot disclose them.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state to this House at least to what extent the military are encroaching upon the civilian source of supply in the matter of vegetables?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: We have not taken any statistics; nor can any statistics be taken. But it is a fact that the military are taking away some of the articles of food which are meant for civilian population.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Is it a fact that the military contractors are purchasing things in the civilian markets of Calcutta and taking them to the military camps?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Even if it is a fact, we cannot prevent the military from going into the civil markets and purchasing things.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what result has been achieved by launching the "Grow More Food Campaign" for the last two years?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I cannot give the figures just now. But there has been considerable result. For example, but for the aman seed distribution we would not have got a bumper crop this year.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Does the Hon'ble Minister intend to increase the supply of fish, meat and vegetables by distributing aman seeds?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: No, not that. You were asking about the result achieved by the "Grow More Food Campaign". You wanted everything. That is why I said that.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: With reference to (b)(ii), paragraph (2), namely, that it is further apprehended that as soon as prices of vegetables are controlled, they may disappear from the open market and may be sold in black markets or may be sold by street hawkers at higher prices—how does the Hon'ble Minister come to the conclusion to that effect? Is he not aware that a system of control so far as rice, atta and other edibles are concerned has been imposed—

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: It has been already explained that control could be exercised if a huge staff is placed at the disposal of my department for this purpose, but the result of that will not be commensurate with the benefits that would ultimately accrue to the consumers from that.

Maulvi MD. HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: In (b)(i), the Hon'ble Minister says that as regards English vegetables, the prices have been amicably controlled without resorting to Defence of India Rules and the system is working fairly satisfactorily. Is it not possible for him to control Bengalee vegetables also in this way?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: They are so large in number and they come from so many quarters that without entertaining a huge staff it cannot be managed.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Is it a fact that the sources of these vegetable seeds are other than India?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Not all; but most of them. But what has that got to do with this?

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Has the Government any large scale scheme for increasing the production of vegetables this year?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, Government has taken as a matter of fact 3,000 acres of land on which to grow vegetables.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, answer is being given to Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury's question while I am on my legs.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But why should you be on your legs then? You should wait.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: I caught your eye and you called upon me and therefore I put my question. My question is this: Is it not a fact that in spite of this huge staff being employed by the Department of Civil Supplies Government have not been able to stop the surreptitious removal of stocks and black markets?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, to a large extent it has been stopped.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: In reply to a supplementary question of Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury the Hon'ble Minister has said that Government has acquired about 3,000 acres of land for the cultivation of vegetables: are we to take it then that the Government is going to supply vegetables to the civil population in future?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, but a major portion of it will go to the military; the point is that unless the military is supplied in this way, it will encroach upon the requirements of the civil population: that is why they too will have to be supplied with them.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: How much will the Government of Bengal get from the military for supplying out of 3,000 acres that are proposed to be acquired?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The arrangement is that the military will purchase at the cost rate: Government will only supervise: that is all.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Is the scheme for the production of vegetables for the military a scheme entirely run and organised by the military with the assistance of the staff of the Government of Bengal?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: There are two separate schemes: one is an exclusively military scheme with which we have no connection: the military have their own supervising agency and they are getting their own seeds and they are getting the lands cultivated by themselves, that is, by their own arrangement. We have nothing to do with that scheme, except now and then to offer assistance and advice, if asked for. There is another scheme according to which if Government found that in spite of the military having their own scheme they are coming to the civil markets, that is, encroaching on the civilian markets, we have decided that we must grow sufficient vegetables for the military so that they may no longer encroach on the civilian markets. That is the scheme about which I was speaking. We have got about 3,000 acres of land which are being cultivated through cultivators the products of which will go to the military mainly and the remaining portion will be for the use of the civil population.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Arising out of answer (iv), the Hon'ble Minister says that the following are the causes "stoppage of supply from adjoining provinces owing to embargo placed on exports" and so on. Does the Hon'ble Minister mean to say that vegetables are imported from the neighbouring provinces such as Bihar, United Provinces, Orissa and Assam?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, potatoes come from Assam and from Bihar and there are other vegetables also which come from Bihar and Assam.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if he is satisfied that after his scheme of the cultivation of 3,000 acres comes into operation the military will not encroach upon the markets of the civil population?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I think encroachment on the Calcutta market will be very little.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what is the net amount of vegetables that is available in Calcutta and Bengal out of which the military necessity is met to what extent and what is released to the civil population?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: It is not possible to say that.

(Question's over.)

Point of Information.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, before we take up the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, may I refer to a vital problem with which we are confronted—

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, if every day this sort of things go on, the regular business of the House—

(Interruption from the Opposition Benches.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. What is the problem, Rai Bahadur? I do not think it is proper to allow these things to go on every day. Yesterday I allowed you to mention about milk. If every day you bring in a new question you should do it in a proper way.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, yesterday's proceedings have become null and void and unless I mention about the milk problem today—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Oh, is it about the milk problem? I thought it was about meat. Yes, please go on.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: What I was saying is this: before we take up the business set down in the order paper today, may I refer to a vital problem with which we are confronted I mean the supply of milk in the mufussil and Calcutta and suburbs in particular. The situation has become almost critical in view of the scarcity of milk. Is it due to high death-rate of cattle or to some other causes? Has the Hon'ble Minister made any enquiry in the matter and will he make a statement at the earliest possible opportunity?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, I am prepared to make a statement within a week.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: In this connection I would request the Hon'ble Minister to refer to the report published in today's Amrita Bazar Patrika regarding the statement made by Sm. Kamala Devi—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Any suggestion or advice that you want to offer, you had better send it personally to the Hon'ble Minister.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, from our side of the House I object to Rai Bahadur's suggestion—

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, I have an adjournment motion regarding fish problem and industry. Sir, the zoological scholars—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I have carefully gone through your adjournment motion, Mr. Roy Chowdhury. Although I have some sympathy with you, unfortunately I cannot give my consent to your adjournment motion—

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, may I explain the position?

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is no use explaining the position to me, because I tell you why: your adjournment motion almost amounts to a recommendation and is in the nature of a resolution. Your motion raises two issues. Firstly, you object to Government's advertising for special officers and you suggest the purchase of motor launches. These are the two things which should exactly be the subject-matter of a resolution. Secondly, the subject of your motion is a matter which has been undertaken by Government in the ordinary course of administration. Lastly, I do not think it is a matter of sufficient urgency.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, may I be permitted to speak on the question of urgency?

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, an atmosphere has been created in this House to do all other work or business except the business which we are doing.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, as regards urgency—

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I suggest one thing, Mr. Roy Chowdhury? You put a short notice question regarding this matter or a motion under section 96?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: If the Hon'ble Minister promises to answer the short-notice question, then I may give notice—

Mr. PRESIDENT: You better send the short-notice question. I shall admit it and shall then make it over to the Hon'ble Minister. What is the good of extracting a promise beforehand?

Sitting hours of the Council.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, I wanted to speak about the extension of the sitting hours of the Council. This taxation Bill is with us for a pretty long time and the Ramzan is approaching. The difficulties of the honourable members who come from mofussil and who will have to fast during the Ramzan will be tremendous. If they stay in Calcutta during the fasting period, they will have to suffer great inconvenience with regard to food and other things. I am speaking on behalf of myself and on behalf of the Muslim members here. Moreover, when the Assembly could sit for longer hours, there is no reason why we, a much smaller House, could not sit for longer period. Therefore, we should so arrange our business that we might be able to finish the Bill before the Ramzan.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, yesterday the Chief Minister also made the same suggestion that we must finish the Bill before the Ramzan—

Mr. PRESIDENT: This is not a new proposal. When we decided to sit 45 minutes more than we were previously sitting, I informed the House that if we did not make sufficient progress within a limited period of time, we might have to sit much longer in view of the approaching Ramzan month, because many Muslim members would find it extremely difficult to stay in Calcutta and discharge their religious duties during the Ramzan. So, I would appeal to the good sense of the House to accommodate each other and agree to sit longer hours.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, the Bill might be taken up after the Ramzan.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That cannot be done. Legislative business cannot be postponed to suit the convenience of certain members. So, I suggest—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: May I submit, Sir, that the Bill is making a very good progress—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid, not. That is a view with which you must agree with me. In fact, we have discussed only half the number of amendments in so many days' time. So, if we go on in this way we shall not be able to finish the Bill before the Ramzan which, I believe, will commence from the 20th of this month. (Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Immediately followed by the Puja holidays.) Yes, that is another difficulty. Therefore, you must agree to accommodate your colleagues. This is a matter in which there must be reciprocity and mutual accommodation; otherwise it would be impossible to discharge the duties in this House. In the circumstances, I propose—

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, before you decide, may we make our submission?

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: The position is that they are suggesting that during Ramzan they cannot possibly stay on in Calcutta. We know last year the Muslim members attended a very important session of the Legislative Assembly during the Ramzan. I cannot understand the logic of the members of the other side when they say that during Ramzan they cannot stay on here in Calcutta. They can do everything except coming to the meeting here. Then again, it is a very important measure and Government is determined to carry it through and it will be very difficult to do the same without the co-operation from every side of the House. It is for you to decide any way, but this is our position.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, with regard to the difficulties of Muslim members I appreciate it more than Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury. I think the mofussil members are more subjected to trouble than town members. The convenience of Calcutta members is allowed to dominate over the mofussil members. Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury earns a living in Calcutta and it is for their convenience that we have to begin work at 2-15 p.m. I suggest that we should begin at 10 or 10-30 a.m., adjourn for lunch and then begin again and adjourn at 4 or 4-30 p.m. This will be highly convenient to mofussil members.

Mr. FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: In reply to what my friend Khan Sahib Wahiduzzaman has said, I would like to say, Sir, that it is the grievance of the mofussil members which has been brought to your notice unofficially. They have never been away from their homes for seven months at this time of the year. Having lived for seven months away from home at this extraordinary time of hardships and difficulties, it is only natural that the mofussil members should feel inclined to go away from Calcutta to perform the ensuing Ramzan festival in due manner. It is not the question of the members' doing work during the Ramzan. The circumstances have totally changed and therefore it should be taken notice of as a special case.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I have Government views on the question?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: It is the Opposition members who are saying that this Bill should not have retrospective effect; but if the passage of the Bill is delayed as now proposed by them, the retrospective effect will be for a longer period. After the Bill has been passed, the assent of the Governor will have to be obtained and after that, assessment will have to be made and the assesseses will have to be properly informed. So Government must get sufficient time to make assessment and to inform the people so that they may be in a position to pay their taxes within the year. In the circumstances, it is absolutely necessary that the Bill should be got through as quickly as possible. It cannot be postponed till after the Ramzan. It must be finished before Ramzan.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Laidlaw, may I have your views in the matter?

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: Well, Sir, I quite agree that taken as a body we have got to do a certain thing, if possible, by a certain time. There may be a section that wants to delay things deliberately. Nevertheless, taking the body of members as a whole, public opinion about this House must be very poor, indeed. I can safely say that inside the House without the risk of being in contempt. The fact remains that the House has been given a job to do which it is not doing. Now, Sir, there was an opportunity yesterday and an example yesterday. Well, it was perfectly possible, I think, to smooth over the little mistake which happened; but instead of doing that, I conceive the whole two hours' work was washed out for nothing at all—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: It was the decision of the Chair to do so.

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: I think it was a recommendation which the House could accept or not. Well, my view is that we should do our best.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I am sorry that Mr. Laidlaw referred to the proceedings of yesterday in that way—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, without referring to what Mr. Laidlaw has said you had better give your suggestion, if any.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, with regard to the waste that has been charged against the members of the Opposition, I think, we are entitled to answer that charge. As regards his remark that the public has got a poor idea of the business of this House, I must say that so far as this Bill is concerned it is up to us to explain the matter a little more clearly.

The existing arrangement, we understood, was going to be adhered to, and so far as the business of the House is concerned we have practically disposed of about 35 clauses. As a matter of fact, there were some adjournment motions which we could not help moving, because they were urgent matters and you allowed them to be moved in this House. I do not think any objection can be raised with regard to that matter. There are only about 20 clauses remaining, and as was pointed out by my friend that when even last year business could be carried on during Ramzan, we do not know why business cannot be carried on this year during Ramzan without increasing the hours of work to the inconvenience of the members of this House. We will meet the objections of the members of the Government with regard to the time during the Ramzan. We are willing to accommodate them so far as the period of Ramzan is concerned, if we cannot finish the Bill by the 20th of August, but at present, I submit, there is no occasion for discussing this matter. Let us proceed with the business for another week and after that the question can be raised.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: The question that we have to discuss is the duration of the sitting. Two arguments have been advanced in order to increase hours of sitting. One is that we have had a very long session and the other is that the Bill must be finished by a particular date as many members of the mofussil desire to go home by that date. The question of Ramzan was brought up but not pressed very much, because as was pointed out by Khan Sahib Wahiduzzaman from this side of the House, it is an obligation on a Mussalman not to allow Ramzan to interfere with his normal duties. In fact, it is one of the conditions of the fast that the person must carry on his normal duties, and if he pleads that on account of fasting he has not been able to carry on his normal duties, the merit of the fast will not be recognised. This point seems to have been admitted by the Khan Sahib (Khan Sahib Fariduddin Ahmad) of the other side and that is why he did not press this point. He said that they would go home and begin a new life; I do not know, Sir, what a new life means and what he means to imply thereby.

There are two other substantial reasons advanced for longer sitting: one is that there has been a long session and it is quite natural for members to desire to go home. The other is that the other House, namely, the Assembly, sits for longer periods. With regard to the first point, it is true that we have had a long session but that is precisely the reason why hours should not be increased. The effect thereof is that we are now a tired House; every member is tired and the House can be said to have gone stale, having sat for 6 months. Then, again, while dealing with an important Bill of this nature, it is not at all desirable to hurry it through. This sort of hurry will have an undesirable effect on the Bill as a whole.

Then, Sir, with regard to the point that another place, namely, the Assembly, sits for longer hours, I would suggest for your consideration this point. Firstly, there are 250 members in that House and its size is about five times the size of this House. Therefore, even by the simple rule of arithmetic members there have much less time to give to the business of the House than is done here. With a House of 65 members, and sitting for two hours, the obligation upon every member is far greater than in a House of 250 members. It would not be too much for that House if it sat for 6 hours. I want to draw your attention to another point, namely, that it is because the other place hurried through the measure that this Bill has been found to be so defective. Government themselves have admitted that there are drafting mistakes of a serious nature. The Bill was considered in the other House more in passion than in reason. It was hurried through in a manner which made it impossible for them to consider the clauses of the Bill calmly. I would also mention that you, Sir, have increased the sitting hours of this House from two to two and three-quarters of an hour. Previously, this House has indeed sometimes sat for three hours but to ask the House to sit beyond three hours would be to impose a great strain; especially in view of the fact that all these three hours are taken up in Government business. The answering of questions has been cut to the minimum. On most of the days, there are no questions or if there are any, they do not take more than half an hour at the most. If we have a three hours' sitting daily, and this House has sometimes done so in the past, but only on very rare occasions, that is about the limit which I think members of this House can be asked to bear.

As for my friend, Mr. Laidlaw, I think he does not mind sitting for longer hours because his party does not take part in the proceedings or deliberations of this House; they do not care to reply to the debate but they come here merely to record their votes. They might as well take their seats somewhere outside and do their business and come in only when the division bell rings. They should not therefore be considered at all. So far as the question of the sitting hours of the House is concerned, it is only the members on this side of the House who are concerned. It is they who are taking part in the discussion and trying to give it a proper shape. (Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury attempted to speak) Sir, I have almost finished. It is those members of the House who are taking an active and creative part in shaping the Bill that are to be heard. All others concerned, who are here for voting only without giving any reason or argument for the clauses, they need not be heard. The European group here is a prosperous community; they can send their deputies to do their business for them with the assistance of qualified persons and such persons are not wanting. But we have to do both our legislative work and other work by ourselves and we have to apply our minds to the legislative work as well as to our own work—

MR. PRESIDENT: Any new point, Mr. Chowdhury?

MR. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: May I suggest that if the Opposition is anxious about discussing the merits of the Bill properly let them sit longer hours. They cannot have it both ways—adjournment motions and other things and at the same time sit only for the scheduled time—

(Interruptions from the Opposition.)

MR. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I have heard you sufficiently Mr. Chowdhury. I have listened to the opinions of the members belonging to different groups of the House. I think we all agree that the Agricultural Income-tax Bill being the principal business, and an important taxation measure and as the House has been sitting for nearly seven months, it is desirable that we should come to a conclusion of our business. I believe there is no difference of opinion on this point. I think at the same time it is desirable that the Opposition which is trying to improve the Bill should be given sufficient facilities and opportunities to do so. Government on the other hand are opposing every amendment put forward by the Opposition; so it is their responsibility and they will have to face the Opposition. At the same time, it is the duty of the Chair to see that the business of the House proceeds and comes to a conclusion within a reasonable time. We cannot go on discussing this Bill for months. On this point I appreciate what has been said by Mr. Laidlaw about the public opinion outside. We are not carrying on the business with sufficient expedition. I think without curtailing the opportunities that should be offered to the Opposition, we should start sitting longer hours. My suggestion is that from next week we sit up to 7 o'clock—

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, we cannot sit up to 7 o'clock.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, we cannot agree for longer hours.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. This I do specially in view of the fact that Ramzan is approaching—

(Interruptions from the Opposition.)

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, you are inviting obstruction—

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: The Bill may go on till after the Ramzan, but we cannot sit longer hours—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, you did not hear the opinion of the Congress group at all.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Have you anything to say?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Yes, but I was not given an opportunity.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Why did you not rise in time? I have given my suggestion to sit upto 7 o'clock.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I also rose to say something in reply to what Mr. Laidlaw said about public opinion outside and about the business of the House, but you gave your decision without allowing me to have my say—(interruptions from the Opposition Benches.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I asked all the leaders of groups to speak—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a point of privilege of the House, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is your point of privilege?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: The point of privilege is that I wanted to speak in reply to Mr. Laidlaw's remarks about the manner in which the business of the House is going on and the opinion thereon of the public outside, and this privilege was not given to me and I was throttled in this way. You did not allow me to have my say and you gave your ruling on the point without hearing us.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid you have misunderstood me. Have I referred to Mr. Laidlaw's proposition?

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Yes, Sir, you did make a reference to what Mr. Laidlaw said—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Yes, Sir, you did refer to it: I say you did. Let the shorthand notes taken down by the official reporters be read out—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, the public outside has a right to judge—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, we are representatives of the public. We represent the public in this House and we know that the public have no such idea as Mr. Laidlaw has said and I think he has nothing to do with that.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am very sorry. What I meant was that the public outside has a right to judge what progress we have been making with this Bill here.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, the newspaper reports say that we are making progress—(There was uproar in the House.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order, you should not introduce heat in the matter.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, here on this side of the House there are Muslim members who do not want to go home during the Ramzan. (Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: They are not Muslims.)

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, Khan Sahib Fariduddin Ahmad says we are not Muslims. I challenge the statement. He must withdraw it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Sahib, will you please withdraw the statement?

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: I did not say they are not Muslims. Mr. Lalit Chandra Das was mispronouncing the word "Muslim". He was saying "Maslim". So I said they are not Maslim.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Please withdraw the statement.

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: All right, Sir, I withdraw the statement.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, the mofussil members want to go home but they have already gone home 6 times. There were six long adjournments. It is not a continuous sitting for six months.

Mr. PRESIDENT: However, we must sit longer hours.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: We are not going to sit longer.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, don't you realise how difficult it would be for us to stay here from 2 to 7 p.m. and make speeches?

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, their duty is to come here and utter nonsense.

(At this there was tremendous uproar in the House. Opposition members took objection to this word "nonsense".)

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, he must withdraw the word. He has no right to say that.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: We strongly protest against this word.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, he should withdraw the word at once.

Mr. SACHINDRA NARAYAN SANYAL: It is very bad indeed. He should not say that. He must withdraw it.

(Cries of "withdraw", "withdraw" and "get out" from the Opposition Benches.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury, you must withdraw the word at once.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, they should first withdraw the words that we come here and only vote.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, the other side is only carrying out the mandates of the Government as servants.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: That is all right.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Huq Chowdhury, you must not use the word "nonsense". It is the privilege of the Opposition to criticise the Government. It is their duty.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, has he withdrawn the word?

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: I am not going to withdraw the word unless they withdraw the words that we come here only to vote.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Chowdhury, in the interest of peace and dignity of the House you should withdraw the word.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: All right, Sir, I withdraw it on the ground that they withdraw theirs.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That may be taken as withdrawn.

Now, let us proceed with the business of the House.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, what about the sitting hours?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I accept Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad's suggestion and let there be a compromise that we sit up to 6 o'clock.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 36 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 36 of the Bill, for the words "objects to" in line 1, the words "disagrees with" be substituted.

I submit, Sir, that the words "objects to" are inappropriate to the text and the words "disagrees with" would be better. I hope the Hon'ble Minister will accept the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (2) of clause 36 of the Bill, for the words "objects to" in line 1, the words "disagrees with" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I think the word as appears in the Bill is more appropriate. The words "objects to" are in accordance with the Income-tax Act. Here the Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax is a party and not an appellate court. Just as an assessee has got the right to object and not to disagree, so the Commissioner of Income-tax has the right to disagree. The phrase as it stands is more appropriate.

The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 36 of the Bill, for the words "objects to" in line 1, the words "disagrees with" be substituted.

The motion was being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

AYES—18.

Khan Bahadur Nazimuddin Ahmad.
Rai Bahadur K. C. Banerji.
Mr. S. C. Chakraverti.
Mr. K. A. Chowdhury.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—18, and the "Noes" being—23, the amendment is negatived.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: May I rise on a point of privilege of the House, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, what is it about?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: It is about the economising of our time. I propose that yesterday's business need not be repeated. I have authority to show that—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think there can be any discussion as to this, Khan Bahadur. Yesterday's decision was the unanimous decision of the House, and I am not prepared to re-open it.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I do not mean to re-open it. I would only refer you to section 66 (3) of the Government of India Act.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You are referring to section 66 (3) of the Government of India Act, 1935. I know that, Khan Bahadur. But we must go by the rules of this House; we cannot frame rules and at the same time not abide by them.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: That would save a lot of time, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I know that section very well. But unfortunately there is some amount of anomaly between our rules and this section. So long as the rules are there, we must follow them. So you need not discuss that point again.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move that in sub-clause (4) of clause 36 of the Bill, for the word "twenty-five" in line 4, the word "ten" be substituted.

Sir, sub-section (4) of clause 36 runs thus: "An appeal to the Appellate Tribunal shall be in the prescribed form and shall be verified in the prescribed manner, and shall, except in the case of an appeal referred to in sub-section (2) be accompanied by a fee of twenty-five rupees."

Now, my amendment aims at reducing that amount from Rs. 25 to Rs. 10. Rupees 25 seems to me to be too high an amount to be imposed for filing any appeal. It is prohibitive or rather exorbitant and therefore harsh and unconscionable. Section 34(1) proviso says: "provided that no appeal shall lie against an order under sub-section (1) of section 45 unless the agricultural income-tax has been paid." The condition precedent to the filing of an appeal against the tax imposed upon an assessee is that he must pay the whole amount of the agricultural income-tax before the appeal can be filed and after that again to ask him to pay on his memorandum of appeal a court-fee of Rs. 25 seems to me to be too heavy and this amount therefore should be reduced to Rs. 10. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved:

That in sub-clause (4) of clause 36 of the Bill, for the word "twenty-five" in line 4, the word "ten" be substituted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I rise to support the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. I would like to point out that the right of appeal has been given to an assessee under sub-clause (4) and the prescribed fee is Rs. 25. If we now refer to the schedule itself and consider the schedule and the amount of the tax that is levied on individuals, we will find that on the first Rs. 3,500 there is no agricultural income-tax to be levied. A man having an agricultural income of Rs. 5,000 and no other income will have to be taxed on the basis of Rs. 1,500 as the amount on which the tax is to be assessed. I have calculated the figure for Rs. 1,500 at the rate of nine pies in the rupee, and it comes to about Rs. 24. I speak subject to correction, but the figure comes to about Rs. 24. Suppose, these small agriculturists, who are not liable to be taxed for some reason or other are assessed by the agricultural income-tax officer, want to get exemption of the assessment of Rs. 24. The clause provides that he must pay a fee of Rs. 25 on the memorandum of appeal before his appeal is to be heard. I do not think a more absurd proposition has ever been mooted on the floor of this House so far as agricultural income-tax is concerned. I would remind the Hon'ble Leader of the House, who has now practically taken charge of the Bill, to remember that we are now considering the case of the agricultural population of Bengal with an income of over Rs. 1,500. If the income is Rs. 1,600, then he will be liable to pay as income-tax the sum of Rs. 100 and for that he has to pay a fee of Rs. 25 for memorandum of appeal. The Leader of the House will, I am sure, take recourse to the Indian Income-tax Act and say that as in the Indian Income-tax Act the minimum fee is Rs. 100, he finds justification in providing for this small sum of Rs. 25 for the agricultural population of Bengal as the amount which the assessee has to pay for his memorandum of appeal. I would only refer the Leader of the House to his own statement made in the Flood Commission Report with regard to the condition of the agricultural population of Bengal. I would request him to look up the Report once again and consider what he said then. I do not know whether he has changed his mind now and has got some inflated idea of the conditions of the agriculturists of Bengal. The Leader of the House should consider the fact that so far as the tax assessed under the Indian Income-tax Act is concerned, the people pay this tax on their earning and sometimes on their income over and above the income which most people have from agriculture proper—the landed properties. Therefore, any provision with regard to the appeal there may not be a hardship to the people concerned. Here we are concerned with the agricultural population. These people hardly have enough money left after meeting their requirements to pay the tax even. So it is very difficult for them to pay any extra sum. As a matter of fact, these people who are liable to be taxed—they ought to be given more facilities for proving their case. I am only pleading for the poorer classes of the people and not the richer classes who can pay Rs. 25 and more than that. If you lay down a graduated scale of fees, we have no objection. With these words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN:

Sir, the corresponding fee for filing appeal under the Indian Income-tax Act is Rs. 100. But here it is only Rs. 25. My honourable friend Mr. Mukherji refers to the Flood Commission Report, but he forgets that our recommendation there was assessment on incomes of Rs. 1,000 and above; here it is Rs. 3,500 and by this not even one per cent. of the agriculturists will be touched. It is only the richer agriculturists who will be touched and they can well afford to deposit Rs. 25 to file an appeal.

With these few words, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in sub-clause (4) of clause 36 of the Bill, for the word "twenty-five" in line 4, the word "ten" be substituted.

The motion being put, a Division was challenged.

(While the Division bell was ringing.)

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, may I draw your attention to the canvassing done by the Hon'ble the Agriculture Minister in the House?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—19, and "Noes" being—23, the amendment is negatived.

Clause 36.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 36 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 37.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 37 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (3) of clause 37 of the Bill, for the word "twenty-five" in line 2, the word "ten" be substituted.

Sir, this clause 37 of the Bill deals with the power of revision by Commissioner. Sir, sub-clause (3) of this clause runs as follows: "Every application by an assessee under sub-section (2) shall be accompanied by a fee of twenty-five rupees." Sir, I want that in the case of a revision petition the fee of Rs. 25 should be reduced to Rs. 10. My friend, the Leader of the House, was telling us that it would not affect the poorer agriculturists at all. But after all it will affect the agriculturists who shall have to pay income-tax. Possibly, he has forgotten what I said in connection with my previous amendment relating to clause 36. There is a condition precedent to an appeal and that condition precedent is that agricultural income-tax has got to be paid down in full. When that has been provided for and when the money that the assessee will have to pay is in the Government Treasury already, why should Government be at all harsh in imposing a restraint upon the rights of the parties to go to the Appellate Court or to ask for revision by the Commissioner. It is a prohibitive fee and so this fee of Rs. 25 should be reduced to Rs. 10. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (3) of clause 37 of the Bill, for the word "twenty-five" in line 2, the word "ten" be substituted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the amendment that has been moved by my friend Mr. Das. I fail to see, Sir, why this heavy sum of Rs. 25 has been provided for a revision application by an assessee before the Commissioner. I think the Hon'ble the Leader of the House knows that even the High Court demands Rs. 10 for a revision application in cases in which the valuation is above Rs. 1,000 and in cases in which the valuation of the property is below Rs. 1,000 the High Court demands only a fee of Rs. 5. I find the Leader of the House raises the status of the Commissioner of Income-tax to more than the status of a High Court Judge by demanding Rs. 25 as fee for a revision application to be filed before the Commissioner for the purpose of revising the decision of the Appellate Tribunal. As a matter of fact, possibly the Leader of the House wanted that through the agricultural income-tax he not only should realise money in the shape of income-tax but also a large sum in the shape of court-fees on memorandum of appeal and also on revision petition. This is an additional burden which is going to be levied upon the poor assessee. In connection with an earlier amendment under clause 36 he said that he was not going to hit the poorer section of the agriculturists. I do not know what his idea is with regard to the poorer section. We are not dealing with the poorer section. We are dealing here with the middle-class people and my submission is that it is the middle-class people who will be hard hit by the provision of the Income-tax Act when we know the methods which have been indicated in the Bill with regard to the assessment of the tax. There is sure to be a large number of cases because in the first instance agricultural officers will have to—I am not dealing with the landlords who have got income in money value but I am dealing with the lower middle class agriculturists who have got to depend on their produce. Now, Sir, various systems have been indicated in the clauses of the Bill to ascertain the amount of produce and the value of the produce and other methods for the purpose of arriving at a proper figure with regard to the income of a person. I think it would be found that most of them are defective and a large number of cases are sure to crop up with regard to assessment of these lower middle class people who are agriculturists and who depend upon the produce of their land. As a matter of fact, we have heard the Honourable the Leader of the House who is in charge of the Agriculture Department that even with the huge Government machinery in hand they have not been able to ascertain the correct figure with regard to the produce in this province. He has got to incur expenditure for a large staff for the purpose and the Government of India has imposed a duty on this Government in order that the produces of the province might be determined more correctly and more accurately. In reply to a question which I put on the floor of the House the Agriculture Minister had to say that he has not been able to determine the produce of the province with reference to the yield of each bigha of land and with regard to the classes of land. The estimate they have produced is mere guess work and I suppose this guess work is going to be followed in the Assessment Department as well and followed with vengeance. In order that the officers concerned might be able to show that they have been able to assess a large amount of agricultural income-tax, there will be competition amongst the agricultural income-tax officers to net a large number of assessors. It is these middle class people who will need relief and will have to come to the Commissioner and the Appellate Tribunal; sometimes we get relief only when the revisionary authority is approached. Sometimes we do not get any relief from the appellate officers while Tribunals, who are above the atmosphere of the Assessment Department, sometimes consider the objections more favourably and reduce the tax. If you demand Rs. 25 for the appellate court and another Rs. 25 for the revisional court, it means that so far the people are going to be taxed from Rs. 25 to Rs. 75 or more and they will not therefore go to the appellate court. For who will throw away good money after bad on the off-chance of getting relief from the appellate or revisionary officer? It means surely that you are going to close the door to appeal or revision and compel them to pay an assessment of Rs. 25 or Rs. 75 without any chance of obtaining any relief of their grievance by way of revision. In this view, I support the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support the amendment. The question is whether you should put a higher fee or a smaller fee for a revision to Commissioner. The Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Bill says that in the Indian Income-tax Act the fee is Rs. 100. The analogy is not quite apt, because under the Indian Income-tax Act the man affected earns lakhs and lakhs and even crores of rupees. So in his case the fee of Rs. 100 is nothing. Here we are dealing with the poorer section of the agricultural population and in my opinion the best fee would have been a graduated scale depending on the amount of assessment which is under objection. That would have been more equitable; but, in the absence of that, we should prescribe a moderate fee. With regard to the richer classes, I have nothing to say, but with regard to men of moderate means, who will be affected by this provision, the condition of payment of a higher fee would be a hardship. In fact, the effect of the rejection of this amendment would be to make justice a costly affair. I think Rs. 10 would be a reasonable sum. The question is: whether you are going to give justice to all. As it is a new tax, which requires adjustment of one's income so far as the middle classes are concerned, I think a fee of Rs. 10 is sufficient. This taxation Bill is the thin end of the wedge. I do not think that the rate of tax which has been provided will be the limit. This fee has been prescribed in anticipation of a higher tax in the future. In the early stages, there will be many revisions to settle difficult or doubtful points and the rate should therefore be lower.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, this is nothing new. Even in the Indian Income-tax Act Rs. 25 has been fixed as the deposit money necessary for a revision application. The analogy of the High Court does not hold good. Agricultural income-tax is a sort of income-tax and so the analogy of the Income-tax Act should apply here and not of High Court. As regards the point that it will be difficult for the poorer people to pay the fee, I have already said that this Bill does not at all touch the poorer agriculturists. As a matter of fact, owners of lands up to 100 bighas have been exempted. No enquiry will be made in regard to them. Only the richer agriculturists, whose number will be not even 1 per cent., will be taxed. I do not understand why the Opposition always brings in this question of poor agriculturists.

With these few words, I beg to oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is:

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being 20, and the "Noes" 23, the amendment is negatived.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 37 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 38.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 38 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: I beg to move: That in sub-clause 38 of the Bill, for the words "four years" wherever they occur, the words "three years" be substituted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause 38 of the Bill, for the words "four years" wherever they occur, the words "three years" be substituted.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, a similar amendment stands in my name—amendment No. 298.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You can speak on this amendment.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It is a different clause.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Do you propose to speak on this?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: No, Sir.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The period allotted in section 34 of the Indian Income-tax Act is one year; but in this Bill the time allotted is four years. It has been deliberately done. There is no reason to reduce it further. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (1) of clause 38 of the Bill, for the words "four years" wherever they occur, the words "three years" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 38 of the Bill, the words "of this section" in line 2 be deleted.

Sir, this is a drafting amendment, and so obviously fair that it should be accepted at once. By the Bengal General Clauses Act, certain conventions have been established. The expression used in the context is "sub-section (1) of this section". The words "of this section" are redundant and unnecessary. Under the Bengal General Clauses Act, section 3, sub-section (43), "sub-section (1)" means "sub-section (1) of this section". The conventions of the Bengal General Clauses Act has been followed throughout except at this place. These words are not necessary and they should be eliminated. Otherwise, there will be no use in passing a General Clauses Act like this. The Bengal General Clauses Act is on line with the Indian General Clauses Act and also the Interpretation Act which is the corresponding Act in the United Kingdom. With these words, I submit my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved that in sub-clause (2) of clause 38 of the Bill, the words "of this section" in line 2 be deleted.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The amendment will make the Act more misleading, because there is another reference in the same section to section 25 just before it. If sub-section (1) of this section is not definitely stated, it may be taken to be sub-section (1) of section 25. So in order to make that clear and set the matter at rest, I think they should stand. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that in sub-clause (2) of clause 38 of the Bill, the words "of this section" in line 2 be deleted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 38 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 39.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 39 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (1) of clause 39 of the Bill, for the word "four" wherever it occurs, the word "three" be substituted.

Sir, when I rose last time I made a mistake. My friend Mr. Haridas Majumdar's amendment related to clause 38 of the Bill and it was in connection with income escaping assessment. But my present amendment relates to clause 39 of the Bill and it relates to rectification of a mistake. Section 39 of the Bill lays down that "the Commissioner may at any time within four years from the date of any order passed by him in revision under section 37, the Appellate Tribunal or the Assistant Commissioner may, at any time within four years from the date of any order passed by it or him on appeal and the Agricultural Income-tax Officer may, at any time within four years from the date of any assessment order or refund order passed by him, on his own motion rectify any mistake apparent from the record of the revision, appeal, assessment or refund, as the case may be, and within the like period rectify any such mistake which has been brought to his notice by an assessee."

I want that this period of four years be reduced to three years for the rectification of the mistake. Four years seems to me too long a time. It has, besides, its own dangers also. It lays down that even if within these four years something happens, the Commissioner or the Assistant Commissioner may revise and increase the assessment or reduce the assessment of the assessee. The period seems to me too long and therefore it should be reduced at least to three years and whatever mistake may be made it should be corrected and set right within three years.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (1) of clause 39 of the Bill, for the word "four" wherever it occurs, the word "three years" be substituted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I rise to support the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. I think it is a very reasonable amendment and it should be accepted by the House. Four years is a long time from the judgment of the Commissioner or the Appellate Tribunal and the time should be accordingly reduced to three years as proposed in the amendment. In respect of clause 38 a similar amendment had been negatived but that was an altogether different clause and this clause stands on another footing. Therefore, I submit that the period of four years should be reduced to three years.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The period of four years is allowed for the rectification of errors in the Indian Income-tax Act and this Bill because it is a taxation measure follows the Indian Income-tax Act. So I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 39 of the Bill, for the word "four" wherever it occurs the word "three" be substituted.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

(Before the members went to their respective lobbies.)

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, before we go to record our votes, I may bring to your notice that the Hon'ble Chief Minister has detained Rai Bahadur Radhika Bhushan Roy. Will you kindly make enquiries as to whether he is being detained by the Chief Minister or not—

Clause 41.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 41 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Sir, I beg to move: That in clause 41 of the Bill, the words "The Agricultural Income-tax Officer," in lines 1 and 12 be deleted.

Sir, if clause 41, as it now stands, is allowed to remain, the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall have the same powers as are vested in a court under the Code of Civil Procedure and all proceedings started before them shall be judicial proceedings. But, Sir, I think that in all fairness the Agricultural Income-tax Officers should under no circumstances exercise any judicial power. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister after his conversion to the new faith is going to embody in this Act a principle against which the country is fighting for generations. Sir, we are agitating and very rightly agitating to change the practice, which has prevailed hitherto, of the Executive Officers sitting as Judges, as in most cases the police or the executive is the prosecutor. In this Act the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall be the chief executive officer performing multifarious duties. People of this country will have no faith in the justice administered by such an officer. Therefore, I commend my motion to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 41 of the Bill, the words "The Agricultural Income-tax Officer", in lines 1 and 12 be deleted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I rise to support the amendment that has been moved by Mr. Amulvadhone Roy. If we look, Sir, to clause 41, we find it says: "The Agricultural Income-tax Officer, the Assistant Commissioner and the Appellate Tribunal shall, for the purposes of this Chapter, and the Commissioner shall, for the purposes of section 37, have the same power as are vested in a Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, when trying a suit in respect of the following matters:" Now, so far as the Agricultural Income-tax Officer is concerned, the authorities which are vested in him are mentioned. We have got the Agricultural Income-tax Officer defined in the first instance in section 21. Now if we look to section 21 we find "There shall be the following classes of agricultural income-tax authorities for the purposes of this Act", and there we do not find any officer of the name of Agricultural Income-tax Officer. We wanted to remove this defect by moving an amendment in the first instance to sub-clause (2) of section 21 of the Bill. That amendment was not accepted. There we pointed out that in clause 2 you mentioned certain officers who are not mentioned in clause 21. In 21 we find no officer. It is a Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officer that is mentioned. Here in clause 41 we find Agricultural Income-tax Officer. Unless we delete this clause here and take away the power which was vested in him, there will be some conflict so far as sub-clause (2) of sections 41 and 21 of the Bill is concerned; because it is very difficult to know who are the officers mentioned therein.

Now look to clause 21. There we find "There shall be the following classes of Agricultural Income-tax authorities for the purposes of this Act, namely:—

- (a) the Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax, Bengal;
- (b) the Assistant Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax, Bengal;
- (c) Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officers."

You do not get Agricultural Income-tax Officer in clause 21. Now in clause 41 the Agricultural Income-tax Officer becomes a Court and is vested with powers. What will he do? Where is that authority? He has been defined no doubt in clause 2, but we find none in clause 21. In clause 41 we find the Agricultural Income-tax Officer vested with certain powers. Therefore, it is necessary that the words "The Agricultural Income-tax Officer" be deleted altogether.

There are other objections to which the mover has already referred and I need not repeat them. But I may point out the anomalies in the various clauses which we notice in the Bill and we hope that the Leader of the House will consider them as reasonable so that the Bill might emerge in a perfect shape from this House.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: It follows exactly the provisions of section 37 of the Indian Income-tax Act. The same powers are given to the Income-tax Officer under the Indian Income-tax Act. We do not see why this power should not be given to the Agricultural Income-tax Officer. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is: that in clause 41 of the Bill, the words "The Agricultural Income-tax Officer", in lines 1 and 12 be deleted.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being 20, and the "Noes" 23, the amendment is negatived.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It has been brought to the notice of the Chair by the officer in charge of the lobby that during the last division Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury went out of the lobby and came back and then recorded his vote. Is it not a feat, Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury that you did so?

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Yes, Sir, it is so.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That was irregular. Therefore, his vote cannot be counted and is cancelled.

Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: In respect of which division, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: In respect of the division just preceding this.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: What would then be the result of the voting?

Mr. PRESIDENT: The voting on that division was "Ayes" 20, and "Noes" 23. Therefore, the revised result is "Ayes" 20, "Noes" 22.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in clause 41 of the Bill, for the word "power" in line 4, the word "powers" be substituted.

Sir, in this clause 41, the Commissioner and other officers, namely, the Assistant Commissioner and others have been given the powers of a civil court, to enforce the attendance of any person and examining him on oath or affirmation, compelling the production of documents and issuing commissions for the examination of witnesses, etc. So the correct word should be "powers". The Civil Courts have a variety of powers and these various powers have been conferred upon these officers. As various powers are meant, the word should be in the plural number. Without the amendment the passage reads as follows: "the Agricultural Income-tax Officer, the Assistant Commissioner and the Appellate Tribunal shall for the purpose of this Chapter, and the Commissioner shall, for the purposes of section 37, have the same power as are vested in a Court under the Code of Civil Procedure." With the amendment it will read like this "these officers shall have the same 'powers' as are vested in the Civil Courts, etc." I think this is the stock expression used in similar cases. If it is only one power it should be in the singular number; but when several powers are meant it should be in the plural number. This is a simple question of grammar. I hope the Hon'ble Minister will accept the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 41 of the Bill, for the word "power" in line 4, the word "powers" be substituted.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, I do not know what to speak on this amendment—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Then why did you get up to speak?

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, we have reached a stage where the number is 304 and I have been trying to analyse out of these 304 amendments how many are in connection with making singular a plural and a plural a singular, how many are relating to commas instead of semi-colon and putting comma where there is none. I have not been able, in my effort to find out the exact number. In any case my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin is very painstaking and he is doing a good deal of work in the Legislature and helping in the legislation which is going to benefit the 60 millions of His Majesty's subjects: he never allows an opportunity to slip wherein he can make some improvement. Unfortunately, owing to ignorance of the language in which these legislations are drafted we find it often difficult, sometimes almost impossible, to follow the arguments which my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad advances. We have had the history of a comma already. We had the other day a comma which by accident is bound to create not only a legislative but also a judicial history, as we have been just now told that the judgment delivered over a point of similar nature is that Mr. Justice Ormond found it too difficult a proposition to discuss and to understand and explain—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Chowdhury you should confine your remarks to the amendment before the House.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, the amendment is of a technical nature and I am trying to show how these technical defects that are raised in this House lead us to the next door, the High Court in which Mr. Justice Ormond found it difficult and could not disentangle the situation that has been created by my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad's Herculean effort in introducing a comma into a Legislation involving, Sir, (Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Speak in English) I am reminded by my friend Khan Sahib Wahiduzzaman to speak in English. I have at the outset pleaded ignorance of the English language and I have an imperfect knowledge of that language so that my speech, if you call it a speech at all, will be full of inaccuracies and mistakes mostly of a grammatical nature. However, as I was saying, Sir, these difficulties about these intricate commas, semicolons, singulars and plurals which we often feel here have baffled a Judge of the High Court who has said that it was not possible for him to come to a decision and therefore he has asked his judgment to be placed before the present Acting Chief Justice. Therefore, Sir, it is not wise or prudent for us to neglect the commas and the semi-colons or plurals that are introduced in the legislation by my honourable friend, Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad.

Now, coming to the merits of the case—

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, I propose that the question be now put.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: I submit, Sir, that perhaps my friend does not know what are the procedures that are to be followed in putting a closure motion. It is one of the most difficult problems that faces a Speaker or a President, when he has to put the closure motion. First of all, he has to decide whether the question has been properly discussed—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think you need refer to that matter.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: I am just replying to his point.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Though you are not wasting the time of the House, you are on a dangerous ground now.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: All right, Sir, I shall not follow their guidance but I shall certainly follow yours. Now, Sir, coming to the merits of the motion, he says that in clause 41 for the word "power"—

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: On a point of order, Sir. I submit to you for your consideration whether the members of the Government Benches can pursue a policy which has been very often disapproved by them.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: I want to say a few words. It is not the privilege of one section of the House to behave in a manner which according to them—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I hope every section of the House will behave sensibly and no section of the House should take a particular course of action which may affect the entire House. You will please confine your remarks to the amendment before the House.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, as Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad has said, the word "power" should be changed and the word "powers" should be introduced. His main argument is that as so many officers have been mentioned, namely, the Agricultural Income-tax Officer, the Appellate Tribunal, the Commissioner, etc., the word "power" cannot be used. This reminds me of a student making an application to the Principal of a certain college through the Vice-Principal. When the application reached the Vice-Principal he said "Look at the boy, he does not know grammar." Because, although the application has been addressed to two persons, the word "Sir" is used instead of using the word "Sirs". In the same way, my friend says that when there are three officers, the word "power" should be used in the plural number. But I submit that though it is used in the singular number it should be understood to be in the plural number if necessary—

Mr. PRESIDENT. Mr. Chowdhury, I remember that this morning you were one of the members on the Government side who complained that sufficient progress was not being made with the Bill. But do you realise that the speech that you have made so far is far away from the question before the House?

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, you have certainly heard that very objectionable remarks were made by certain members of the Opposition including Mr. Lalit Chandra Das that we come to this House only to record our votes and that neither do we participate in the debate nor do we follow the precious arguments that are very often advanced by the other side. Therefore, Sir, in order to demonstrate that these are very unjustifiable remarks I have been explaining for the edification of my friends that singular always is included in the plural.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, I have very little to say. Singular includes the plural. My honourable friend always invokes the aid of the General Clauses Act; but if he will refer to that Act, he will find it laid down there that the singular includes the plural. Therefore, I oppose the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Has the Hon'ble Minister's attention been drawn to the verb which is "are"? How can a verb be in the plural, if its nominative is in the singular? The nominative should therefore be in the plural also.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Power may also be used in the plural, just as "Government" is used both in the singular and the plural.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 41 of the Bill, for the word "power" in line 4, the word "powers" be substituted.

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 76.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Monday, the 14th August, 1944, at 2-15 p.m., being the seventy-sixth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62 (2) (a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

Condolence Resolution.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HO3AIN: Sir, it was only a week ago that we mourned the loss of one of our valued colleagues in this House. It is my melancholy duty to rise today again for moving another condolence resolution concerning the death of another of our valued colleagues in this Council. Sir, it is very regrettable that within such a short time we should be losing two of our colleagues. But, Sir, we have no other alternative but to submit to the will of the Almighty.

Khan Bahadur Kazi Abdur Rashid whose death we mourn today was present in the House even on Thursday last. He was suddenly taken ill and succumbed within a few hours. Sir, the Khan Bahadur was a man of enterprising spirit. After graduating, unlike the general run of our young men, he did not hanker after Government services but took to the business of bookseller and publisher and within a few years succeeded in establishing the Bengal Moslem Provincial Library as the premier Moslem Book-selling and Publishing firm in Bengal. His life should be an example to our youngmen who instead of hankering after service should take to business and trade in larger numbers. Sir, he was a man of quiet nature, quite unostentatious in his habits. May his soul rest in peace! Sir, I now move the condolence resolution: This Council records its sense of sorrow at the demise of Khan Bahadur Kazi Abdur Rashid, a sitting member of the House who was a man of amiable disposition, great enterprising spirit and a self-made man.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: this Council records its sense of sorrow at the demise of Khan Bahadur Kazi Abdur Rashid, a sitting member of the House who was a man of amiable disposition, great enterprising spirit, and a self-made man.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, I beg to associate myself with the resolution moved today by the Hon'ble the Leader of the House. Really, Sir, I never imagined that we would have to mourn the loss of another friend within such a short time after losing an honourable colleague of this House only the other day. After all, this is the way of life which is transitory. What I just now hear of him about his enterprising spirit, I hope all our countrymen, the Bengalis, should follow in his footsteps. May his soul rest in peace!

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, on behalf of myself and also on behalf of the party to which I have the honour to belong, I desire to associate ourselves with the resolution of condolence which has been moved by the Hon'ble the Leader of the House. We really never thought that we will have to mourn the loss of another member of the House within so short a time as has been pointed out by the Hon'ble Leader of the House. We desire that our condolence be conveyed to the bereaved family and I trust that you will adjourn the House as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, on behalf of myself and of the party to which I have the honour to belong, I fully associate myself with the resolution regarding the death of Khan Bahadur Kazi Abdur Rashid. The Khan Bahadur was a self-made man and his example should serve as an ideal for our young men. With his death an enterprising man has been taken away prematurely and really it is a pity that in Bengal these people who ought to live for at least four score years should die before achieving many of the things which they set their hands to. We sincerely mourn the loss of a friend and colleague and I associate myself with the remarks which have fallen from the Hon'ble the Leader of the House.

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: Sir, for the second time within a short time it is my melancholy duty to associate my party with the remarks that have fallen from the Leader of the House: in this case, in respect of the death of Khan Bahadur Kazi Abdur Rashid. We are extremely sorry and we extend our condolences to the relatives of the deceased.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, it is really sad to think that Khan Bahadur Kazi Abdur Rashid who was with us only the other day is no more in our midst. Indeed inscrutable are the ways of Providence! As the Leader of the House has said very aptly, he was one of those gentlemen who has not run on the usual track. As a man of business, with all his enterprising spirit and energy he showed the way to our young men how they might succeed in this world by dint of industry and devotion to duty. From an humble beginning he became one of the richest men in Bengal. He has spread his name and fame throughout Bengal and has done really good service by publishing many books on Bengali literature. I whole-heartedly associate myself with the remarks made by the previous speakers about the various qualities of his head and heart.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Sir, I would be failing in my duty if I did not associate myself with the remarks made by the Hon'ble Leader of the House and the previous speakers on this melancholy occasion. It was really a shock to me when I heard that our honourable friend Khan Bahadur Kazi Abdur Rashid was no more. Only on Thursday evening, one or two hours before his death, he was in the Lobby of this House when Khan Sahib Wahiduzzaman along with many of our members were sitting with him. He left the House earlier because he was not feeling well, reached home, said his prayers and died immediately. Born of a respectable Kazi family of Sonargaon in the district of Dacca he had a distinguished career. He graduated in 1917 and started his career as Assistant Headmaster. But he was not the man to rot on the bondage of service. He collected Rs. 5,000 from his friends and admirers and started a library. By dint of hard labour he came to the forefront of the publishing business in course of a few years and made immense fortune. He was a man of charitable disposition and intimately connected with many educational institutions. He was a self-made man and was an example to be emulated by the younger generation who are struggling for a career. He was a charming personality and occupied a prominent position in the social life of Dacca. His death will be mourned not only by the members of this House but by many outside. With these words, I commend the resolution to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR. Sir, I beg to associate myself with the remarks that have fallen from the Leader of the House and other speakers this evening. I had known Khan Bahadur Kazi Abdur Rashid for several years. What was most remarkable in him was his simplicity and unostentatious character. He was, as has been suggested by many members, a perfect gentleman. Indeed, if one talked to him one could never imagine that he was a successful businessman. He was entirely a self-made man, and rose to prominence by dint of his own endeavour. It is a great loss to the province that he should die a premature death; for after all, he was not very old judged by the standard of life in other countries. I am sure that all members of this House will join in expressing deep condolences for his death and in wishing that our sympathies may be extended to the bereaved family.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Before placing the motion before the House, the Chair desires to associate itself with the sense of regret that has been expressed by the members of this House on the loss of another valued colleague in the course of the week. As has been observed by several speakers, Khan Bahadur Kazi Abdur Rashid came from an ancient and aristocratic family of Dacca district. By dint of his merit, he rose in business and as such he was a self-made man. The Khan Bahadur was generous and amiable and he was respected by the members of all communities in the Dacca district. We deeply mourn his loss. I request you gentlemen to signify your assent to the motion by rising in your places.

I believe it is the desire of the honourable members that a message of sympathy and condolence should be sent to the members of the bereaved family.

As a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, the House now stands adjourned till 2-15 p.m. to-morrow.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 2-15 p.m., on Tuesday, the 15th day of August, 1944.

Members absent.

Following members were absent from the meeting held on the 14th August, 1944:—

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 77.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Tuesday, the 15th August, 1944, at 2-15 p.m., being the seventy-seventh day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, with your permission I should like to correct an error which entered into my statement in connection with the position regarding the supply of vegetables. I made a statement in reply to a short-notice question that the area under vegetable for consumption by the military was 3,000 acres but it is not so; it is 1,650 acres which is equivalent to 5,000 bighas. I want to correct this figure accordingly.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Very well; this will go into the official proceedings.

I find that there are no questions for today. So far as I remember, however, some statement was to be made by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Public Health in connection with an adjournment motion which was proposed to be moved the other day. Is the Hon'ble Minister for Public Health going to make that statement?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I am prepared to make a statement on his behalf, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right.

Statement regarding supply of Quinine to Bengal districts.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I welcome this opportunity of making a statement about the supplies of quinine and other anti-malarial drugs to Bengal districts and to tell the House what Government has done to make them as widely and easily available as possible. I should explain here that I am using the word "quinine" to cover all kinds of anti-malarial drugs including cinchona, sepoerine and quinoerine tablets. The Director of Public Health controls the provincial quota of quinine and periodically sends consignments to the Civil Surgeons. Every Civil Surgeon is a rationing authority for his district. He has to allot and distribute quinine but he has to consult the District Public Health Officer regarding local needs and to take the District Magistrate's approval in selecting retail agents for sale or for free distribution. In view of the severity of the present epidemic of malaria, the Civil Surgeons were instructed a month ago to appoint sufficient retail agents to ensure that no one need go more than three or four miles to obtain them, and also to appoint sufficient number of agents for free distribution to persons who cannot afford to buy it. Quinine is distributed free through every hospital, dispensary, and satellite treatment centres and also through non-official medical relief organisations; but for areas which are too far from any of these sources individual agents are appointed for free distribution. Civil Surgeons have also been instructed to keep proper stocks of quinine in subdivisional jails and to arrange for retail agents to be able to replenish their stocks with the least possible difficulty and inconvenience. The Subdivisional Health Officers have been directed to pay special attention to quinine distribution, to help in every way possible to promote the smooth working of these measures and to inform the Civil Surgeon of any special local want.

In view of the large supplies of quinine sent to districts in the last two months there should be no cause for any part of Bengal to complain that quinine is not available or even that there is a dearth of quinine. But such complaints have been made specially in respect of Chandpur, Munshigunge, Brahmanberia, Kishoregunge and Madaripur. In addition to the stocks held in each of these four districts at the beginning of April in each case between 500 and 1,500 pounds—they have subsequently been supplied with further quantities as follows: Tippera—3,792 lbs. or full doses for 40,000 patients; Dacca—2,800 lbs.; Faridpur—2,983 lbs.; Mymensingh—8,244 lbs. or enough to treat 8 lakhs of persons and more is being sent now to Mymensingh and Tipperah to ensure that they do not run short. Supplies to the rest of the districts are equally ample and will continue to be so. I am placing on the library table a statement to show for all districts in the province the stocks in hand at the beginning of April and the quantities subsequently supplied up to date. The original allotment of quinine to the province for the current year was 120,000 lbs., but with the import of mepacrine tablets this allotment has lately been increased by another 100,000 lbs. In addition, we are asking the Government of India to make available during the coming months as much more mepacrine as possible up to 350,000 lbs.

In the face of these liberal supplies, there should be less temptation to hoard or to work a black market; but nevertheless people should be on their guard to see that their local retail agents do fairly issue to malaria patients all the quinine which they obtain. Each agent has to show daily what is his stock in hand.

If there is a local shortage anywhere it is probably due to ignorance of Government's arrangements for distribution, so that people do not know what they are supposed to be getting, what they should complain about or to whom to make the complaint. Accordingly, orders have been recently issued to district rationing authorities to arrange to publish for general information through schools and other media the names and addresses of all retail agents from where quinine is obtainable and the proper prices to pay. If any malaria-stricken locality is without a retail agent or is short of quinine, information should at once be given or sent to the Civil Surgeon, the District Health Officer or the Subdivisional Health Officer—or, indeed, to any Government officer with a request to pass it on to the Civil Surgeon.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, may we ask some information arising out of the statement of the Hon'ble Minister?

Mr. PRESIDENT: If you want any further information to clear up certain matters you may do it.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please give us an idea of what is the percentage of quinine in the anti-malarial drugs that are now being actually supplied? For example, the Hon'ble Minister has said that in Mymensingh about 8,000 pounds and odd quinine have been supplied: how much of it is really quinine and how much is other type of non-quinine anti-malarial drugs?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have not got that information at present.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: There is another information I want to ask the Hon'ble Minister and that is with regard the scheme of distribution of quinine. We hear that quinine is being distributed sometimes by persons who are absolutely lay men and have no knowledge of medicine, but the claims of those men who have had training for 3 or 4 years in some medical schools are ignored. I want to know whether their services cannot be utilised?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As far as I remember, the claims of trained medical men as such have not been ignored or overlooked or kept down but it may be that in certain cases they may not have been appointed. I may assure the House that I shall look into the matter and see that they are included in the scheme.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I have heard the statement of the Hon'ble Minister but the statement is too general and there is no specific reference at all to the area that has been mentioned in my adjournment motion. My allegation is that there has been a total dearth of quinine in that locality. Sir, a serious situation has arisen due to Government's failure to supply quinine, the total dearth of which, on information received on the 13th August, 1944, is responsible for the havoc caused by malaria which, in its full fury, is taking a toll of numberless people and is causing untold miseries on others in the Burichang and Kasba thanas within the Brahmanbaria subdivision of the district of Tippera. I may mention here what information has been gathered with respect to this. An honourable member of the Bengal Legislative Assembly toured through these two thanas. He says "I visited Mulagram, Kasba, Dharkar, Mohari, Manianda, Badair unions in Kasba thana and Chandla, Brahmanpara, Sasidal and Madhabpur unions in Burichang thana. Everywhere I found the people attacked with malaria. Miseries of the people beggar all description. There are families in which there is no one free from the attack of malaria and there are none to look after them. The people are silently suffering, there being no provision for treatment. There is total dearth of quinine. Not to speak of the poor, even those, who can afford to purchase quinine, cannot have it in the market. Not a grain of quinine is available. The situation calls for immediate attention of the authorities." This statement was published in the newspapers on Sunday, the 13th August, 1944, and the situation is growing worse daily. Will the Government enlighten us as to what immediate steps they have taken with regard to the removal of grievances of the people in these two subdivisions—Kasba and Burichang?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, it is the primary duty of everybody who has a report of this kind to place it before the District Magistrate and also the Civil Surgeon of the affected area and to enquire of them as to what they have done in regard to this matter. The District Magistrate may not have full knowledge of these matters in a particular locality but certainly this matter might be brought to their notice and if after that no steps are taken then it might be matter for complaint.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It is as a complaint that we have given this information to the House by means of an adjournment motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Hon'ble Minister has definitely mentioned Brahmanbaria subdivision in the district of Tippera. He said that sufficient quinine had been given to that district for supplying those areas where there was dearth of quinine. So I think there is no more urgency and I suggest that you might place the facts before him and try to induce him to take further action, if necessary.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: The quinine supplied is not sufficient compared to the havoc caused.

Mr. PRESIDENT: There was sufficient supply of quinine for 400,000 people. It is true that there are 27 lakhs of people but the quinine supplied should meet the need to a large extent. You gave us to understand that there was no quinine supplied by Government.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: In a district where there was a population of more than 30 lakhs, if you make provision for 4 lakhs, it is certainly not sufficient. I propose to move my adjournment motion. I am not at all satisfied with the statement made by the Hon'ble Minister.

Mr. PRESIDENT: In view of the Hon'ble Minister's statement I do not consider the matter to be urgent.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I have made a reference to particular thanas where there was total dearth of quinine.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I know that in Brahmanbaria there are many thanas but when the Hon'ble Minister on behalf of Government says that sufficient quinine for at least 400,000 people has been supplied to the district it is expected that the quinine supplied would reach those thanas regarding which complaint has been made.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: It is all the more necessary in view of the statement that this question should be discussed in the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The Chair has got to admit or refuse an adjournment motion according to rules. In view of the statement, which I think is very clear, there is not so much urgency regarding the matter and I think the best course would be for the honourable member to meet the Hon'ble Minister and discuss it with him and then—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will you kindly allow me to explain the urgency?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I cannot allow more time.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: As regards the quality of quinine, I want to put the question as to what steps the Government have taken to detect the various admixture of spurious materials with quinine.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As far as possible, we supplied quinine manufactured by responsible firms and unless definite complaints are brought to our notice that a particular firm's tablets of quinine are not reliable or up to the standard, it is very difficult for us to take steps—

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: In view of this, Sir, is the Hon'ble Minister prepared to examine the quinine that is being supplied to the people of Bengal before distributing it and to find out whether the quality of quinine that is being supplied by different firms is of good quality?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, as I have already stated, the charges are vague. Unless a definite charge in the shape that a particular firm is supplying quinine or quinine tablets which are not up to the standard is made, it is not possible to make any examination and to find out whether the quinine supplied is of bad quality or is not up to the standard. Moreover, it is expected that quinine must be sent immediately to the districts, and so if we hold up the stocks of quinine for examination, demand for immediate supply of quinine cannot be quickly met.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister promise us that immediately quinine will be supplied to the areas mentioned by me?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I will direct the District Magistrate to see that quinine is sent to these thanas.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to inform the House whether Government have any machinery for examination of drugs and to see that proper standards are maintained as in the case of British Pharmaceutical products? There is a Drugs Control Order there under which if there is any deviation on the part of a particular firm, the firm concerned, whoever it might be, would be penalised and as a result there is really no deviation from such standards. Have Government of Bengal any machinery to see that a particular standard is maintained?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: With reference to the query made by Mr. Humayun Kabir, I say that certainly there is a machinery for testing drugs and medicines, and unless Government are satisfied that the manufactured articles are up to the recognised standard, they are not passed.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, with regard to the quality of quinine supplied, the Hon'ble Minister has said that it is not possible to examine it unless there is a definite and serious complaint about the quality. May I tell the Hon'ble Minister that so far as certain districts are concerned, the Civil Surgeons, the Assistant Surgeons and all the medical practitioners do condemn the present quinine—whether in powder form or in tablet form or in the ampoule form for injection, is of very very inferior quality and that it does not stop fever unless larger quantities of quinine are administered.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I shall certainly make enquiries about this and on receipt of information Government would take steps.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, before you take up adjournment motions, may I through you mention that there are certain outstanding questions which still remain unanswered. Some of them were admitted by you at short notice. But whether Government have accepted them at short notice or not, is not known to us. Even the period prescribed for long notice is over and we are having, day after day, discussions in this House without any questions whatsoever. Would you kindly see that our questions are answered in time?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I shall look into the list of outstanding questions and then ask the Council Department to put itself into touch with the Government departments.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: As a matter of fact, a list of such questions was circulated yesterday and we learn as many as 50 questions are still outstanding.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think we need discuss that question. I shall look into the matter, as I have said just now.

Adjournment Motions.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: I beg to move that this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation arising out of the recent order of the District Magistrate of Murshidabad purporting to be one under the Defence of India Rules, by which he seeks to abrogate the powers of the municipalities of the district under the Bengal Municipal Act, in the matter of seizure, destruction and prevention of sale of unwholesome food articles belonging to the Executive or the Civil Supply Authorities even though such food articles are found to be unfit for consumption by man and cattle and thereby seriously endangering public health.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is all right: you need not make a speech now. May I hear the Government point of view?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, we have no information. I, therefore, suggest that a short-notice question may be put on the subject and Government will answer it.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, I understand that the subject is covered by another motion, namely, that of Mr. Lalit Chandra Das, relating to this particular order of the District Magistrate of Berhampore in reference to a particular quantity of atta. If that is so, then the District Magistrate was acting in exercise of his statutory powers. Can such a matter form the subject of an adjournment motion? I submit, Sir, that the order which has been passed by the District Magistrate in regard to a particular quantity of atta which according to him is unsuitable for human consumption—cannot be made the subject-matter of an adjournment motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The point is this: A certain statutory right of the municipality of Murshidabad has been superseded by an order of the District Magistrate under the Defence of India Rules; the order has taken away a valuable right of the local authority and that is no doubt an important issue.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: But that is only with reference to a particular matter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It may be a particular matter, but the local authorities are responsible for the health of the inhabitants of the town and its right has been admittedly superseded by the District Magistrate under the Defence of India Rules. Whether the motion should be admitted or not I am not prepared to say at this moment; but in view of what has been stated by the Hon'ble Chief Minister that Government had no information in the matter and that Government would be prepared to enquire from the District Magistrate, the motion should not be considered today. If on receipt of the reply the honourable member is not satisfied, then he may come up to the House again and I shall consider whether the motion may be moved or not: that is the line I would suggest.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, this matter was published in all the newspapers and every time Government say that they have no information and that if a short-notice question were put it would be answered. There is no knowing, Sir, that that would be done, for as you have admitted on the floor of the House you have no power unfortunately to compel the Ministers to answer short-notice questions. So the Hon'ble Minister's assurance does not satisfy us.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But when this suggestion for a short-notice question has come from the Government themselves, it may be taken that it will be answered. Government themselves have undertaken to answer a short-notice question and you may rely on it.

The Hon'ble Chief Minister says that he is prepared to answer this question day after tomorrow.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, here is an adjournment motion which is admittedly of a very great public importance. If this adjournment motion does not offend the rule of our Bengal Council Procedure Rules and if it is within the four corners of the rule, I do not understand why should a member be asked to convert his adjournment motion into a short-notice question.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Apart from the question of adjournment motion, the point is this: though it is true that if a particular motion is within the four corners of the rule it should be admitted ordinarily, but you must remember also that the time of the House is very valuable and the ordinary business of the House should not be suspended if it can be avoided by satisfying the House otherwise than by an adjournment motion. Moreover, without any authentic information the matter cannot be discussed or replied to by the Government. So when Government say that they have at present no information, I think it is only fair that Government should be given sufficient time to obtain information. In the meantime, you can put a short-notice question as suggested by Hon'ble Chief Minister. On receipt of the answer to the short-notice question if Mr. Mahalanobish is not satisfied and if he still wants to move this motion, I would certainly waive the question of urgency. But I do not say whether I shall admit it or not.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: I am sorry, Sir, that we have from time to time to bring up motions to adjourn the business of the House. We know the value of the time of the House and we also know the value of our own time. At the same time, we cannot but bring up before the House urgent matters of public importance which require immediate consideration and if we are not allowed to move these adjournment motions—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mahalanobish: I do not think you are right in what you say, because in the course of the last fortnight you had the privilege of moving an adjournment motion. So it is not correct to say that you are not allowed to move adjournment motions.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: I have never said that you do not allow. But I said if you do not allow—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will you accept the suggestion of the Hon'ble Chief Minister?

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: If you permit me to say so, I do not understand what question I am to put to the Hon'ble Chief Minister. The matter referred to in my motion is a fact, although the Hon'ble Minister says that he has got no information about it. It was published in all the local newspapers three or four days ago and I think that information must have come to his notice. Well, Sir, if the information is incorrect, Government can obtain information in 24 hours. It is for the Chief Minister to ascertain whether an order of this nature has or has not been passed by the District Magistrate of Berhampore; and therefore it is not a matter to be dealt with in a short-notice question. What benefit can I have by obtaining answer to a short-notice question?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I will get the information by wire and I will enlighten the House on the point day after tomorrow.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Hon'ble Chief Minister says he would send the wire just now and I think that is satisfactory.....

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: But, Sir, before you decide—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order order, it is not the practice for any member to get up to speak when the President is on his legs.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: This is because, Sir, you give the ruling before hearing us.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The position is this: The Chief Minister has promised to make a statement day after tomorrow.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: I would request the Chief Minister to make the statement tomorrow.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, the date for the discussion of the adjournment motion may be fixed.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have made the position absolutely clear. The Chief Minister will make a statement day after tomorrow and if after that statement the honourable member is not satisfied, he can bring up his adjournment motion.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, may I draw your attention to two features of the matter? First, when the Hon'ble Minister says that he has no information it shows that he is ill-informed. This thing appeared in all the Calcutta newspapers day before yesterday. The second consideration is—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, the matter appeared on the newspapers very prominently.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: It is not my duty to look at the newspapers everyday.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I made no reference by name. It only shows that the cap has fitted the person for whom it was really meant. Government should have kept information regarding this matter without waiting for any notice from the Opposition in the form of an adjournment motion. This has been the practice in the past. The second feature is that the municipality wanted to destroy the condemned food and the District Magistrate did not allow that to be destroyed and thereby tried to abrogate the powers of the municipality. The municipality wanted to destroy the condemned food for they were afraid that the food would go into the market and impair the health of the people. So, the longer the question is held up, the greater is the danger.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Chief Minister says that he would send a wire to the District Magistrate today, and just now, asking for information. So, I think that sets the machinery in motion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, should you allow the adjournment motions to be sabotaged by suggestions that there should be short-notice questions and that we must wait for the answers? You have seen, Sir, with what bravado the Hon'ble Minister stands up and says that he does not care to read the newspapers. Is this attitude of the Hon'ble Minister to be tolerated? We stand by our rules as regards the adjournment motions. If you see that the motion is within the four corners of the rules, then you will please give consent to the motion and the Hon'ble Minister can reply to it on the date fixed for discussion of the motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The point is this: this question cannot be really discussed without Government obtaining full information. So, the Chief Minister says he will send a wire just now to the District Magistrate to ascertain information.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: On a point of order, Sir. In the first place, with regard to the reading of newspapers I do not think the honourable members can compel me to read newspapers. I cannot waste my time in reading newspapers. I have many other important business to attend to. In the second place, except quoting a few lines from a report published in the newspaper the honourable member has not said anything to substantiate his ground for moving the adjournment motion.

Mr. SACHINDRA NARAYAN SANYAL: Sir, is there any rule by which adjournment motions could be substituted by short-notice questions?

Mr. PRESIDENT: There are heaps of rulings on this point. An adjournment motion cannot be discussed until there is authentic information in the possession of Government. I have in my hand a ruling of the Central Legislature where it is said—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, let a day be fixed for the discussion of the adjournment motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Let the Chief Minister ascertain the facts first. No date can be fixed till the information is obtained by the Chief Minister. He wants to make a statement day after tomorrow and I do not think we will lose much time by this delay.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: If that information is correct, will there be any objection to allow the adjournment motion?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I shall consider the question in the light of the information.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: The only point that remains to be considered is: whether as a matter of fact an order of this nature was or was not passed by the District Magistrate. On that I believe you will give your decision as to the admissibility of this motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is for the Hon'ble Minister to decide what information he actually wants.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: From what has been said it appears that the difficulty of admitting my motion is that Government have not got any definite information regarding the matter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is about Mr. Mahalanobish's adjournment motion.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: I have got an adjournment motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: There is very little difference between the two motions and I do not think there is any necessity of discussing the matter again. It has been sufficiently discussed.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: After receiving notice of this adjournment motion, I made a reference to the District Magistrate of Midnapore for information and the information supplied by him is radically different from the information of the honourable member. There is rice in the town of Midnapore in considerable quantities; only the honourable member could not find it. It is very difficult to help him to find this out. There is plenty of rice and they are available from our shops. I made a further reference back pointing out that on certain dates rice was not available and asking what he has to say on that behalf. I find in the adjournment motion a definite statement has been made that the authorities stopped supply of rice from the 26th July. On reference to the District Magistrate I have not been able to get this information and I propose sending the reference back again for finding out the information.

Mr. PRESIDENT: In view of the urgency and importance of the matter, I give my consent to the adjournment motion.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: It was at a meeting of the Town Committee held only on 11th August that a resolution had been passed to move Government for supply of sufficient rice and it can hardly be said that the matter has been hanging for several days.

Mr. PRESIDENT: This adjournment motion was not moved by the honourable member on your promising to make a statement after reference to the District Magistrate. I think this is a matter of sufficient urgency and if Government are not in a position to make an authoritative statement, I shall be inclined to allow the adjournment motion.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, before you give your ruling may I say a few words?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, the Hon'ble Minister has said that he has got information from the District Magistrate that the statement made in the last adjournment motion was not correct. If that is so, and that is what I understood the Hon'ble Minister to say,—then, Sir, the adjournment motion itself should not be allowed—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of order, Sir. You have already given your consent to the motion, and there is nothing further to say.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No; I said that I was inclined to give my consent to it.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, the notice of the last adjournment motion was given sometime ago and the Hon'ble Minister was given a chance to get the point mentioned in the motion verified. On verification the fact has been found to be contrary to what has been stated in the motion. So, I submit, Sir, that so far as the present adjournment motion is concerned, the Hon'ble Minister should also be given a chance, as he was given on the last occasion, to make enquiries and find out whether the fact is true or not.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, in the first place, the statement made by the honourable member that rice is not available in the Midnapore town is incorrect, because rice is available in the Midnapore town. As a matter of fact, there is a considerable amount of rice there. It is being brought into the Midnapore town by traders and put on the market. If rice was not available in the Midnapore town, as the honourable member has stated, then its price would have been Rs. 40, Rs. 50 and Rs. 60 and not Rs. 20 per maund, as stated. It may be that in a particular shop, to which the honourable member may have gone, rice was not available for the time being. But to say that rice was not available in the Midnapore town is, on the face of it, ridiculous.

Now, Sir, the next point is that it is admitted by the honourable member himself that rice is available only in very small quantities in the black market. Then, Sir, what is the definite matter of urgent public importance, if rice is available? There is no such thing as black market of this type there. There is no black market in existence in the town. There is a free market, namely, a market of rice brought in by traders. Then again, on the 11th August, 1944, a resolution was passed by the Town Food Committee to move the Government to supply sufficient quantity of rice for local consumption. The resolution is self-contradictory. For, if rice was not available there, prices would have been much higher. In the motion itself it is admitted that rice is available. In the first sentence of the adjournment motion it is stated that rice is not available but in the next sentence it is stated that rice is available and in the third sentence Government are requested to supply sufficient quantity of rice for the consumption of the people.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The point is this: The Chair has nothing to do with the merits of the case. The Chair is only concerned with the urgency, namely, as to whether this is a definite matter of urgent public importance. The definiteness of the motion arises from the allegation that the honourable member has made in his statement on the floor of the House that he himself had been to the place and tried to get rice but failed. I believe he was prepared to take responsibility for the assertion he had made and there is no doubt that if that is the situation then it is a definite matter of urgent public importance. Whether the facts are correct or not, it is for him to assert and for the Government to refute: that will be judged in course of the debate. I cannot disallow the motion on the ground that you made a reference to the District Magistrate and that the District Magistrate replied that sufficient rice was available.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Before you give your final ruling, Sir, I would raise a point of order and that is that Government have not taken the responsibility of seeing that all shops should sell rice.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: On a point of order, Sir.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I too am on a point of order, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is your point of order?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: My point of order is: that because the honourable member went to a particular shop and did not find rice there, it does not show that rice is not available anywhere in the town of Midnapore. Government have not taken the responsibility to see that every single trader or shopkeeper in Midnapore should be able to supply rice.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is that a point of order?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Yes, it is.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order, Mr. Kabir. When an honourable member gets up and raises a point of order, the Chair has to listen to him. Let him finish and then you can raise your point of order, if you like.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: In future, we shall also make speeches while stating our points of order. You must have the same rule for everybody and not different rules for some persons.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: The point of order that I raise is this: you, Sir, stated just now that the honourable member had gone to Midnapore town and did not find rice in certain shops. My point of order is that Government is not responsible for supplying all the traders of Midnapore with rice—

Mr. PRESIDENT: That may be your reply to the debate but that is certainly not a point of order. If you take another view, you can certainly do so in your reply.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, I consider my point of order proper. Before you admit the motion finally, you ought to consider whether Government is responsible for this or not—

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I rise on a point of order, Sir.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: But I am already on a point of order.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Your point of order has already been ruled out by the Chair.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: No, no—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, Mr. Kabir, what is your point of order?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, you had observed this afternoon that members ought to sit down when the Chair is on his legs and we have always obeyed that instruction. But today I have found on the contrary that Mr. Suhrawardy instead of taking his seat has continued to dictate to the Chair in the most objectionable manner and the President had to take his seat. This is my point of order, Sir, and not only a point of order, but also a point of privilege of the House. Mr. Suhrawardy has no right to make the President sit down when the President is on his legs.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, when a member defies the President—

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: But—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But you cannot pursue that subject again.

Mr. SULTANUDDIN AHMED: On a point of order, Sir.
(Interruptions.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is your point of order?

Mr. SULTANUDDIN AHMED: Sir, my point of order is on the point of order raised by Mr. Humayun Kabir—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid you cannot do it.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, my humble submission is this: on a point of order— (Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is submission a point of order?). Yes, yes. You have to consider whether on the statement of an honourable member it can be made obligatory on the Government to accept this adjournment motion. The statement upon which it is proposed to admit the motion is that honourable member went to certain shops and found that no rice was available there. But is that the responsibility of Government—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But the point is this: Mr. Mukherji is perfectly clear in his statement that he went to Midnapore and tried to find rice in the market and failed to get rice. His information is that rice is not available in Midnapore in sufficient quantity and it was not available there on a certain date. In that view of the matter, I admit the motion and give my consent to it. Has Government any objection to it?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Yes.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The motion is this:

"That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation that has arisen out of the fact that rice is not available in Midnapore town and in the neighbouring villages. The authorities stopped supply from the 26th July, 1944, and rice is available in very small quantities in the black market at 8 annas to 10 annas per seer. At a meeting of the Town Food Committee on the 11th August, 1944, a resolution was passed to move Government in the matter to supply sufficient rice for the consumption of the people."

Do Government object to it?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Yes.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Members who are in favour of this motion will please rise in their places. (After the members rose in their seats.) As more than 13 members rose in support of the motion, leave has been granted by the House. Now, when do you propose to take it up?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: As I have asked for time for further information and the House do not want to wait for that, we may take it up tomorrow.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But when are you likely to get the information?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Probably by tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Then let it be taken up day after tomorrow.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: If honourable members wish to know the situation, then I think they had better wait till day after tomorrow. But if it is a party propaganda—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think it should be taken up day after tomorrow as Government are prepared to supply more information. I do not think there should be any difficulty in taking it up day after tomorrow.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, it may be taken up tomorrow—

Mr. PRESIDENT: We will take it up day after tomorrow after the question hour.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBIS: May I rise on a point of information, Sir? As we have just now fixed the date for discussion of the adjournment motion day after tomorrow—

Mr. PRESIDENT: As one adjournment motion has been admitted, you cannot discuss any other adjournment motion today.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBIS: I rose only on a point of information. You have fixed day after tomorrow for statement in reply to my adjournment motion and also you have fixed this adjournment motion day after tomorrow. Will not one exclude the other.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No. The Hon'ble Chief Minister will make a statement in connection with your adjournment motion day after tomorrow.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, we object to it. We have a right to object.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The business of the House would be impossible if you go on objecting in this way.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House will now resume further discussion of the Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: That in clause 42 of the Bill, in paragraph (I), for the words "the members" in line 2, the words "the names of the members" be substituted.

Sir, the passage where the amendment is sought to be inserted is "...the return of the members of the firm..." I think "the names of the members" of the firm is more suitable.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 42 of the Bill, in paragraph (I), for the words "the members" in line 2, the words "the names of the members" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I think the amendment is quite unnecessary. I oppose it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in clause 42 of the Bill, in paragraph (I), for the words "the members" in line 2, the words "the names of the members" be substituted.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

AYES—14.

Khan Bahadur N. Ahmad.
Rai Bahadur K. C. Banerji.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being,—14, and "Noes"—27, the amendment is negatived.

The question before the House is: that clause 42 stand part of the Bill.
(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 43.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 43 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 43 of the Bill, the comma after the words "to be taken" in line 3 be deleted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I do not think it is really an amendment, though it is a fact that some such amendments were admitted in the past. It is merely an error which can be rectified as a clerical mistake, if necessary. So I do not allow it.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Would you kindly hear me?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think it is necessary to hear you. I have considered the matter already.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, you have not considered my arguments.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is your argument? I hope you will be very brief.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Yes, Sir. I know that the Secretary of the House where the Bill originated has the power to correct these mistakes if he thinks necessary. But commas are introduced within the Bill and punctuation also is inserted. The real effect of a comma or punctuation in general is not really relevant. I think it is a part of the Bill—

Mr. PRESIDENT: The fact that a comma should be included or a comma should be deleted is a thing which can be rectified, if necessary, by the Secretary.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: But, Sir, the House has no means of compelling the Secretary to rectify the mistakes.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is: that in clause 43 of the Bill, the comma after the words "to be taken" in line 3 be deleted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 43 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 44.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 44 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 44 of the Bill, for the words "in section" in line 2, the words "under section" be substituted.

Now, Sir, in sub-clause (2) we find the following provision, namely, that "if an assessee makes an application within the time mentioned in the notice of demand in section 33 for being allowed to pay the tax due by instalments, the Agricultural Income-tax Officer may in his discretion, by order in writing allow the assessee to pay the tax due in instalments not exceeding four in number at such intervals as the said officer may fix in his discretion."

Sir, if this amendment is allowed, it would read thus "if an assessee makes an application within the time mentioned in the notice of demand under section 33 for being allowed to pay the tax due by instalments.....". Now, Sir, I would invite the attention of the House to what Government did in connection with sub-clause (1) of clause 44.

Sir, sub-clause (1) of clause 44 runs thus: Any amount specified as payable in a notice of demand under section 33 or an order under section 35, section 36 or section 37, shall be paid within the time, at the place and to the person mentioned in the notice or order, etc. Here Government has actually used the word "under" section in sub-clause (1) of clause 44. Therefore, it must be a case of mistake or inadvertence that has crept in in sub-clause (2) of clause 44 and "in" instead of "under" has been put in. In respect of sections 33, 35, 36 or 37, the word "under" has been used; whereas in the case of sub-clause (2) of clause 44, the word "in" has been put in the identical connection. Therefore, I move that the word "under" should be similarly retained in this sub-clause also, as has been done in the other cases as the most appropriate word. With these words, I move my amendment.

MR. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (2) of clause 44 of the Bill, for the words "in section" in line 2, the words "under section" be substituted.

MR. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, I support the amendment: It is practically a Government amendment and it wants to give a sense to the clause. The clause as it stands really is meaningless. It says that if an assessee makes an application within the time mentioned in the notice of demand in section 33 for being allowed to pay the tax due by instalments, etc. Now we want that the word "in" should be substituted by the word "under". It does not require much intelligence to follow that the word "in" here is absolutely out of place and it does not carry any meaning whatsoever. What do you mean by the notice of demand "in" section 33? What was intended by the authorities was perhaps the notice of demand that is issued upon the assessee under the provisions of section 33. Therefore the word "in" is most inappropriate and not only inappropriate but is wrong and it must give way to the word "under": that will make the meaning clear. Otherwise, to say that the assessee should make his application within the time mentioned in section 33 does not carry any meaning whatsoever, and that is why this amendment has been tabled. I should think that there is absolutely no objection to the admission of a mistake of this nature. We have found that there were several mistakes which Government have obstinately refused to acknowledge but it is never too late to mend and I should further say that if you want to have this bill in a workable shape so that there may not be any unnecessary dispute or litigation over the meaning of the words and phrases used in this taxation measure, I think Government should accept this amendment which is intended to make the meaning intelligible. The word "in" here does not make any sense of the clause. Therefore, I wholeheartedly support the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my friend Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. The Bill clause which is affected by this amendment reads thus without the amendment—"If an assessee makes an application within the time mentioned in the notice of demand in section 33." There is, however, no notice of demand in section 33. A notice of demand may be issued under section 33. The proper expression should be "notice of demand under section 33". The expression "in" in the Bill-clause was due to an error and this amendment was tabled by the Government which they did not move. The amendment should therefore be accepted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, as the amendment is unnecessary, I oppose it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 44 of the Bill, for the words "in section" in line 2, the words "under section" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

(When the Hon'ble President declared that "Noes" have it, Khan Sahib Maulvi Wahiduzzaman said "Ayes" have it.)

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, I said "ayes have it".

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have not heard it. You ought to have stood up and asked for division.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Yes, Sir, I did call for a division and said "ayes have it" as soon as you declared "noes have it". You may have been otherwise busy.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, I did not hear you.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: You might say that, Sir; it is your prerogative not to hear us.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOUDHURY: Sir, he should withdraw that expression. It is a reflection on the Chair.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: I beg to move that in clause 44 of the Bill, after sub-clause (2) the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

"(3) In the case of the Ruler of an Indian State the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall request the Crown representative to take steps for payment of the amount assessed upon the Ruler of an Indian State".

Sir, we want that the tax should be realised in a regular and proper way from the Rulers of an Indian State and they should not find any loophole in the Act so as to escape the payment of this tax. If we look to clause 46, we find that provisions are made for the purpose of recovery of tax and penalties and therefore penalties are imposed and notice is served upon persons to appear and pay the income-tax. Now, Sir, if we look to the privileges of the Ruler of an Indian State, we find that they are not liable or subject to the jurisdiction of courts ordinarily and they cannot be asked to appear before a court for the purpose of answering any demand by the Agricultural Income-tax Officer. If we refer to section 86 of the Civil Procedure Code, we find that provision is made as to how the Ruler of an Indian State is to be approached. Section 86 is as follows:—

"Any such Prince or Chief, and any ambassador or envoy of a foreign State, may, with the consent of the Governor-General in Council, certified by the signature of a Secretary to the Government of India, but not without such consent be sued in any competent Court".

Then clause (2)—

"Such consent may be given with respect to a specified suit or to several specified suits, or with respect to all suits of any specified class or classes, and may specify, in the case of any suit or class of suits, the Court in which the Prince, Chief ambassador or envoy may be sued; but it shall not be given unless it appears to the Government that the Prince, Chief, ambassador or envoy—

- (a) has instituted a suit in the Court against the person desiring to sue him, or
- (b) by himself or another trades within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, or
- (c) is in possession of immovable property situate within those limits and is to be sued with reference to such property or for money charged thereon."

Therefore, there is no bar to obtain consent which is necessary under section 86. Then, clause 3 says "No such Prince, Chief, Ambassador or envoy shall be arrested under this Code, and, except with the consent of the Governor-General in Council certified as aforesaid, no decree shall be executed against the property of any such Prince, Chief, ambassador or envoy." So this makes definite provision that you cannot realise tax either by arresting him or by following against the properties belonging to the Ruler of an Indian State. I do not think it is necessary to refer to other clauses at this stage. Therefore, so far as Rulers of Indian States are concerned, they are not amenable to the jurisdiction of the courts in British India even though they may have properties except as provided in section 86 of the Civil Procedure Code. Now, we know that under the Government of India Act there are Crown Representatives who represent the Rulers of Indian States and upon whom notices may be served. Therefore, I have proposed in the amendment that in order to realise the tax from the Ruler of an Indian State, we should make a separate provision in the manner indicated in the amendment so that the Crown Representative may be requested to take steps for payment of the amount assessed upon the Ruler of an Indian State. Without a provision like this it would be difficult to enforce payment upon the Ruler of an Indian State. With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 44 of the Bill, after sub-clause (2) the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

- "(3) In the case of the Ruler of an Indian State the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall request the Crown representative to take steps for payment of the amount assessed upon the Ruler of an Indian State."

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I would like to support the amendment which has been moved by my friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee. Sir, the Rulers of Indian States stand under some Treaty obligations with the Government and it would be but decent and proper, I should say, that in the matter of realisation of income-tax of this kind, steps should be taken in the form of making a request and that request should ordinarily be addressed to the Crown Representative who ordinarily resides in the territory of the Ruler of an Indian State. Difficulties which might possibly arise would then be obviated.

With these few words, I support the amendment.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I also rise to support the amendment. We have already had a great deal of discussion about the Rulers of Indian States. Now, this amendment tries to introduce a machinery for realising tax assessed upon them. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister has expressed his doubts or misgivings as to the workability of these clauses. He has said that if Bengal loses the tax on account of the defects in drafting, then she must thank herself for it. As the House has decided to tax the Rulers of Indian States, there must be some machinery to give effect to the purpose. If you levy the tax on the Rulers of Indian States, then there must be some channel through which we can work and the amendment here tries to provide that this should be done through the diplomatic agency of the Crown Representative. This is the agency through which matters are adjusted between the Government of India and the Indian Princes. The Crown Representative is not only the adviser to Government but also a kind of a guardian to the Indian States and his agency would supply some amount of moral pressure upon the States for the realisation of taxes. This is a necessary amendment like others in this group and I think this should be accepted. I support the amendment.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I beg to support this amendment. When there was discussion on this point, I found the Hon'ble Finance Minister very jubilant. I do not know the cause of his merriment. I take it that with the advent of the Pujah and Ramzan, he is confident that the Bengal Legislative Assembly is not to be summoned. The mortal terror which he has of the Bengal Legislative Assembly will for a while sleep. However, this has nothing to do with the amendment.

Now, Sir, with regard to this amendment, as was stated earlier, we have no machinery for enforcement of the penal provisions under this Bill against the Indian States. The difficulty was raised whether they are subject to tax by the Provincial Legislature or not. It was however held that though there was some doubt on the matter, the question of taxing the Indian Princes could be considered in this House. They are held taxable but unfortunately no machinery has been provided for realising the tax from them. As pointed out by the honourable lawyer members, Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee and Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad, by reference to the Criminal Procedure Code and other similar Acts, there is no way by which we can compel the Indian Princes to appear before the Court and pay any tax which may be due from them. The only way we can devise for the purpose is through the Crown Representative. If any tax is imposed on the Indian Princes and if that tax is to be realised from them, this could only be done through the Crown Representative. If my honourable friend the Finance Minister really wants to tax the Indian Princes and if he is serious about it, he should not let them escape for lack of machinery through which the tax could be realised.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I can quite understand the anxiety of the mover of the amendment to protect the Rulers of the Indian States and I find a stalwart of the Krishak-Praja Party standing out for the Rulers of the Indian States. But I see absolutely no reason why we should ask His Excellency the Crown Representative to pay the tax. The amendment, as I have read it, is that the Crown representative should pay the tax. I can assure the House that there is ample machinery available to Government for realising the agricultural income-tax accruing from the Ruler of an Indian State—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a point of information, Sir. Has the Hon'ble the Finance Minister read my amendment?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I have read it several times.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Then possibly he was sleeping when he was reading my amendment. Because in my amendment I said that the Crown Representative should take steps for payment of the amount assessed upon the Ruler of an Indian State.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: But, Sir, this House has no power to compel His Excellency the Crown Representative to take steps for payment of the agricultural income-tax assessed upon the Ruler of an Indian State. On the other hand, there is a special machinery for enforcing payment of income-tax accruing from a Ruler of an Indian State. Therefore, I think this amendment is both amusing and unnecessary.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that in clause 44 of the Bill, after sub-clause (2) the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

“(3) In the case of the Ruler of an Indian State the Agricultural Income-tax Officer shall request the Crown Representative to take steps for payment of the amount assessed upon the Ruler of an Indian State”.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The “Ayes” being—13, and “Noes”—27, the amendment is negatived.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 44 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to).

Clause 45.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 45 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 45 of the Bill, for the words “so however that” in line 5, the words “so that” be substituted.

Sir, the Bill-clause is absolutely unintelligible. The word “however” is absolutely a trespasser in this clause. I shall read only a part of the text of the clause which will show how absurd the word “however” is in the text,—“the Agricultural Income-tax Officer may direct the recovery of any sum less than half the amount of the arrears and may enhance the sum so directed to be recovered from time to time in the case of a continuing default, so however that the total sum so directed to be recovered shall not exceed half the amount of the arrears payable”. Here, the expression “so that” is meant. The word “however” somehow or other, slipped into the clause, how I do not know. Instead of the words “so however that” the words “so that” should be substituted. I submit that if the Hon'ble Minister will read the passage, the absurdity of this expression would be at once apparent. I do not want to take up the time of the House any more. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 45 of the Bill, for the words "so however that" in line 5, the words "so that" be substituted.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I would like to support the amendment which has been moved by my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. The duty of this House is to revise the errors committed elsewhere and to present the Bill in as good a form as it is possible under the circumstances. Here, Sir, at the dictation of the Hon'ble Finance Minister, every amendment—however good an amendment may be, is being voted down. We want to show that we may be out-voted but we cannot be out-reasoned. That is the reason why this attempt is made to improve the draft in the Bill. I think the Hon'ble Finance Minister will find it very difficult to defend himself. With these words, I support the amendment.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBIS: Sir, I beg to support the amendment. The idea underlying the sub-clause (1) of clause 45 was to impose a penalty for non-payment of the tax in time.

Now, clause (2) deals with that matter in a different way. It says "For the purposes of sub-section (1), the Agricultural Income-tax Officer may direct the recovery of any sum less than half the amount of the arrears and may enhance the sum so directed to be recovered from time to time in the case of a continuing default, so however that the total sum so directed to be recovered shall not exceed half the amount of the arrears payable." In the first clause, the Income-tax Officer has been given the power to impose "a sum not exceeding half that amount shall be recovered from the assessee by way of penalty". In clause (2), instead of imposing a penalty, he may impose a tax less than half in case of a continuing default. If that is so, the words used here "so however that" seem to be entirely confusing. I do not think it is easy reading or easy to comprehend what is intended to be conveyed by the draftsman. I think the word "however" is wrongly placed. It had no business to be here. It actually makes no sense, it serves no purpose; rather it confuses the meaning and makes the meaning obscure. Therefore, this word should be omitted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, the amendment would not only not be an improvement but, I submit, that the word has been placed there with a definite purpose to serve. In drafting this provision we have followed section 46(I)(a) of the Indian Income-tax Act which reads as follows: "For the purpose of sub-section (1) the Income-tax Officer may direct the recovery of any sum less than half the amount of the arrears and may enhance the sum so directed to be recovered from time to time in the case of a continuing default, so however that the total sum so directed to be recovered shall not exceed half the amount of the arrears payable." Although our penalty is much less severe, I think in following the drafting of the Central Act, we have been on the right side.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: "That in sub-clause (2) of clause 45 of the Bill, for the words "so however that" in line 5, the words "so that" be substituted.

"If the Agricultural Income-tax Officer is satisfied that any individual, Hindu undivided family, belonging to the Mitakshara school, company, Ruler of an Indian State, firm or other association of individuals is satisfied".

This is merely a drafting amendment, Sir, and I need not make any speech on it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (I) of clause 47 of the Bill, for the words "if any individual, Hindu undivided family, company, Ruler of an Indian State, firm or other association of persons satisfied the Agricultural Income-tax Officer" in lines 1 to 3, the following words be substituted, namely:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—12, and the "Noes"—27, the amendment is negatived.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: That in sub-clause (I) of clause 47 of the Bill, for the words "association of persons" in lines 2 and 3, the words "association of individuals" be substituted.

Sir, this is mainly a drafting amendment, but it may have some bearing on the real meaning of the clause. Sir, the word "person" has been defined in clause 2. According to that definition, "person" includes a Hindu undivided family, a firm, a company or a Ruler of an Indian State. Here the word "association of persons" really means "association of individuals." The House will be pleased to consider a similar passage in clause 48 in line 3, where the words "association of individuals" occur. The expression in the Bill-clause, I believe, is a mistake, and I have no doubt about it now because the mistake has been detected and the same amendment has been tabled by Government in amendment Nos. 317 and 318. With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, is there quorum?

Mr. D. J. Cohen was entering the Chamber at that time and including him there was quorum.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (1) of clause 47 of the Bill, for the words "association of persons" in lines 2 and 3, the words "association of individuals" be substituted.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I rise to support the amendment. I think Government detected the mistake and that is why they gave notice of amendment. It would appear that in clause 48 everywhere the word "individuals" has been used. In clause 48(1) "Notwithstanding anything in section 47, a share-holder of a company, a partner of a firm or a member of an association of individuals....." In (2) "Any share-holderor member of an association of individuals....." In (3) "..... paid by a firm or association of individuals....." wherever the word "association" has been brought in it is followed by the word "individual". So instead of the word "person", the appropriate word should be "individual" and it should read "association of individuals" instead of "association of persons".

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, I beg to support this amendment. The word "person" is in my opinion wrong in this place and in place of that word the word "individuals" should be substituted for the simple reason that what was intended was to include something other than persons. But certainly the draftsman did not intend to include those who come under the definition of person in sub-clause (9) of clause 2. Now what is intended is that it should really bring in those persons who did not come within the meaning of the word "persons". That was the amendment proposed on behalf of Government by Mr. Biren Roy. Now what is the idea behind this phrase? I say that either this word "persons" has been deliberately inserted to give a different meaning or it has been inserted inadvertently. My reading of this clause is: that this word "persons" has been used inadvertently. If, however, it is supposed that this has been inserted deliberately, then I submit that the Government intends to include certain Hindu undivided families or firms or companies and the Rulers of Indian States within the definition of "association of persons". Supposing two companies carry on joint business, you will assess them as association of persons. I think if the word person is there, you can very easily say that because there is a joint venture of two companies, they come under association of persons. That, I think, was never intended. Nor if two undivided families carry on a joint business of agriculture, you can tax them under association of persons. So you will find that the difference in the words would certainly make a difference in the assessment and in the liability. That being the case, I think the House should accept the amendment by substituting the word "individuals" for the word "persons" which I think was really intended.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in sub-clause (1) of clause 47 of the Bill, for the words "association of persons" in lines 2 and 3, the words "association of individuals" be substituted.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—11, and the "Noes"—25, the amendment is negatived.

I think amendments Nos. 319 and 320 do not arise as they are the same as the previous one.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 47 of the Bill, for the words "The Assistant Commissioner in the exercise of his appellate powers or the Commissioner in the exercise of his powers of revision if satisfied to the like effect" in lines 1 to 3, the following words be substituted, namely:—

"If the Assistant Commissioner in the exercise of his appellate powers or the Commissioner in the exercise of his powers of revision is satisfied to the like effect".

This is a drafting amendment and is simply a re-arrangement of the words in a regular form. This has been recommended by the highest authorities in the art of draftsmanship. In order to strengthen a sentence or a clause sometimes re-arrangement is necessary, and in order to make the meaning precise and clear this is often indispensable. I would leave it to the House to consider, if it is inclined to consider and I think that, if Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury condescends to consider this matter, then I think he too will agree that this amendment is necessary. I, therefore, submit the amendment for the considered consideration of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (2) of clause 47 of the Bill, for the words "The Assistant Commissioner in the exercise of his appellate powers or the Commissioner in the exercise of his powers of revision if satisfied to the like effect" in lines 1 to 3, the following words be substituted, namely:—

"If the Assistant Commissioner in the exercise of his appellate powers or the Commissioner in the exercise of his powers of revision is satisfied to the like effect".

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, this is a drafting amendment and I prefer our own drafting which is in accord with the language of section 48(2) of the Indian Income-tax Act.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 47 of the Bill, for the words "The Assistant Commissioner in the exercise of his appellate powers or the Commissioner in the exercise of his powers of revision if satisfied in the like effect" in lines 1 to 3 the following words be substituted:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—12, and the "Noes"—24, the amendment is negatived.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move: That in clause 47 of the Bill, after sub-clause (3), the following sub-clause be added, namely:—

"The Assistant Commissioner or the Commissioners may on being satisfied that an individual Hindu undivided family, Company, Ruler of an Indian State, firm or other association of persons is not liable to tax he may grant an exemption certificate."

Sir, looking to clause 47, we find a provision has been made for refund of taxes when they have been assessed wrongly or otherwise. I think a similar clause may be inserted in order that persons who are not liable to tax may approach the Assistant Commissioner and obtain a certificate for exemption. I would remind the Hon'ble the Finance Minister that there is a similar provision in the Indian Income-Tax Act, and this being the Act which he is quoting all along, I may request him to consider whether he should allow this amendment. There would be a lot of saving of trouble for the assesses and also the officers of the Assessment Department. One other consideration which I may request the Hon'ble Finance Minister to give to this subject and that is that the amendment which I have proposed, if accepted, will remove a real difficulty in the Act itself. As a matter of fact, if we look to the agricultural population there will be many who will be on the border line and if they are given certificate of exemption that would, as I have already submitted, mean a saving of time of the assessment officer. With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 47 of the Bill, after sub-clause (3) the following sub-clause be added, namely:—

"The Assistant Commissioner or the Commissioners may on being satisfied that an individual Hindu undivided family, Company, Ruler of an Indian State, firm or other association of persons is not liable to tax he may grant an exemption certificate."

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, when an officer decides that a particular person is not liable to pay any agricultural income-tax, he would certainly record an order to that effect and the person concerned is entitled to a certified copy of that order. The honourable mover has said that there was an analogous provision in the Indian Income-tax Act. He has not specified what particular section of the Act was meant. Possibly he was firing a blank shot. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 47 of the Bill, after sub-clause (3) the following sub-clause be added, namely:—

“The Assistant Commissioner or the Commissioners may on being satisfied that an individual Hindu undivided family, Company, Ruler of an Indian State, firm or other association of persons is not liable to tax he may grant an exemption certificate.”

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The “Ayes” being—12, and the “Noes”—24, the amendment is negatived.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, before you proceed further with the business of the House, may I raise the question of adjourning for “Ashar” prayers?

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: But Ashar prayers commence from 5-45 p.m. and will continue right up to 6-30 p.m.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: No, no. Not from 5-45 p.m. but from 5-15 p.m. If Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury does not know that, then I am really sorry.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: You do not know anything of this.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Certainly, I claim to know.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: So do I.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is a very difficult question: surely I cannot settle it. I must ask the views of the Honourable the Leader of the House or of the Maulana Sahib on this matter.

Maulana AKRAM KHAN: The time for Ashar prayers will last up to 6-30 p.m.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: It is necessary that we should say our prayers just in time.

Maulana AKRAM KHAN: Not necessary.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will the Maulana Sahib please say when the Ashar prayers will start?

Maulana AKRAM KHAN: It lasts from 5 p.m. to 6-30 p.m.

Mr. PRESIDENT: We will ordinarily adjourn from today at 6 p.m. but when do you think we should adjourn for prayers?

Maulana AKRAM KHAN: Even if we disperse at 6 p.m., there will be time left for saying Ashar prayers.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: I want to differ from the opinion just given by the Maulana Sahib. The earlier we finish our prayers the better. I am glad that Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury has been contradicted by the Maulana Sahib and if hereafter he still insists on his view, then I am really sorry for him. Sir, before you decide finally, I would like you to refer to the proceedings of the other House. You will find from there what is the actual prayer time in these days and on the basis of that you may give your ruling.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid it is not the ordinary practice of this House to adjourn for prayer. The other House is not in session now. The time of the prayer, I believe, is at sunset. Here we have the opinion of one of the greatest Maulanas—

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, he represents one section of the Muslims and not all sections of the Muslims.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I find that there is difference of opinion but the larger section—the majority—accept the opinion of the Maulana in preference to yours.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, we all accept—

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Your version has been contradicted by your leader.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that clause 47 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 48.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 48 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in clause 48 of the Bill, in sub-clause (I), for the words “anything in” in line 1, the words “anything contained in” be substituted.

Sir, before proceeding further with the amendment, may I submit that there is a limitation of our mental powers; and as the Hon’ble the President, who is a veteran parliamentarian and who has gone through all sorts of experience in parliamentary and other affairs, has found it necessary to enjoy some physical relaxation, should we not also deserve some physical rest? Mr. Chairman, we have submitted to the needs of the moment as long as possible. But we have sat long enough. In the circumstances, may I pray, Sir, that the House be adjourned because our brains are much over-worked already and may not comfortably bear further strain. When a distinguished man like the Hon’ble President required rest, I think we are also greatly in need of this rest and so far as I am concerned I have had to do a very large volume of work.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, whatever may be the position in the case of other matters, clauses 48 and 49 are very important clauses and I think even the members opposite agree that these two clauses are the most contentious clauses in the Bill. The most important debate will take place on clauses 48 and 49, and if we take it up at the fag-end of the day, I am afraid we shall not be able to do justice to ourselves or to the clauses.

Mr. CHAIRMAN (Mr. W. B. C. Laidlaw): Order, order. With regard to the remark of Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad, I may say that the Hon'ble President was in the Chair continuously from 2-15 until 5-15. He has now gone for some relaxation and refreshment and he will be back very shortly. As regards the second point raised by Mr. Humayun Kabir, I may say that discussion on clause 48 has already started under the chairmanship of the Hon'ble President and I think we ought to continue it.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: But, Sir, we also require similar refreshment and rest.

Mr. CHAIRMAN (Mr. W. B. C. Laidlaw): Order, order. You may go on.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I have moved the amendment and I have nothing more to say except that it is a drafting amendment and it should be accepted.

Mr. CHAIRMAN (Mr. W. B. C. Laidlaw): Amendment moved: that in clause 48 of the Bill, in sub-clause (I), for the words "anything in" in line 1, the words "anything contained in" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I submit that the amendment does not improve our draft. So I oppose the amendment.

Mr. CHAIRMAN (Mr. W. B. C. Laidlaw): The question before the House is: that in clause 48 of the Bill, in sub-clause (I), for the words "anything in" in line 1, the words "anything contained in" be substituted.

Mr. CHAIRMAN (Mr. W. B. C. Laidlaw): Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—9, and the "Noes"—22, the amendment is negatived.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: That in sub-clause (I) of clause 48 of the Bill, for the words "the total world income of such shareholder, partner or member if such total world income were agricultural income chargeable to agricultural income-tax under this Act" in lines 10 to 12, the words "total agricultural income arising out of land in Bengal" be substituted.

Mr. Chairman, Sir, this is a very important amendment. This sub-clause (I) of clause 48 deals with refunds of taxes. The standard on which tax has been imposed under this Bill is based upon the Bengal Agricultural income alone. The world income is a standard which is adopted by the Indian Income-tax and English Income-tax Acts. So far as the Bengal Act is concerned, the standard is that of agricultural income. The rate of tax will depend on the agricultural income of different classes mentioned in the schedule. While, in imposing the tax the standard is the Bengal agricultural income, refund is based on the standard of world income. Suppose, a man as a small partner of a big agricultural firm gets an income of Rs. 500. Suppose further, that he has had to pay an agricultural income-tax of 30 pies in the rupee. Suppose again, that he has other agricultural income of Rs. 4,500. His total agricultural income will then be Rs. 5,000. He should be liable to pay agricultural income-tax on only Rs. 1,500 at the rate of 9 pies in the rupee. He would thus plainly be entitled to a refund of the excess tax of 21 pies in the rupee on Rs. 500. But under the clause, if he has a big world income of a non-agricultural nature, he will be entitled to no refund.

But our standard is Bengal agricultural income. We have nothing to do with the world income. Then, why should we be parsimonious in refunding the excess tax except on the basis of Bengal agricultural income? To introduce world income here would mean that the Government is unwilling to refund the excess tax in ordinary deserving cases. To lay down two different sets of tests—one for assessing the tax and the other for refunding the excess tax would be not to show give and take but, rather, take and take. This principle is, I submit, mischievous. This would have been justified if the standard of world income had been accepted in assessing the tax. These considerations would enable the House to see the injustice or rather anomaly or illogicality of the standard. I do not know whether such a provision will be beyond the scope of the Provincial Legislature. At least, a refund should have nothing to do with the world income. In the circumstances, I submit that the amendment should be accepted. It will set a uniform standard for the purpose of taking and also for the purpose of giving. With these few words, I submit my amendment for the consideration of the House.

Mr. CHAIRMAN (Mr. W. B. C. Laidlaw): Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (I) of clause 48 of the Bill, for the words "the total world income of such share-holder, partner or member if such total world income were agricultural income chargeable to agricultural income-tax under this Act" in lines 10 to 12, the words "total agricultural income arising out of land in Bengal" be substituted.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHALANABIS: Sir, I would like to support this amendment not exactly on the ground put forward by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad but on slightly different grounds. This clause 48 deals with refunds of tax deemed to have been paid by companies, firms and associations on behalf of others. Now, it is said that a company, a firm or an association has to pay the agricultural income-tax under this Act on behalf of certain persons and if there is any difference between the rate of tax that the company, firm or association of persons were liable to and the rate at which the person himself is liable, then he is entitled to a refund of the difference. That in substance must be the idea behind this clause. Again, in this clause it is said that "the total agricultural income of such company, firm or association and the average rate which would be applicable to the total world income of such share-holder, partner or member if such total world income were agricultural income chargeable to agricultural income-tax under this Act." If we turn to the definition clause, we find that the "total world income" is defined in sub-clause (17) of clause 2 of the Bill. "Total world income" means the sum of—

- (a) the total world income as defined in the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, and
- (b) the total agricultural income as defined in this Act, and
- (c) the agricultural income derived from land in British India excepting Bengal:"

so that you have the aggregate of several incomes taken as the total world income; first, income under the Indian Income-tax Act, then the income under this particular Act and then the agricultural income derived from land outside Bengal. Now, Sir, the question arises that when you are taxing a company under this Act you are taxing a company's agricultural income; it means that income which is derived from land held within the province and if that income is up to a certain standard you charge the company at a certain rate and if the income goes up the rate to be charged also goes up accordingly, so that naturally an individual assessee may have returns or income from agricultural land within Bengal which may vary from that of the income of the Company of which he may have been a shareholder. The Company may be earning a great deal and the company may be paying the tax at a very high rate and the individual may be paying the tax at a lower rate and when the tax is realised from the company he can naturally ask for refund on the basis of the difference, but when you are bringing in the question of total world income then in the case of refund you are taxing the man much more than he is liable for. You do not stand only upon the agricultural income. A man may have a big income from sources other than agricultural and may have a small agricultural income, but being a shareholder of a company he might be taxed at a higher rate. So that I submit that it will not be fair to take into consideration the world income of this particular shareholder in case of refund. Why should we take into consideration other income, namely, non-agricultural income or income from land outside the province of Bengal at the time when you are giving him a refund? That I submit is unfair and unjust. In giving refund you ought ordinarily to follow the simple procedure of granting him refund on the difference in the rate that he might otherwise be liable to pay if he were the assessee. The Company pays not on its own behalf but on behalf of the shareholder and the ordinary rule is that the shareholder is to get a refund on the basis as if he himself was being assessed. You take from the company tax at 10 pies in the rupee but the man's income does not perhaps allow you to charge more than 6 pies in the rupee, so that he ought to get a refund of 4 pies, the difference between the two rates of tax. Therefore I submit that there is no justification for taking the whole world income into consideration in the case of refund. Therefore the average rate in the clause should be the difference between what has been realised from him and what he ought to pay as agricultural income if that was his income. We should not bring in the world income into this matter when in this connection we are not going to tax his other income or income from land situated outside the province of Bengal.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I rise to speak on the amendment neither to support it nor to oppose it, but to ask for clarification from the Hon'ble Minister. I must confess that the speeches of the honourable gentlemen who have just spoken have succeeded in confusing a layman like me and I am not quite clear as to what exactly the import of this amendment is. I find one or two impatient friends on the other side who are prepared to sit for longer hours but are not prepared to pay the price of sitting for longer hours in the weariness and tiredness which are inevitable if the House sits for longer hours. They are hurrying through things without understanding them and I know, Sir, that they are not concerned in understanding anything. They have deposited whatever power of understanding they have, whatever brains they have—and I do not say that they have no brains—they have deposited whatever brains they have in the safe-custody of the Hon'ble Finance Minister. I confess that as a layman I find that the amendment is very confusing indeed—

Mr. SULTAN AHMED: On a point of order, Sir. Is Mr. Kabir entitled to speak when he himself says that he speaks neither for nor against the amendment? Can he speak when he is neither for nor against the amendment?

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is quite possible for a member to speak either for or against an amendment. When time of voting comes he may remain neutral. So a member can speak neither for nor against an amendment. He may remain neutral at the time of voting.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I find, Sir, that more time is taken in useless points of order than in actual discussion. I do not know if it is the attitude of my friends opposite simply to record their votes without understanding anything and compelling others to vote without understanding. I know that my friends opposite are very intelligent; but I do not understand why they should not allow some indulgence to one who claims that he is finding some difficulty in understanding the amendment. I ask the Government to explain the position, since it is the duty of the Government to convince us by explaining what they intend. My friends opposite are trying to shut up discussion because of their artificial majority. But I think it is the duty of the Government to explain the position.

Now, Sir, coming to the clause itself, I find that there are several parts. I leave out the early parts and take the portion where it is stated "such company, firm or association", etc. In other words, the tax which is here imposed on this class of persons is imposed upon them not in their personal capacity but in virtue of their partnership of either a company or a partnership of an association of individuals. Again, Sir, I find from clause 48, sub-clause (f), that the amount which is taken into consideration in assessing the tax in this particular clause is with regard to the income from the profit made by the company or the partnership or the firm or the association of individuals. It is not on the income which a man makes in his own right or by his individual exertion. I also find, Sir, that the income-tax, whatever it is, is paid on behalf of the individual in virtue of his partnership of a firm or membership of an association of individuals. Therefore, we are concerned only with that portion of the income which he obtains by virtue of his partnership of any one of this type of association or bodies. The income which he derives by his individual exertion or by his individual business or any other sort of an individual undertaking is left out of account. The tax is deemed to have been paid by the company or firm, on behalf of individuals. Now, what will be the rate? The rate will be the rate which would apply to the total agricultural income of such a company. Now, Sir, for the sake of illustration, supposing it is one anna—I am taking the figure only for clarification. I know that the rate of agricultural income when we consider the total agricultural income of a company is fixed at two and a half annas, but for the sake of convenience, let us take it as one anna. Now, therefore in the case of the individual, when the portion of his income which is derived in virtue of his partnership of such company or association is taxed, it is taxed at the rate of anna one in the rupee. This tax of one anna is paid on his behalf by his firm. Now the question of difference comes in. There is first, the rate which is actually paid on his behalf by his firm in virtue of his membership. There is, on the other hand, the average rate which would be applicable to the total world income of such share-holder, partner or member if such total world income were agricultural income chargeable to tax under this Act. In the latter portion of this clause, the income which we are considering is his total world income; and assuming that this total world income is assessable to the agricultural income-tax, it is quite obvious that the total world income would be greater than the total agricultural income. Therefore, if the world income is higher than the total agricultural income of the company or the firm, the rate of income-tax would also be higher. Now, if the rate be annas two for the total world income of the partnership or association, then even if the agricultural income-tax had been based on this total world income, the rate would be the same. For firms, the rate of income-tax would be annas two in the rupee. An individual may pay at the rate of one anna or it may be that he has paid two annas. Later on he might be given a refund on account of the difference in the two rates.

Here I have to ask the Hon'ble the Finance Minister two questions. First, in what way is the tax going to operate? Is it going to operate to the advantage of the person taxed? When the refund is given, are we to assume that the rates were calculated on the basis of the total world income, though actually this was not done? The question of refund arises if only we treat for the purposes of taxation as if the total world income were also the total agricultural income of a firm or company. Earlier, we have been told this is not the case. If that is not the case, then on the basis of the rate which we have suggested, (say one anna for the sake of argument), a person may have been taxed at the rate of one anna. At the time of refund, if the basis of calculation be at the rate of two annas, then is the difference going to be refunded? As I have stated at the outset, the speeches of the two honourable members have not clarified this point. I am not convinced by the speech of my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad who says that it is parsimonious on the part of the Government to refuse the refund. I find the contrary is the case. Instead of giving the assessed person a smaller sum, the Government is giving him a larger refund. It seems to me that there is room for confusion in the clause as it stands and I find it difficult to understand. Earlier, it has been stated clearly that only the agricultural income will be considered in assessing the tax. If that is clearly laid down, it seems to me that the other half is altogether unnecessary. If the amendment were carried, the clause would then read: "Notwithstanding anything in section 47, a shareholder of a company, a partner of a firm or a member of an association of individuals on whose behalf agricultural income-tax is by section 17 deemed to have been paid by such company, firm or association, shall be entitled to a refund of agricultural income tax on account of any difference between the rate of agricultural income-tax applicable under this Act to the total agricultural income of such company, firm or association and the average rate which would be applicable to the total agricultural income arising out of land in Bengal".

It seems to me that in that case the two rates would be identical. If Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad's amendment is carried, the other rate would also be the total agricultural income of the company. The whole clause would become superfluous. There is no difference between the two, as it stands now. I do not see the propriety of having the latter portion of this clause. Since the rate of assessment is determined by the total agricultural income, the question of any refund on the basis of average rate would not arise at all, because it would be a higher rate. Therefore, the difference will only operate in favour of the assesses and against the interest of the province. I hope, therefore, the Hon'ble Finance Minister will clarify the point.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: May I rise on a point of personal explanation? Sub-clause (I) makes the distinction between the rate chargeable on the company and the refund. If it is a person, it will charge at the maximum rate and the refund is in income of the person. This is the difference.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I see the point in the case of refund. You are taking the total world income of the transaction. In one case you are taking the income of the company and in the other case you are taking the total world income of the individual. I would ask the Finance Minister to explain the relation of the two.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I also want to speak on this amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, you may speak.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. Now, Sir, section 48(I) reads as follows:—

“Notwithstanding anything in section 47, a share-holder of a company, a partner of a firm or a member of an association of individuals on whose behalf agricultural income-tax is by section 17 deemed to have been paid by such company, firm or association, shall be entitled to a refund of agricultural income-tax on account of any difference between the rate of agricultural income-tax applicable under this Act to the total agricultural income of such company, firm or association and the average rate which would be applicable to the total world income of such share-holder, partner or member if such total world income were agricultural income chargeable to agricultural income-tax under this Act.”

Sir, the Khan Bahadur wants that in place of the words “the total world income of such share-holder, partner or member if such total world income were agricultural income chargeable to agricultural income-tax under this Act”, the words “total agricultural income arising out of land in Bengal” be substituted. What is quite apparent to me is this that the Hon’ble the Finance Minister is attempting to reduce the amount of refund which would be made payable to a share-holder, and with this object in view he has brought in the question of the total world income of that share-holder, partner or that member, for then only it will be found that the rate payable by such a share-holder, partner or member will be higher than if only his agricultural income derived from his land in Bengal is taken into consideration. For instance, Sir, the company, say, pays 2½ annas in the rupee as agricultural income-tax. By that payment he pays on behalf of the share-holder or partner or member. Now, if only agricultural income of the share-holder is taken into consideration, the share-holder would be found to be paying 9 pies in the rupee, or say, one anna in the rupee, and the difference will have to be refunded, say, the difference of one anna or say one anna and six pies will have to be refunded but if instead of taking the question of the total agricultural income arising out of land in Bengal into consideration, the question of world income is taken into consideration, it may be found that the rate applicable would be one anna and six pies in the rupee, but he will be refunded only two and half pies in the rupee or it may very well be that it may be found that the rate applicable to the share-holder will be even 2½ annas which is exactly the rate which the company is paying so that it will get actually no refund. If refund is to be payable at all, it should be payable by the difference which will be payable by the rate that has to be paid by the share-holder in relation to his total agricultural income derived arising out of his land in Bengal without considering his world income. This will be equitable and just and with this object the amendment has been brought in.

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Mr. President, Sir, I support the amendment which has been moved by my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. It seems there is some misapprehension in the House with regard to the effect of the clause itself and also the effect of the amendment. Now, so far as the clause itself is concerned, I may state by referring to the clause itself which runs thus:—

“Notwithstanding anything in section 47, a share-holder of a company, a partner of a firm or a member of an association of individuals on whose behalf agricultural income-tax is by section 17 deemed to have been paid by such company.” Now, we have to go back to clause 17 for the purpose of determining what are the taxes that a company will have to pay. I am reading clause 17 accordingly:—A company, firm or other association of individuals which has paid agricultural income-tax under this Act in respect of its agricultural income as such company—

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 78.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Wednesday, the 16th August, 1944, at 2-15 p.m. being the seventy-eighth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Famine Inquiry Commission.

252. Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Revenue Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if the Government of Bengal have been consulted about the procedure to be adopted by the Famine Inquiry Commission; and
- (b) if the Government propose to consider the desirability of pressing upon the Commission for getting members from the Bengal Legislature to be co-opted for the purpose of the enquiry in Bengal?

MINISTER in charge of the REVENUE DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Mr. Tarak Nath Mukerjee): (a) No.

(b) The relevant Ordinance of the Government of India does not provide for co-optation of members.

Adjournment Motion regarding shortage and high prices of cloth.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Sir, I gave notice of a motion for adjournment on a very important subject, namely, the situation arising out of the shortage and high prices of cloth. It is a very important matter so far as the people of this province are concerned. So I ask your permission to move this adjournment motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Is it not a matter which concerns the Central Government?

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: No, Sir, it is a matter which concerns the Bengal Government also. The Civil Supplies Department has appointed a Textile—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But it involves more than one issue and concerns both the Government of India and this Government.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: It involves both the Governments; but it is the primary concern of the Bengal Government.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, most of the matters arising out of this motion comes within the purview of the Government of India. The question of supply, the question of the maintenance of price level and even arrangement for the regular supply—these are matters outside the purview of this Government. Then, Sir, the question of supply depends on movement and upon the facility of transport. I would have been able to make a statement. But I do not want to enter into a controversy at the present moment. The Textile Commissioner is coming to Calcutta on the 19th instant to meet the Advisory Committee when we shall discuss the matter. There are also many outstanding matters, one of which is the quota allotted to the Government of Bengal.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Does not the Government of Bengal decide the quota?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: We have nothing to do with quota and that matter has not been decided to our satisfaction. So we have decided to discuss with the Textile Commissioner this and many other matters that are outstanding and of which perhaps the mover is not aware. The Textile Commissioner is going to give us four days for the discussion of these matters. I submit, Sir, apart from this fact, namely, that it is extremely undesirable to ventilate on the floor of the Chamber now matters regarding which we shall have discussion with the Textile Commissioner, the motion is out of order.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Sir, the discussion of this question will help the Hon'ble Minister in carrying on negotiations with the Textile Commissioner. So far as the Bengal quota is concerned, it is the Bengal Government which makes arrangement with the Central Government to ensure a proper supply of cloth for Bengal. I could not explain the position because the Hon'ble Minister was on his legs. However, my point is this: we in Bengal have been suffering for want of cloth and high prices of cloth. Now, every time we approach the Hon'ble the Civil Supplies Minister he says it is not a provincial subject but that it is a central subject. But, Sir, how can we approach the Government of India? As the Hon'ble Minister says, the Textile Commissioner is coming here. In my opinion, that is all the more reason why a discussion of this subject should be allowed. The Hon'ble Minister cannot possibly know what our grievances are unless he gives us a hearing.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: There seems to be a lamentable ignorance of the actual conditions relating to this problem. I do not think that any good would come out of the discussion in which the honourable members would participate. For instance, he talks about the price-level being high and also thinks that we can reduce the price-level. He ought to know that price is fixed by the Government of India under elaborate price-lists and the tex-mark is made in conformity with the price-lists. The Government of India are trying to reduce the price and they have been able to reduce the price progressively. We cannot fix a price which is below the price-level fixed by the Government of India. We have to purchase cloths from the Bombay mills at the price which is fixed by the Government of India. Secondly, it is not possible for us to fix a lower price-level. It shows that the honourable member knows nothing at all.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Sir, may I draw your attention to the remarks made by Mr. S. C. Roy, Chairman of the Textile Committee—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I must be satisfied before I give my consent to your motion that the subject-matter of this motion is primarily the concern of the Provincial Government. Your motion raises more than one issue, namely, price-level, supply and distribution. Supply, I understand, is the concern of the Central Government. Price-level is also the concern of the Central Government and distribution probably, I speak here subject to correction, is the concern of the Local Government. So, the subject-matter of your motion is not primarily the concern of the Provincial Government. That is the difficulty regarding your motion.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: If the Government of India fails to ensure regular supply, then is it not the duty of the Provincial Government to arrange for the supply?

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is a different question. I realise the importance of the point raised by you; but probably that grievance will have to be remedied by some other means not by moving an adjournment motion to adjourn the business of the House. An adjournment motion can be moved only according to the rules regarding such motions.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, the Government of India have placed certain restrictions on the supply of cloth. They have arranged that certain quantity of cloths will be made available to the consumers at reasonable price in a well-distributed manner. So, this cloth business is entirely in the hands of the Government of India. They have taken this power under certain Ordinances. So far as the Provincial Government is concerned, they can supply it but that does not make them primarily responsible for the situation complained of, because unless the primary responsibility is given to them you cannot say that the failure was due to the fault of the Provincial Government. Nobody agrees more with Rai Bahadur Keshab Chandra Banerjee than myself in thinking that there is an acute situation regarding cloth in Bengal. In the rules that are being made, either the Government of India has bungled or as my friend says, it has been made by the trade.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: It is not a question of bungling. My point is this—

Mr. PRESIDENT: As I said, there is considerable force in what you say but you should note that your motion involves more than one issue; one concerns the Central Government and the other concerns the Local Government and primarily the Bengal Government are not concerned. So under section 98, I cannot allow it.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: There is no denying the fact, as the Hon'ble Minister has pointed out, that so far as the Central Government are concerned, they are to maintain the price-level but what the adjournment motion really points to is—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will you kindly try to reply to my objection that it involves more than one issue? The supply and fixing of prices is the concern of the Central Government, whereas distribution is the concern of the Local Government. How can you reconcile these two?

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: All that this adjournment motion wants is: examination on the part of the Local Government of the arrangement made by the Central Government to supply cloth to the people of Bengal. The adjournment motion does not want the Bengal Government to be responsible for the supply of cloth. The adjournment motion wants exertion on the part of the Civil Supplies Minister to take steps in the matter in order to ensure the supply of cloth.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You cannot adjourn the business of the House except for discussing a matter which is primarily the concern of the Local Government. The rules are very clear on the subject and I am afraid I must hold that this adjournment motion is not permissible.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Will you kindly permit me to make a statement tomorrow clearly setting forth the difficulties under which people—

Mr. PRESIDENT: This is not the normal procedure, Rai Bahadur. If you are really keen on this matter, you can put a short-notice question and if I find it in order, I shall certainly admit it and let the Hon'ble Minister make a statement if he likes.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Replies to short-notice questions will not bring us nearer to a solution of this problem.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What you want to say in moving the adjournment motion you can put in supplementary questions.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: It is very difficult to elicit proper information by supplementary questions.

Mr. PRESIDENT: There is no use discussing this matter. You have been a member of the Legislature for a very long time and you know that private members are not allowed to make statements.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: I stand corrected. It was a slip of tongue on my part to have used the word "statement". In fact, what I wanted to do is this. I wanted to move a motion so far as cloth is concerned—

Mr. PRESIDENT: That you can do under section 96.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: I can do that if you permit me.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of information, Sir. Regarding my Special Motion the debate has not been concluded. When it is going to be concluded?

Mr. PRESIDENT: The debate will be resumed on Friday next.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is it your wish, Sir, that on the non-official day also we shall sit from 2-15 to 6 p.m.?

Mr. PRESIDENT: As you like. If you wish to adjourn earlier, I have no objection.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, on Friday we have to say our Jumma prayer.

Mr. PRESIDENT: We meet long after the Jumma prayer.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, the time for Jumma prayer extends from 1 o'clock to 3 o'clock, and Government offices in the Writers' Buildings close from 1 o'clock to 3 o'clock.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have yet to learn that the time for the Jumma prayer continues from 1 o'clock to 3 o'clock.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: I say that there is sufficient substance in my statement. But, if you fix the time of the Jumma prayer according to your own choice, certainly I am helpless.

Mr. YAKUB H. S. SATTAR: Sir, the Jumma prayer finishes at 1-30.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House will now resume further discussion of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, yesterday I was referring to clause 17 of the Bill which refers to the tax which a company pays on behalf—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, I cannot follow you.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, there is so much golmal in the House, otherwise you could have followed me quite all right.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I was referring to clause 17 of the Bill which makes a provision for payment of tax on behalf of the share-holders of companies, firms or other association of individuals. In this connection we have further to note that in the Schedule to the Bill a provision has been made that a company, firm or other association of individuals has to pay two annas and six pies in the rupee. It is the maximum rate that is provided in the Schedule. Now, let us consider the clause itself which is now under discussion. Sub-clause (1) of clause 48 says as follows: "Notwithstanding anything in section 47, a share-holder of a company, a partner of a firm or a member of an association of individuals on whose behalf agricultural income-tax is by section 17 deemed to have been paid by such company, firm or association, shall be entitled to a refund of agricultural income-tax on account of any difference between the rate of agricultural income-tax applicable under this Act to the total agricultural income of such company, firm or association and the average rate which would be applicable to the total world income of such share-holder, partner or member if such total world income were agricultural income chargeable to agricultural income-tax under this Act."

I do not know what was the exact intention of the framers of the Bill but it seems that they want to grant refund on the basis of total world income to such share-holder. Now, what is the total world income referred to here? Is it the total world income under the Indian Income-tax Act, or total income which a share-holder has to pay under the United Kingdom Income-tax Act, with regard to which there is some reference in the other clauses of the Bill? There cannot be any doubt that so far as the total world income of such share-holder under the Indian Income-tax is concerned, the tax that he has paid under the Indian Income-tax Act is quite different from the total world income-tax which he is liable to pay under the United Kingdom Income-tax Act. So far as the United Kingdom Income-tax Act is concerned, we know that that tax is assessed on the basis of the income of an assessee after giving such assessee allowances on various heads as are mentioned in the British Income-tax Act, 1918, where we find provisions made for allowances from the total income in sections 9 to 16 of the Act. The rate is annually fixed and there is similar provision in subsequent statutes under the United Kingdom Income-tax Act. Now I do not know what the total world income is here referred to. Total world income has been defined in sub-clause 17 of clause 2, as the total world income as defined in the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, the total agricultural income as defined in this Bill and again as the agricultural income derived from lands in British India excepting Bengal—these are the three incomes referred to in sub-clause (17) of clause 2. Naturally, when we find mention of the word total world income in clause 48, we have to go back to the definition of the total world income in that sub-clause. Here again, there is some difficulty. So far as total world income under the Indian Income-tax Act is concerned, we know that tea companies are given a certain percentage of their income by the Income-tax Act and certain other income under the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Act; the proportion I believe is 60 per cent. and 40 per cent. respectively.

The present percentages, I believe, are 60 and 40. Now, in granting refund the total agricultural income chargeable to agricultural income under this Act would mean agricultural income-tax only. The total world income would mean the total income derived by the person from agricultural income derived from land in British India except Bengal. Here that is included. But that is not the tax under the Indian-tax Act, but it is a tax under some other provincial taxes, namely, the Bihar Agricultural Income-tax and the Assam Agricultural Income-tax. I would therefore submit that the clause as it stands does not clearly set out what the rate of refund would be and it would be larger than what the assessor would be entitled to get under the amendment of Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. As a matter of fact, we have been told in other clauses of the Bill that we are not concerned with the agricultural income-tax which a person has to pay with regard to land outside Bengal. Therefore, I submit that the amendment moved should be accepted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, it is an amendment which, if accepted, would make the total agricultural income arising out of land in Bengal a basis for refund. That would be absurd. In fact, as was pointed out by my honourable friend Mr. Humayun Kabir last night, the acceptance of this amendment would practically mean acceptance of an amendment to delete the whole clause 48. I shall indicate the purpose of clause 48. This clause governs the question of refund to share-holders of a company, a partner of a firm or a member of an association of individuals and provides that this would be determined on the basis of their total world income. Such a provision is essential, as otherwise Government will have to refund to share-holders almost all they collect from the company on account of the artificial distinction made between agricultural and non-agricultural income—a distinction which is sought to be made by the Indian Income-tax Law. The Government have to take a compartmental view of a man's income. Such a compartmental view is not certainly inequitable nor wholly unreal. Sir, I oppose this amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 48 of the Bill, for the words "the total world income of such share-holder, partner or member if such total world income were agricultural income chargeable to agricultural income-tax under this Act" in lines 10 to 12, the words "total agricultural income arising out of land in Bengal" be substituted.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Sir, I should like to have rearrangement of the clauses to strengthen the context.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—11, and the "Noes"—25, the amendment is negatived.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in sub-clause (3) of clause 48 of the Bill, for the words "total world income" in line 11, the words "total agricultural income arising out of land in Bengal" be substituted.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: On a point of order, Sir. When a member rises to speak, is it permissible for another member to cross the floor between the Chair and the member speaking?

Mr. PRESIDENT: No; under no circumstances should a member cross the floor.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Just now one honourable member crossed the floor when the Khan Bahadur was speaking.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Henceforth no honourable member should do so. Go on, Khan Bahadur Sahib.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, the object of my amendment has been discussed in the course of debates on the previous amendments. There has been some amount of misunderstanding as to the idea of introducing world income in this clause. The maximum rate at which companies are taxed for agricultural income in Bengal is 30 pies in the rupee. It is a universal rule that when we allow refund to a share-holder of a company, there is a difference between the company's maximum rate and the personal rate applicable to the assessee. I hope honourable members are familiar with these refunds. When a man receives a dividend, the maximum rate of tax is charged at the source. The usual practice in these cases is to attach the dividend warrant along with the income-tax return and the Income-tax Officer determines the assessee's total income including the dividend and finds out the rate applicable to his case and gives relief by refund or by adjustment. It, therefore, follows that the dividend of the individual shareholder is, by operation of the relief, taxed at the personal rate of the assessee. This wholesome universal rule is frustrated by this clause. The argument applies also to partners of firms and others.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Chakraverti, members must not talk among themselves in that way. Yes, Khan Bahadur.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The Indian Income-tax Act does not include agricultural income arising in the provinces. But under the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill "world income" is something more than world income under the Indian Income-tax Act. "World income" under the Bill is "world income" under the Central Act plus the provincial agricultural income. In reality, therefore, you are charging share-holders and partners a rate not depending on his agricultural income but on his agricultural as well as non-agricultural income. This is bad in principle. The Hon'ble Minister's reply to this argument would be that, if we accept the principle, large refunds will have to be made. There is no question as to whether large or small refund is to be made. The question is: whether the principle in the clause is in agreement with sound principle. Under the Indian Income-tax Act, the levy and refund depend on world income. But in Bengal, the levy will be on Bengal Agricultural income, while the refund will be on world income. In Bengal, the world income is used as a baffle wall to obstruct a legitimate refund. You cannot set up a novel standard for Bengal. The Bill seeks to tax people according to personal income arising out of agricultural income in Bengal. Having once laid down that standard for levying the tax, it is difficult to see on what principle the refund will be based on a composite provincial as well as foreign income. I think the refund should be based on the actual agricultural income of each assessee. The selection of two different standards—one for receiving and the other for refund—this anomaly is attempted to be cured by this amendment. The amendment seeks to introduce sheer justice and common sense. I think this should be fully appreciated before the amendment could be legitimately and reasonably opposed. With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (3) of clause 48 of the Bill, for the words "total world income" in line 11, the words "total agricultural income arising out of land in Bengal" be substituted.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANOBISH: I beg to support this amendment. The object of this sub-clause of clause 48 is to try to pay back as much less as is practicable under the circumstances. In ordinary income-tax law when a company pays a dividend and pays or undertakes to pay the tax, it grants a certificate to the share-holder saying that the tax on this amount at the highest rate has been paid or shall be paid by the company. On the production of the certificate by the share-holder at the time of his assessment he is allowed a rebate to the extent of the difference between his rate at which he himself is liable to be assessed and the rate at which the tax has been deducted at the source. Take for instance, a case in which a company has paid the tax at the highest rate, say, at 48 pice in the rupee and a particular assessee has been taxed at the rate of 12 pice in the rupee, then the difference between 48 pice and 12 pice, that is 36 pice, is to be refunded.

Now in this particular case, with regard to the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax we find that the provision that is sought to be made is that when a question of refund arises, the company concerned is taxed under the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Act at the highest rate though the tax that is payable by the individual assessee on agricultural income may be nil or may be 6 or 8 pies. So far as the agricultural income-tax is concerned, he will not be allowed refund on that basis but in considering the refund to him the revenue authorities are to consider not only his agricultural income but also his total world income as defined in the definition clause so that all his world income is to be taken into account and then he will be given deduction on the difference between this average rate and the rate at which the company paid. That I submit is inequitable. When we consider this Agricultural Income-tax Act, we must give our consideration to the fact that this particular Act deals with only a particular item of income. It has got nothing to do with other incomes from other sources. It is a provincial tax and it is paid on a different basis and it has got nothing to do with the world income. Why bring in the world income? I submit that if you are charging agricultural income-tax to the company, what would have been the tax if I would have earned that income myself? That is the basis on which this refund should be granted. At the time of granting the refund you look to the other income. The gentleman may be earning lakhs and lakhs from other sources and for that he is paying tax separately; but he is getting the benefit of refund from other sources. I could not see what is the justification for the inclusion of this provision for bringing in an average rate of tax which he would be liable to pay on the basis of his world income. Sub-clause (3) reads: "The amount of any refund of agricultural income-tax due under the provisions of sub-section (1) shall be the product of the amount of agricultural income on which tax is deemed to have been paid by a company, firm or association of individuals and has been received by a share-holder, partner or member, as the case may be, and the difference between the rate of agricultural income-tax applicable to the total agricultural income of the said company, firm or association chargeable to agricultural income-tax under this Act, and the average rate of such tax applicable to an amount equivalent to the total world income of such share-holder, partner or"

I emphasize the word "product". Now, Sir, what is meant by the word "product" here and the "difference"? We understood that the product means the sum which is obtained by multiplication of two sums. But where are the two sums here of which the product is to be obtained. I may be wrong but I would like to be enlightened on the point. That is one item and the difference between the rate of agricultural income-tax applicable to the total agricultural income of the said company, firm or association chargeable to income-tax under this Act and the average rate of such tax applicable to an amount equivalent to the total world income of such share-holder, partner or member. I do not know what is actually meant by the word "product" here: whether it means the amount of agricultural income or the product of the agricultural income. I think, Sir, that it is extremely difficult to follow what is meant by the words "product of the amount of agricultural income". The company's rate and the average rate of the tax payable by the individual assessee on his world income, as has been rightly pointed out by the Khan Bahadur, the mover of this amendment, that at one place you are taking the agricultural income alone of the company and you are taking on the other hand the total world income of the assessee. Is it not unfair to compare and then to pay a refund on the difference of the agricultural income of the company and the total world income of the assessee? Now, here there is a substantial difference between the method adopted by the Indian Income-tax law and this law. Under the ordinary income-tax, they take the entire income into consideration on which a company pays tax and they give refund on the total income of the assessee. But, here, you take only the agricultural income of the company on which the company pays the tax and you charge the assessee on the average rate of his total world income, and then you want to pay the difference. I therefore submit that it is most unjust and inequitable and the refund should be on the basis of the agricultural income of the assessee. It may happen that there are many assesseees whose income from agriculture may not be at all assessable. So, I believe, Sir, that with a view to avoid these refunds this provision has been made and has been made most unjustly and so this amendment ought to be accepted.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I regret, I have to oppose the amendment of my honourable friend. Though I cannot congratulate the Hon'ble the Finance Minister for his drafting of this particular clause, I believe that the purport of the clause is, on the whole, all right. A lot of simple things, it seems to me, has been made unnecessarily difficult in this clause. The use of the word "product" which seemed to worry my honourable friend who has just sat down, has, I think, unnecessarily caused a good deal of confusion. In a way, this term "product" is inevitable if you want to find out the amount which will be refundable. You can find that out only by taking the actual world income and multiplying this figure by the rate which would apply to that income. The product of these two will determine for you the actual amount of money which will be refundable. Sir, from that point of view, the use of the term "product" is inevitable, but it seems to me that it has caused unnecessary confusion. If it had been simply stated in the draft that the refund will be governed by the difference between the rate at which the company actually pays and the rate at which the assessee would have paid if his total personal world income had been considered, that would have made the point clearer.

However, Sir, as I was submitting the use of the term "product" is almost inevitable in the form in which the thing has been drafted. I confess that I do agree with the remarks of my honourable friend who has just sat down that it is in fact not the intention of Government to make any refunds. As this sub-clause now stands, it really does not make any refund. On the whole, I am inclined to agree with the Government rather than with my honourable friend. This question of refund or the question of refusing a refund arises only after the level of income of Rs. 20,000 or more has been reached. Those who have a total world income of Rs. 20,000 or less will be entitled to some refund, because the rate for the agricultural income from companies is 2 annas and 6 pies in the rupee irrespective of the amount of income. Here also unnecessary confusion has been caused by the use of the term "total world income of a company". In the case of a company, there is no difference in the rate. Whether the agricultural income of a company is Rs. 5,000 or Rs. 5 lakhs, the rate in every case shall be 2 annas and 6 pies in the rupee, which is also the maximum in the case of an individual assessee. In the case of an individual assessee, the rate is two annas and 6 pies only for persons with an income above Rs. 20,000.

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: On a point of order, Sir. I would like to point out the fact that we decided in dealing with sub-clause (1) that the refund should be based on the total world income. Had we decided otherwise, the amendment which we are now dealing with would have been necessary as a consequential amendment; but as matters stand it appears to me that we have already gone into the whole arrangement as to whether it should be on the agricultural income only or should include the total world income. There is, therefore, no necessity to cover the same ground again in connection with sub-clause (3) which merely deals with the machinery for effecting what is required under sub-clause (1). That being so, I do not see the point of going over the whole point again for what is really or would have been a consequential amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think you are right, Mr. Laidlaw.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: May I speak on this point of order, Sir? The question is not for a point of order being raised as has been done by Mr. Laidlaw. It attempts to show some amount of repugnancy. When I raised a point of order and wanted to remove repugnancy—you, Sir, held, and I submit respectfully, rightly held, that the question of repugnancy was not a point of order but a question of merit and further that it was always a matter which could be discussed and voted upon. It is quite conceivable that one amendment may be inconsistent with another. We have not decided that yet. A certain proposition may not be consistent in one context but the question is: whether we cannot insert that very thing in another context. There may be repugnancy or inconsistency but that is another matter.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANOBISH: If you will kindly refer to amendment No. 326 and compare it with No. 327, you will find, Sir, that these are two different matters.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: There is one further point to be considered in connection with this point of order. Sub-clause (f) of clause 48 deals with the maximum amount of money that may be refunded. We have decided only the principle but when you set up the machinery and determine the actual sum to be refunded, variations may be made. If the refund exceeds a certain amount, it should not be conceded as in sub-clause (f) there would be grave repugnancy. If it can be kept within that amount, then of course there is no harm.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Yes, the House has accepted the total world income as the basis of refund. No doubt about it. So I think there is much force in the point of order of Mr. Laidlaw.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think the point of order raised by Mr. Laidlaw is quite correct. Here the wording is this: "... firm or association shall be entitled to a refund of agricultural income-tax on account of any difference between the rate of agricultural income-tax applicable under this Act to the total agricultural income of such company, firm or association and the average rate which would be applicable to the total world income of such share-holder....." That makes it quite clear. So I am afraid, having accepted that principle, this amendment is not in order. In this connection, I would refer to sub-rule (4) of rule 43 where it is laid down—

"An amendment on a question must not be inconsistent with the previous decision on the same question given at the same stage of any Bill or Motion".

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move: that in sub-clause (4) of clause 48 of the Bill, for the words and inverted commas "Average rate" in line 1, the words and inverted commas "The expression 'average rate'" be substituted.

Sir, it is in the interest of good grammar, that I have suggested this amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (4) of clause 48 of the Bill, for the words and inverted commas "Average rate" in line 1, the words and inverted commas "The expression 'average rate'" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (4) of clause 48 of the Bill, for the words and inverted commas "Average rate" in line 1, the words and inverted commas "The expression 'average rate'" be substituted.

The motion being put, a division was called and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—11, and the "Noes"—23, the amendment is negatived.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move: that sub-clause (4) in clause 48 of the Bill be omitted.

With regard to this, we find the average rate linked with total world income. We have accepted that the total world income would be the standard and I submit that for reasons which I have already given, this clause should be deleted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that sub-clause (4) in clause 48 of the Bill be omitted.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I would like to support this amendment. An attempt has been made to explain "average rate" in this way:—

" 'Average rate' in sub-section (3) means the rate obtained by dividing the amount of agricultural income-tax which would be payable by assessee in the year of assessment if his total world income in the previous year were agricultural income chargeable to agricultural income-tax at the rates applicable under this Act by the said total world income."

It seems to me that it would be better if this sub-clause be omitted, for there is an indication as to what the average rate would be in sub-clause (1) of section 48, which would make it confusing.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I also support this amendment. Already in sub-clauses (1) and (3) we have made references to the world income. In the Schedule, it has also been laid down that the maximum rate would be 2 annas and 6 pies in the rupee. Therefore, why attempt to find a new rate here which may be different from that rate. In sub-clause 40, the rate is sought to be determined by dividing the amount of tax by the total world income. I submit this would invariably give the figure 2 annas and 6 pies in the rupee. I take it, Sir, that persons below the income of Rs. 20,000 can rarely have any world income. The question of world income comes only in respect of people with fairly high income and they will come under this higher rate.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I submit that a definition of the expression "average rate" is very necessary and the expression "average rate" is necessary in view of the slab system adopted in this Bill. According to the slab system, different rates apply to different slabs of income. Hence there is no one particular rate applicable to the whole of the income and that is why it has been necessary to introduce the idea of average rate and to define what we mean by it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that sub-clause (4) in clause 48 of the Bill be omitted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—8, and the "Noes"—24, the amendment is negatived.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move: that sub-clause (5) of clause 48 of the Bill be omitted.

This question has been sufficiently discussed. The omission of this sub-clause would make the meaning of "World income" under the Central Act and the Bengal Bill uniform. The Bengal standard is higher and should at least be reduced to the level of the Central Act. I have already adverted to the disadvantage or rather the injustice of accepting one standard for receiving a tax and another standard for giving it back. I submit that the deletion of the sub-clause will avoid a great deal of anomaly.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that sub-clause (5) of clause 48 of the Bill be deleted.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I rise to oppose the amendment moved by my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad, for I think that his purpose is to exclude for the computation of the tax agricultural income derived from outside Bengal. As I understand it if this amendment were carried, the only difference would be that agricultural income derived from land outside Bengal should not be taken into account. So far as other elements are concerned, they would be governed in terms of the Indian Income-tax Act. Since in the Indian Income-tax Act, there is no provision whatever for considering any income derived from agriculture, the result of this amendment would be that the amount of money which would be covered by paragraph (b) of sub-clause (5) would be left out of account. Now, as I have stated earlier also, since this question of total world income would arise only in the case of a few persons, persons who are able to pay the tax, I do not see any special point in making special concessions in their case. The principle of all taxation should be that people should be taxed according to their capacity. Those who have the capacity of paying the tax, should be compelled to pay up to the maximum. Those who are unable to pay the tax should as far as possible be excluded. I would be in favour of raising the lower limit as I think the limit is quite adequate under the Indian Income-tax Act. In fact, the limit laid down in the Indian Income-tax Act is too low. Under the Indian Income-tax Act, the limit is Rs. 2,000. In the case of higher incomes, incomes of Rs. 20,000 and over, I do not see any reason why there should be any special concession. Even in the present Bill, those who are earning more than Rs. 20,000 pay 2 annas 6 pies, which I think is too low. In the case of income of Rs. 20,000 or more, there is no reason why the rate of tax should not be higher. I would ask my friends to the left, I mean members of the European Party, to tell us what is the rate of tax on income of Rs. 20,000 and over in England. These are the general grounds, Sir, on which I am opposed to this amendment.

Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I oppose the amendment not exactly on the ground advanced by my honourable and learned friend Mr. Humayun Kabir, but because I consider that sub-clause (5) is essential for the working of the provisions of clause 48 which the House has already accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that sub-clause (5) in clause 48 of the Bill be omitted.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—6, and the "Noes"—24, the amendment is negatived.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Sir, before you take up the next amendment, may I make a submission? This is with regard to the manner in which our progress is being hampered. I have nothing to complain against the discussion on amendments. We drew your attention on a previous occasion to the fact that we are anxious that this Bill should be passed or finished before the month of Ramzan. If we have to sit during that month, it would be very inconvenient to some mufassil members. We expected that by increasing the time for discussion we will make a fair amount of progress and we also expected that probably we would finish sooner. Now we find that we have not achieved much progress and from the manner in which we are going on, I am afraid, that probably we may have to continue the whole month of Ramzan. If this delay was due to real debate and discussion, I would not mind. In view of the results of the divisions, I dare say all the members of the House clearly realise what these divisions are meant for. We may be excused for saying that most of them are deliberately frivolous. In the circumstances, Sir, I would request you to take any steps that you may deem proper so that the work may progress more fairly than it has been in the past. Particularly, it has become a regular harassment for members of the Council to have to attend for 3 or 4 hours everyday leaving their other works. There are two alternatives so far as I can see. Firstly, that we should try the experiment of a whole night sitting, if it is necessary. That will no doubt be a drastic remedy; but a drastic disease requires drastic remedy and therefore we must allow more time to the discussion and finish the work as quickly as possible. Nobody can say that sitting whole night will be very comfortable but when duty requires it, I think we should not hesitate to take that trouble and put up with the inconvenience.

The other remedy which I would propose is a change of the rules by which it is required that in every case we should go and record our votes on a division being called, when we know that the disparity in the votes recorded by both sides is enormous. It might be possible for the President to find out the opinion of the House by show of hands. If that requires a change of rules, they must be changed. We have found now that the rules are operating very harshly on reasonable people. Therefore, my most humble request to you is that you should take whatever steps you deem proper to change the rules not only for this occasion but for all occasions to prevent harassment to members. My first submission to you is that we should sit longer hours and if necessary to have whole night sittings for as many days as may be required to finish this Bill; and secondly, to change the rules as quickly as possible.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I support my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Abdul Momin. I suggest that we try an experiment this evening and see how much longer we can sit—

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: We are not prepared to sit longer hours—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, we regret to find that we are always interrupted whenever we rise to speak in order to ventilate our grievances, whereas you always allow the Hon'ble Minister to speak uninterrupted, because they are Hon'ble Ministers. This is a question of facilities for all members, both Government members and Opposition members—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Sahib, will you please take your seat? You have no right to make such observations. Members of the Opposition are given sufficient opportunities to ventilate their grievances.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I repeat my suggestion that we try an experiment this very evening, and let us see what progress we can make by sitting longer hours, because this Bill will have to be gone through as quickly as possible. I think an enormous amount of time is being wasted on divisions.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I have the views of the Opposition?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, the difficulty is the creation of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister himself, and it is also the creation of the members of the Government Party. The Hon'ble Minister at the very beginning directed the members of the Government Party to see that the Bill is passed through without change even of a comma. That, Sir, is a very serious point.

Then, Sir, there were as many as 500 amendments to the Bill and out of this number we have gone through 332 amendments; and in the course of these days, our duty was not confined only to deal with the provisions of this measure but to other duties also, namely, we had to ventilate the grievances of the whole of the province and on that account we have had to move adjournment motions and we have also had to move Special

Motions. In fact, the time of the House was very profitably spent. Moreover, it is a taxation measure and as such it cannot be rushed through with undue haste. Therefore, we could not go through as speedily as we thought we would be able to go through. But for these events this Bill would have been over by this time. But now we have really made very good progress. There is ahead of us only clause 49 which is a very important clause and after that there will be a sweep through down to clause 66 and the whole Bill will be over.

We are used to sit for two hours only. Sir, we remember the time when for only 5 clauses or 8 clauses of the Bengal Rural Primary Education (Amendment) Bill the Hon'ble Minister opposite, now the Leader of the House, kept us sitting for 30 days working for two hours a day. But here, Sir, we have doubled our working hours and instead of sitting for two hours we had been experimenting with a sitting of three hours for some days and now we are making an experiment with four hours. That is the experiment which is going on for three days but actually for one day only. On Monday we could not sit because a member of the House had died. On another occasion but outside this present scheme of 4 hours, another member had died and the House could not sit. Then this experiment was tried for holding a sitting for four hours and it may be said that this experiment has only begun today. If you go on with this trial at least till the next week then I think we shall be able to finish the business. If not, then only will the question of night sittings arise.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That will do. I do not think any further discussion on this point is necessary. I have heard the views both of the Opposition and of the Government side.

As regards your suggestion, Khan Bahadur, that the rules of the House should be changed, the Chair may do so but I do not think it would be fair to do so in the midst of discussion of such an important measure. So, that suggestion is ruled out. The duty of the Upper House is to revise any measure that is passed by the Lower House. This House is a revising Chamber and necessarily its function is to delay matters to some extent. It is therefore a delaying Chamber too. You cannot leave out that fact. But at the same time we must proceed with our business. I quite appreciate the suggestion of Khan Bahadur Momin that we must try to dispose of our work as quickly as possible without making unnecessary waste of time. That is the point which I would request members on both sides of the House to remember—there should not be any unnecessary waste of time. We have agreed to sit for four hours daily, that is we have doubled our sitting hours. And we should take full advantage of the longer sittings. I am inclined to agree with Mr. Lalit Chandra Das for the time being that the longer sitting has been tried only for two days; so let us see what progress we make and after some time, after sitting for a few days more, I shall review it and if necessary we shall sit for longer hours still or sit all-night, whatever course may be decided upon; but for the time being I hope there should be give-and-take on both sides. I quite appreciate the objection raised by the Opposition that the Government are not accepting any of their amendments and the Opposition take it as a grievance. Naturally, therefore, there is some amount of tension of feeling; but I hope that this tension of feeling will die out and both sides of the House will apply their minds to the business before the House and try to speed up the progress of the Bill. This is the appeal I make to the House. Let us proceed with the business and if after a few days we find that longer sittings are necessary we shall have to consider that matter further. (Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Only if the Opposition do not call unnecessary divisions.) Well, on that point it is the privilege of the Opposition to call divisions but whether they are necessary or unnecessary it is not for the Chair to make any remarks on it.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: May I say—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The matter has been sufficiently discussed.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that the Explanation at the end of clause 48 of the Bill be omitted.

Sir, the Explanation says "a certified copy of an order computing the total world income under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, shall be conclusive evidence of the contents thereof". The omission of the explanation will remove the rigours of the law. So far as the determination of agricultural income in the case of tea is concerned, the Indian Income-tax authorities has the last say in the matter. But under the sub-clause, they would not be the final authority. In fact, the Agricultural Income-tax Officer may override the decision. The fact is that we have now laid down a "world" standard. When we are not tied down to the world standard as determined by the Indian Income-tax Act, it becomes a matter of allocation of agricultural income and manufacturing income so far as this matter is concerned. In the circumstances, the rigour of the law should be softened. With these words, I submit that the amendment should be accepted.

Sir, may I in this connection submit that it has always been my anxiety to put matters briefly but thoroughly. I have tried to be concise and delay for its own sake has never been my object. But the Council is a revising Chamber and it is also a delaying Chamber and some amount of latitude should be given to the members. There may be some amount of occasional irritation here and there, but, considering the importance and the size of the Bill and the Government's wholesale opposition, it must be agreed that there has been no unreasonable delay. In the House of Commons in the 19th century a small Bill was fought word for word and inch by inch and the discussion went on for eight months. In the meantime, a slight heat once resulted in a hand-to-hand general fight in which Gladstone himself was involved. I hope we have not reached that standard. The good humour for which this House is justly famous, is generally maintained. If there is a little irritation here and there, it adds the necessary sauce to the debate and is, on the whole, tolerable and quite enjoyable. The greatest irritating factor on the side of the Opposition is this: the Government side do not open their lips. It is only by free debate that the Government party can ensure continuous good feeling and good humour in the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is all right, Khan Bahadur, that is enough.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: With these words, Sir, I submit my amendment for the consideration of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that the Explanation at the end of clause 48 of the Bill be omitted.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I rise to support the amendment of my friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. The Explanation runs thus: "A certified copy of an order computing the total world income under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, shall be conclusive evidence of the contents thereof". Sub-clauses 5(a) and (b) lay down the manner in which the total world income shall be computed—it lays down the rule how to compute the agricultural income which is derived outside Bengal. Then, our process which is laid down may not be on all fours with the process that will be adopted by an officer appointed under the Indian Income-tax Act of 1922. Therefore, I say a certified copy of an order computing the total world income under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, should not be given a conclusive character in its evidence. It should not be made conclusive. For rules that the Bengal Government would make for the purpose of calculating the total world income as well as agricultural income to be derived from lands outside Bengal may be such that computation by our officer may be necessary. With these few words, I support the amendment of Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, I beg to support the amendment. I find that this explanation is absolutely unnecessary. In the first place, although it is introduced as an explanation, I do not know what it really explains. It is really a truism to say that a certified copy of an order computing the total world income under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, shall be conclusive evidence of the contents thereof. A certified copy of the Income-tax Department is certainly a conclusive evidence. Therefore, this explanation is really a misnomer. The section does not say anything which requires explanation. It seems to me and I have a shrewd suspicion that it is intended to force the assessee to produce certificate from the Income-tax Department with a view to ascertain what is his total world income under the Indian Income-tax Act; but as a matter of fact when the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officer is going to assess a particular individual it would be his duty to obtain the necessary information. Otherwise, it would be impossible for an assessee to get this information. Moreover, it would be oppressive to the assessee. Those who are in any way connected with the Indian Income-tax office and those who have been fortunate or unfortunate enough to be assessed, know how difficult it is to obtain a certified copy from the Income-tax Department. The officer will say: "You just supply your world income return and unless you do that, I cannot proceed." Then the person will have to run to the office for a month or two. In the meantime, the officer would ask for explanation as to why the assessee has not been able to comply with this order. Instead of this, Government should by an executive order or instruction get the return of the assessee or the order from the Income-tax Department. I think that would serve the purpose very well. It is not a question of producing a certified copy of that order. As regards the question of conclusiveness of that order, I think it does not require any argument or statement in order to make that order conclusive, so far as the total world income under the Income-tax Act is concerned,—it is to this extent unnecessary. So my apprehension is that under the guise of this explanation the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officer might force the assessee to produce certified copies. It is better to omit this explanation. It will not affect the business of assessment. On the other hand, if they can obtain the information from the department, I think that will facilitate matters for quick disposal.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: I rise to support the amendment. I do not think I can add very much to the arguments already put forward by the previous speakers. But one thing in this connection may perhaps be usefully referred to. I am referring to the illegal gratification that the assessee will have to pay to the ministerial officers of the Income-tax Department for the purpose of obtaining a certified copy. Why this unnecessary expenditure? Everybody is aware of the difficulties one has to experience now-a-days in getting any work done in the Government offices of this province, particularly in the mufassil offices, such as, the District Judge's office, Collectorate, etc. Sub-clauses (5) (a) and (b) of section 48 are clear enough. Sub-clause (5) (a) says: "where the total world income of an assessee under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, has been computed for the purposes of that Act, that computation shall be accepted as determining the total world income under that Act for the purposes of this Act and if such a computation has not been made the total world income of an assessee under that Act shall be computed in the manner prescribed."

So I do not think the explanation is really necessary. It is redundant and it will be a cause of unnecessary harassment to many assesseees. So, I support the amendment.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I want to speak a few words in support of the amendment that has been moved by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. Now, the explanation under sub-clause (5) is as follows:—

“A certified copy of an order computing the total world income under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, shall be conclusive evidence of the contents thereof.”

If we look to this explanation and look to sub-clause (5) (a), we find:—

“Where the total world income of an assessee under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, has been computed for the purposes of that Act, that computation shall be accepted as determining the total world income under that Act for the purposes of this Act and if such a computation has not been made the total world income of an assessee under that Act shall be computed in the manner prescribed.”

I submit Sir, that, it is only in pursuance of an order passed by the Income-tax Authorities that the total world income is computed under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, and the assessee gets a notice stating clearly the amount at which the tax has been assessed under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922. I do not understand, Sir, why after this it is again provided in the “Explanation” that “a certified copy of an order computing the total world income under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, shall be conclusive evidence of the contents thereof.” They want that an order also is to be produced before the Income-tax Authorities will be satisfied as to the amount to be paid. I submit, Sir, that the return or the notice which the Indian Income-tax Authorities serve upon the assessee should be sufficient and sub-clause (a) states “that computation shall be accepted as determining the total world income.” This is a mandatory provision and it is a proof of what the assessment is. Therefore, I submit, Sir, that this “Explanation” is totally unnecessary. We all know that in Bills we ought to avoid unnecessary clauses.

Then, Sir, I would like to refer to another very important matter which was also referred to in connection with the amendment moved by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad to clause 25 of the Bill. Now, Sir, let us consider clause 25 of the Bill for a moment. I am now pointing out that there is repugnancy in the clause and so this repugnancy ought to be removed by accepting the amendment that has been moved by the Khan Bahadur. In clause 25(I) the provision is as follows:—

“If the Agricultural Income-tax Officer is satisfied without requiring the presence of the assessee or the production by him of any evidence that a return made under section 24 is correct and complete, he shall assess the total agricultural income of the assessee, and shall determine the sum payable by him on the basis of such return.”

There was some misapprehension, Sir, when we were moving and supporting amendments to clause 25 where also reference is made to “a certified copy of an assessment order under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.” This repugnancy ought to be removed. If we refer to section 25 (4) we will find that Income-tax Authorities are authorised to make an enquiry irrespective of the fact that he had produced a certified copy of an order of assessment under the Indian Income-tax Act, and this sub-clause (4) of clause 25 runs in this way:—

“The powers conferred by sub-sections (2) and (3) shall not except with the permission of the Commissioner be exercised by the Agricultural Income-tax Officer in the case of agricultural income which is assessed under the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 8 and regarding which an assessee has submitted together with his return under section 24 a certified copy of an assessment order under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922."

Now, here the provision is made that in spite of the fact that an assessee produces a certified copy of the order of assessment under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, the Commissioner of Income-tax may still permit the Agricultural Income-tax Officer to scrutinise the figures and to arrive at a different figure from that which is indicated in that certificate. It was sought to be explained by clause 8(3) where also reference is made to "a certified copy of an order of an assessment under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922"; and it was said that clause 25 only provided for the machinery of assessment. As a matter of fact, clause 25(1) makes provision for an order of assessment; and the procedure described under clause 25, sub-sections (2) and (3), do not form a substantive part of the authority of the Income-tax Officer to assess. That power is given under clause 25(1). If you refer now to clause 8(3), you will find the words "for the purpose of the assessment of agricultural income-tax under this section or any rule made thereunder a certified copy of an order of an assessment under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922"—I leave out here other portions which are not relevant—"shall be conclusive evidence of the contents of such order". Now, Sir, I would submit that as long as you retain clause 25(4) which has been accepted by the House, I think the amendment moved by the Khan Bahadur ought to be accepted; otherwise, there will be inconsistency because when you are determining the tax and passing an order of assessing the tax upon an assessee under clause 25(1) and under this relevant clause, namely, clause 48, you have to determine the question of refund. It was being said that the order of the Indian Income-tax Authorities shall be conclusive evidence. Therefore, it is clear that for the purpose of an order of assessment you adopt one principle, but when you are refunding the tax which has already been paid by companies or by an association of persons on behalf of others, there you make an order under the Indian Income-tax Act. I submit that the two would be repugnant to each other and should not be allowed to remain. The offending clause is clause 25(4) and I submit that the Explanation which is incorporated is in the first instance unnecessary and in the second place it introduces a clause which is repugnant to sub-clause (4) of clause 25. Having kept sub-clause (4) of clause 25, this Explanation should go ipso facto.

MR. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, some of my honourable friends have supported the amendment on the ground that the Explanation is unnecessary and repugnant to some of the other provisions of the Bill. I support the amendment for a different reason—for the simple reason that it unnecessarily puts the onus on the assessee. The Government is certainly entitled to realise the tax from those who are assessable to the tax, but why—instead of a departmental arrangement with the Central Government by which the necessary figures might be obtained from the Indian Income-tax office—why is it that the assessee should be forced to submit a statement of accounts himself? In other words, my contention is that this Explanation is undesirable as it puts the onus upon the person assessed. Of course, there is nothing in the Explanation that he will have to submit to such an order of computation. But when it is said that the order computing the total world income will be regarded as conclusive evidence, the suggestion is that when a person wants any exemption or any reconsideration of the rate of the tax to which he had been actually assessed, he would have to produce such evidence.

Now, Sir, as you are aware, in the case of a certain type of income, returns have hardly to be made at all. Those who have fixed salaries—and the Hon'ble Finance Minister, so far as his income as Minister is concerned, will bear me witness in this respect—they have to submit no return. The deduction of the tax is made at the source. The income is known to the Income-tax Department and without any trouble whatsoever, this tax is deducted. On the other hand, my friends to the left, I mean the European Party, who belong to commercial or industrial concerns—they are put to difficulties because the onus to submit the return lies with them. Even with the most careful calculations and accounting, and even with a very good type of management, they often fail to convince the Income-tax Officer. At least, that is what I have been told by persons who are concerned with industrial and commercial firms, as I have no personal knowledge about the return of a commercial or industrial concern. In the case of a private individual with a fixed salary, the tax is deducted at the source. It is an unnecessary imposition upon him if he is asked to submit a return. In such cases, figures are with the Government Income-tax Department.

I do not understand why the Agricultural Income-tax Department should not obtain the figures from the Indian Income-tax Department in similar cases. They can easily obtain the figures and as some members have already suggested, it is easier for Government to get these figures by inter-departmental arrangement than for private individuals to get these figures. I know, Sir, that to get a certified copy of a document or any papers from the Government, a private person has often to wait for a long time. Moreover, this would result in congestion of work to the ministerial officers concerned. Therefore, my submission is that the explanation should be omitted, because the existence of the explanation would tend to put the onus for submission of evidence on the assessee. This can be avoided if Bengal Government by mutual arrangement obtain the figures from the Government of India.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I do not see how it imposes an extra burden on the assessee in spite of the very learned speeches I heard this evening. I think it is entirely conducive to the convenience of the assessee.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that the Explanation at the end of clause 48 be omitted.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—9, and the "Noes"—22, the amendment is negatived.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I would like to speak on clause 48 as a whole before you put that to the vote. Sir, with regard to clause 48, the amendment which was moved by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad was in my opinion, rightly negatived by the House. In this particular case, I find myself in agreement with the Hon'ble Finance Minister, but there is one particular feature to which I want to draw his attention. The question to which I want to refer concerns particularly the European members of this House. Perhaps in anticipation of what I was going to say and which might not be quite palatable to them, they have left the House. I am glad to find the Leader of the European Party has just come in, because the remarks which I am going to make refer specially to them. I would congratulate them for their self-denying ordinance. The amendment which was moved by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad concerned them primarily. I was opposed to it because the amendment wanted to change the Bill-clause which provides refunds to an assessee by taking into consideration his total world income. The total world income would obviously be greater than the total agricultural income of the assessee derived from land within Bengal, or income derived from any bonuses that they might obtain from any company or partnership or association which holds land in Bengal. Now, Sir, if the total agricultural income of the individual were alone considered, the rate of tax would be lower, whereas the rate of tax for any firm or association or partnership is the highest which we have under the present Act. Therefore, if instead of the total world income, the total agricultural income had been computed, the relief which would have been secured to the assessee would have been greater. Therefore, I compliment the European Party on their willingness to forego part of the refund which they might otherwise have obtained. When the Khan Bahadur Sahib first moved his amendment, I thought that the European Group would be trooping behind him. I thought they would forget their allegiance to the Government and follow Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad in his attempt to give protection to the interests of the class which the members of the European Party represent.

Now, Sir, my position generally has been that relief should be greater in the case of the lower scales of income. Section 48 only provides for refund in cases where in my opinion such relief is not necessary. Persons who have total world incomes are not normally persons who in Bengal could be regarded as either poor or economically in a weak position. It is only persons with a very high level of income who can be expected to have world incomes. Therefore, this is giving relief only to a certain class of assessee—a class of assessee who in my opinion do not need much relief. I have already stated that so far as the European Party is concerned, they have conceded a moiety of the relief which they might have otherwise claimed. It is worth complimenting them, for they could have demanded higher relief. The general objection to the clause, however, remains in so far as it means that relief is given only to a very rich class of persons. There is no question of refund or relief with regard to the poorer class of persons on the basis of family membership or the number of dependents who have to be supported on a particular income.

Now, I find, Sir, that the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has made a reference to the fact that the slab system has been introduced in assessing the tax. The slab system has been borrowed on the analogy of British income-tax. In the Indian income-tax, slab system has been introduced for the purpose of improving on the old system, but I find that the British slab system gives greater and more equitable relief to persons assessed by taking into consideration the number of dependents. In the case of the British Income-tax, the wife and the number of children that a particular person has to maintain are taken into consideration in assessing the tax. The rate is not only higher but much higher; but this is after granting relief to the family and the dependents. This higher rate does not, therefore, in any way operate to the disadvantage of the assessed person. Here in India it is otherwise. Neither in the income-tax nor in the agricultural income-tax is any relief given on the ground of necessity. In this clause, I find that whatever refund is given—and refund is always a relief—that relief is confined only to a very rich class of persons. The relief is irrespective of any consideration of the number of dependants. Besides, there is no provision whatsoever for relief in the case of agricultural families.

I would submit that persons whom we regard as agriculturists in Bengal have nothing whatsoever to do with world income. They have no total world income. Out of these agriculturists, I submit, Sir, probably 90 per cent. have nothing to do with a share of a company or a partnership or a firm or commercial association of any kind. Therefore, Sir, I find that the proposed relief is confined only to a very rich class, an inordinately rich class of persons. The agriculturists, though quite a considerable number of them will come within the mischief of this Act, are left altogether untouched. There is no relief for them and no consideration for the number of dependants that they may have. We know, Sir, that like a Hindu undivided family, a Muslim family, particularly a Muslim peasant family, may also very often have a large number of dependants. I know of villages where there are as many as 20, 30 or 40 members in a family.¹ The taxable limit of Rs. 3,500 for a person who has to maintain 50 persons is certainly not a high figure. So far as an individual with a small family of two or three members is concerned, this may be a quite reasonable figure; but when we have large families consisting of 40 to 50 members the sum of Rs. 3,500 is not necessarily a large amount.

My general protest against clause 48 is that while it is anxious to grant relief in the case of well-to-do persons who have a world income, and who derive income from partnerships and dividends of companies and through memberships of associations and in other ways, there is no provision whatsoever for any relief on account of the large families which inevitably have to be maintained by agriculturists in the rural areas of Bengal. The whole bias has been,—although the Bill is a Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill,—the whole bias has been towards the urban classes. Whenever the Bill thinks of relief in terms of refund, it is the urban areas that it is thinking of. It is the people in the urban areas who are partners, and share-holders in companies. It is such persons who are members of associations. It is such persons alone who derive any income from sources outside India. I would challenge the Hon'ble Finance Minister, or for the matter of that, the Hon'ble Minister for Agriculture, the leader of the House, who so often speaks on behalf of the poor agriculturists,—and I will concede that sometimes in the past he has fought for the interests of the agriculturists,—I would challenge him specially to give me any single instance where what we ordinarily call a well-to-do peasant has any world income derived from sources outside India. Where then is the provision for granting any relief to the poorer sections of the people? Wherever relief is sought to be given, it has been for the urban classes and for the rich and the ultra-rich classes. I would, therefore, ask the Hon'ble Ministers as to why there is no provision whatsoever for any relief on account of the large number of dependants which agriculturists have to maintain? Even though Rs. 3,500 is a high figure, yet is it fair for a family with a membership of 30 or 40?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, in considering clause 48, Mr. Humayun Kabir has raised an interesting question. He is of opinion that if the amendment relating to clause 48(a) was carried, it would benefit the richer classes, possibly the Europeans, and on that ground he thinks that he is justified in his opposition to the amendment. I think his argument amounts to this: Europeans have more world income than the Indians and richer Europeans have more world income than the poorer Europeans; the acceptance of this amendment would relieve the burden only from the shoulders of the richer Europeans. I think, Sir, that in a measure of taxation, we have nothing to choose between European and non-Europeans, or between the richer or the poorer classes, except the principles of taxation involved in it. Poorer classes, which have forever been the concern of my honourable friend have been sufficiently protected by the high limit of exemption. It is the upper middle classes and the richer classes that have been taxed. The true principle of demarcation would no doubt be between the rich and poor. But the ideal cannot be attained by opposing the amendment. The remedy lies in laying a heavier burden of taxation upon richer classes. That is perfectly intelligible. But in the amendment we are concerned with the important theory and practice of refund. I may say that refund really involves the principle of taxation. Take the case of a man whose ordinary agricultural income is Rs. 4,000. Suppose he earns over and above this, a dividend of one thousand on agricultural income. The total is Rs. 5,000. According to the Bill, he would have to pay at nine pies in the rupee. If you say that the man has an income of Rs. 5,000 and you will charge eighteen or twenty-four pies in the rupee, I have nothing to say. Here I agree with Mr. Humayun Kabir. But then I should change the schedule and not introduce absurd principles of refund. If it is once appreciated that refund is really an adjustment to the assessee's personal rate, all obscurities will vanish. I therefore respectfully submit that Mr. Humayun Kabir's principle should be introduced into the schedule rather than that we should lay down this unheard of principle of refund. The clause offends against the fundamental principles of taxation. The basis of the rate at which the refund will be allowed under the Bill should have nothing to do with non-agricultural income. It has an unsavoury appearance. The Bill taxes the income at the rate of 30 pies in the rupee for a share-holder in a limited company earning agricultural income. But at the time of giving him a refund you virtually tax him at a rate depending upon non-agricultural income. The problem is a humanitarian one and involves a question of principle. In the circumstances, I submit this clause is full of misconceptions. With these few words, I submit that clause 48 should be reconsidered.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, there is one thing I would like to mention with reference to clause 48 and it may be that the view which I am now pressing for the consideration of the honourable members of this House was lost sight of. Clause 48 deals with refund of agricultural income-tax paid by companies on behalf of share-holders and this rate is annas 2½ in the rupee. Now, as given in Schedule A, a particular share-holder may not have an income sufficient to cover the rate of annas 2½. Therefore, he would be entitled to a refund under the provision of clause 48. But there is another fact which I believe has not been considered and this is slightly hinted at in clause 49 of the Bill; but before going to clause 49 of the Bill, I would like to refer to one fact: that a share-holder on whose behalf a company has paid tax at the rate of annas 2-6 in the rupee has got a world income and has got to pay his tax in the United Kingdom under the Finance Act of the United Kingdom. We know, Sir, that under the provision of section 27 of that Act of 1920 the relief is granted to the assessee who are taxed by the Dominions with reference to their incomes with regard to the properties in the Dominions. If we refer to section 27, clause (1), sub-clause (a), we find "If the Dominion rate of tax does not exceed half of the appropriate rate of the United Kingdom tax the rate at which relief is to be given shall be the Dominion rate of tax." We know that the present prevailing rate in the United Kingdom is 10 shillings in the pound, that is, half of a person's income. Therefore, under the Finance Act a share-holder who has to pay his tax through the company will get a deduction of the entire tax which he has paid to the Bengal Provincial Treasury.

Now, if that is so, I do not think there is any scope for any further relief or refund, as is provided in clause 48 of the Bill. On the contrary, it gives a loophole to the share-holders who have also got properties outside India to claim refund and relief with respect to the same amount. I do not think that was the intention of the Legislature. Therefore, this clause 48 should be deleted in order that the question as to relief with reference to persons who have already got a deduction to the extent of the entire tax may not want it again under the United Kingdom Tax Act. It may be that so far as clause 48 is concerned, there are also some persons but their number is limited and they would have a larger income and so can afford to pay. Therefore, the refund clause with reference to companies, firms and associations should be deleted. These are my submissions.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 48 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 49.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 49 stand part of the Bill.

I am of the opinion that amendment No. 334 should come after amendment No. 354 and be renumbered 355.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I am not going to move 338, and that should take out a big load from the anxiety of the House. With regard to amendment No. 335, I submit that it should come after 339-344A.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment No. 335 is out of order, as it deals with marginal notes.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I submit, Sir, that it is not out of order.

Mr. PRESIDENT: We have already held that marginal notes are no amendments.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Marginal notes can be referred to for the purpose of interpretation of statutes.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Yes, Sir. Marginal notes can be referred to for purposes of interpretation.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House of Parliament have held that they have nothing to do with marginal notes.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I submit, Sir, that this may be passed over today. Recently the Privy Council has held that marginal notes may be referred to, and I can produce that before you tomorrow.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am referring to the decision of the Judges of the Privy Council.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, Halsbury refers to appeal cases and not the decision of the House of Lords.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, it is laid down here that the Houses of Parliament have nothing to do with marginal notes and the Courts cannot look at them. This is a most important point. In fact, I gave my ruling the other day on this point.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: But not exactly on this. Marginal notes are referred to for the purpose of interpretation of Statutes. I shall produce this ruling of the Privy Council tomorrow.

Mr. PRESIDENT: A marginal note may be referred to, but it is a different question.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: A marginal note becomes part of the Statute.

Mr. PRESIDENT: This is the opinion of Sir Courtenay Ilbert, Clerk of the House of Commons.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: It is 19th century old, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That may be so, but that is the opinion by which we go. He says that "marginal notes do not form part of a Bill and can be altered by the officers of the House".

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: That is 18th century opinion, Sir, not twentieth century.

Mr. PRESIDENT: In any case, that is my view and I stick to it.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: But, Sir, why discuss this matter at all just now? If there is a definite ruling on this point by the Privy Council, as indicated by my friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee, and as he has promised to lay it before the House tomorrow, I think we can wait till tomorrow.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The two points are entirely different, and that is where the confusion arises. The marginal notes may be considered by the courts but the House of Commons has held that they have nothing to do with them. Therefore, it is not an amendment in the true sense.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Whose opinion is that, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Of Sir C. P. Ilbert, who was Clerk of the House of Commons.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: But that is not the opinion of the Judges, nor of the Speaker of the House of Commons.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is also the opinion of the Judges.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: But the Judges' opinion may be challenged and is not binding upon the Judges of the Privy Council. As a layman, I do not feel competent to comment on it, Sir; but I think that as Mr. Mukherjee has promised to lay certain decisions in a contrary direction being the judgment of the Privy Council, we can wait till tomorrow.

Mr. PRESIDENT: So far as I understand Mr. Mukherjee, he took the view that marginal notes can be referred to in construing a Statute or in the interpretation of a Statute. That is as regards the interpretation of a Statute by a court of law; so that is a different point. The point here is that unfortunately the House of Commons has nothing to do with marginal notes. So we should conform to the rules and my previous decision.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Marginal notes do form part of a Bill, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I hope you will try to understand the point.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: How do you think, Sir, that he does not understand?

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: May I say a few words, Sir? What I want to say is this: Marginal note is the interpretation of the Legislature's intention. Whether it is the Privy Council or the Appeal Court or the High Court, they interpret what is the intention of the Legislature involved in regard to the provisions of any Statute that have been passed by them. Here the British Parliament themselves say that they have nothing to do with marginal notes and the Courts of Law are therefore bound to see that they respect the wishes of the Legislature. Our intention is a guide to the Court.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, marginal notes are considered by the Legislature and they form part of the statutes passed by a Legislature. They may be either omitted or corrected. It has been held by courts that if a Legislature has actually taken into consideration marginal notes, they become part of the Statute.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But Mr. Mahalanobish, I would just request you to bear in mind what I have already explained. There is a definite ruling by—

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: By whom, Sir? Of the Clerk of the House of Commons? His view is not binding upon the Privy Council.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Opinion not of the Clerk of the House of Commons, but of the Judges, that the Houses of Parliament have nothing to do with marginal notes.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: There are other systems of legislation in which there are marginal notes and when they come up before the House the House keeps them or omits them and it is the duty of the court to abide by them.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is clearly the opinion of the Judges—

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Even members of the other side agree that if we want we can consider it (voices from the Government benches: No, no, not at all). So we find that both sides are agreed on this point. You can overrule or throw it out; but we may be allowed to consider the amendment.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: There is a decision of an Hon'ble Judge in the Privy Council who held that marginal notes is a part of the Act. I think that point should be considered. Then, Sir, the opinion of judges are liable to alteration. If the Privy Council decided otherwise, that should be taken into consideration. This point has been considered very recently under section 81 of the Government of India Act, whether that should be referred to or not—

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is your suggestion, Mr. Mukherjee?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: That this may be postponed till tomorrow—

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: But, Sir, you have given ruling on a similar question.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, that is my difficulty.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: That was, Sir, an entirely different issue.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Very well, I postpone the consideration of this amendment today.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: On a point of order, Sir. Before amendment No. 336 is taken up, I think the proper course would be to take up amendment Nos. 339, 344, 344A, because if amendment—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But amendment Nos. 339, 344, 344A are negative amendments and so out of order.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: No Sir, that is a positive amendment—

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, it is a negative amendment and it is out of order.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: In what way, Sir, it is out of order? Under what rule?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I will just give you the rule, you resume your seat.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: I think you will give us time to argue this matter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The rule is this: "an amendment may not be moved which has merely the effect of a negative vote".

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: What rule, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Rule 43(2).

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: That is what you decided the other day. On the first sitting day I think you corrected me by saying that that cannot be done and you quoted May's "Parliamentary Practice". So I request you to give us time to consider the point. If there is any objectionable feature in the clause, I think the members of this House have got every right to say that it should not be there.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You have a right to vote against it.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: I would ask you to consider this point—

Mr. PRESIDENT: You can vote against it and negative it.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: How can we vote against unless there is discussion?

Mr. PRESIDENT: That point, I am afraid, I cannot discuss.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, you will have to convince us why this should not be allowed.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is the practice and that is the law.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: That is not the law, I submit.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of order, Sir. Rule 43(2) to which you refer has no connection with amendments of a Bill. Legislation is dealt with under Part V of our Procedure Rules and you refer to Part IV. In Part V there is no rule so far as Bills are concerned under head "Legislation" that a particular clause cannot be moved to be deleted. Rule 43(2) refers only to motions—

Mr. PRESIDENT: You are confusing the matter. This rule applies to all motions.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Amendments are different things.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid, it is no use discussing the matter any more. We have been following this practice for a long time.

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: Sir, you have already held that this amendment is out of order. So, there should not be any more discussion on the question.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, it is quite true that if there is a motion that a particular Bill be rejected that cannot be moved; but here it is a particular clause and clauses are not motions. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister never moves or for the matter of that no Hon'ble Minister ever moves—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, may I just draw your attention to amendment No. 330 of Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad where I held that as the amendment had a negative effect, the amendment could not be moved and the House agreed on that.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: At that time we had not the rules with us. Now looking at the rules we find that this rule does not apply in the case of an amendment to a clause. Even if you had disallowed an amendment of this nature in the past, you did it under a misapprehension. If you, Sir, now look into the matter yourself, you will revise your decision. Here, one of my honourable friends on my left says that you yourself moved several amendments of this nature before your elevation to the Chair. I remember, Sir, many amendments of this nature have been moved on the floor of this House in the past; and in any case rule 43(2) deals with motions. I do not now discuss whether matters concerning legislation are motions or not. My honourable friend, Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad, says, they are not. Well, I am not commenting on that at the moment; legislative matters may or may not be a motion. Now, granting for the sake of argument that a bill is a motion, what about a clause? It is tried to be made out under Part IV of our rules that a clause too is a motion. If a particular clause is a motion, then sub-clause is also a motion and amendments to delete sub-clauses would also be out of order. But this is patently absurd. The fact is that when the first reading is taken up, viz., that the Bill be taken into consideration, an Hon'ble Minister moves the motion. After that the next motion comes in at the second reading, when the motion is moved by the Hon'ble Minister that the Bill be taken into consideration, clause by clause. Thereafter no body else moves any motion that particular clauses be taken into consideration. The whole second reading is a composite motion that the Bill be taken into consideration clause by clause and automatically the clauses come in. Government do not move any other motion that such and such clauses be taken into consideration. These are not motions at all. It is the Chair which says that clause number such and such be taken into consideration or stand part of the Bill. Now, as soon as you determine whether a particular clause or a sub-clause is a motion, then you will be able to decide whether rule 43(2) is applicable here or not. For the present, I am not raising any question of difference between a motion and a legislation. Granting for the sake of argument that it is a motion, even then the difficulty remains. As I have said, it is the Chair which puts the clause that clause 5 or clause 6 be taken into consideration. If such an amendment has been disallowed in the past, it was disallowed through oversight. I hope in giving the ruling you will bear this fact in mind.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, in Part V of the rules, several sections relate to the consideration of amendments to a Bill. I draw your attention to rules 62, 63, 64 and 65. Rule 62 says, "When a motion has been agreed to by the Council that a Bill be taken into consideration . . . Here motion comes in—a motion has been agreed to by the Council. In rule 63 we find: "Any member who wishes to move an amendment to a Bill under the consideration of the Council shall give notice thereof.....at least 10 days.....and shall together with the notice send a copy of the amendment which he desires to move". (2) "The Secretary shall, if time permits, cause every notice of a proposed amendment to be printed and a copy shall be made available for the use of each member". And when a member has been supplied with a copy, that is a compliance under rule 63. Then rule 64 deals with short-notice amendments and in rule 65 we find: "Amendments shall ordinarily be considered in the order of the clauses of the Bill to which they respectively relate". I submit that in view of the procedure laid down in sections 62, 63, 64 and 65 coming after Part IV dealing with motions, the rule under section 43 cannot be made applicable in Bills. You can import any principle under rule 44(2) and apply it under head "Legislation". I request you, Sir, to revise your decision with reference to this amendment, namely, that clause 49 be deleted in view of the fact that it was numbered as an amendment under section 65 and have been printed and circulated. You will not please apply rule 43(2) to amendments to the clauses of a legislation.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, so far I remember I have been always holding that a negative amendment of this nature should not be moved. That has been my practice, and this is under rule 43(2).

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, we also admit that through inadvertence we did not give the same application to the consideration of this matter. But this section 49 is a very important section in the Bill, and that is why we have put the amendment to this clause in the names of several persons.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But you do not lose the chance of voting against the clause.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: That is a different matter, Sir.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: The amendment is already there, and you have accepted it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: We have not accepted it.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, may I submit a ruling of the President of the Central Assembly? It is ruling No. 72. I have "the Decision of the Chair for 20 years" with me. He says that after the motion to omit clause 11 of the Hindu Child Marriage Restraint Bill had been negatived, Mr. B. Das sought to move an amendment, and it was said that the amendment might be moved. That shows that motion to delete a clause which is a negative amendment had been allowed to be moved.

(Here the Honourable member took the book to the President.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: I will take time to consider that. I think the matter has been sufficiently discussed now—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It is not a motion. It is an amendment—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think any further discussion is necessary. If any honourable member likes to discuss the matter further, I shall be very glad if he would come to my Chamber and discuss the matter with me there.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: I hope you will kindly see the proceedings of the Central Assembly and of this House also in this connection.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, may I ask you to take this into consideration that once such a motion is passed, what becomes of the substantive motion, namely, that the clause be now put, because once a decision on the same matter has been given in the affirmative form, it cannot be re-opened again?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Then, Sir, it goes out of itself.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The point is this: if the amendment that the clause be deleted is agreed to, then how the whole clause will be put?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: That thing could not come up again.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But the original clause will have to be put!

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Quite right, Sir, but why do you assume that the amendment for the deletion of the clause will be carried?

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: I am showing the absurdity of your argument: that once this amendment is carried, can you again discuss the matter in an affirmative form at the time of the final putting?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. We have now had sufficient discussion. Let us go back to the Bill. Will you move your amendment No. 336, Mr. Das?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, in view of the suggestion made to you by my friend Mr. Nagendra Nath Mahalanobish that motions Nos. 339-344A should be taken up first in precedence to my amendment No 336—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Why, that is not necessary. For in that case, if the whole clause is deleted, then your amendment will go automatically.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The deletion ought to come first.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: There is that difficulty no doubt, Sir, and it is a substantive amendment. But in view of the late hour, I may be allowed to move my amendment tomorrow.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You may start today, as there are one or two minutes still to go.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: As you please, Sir. I beg to move that for clause 49 of the Bill, the following be substituted —

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: On a point of order, Sir. Shall he be permitted to carry on, when another amendment for the deletion of the whole clause is before the House?

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is not a point of order. That point has been sufficiently considered. Go on, Mr. Das.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move that for clause 49 of the Bill, the following be substituted, namely:—

“49. Any individual, company, firm or association deriving assessable agricultural income from lands situated in Bengal shall pay his or its agricultural income-tax in Bengal even though he or it might have paid income-tax elsewhere in India or outside India on his or its world income including agricultural income derived for his or its lands situated in Bengal.”

In order to understand the meaning and purport of the amendment which I have had the honour of moving just now, I desire to read the section which is sought to be substituted by my amendment. Clause 49 deals with reciprocal relief in respect of double taxation with other Governments.

Sir, it lays down that “the Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make provision for the granting of relief in respect of agricultural income on which both agricultural income-tax under this Act and other income-tax have been paid”.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, it is already 6 o'clock.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, but let him finish his speech.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Now, Sir, “for the purpose of this section other income-tax means any income-tax, super-tax or sur-tax charged under (a) any law of a province other than Bengal in force in that province, or (b) any law in force in any Indian State, or in any part of His Majesty's Dominions, or in the United Kingdom, where the laws of such province, State or part of His Majesty's Dominions, or of the United Kingdom, as the case may be, provide for relief in respect of tax charged on income both in such province, State or part of His Majesty's Dominions or in the United Kingdom, as the case may be, and in Bengal, which appears to the provincial Government to correspond to the relief which may be granted under this section." This is the main section, Sir, and my amendment seeks to replace—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, do you purpose to continue now or resume your discussion tomorrow?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Yes, Sir, I will resume tomorrow—

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, let us continue now.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid, this is prayer time and I must adjourn now.

The House stands adjourned till 2-15 p.m.: tomorrow.

Adjournment.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 79.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Thursday, the 17th August, 1944, at 2-15 p.m., being the seventy-ninth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Release of persons detained under rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules and convicted under the Special Criminal Courts Ordinance.

253. Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state if all persons detained under rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules, and those convicted and imprisoned by Special Courts under the Special Criminal Courts Ordinance, have been released in view of the decisions of the Federal Court, and the Calcutta High Court, on the subject? If not, why not?

MINISTER in charge of the HOME DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): No. The reasons are set forth below:—

(a) For persons detained under rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules.

The final judgment of the Federal Court held that no order of detention under rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules could validly be made except after the Governor had personally applied his mind to the case and been satisfied that the making of an order was necessary. Although an appeal against this order has already been filed before the Privy Council, steps were immediately taken to institute a review of the cases of all security prisoners then under detention in the light of the law as laid down by the Federal Court with a view to issue fresh orders in the cases in which continued detention was considered necessary. This review has been completed and revised detention orders under Ordinance III of 1944 have been issued in all cases requiring continued detention after personal review of the cases by His Excellency the Governor.

The Hon'ble High Court's order, dated the 3rd August, 1943, regarding cases arising out of the Special Criminal Courts Ordinance (II of 1942) directed that persons aggrieved might move the lower appellate courts and the lower appellate courts might deal with them in the light of the Hon'ble High Court's judgment in the case of Sushil Kumar Bose versus the Emperor (Miscellaneous case No. 65 of 1943) and accordingly Government were not required to take up the question of release.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, may I enquire as to when this review was completed: how long after the judgment?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether the orders under Ordinance III of 1944 were new orders for their detention?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: These were orders under Ordinance III of 1944. I have nothing further to add to this.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if detention of the security prisoners, after the date of the Judgment of the Federal Court and till fresh orders under Ordinance III of 1944 were passed, was not illegal?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: This is a matter of law. The honourable member can go to the High Court.

Detenu Srijut Prafulla Chandra Nandi.

254. Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if the Government are aware that Srijut Prafulla Chandra Nandi of Kalikatcha, Tippera, is a detenu;
- (b) if the Government are aware that his wife and young children are without any means of subsistence and that there are none to look after them or help them in any way; and
- (c) if he proposes to consider the question of providing a suitable allowance for his wife and children and give necessary direction in the matter?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (a) Yes. But he is of village Nasirabad, police-station Nabinagar, Tippera.

(b) It is reported that he has no wife or child.

(c) No.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Did the Hon'ble Minister enquire whether there is such a person by name Prafulla Chandra Nandi who was an inhabitant of Kalikatcha within the subdivision of Brahmanbaria?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As far as I am aware, we have got no security prisoner of Kalikatcha.

Grievances of the prisoners and detenus of the Suri Jail.

255. Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if his attention has been drawn to the following grievances of the prisoners and detenus in the Suri Jail, viz.:—
 - (i) that the food supplied is inadequate and of an inferior quality,
 - (ii) that prisoners are refused even the clothing to which they are entitled under the Jail Code,
 - (iii) that the tools and instruments supplied to the prisoners for various works are defective and out of order,
 - (iv) that no lime or bleaching powder has been supplied for the last three months, and
 - (v) that no soda or shajcemati is supplied to prisoners for washing their clothes, and
- (b) whether he proposes to order an enquiry by a proper executive authority into the administration of the Suri Jail and take such steps as may be necessary for improving the administration?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (a) The answer is in the negative.

(b) Does not arise.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state with reference to answer (a), whether the "negative" refers to the present position or is the "negative" with reference to the condition throughout the period under his tenure?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, it refers to the conditions in the question. The question is:—Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—and the answer is in the negative. It does not give any date.

(a) if his attention has been drawn to the following grievances of the prisoners and detenus in the Suri Jail?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: What precisely the point is: did the grievances exist now or is it the contention of Government?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I think they existed at the time the honourable member was a supporter of Government.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether these conditions existed after the Hon'ble Minister assumed charge of the Department?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: They continued for some time after which they were rectified.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if the conditions have been rectified now?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Certainly; that is why the answer is in the negative.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, shall I now make my statement on Berhampore affairs regarding atta?

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is better that we take up the adjournment motion now; you may reserve your statement for tomorrow.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Assuming that the adjournment motion is carried, then there cannot be any further business.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It will be finished within two hours and we are going to sit for four hours.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, the statement that Sir Nazimuddin was to have made refers to a different matter. It is with regard to the question of atta and flour in Murshidabad. But the adjournment motion of today refers to something quite different. It refers to Midnapore.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: The Hon'ble Member has not appreciated what the Hon'ble the Chief Minister said. He said that if the adjournment motion is carried, there can be no further business and so the statement cannot be made.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I declared yesterday that the adjournment motion would be taken up immediately after the questions. We should stick to that decision.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: That is all right, Sir.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I have got an adjournment motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No other adjournment motion can be taken up today.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Would it then be taken up tomorrow?

Mr. PRESIDENT: That I don't know. Now, we have to take up the adjournment motion.

Adjournment motion.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance—

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY. Will the honourable member go to the microphone? We cannot hear him.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I can raise my voice. But as the honourable members like it, I am going to the microphone.

Sir, I beg to move that this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation that has arisen out of the fact that rice is not available in Midnapore Town and in the neighbouring villages. The authorities stopped supply from the 26th July, 1944, and rice is available in very small quantities in the black market at 8 annas to 10 annas per seer. At a meeting of the Town Food Committee on the 11th August, 1944, a resolution was passed to move Government in the matter to supply sufficient rice for the consumption of the people.

Sir, I was surprised to learn on reaching Midnapore on the 5th of August that rice was not available for sale in the open market in any of the shops. I received this information from Mr. Kshitish Chandra Sarbadhikary, a local doctor. When I requested him to send for any shopkeeper from whom I would like to know the facts, a gentleman came to me and stated that he was the owner of a shop and was being supplied with rice by the Civil Supplies Department for sale. On or about the 26th July, 1944, supplies were stopped by the Civil Supplies Department. He stated to me that there were 24 shops to which the Civil Supplies Department was supplying rice for sale to the public. On or about the 26th of July the Civil Supplies Department stopped supplies and up to the 5th of August no rice was available in the open market from the shopkeepers. I had information, however, that in the Black Market very small quantities of rice were available at the rate of 8 annas to 10 annas per seer. I enquired why is it that rice was not coming from the villages for sale but was told that there was no rice available in the villages and landless labourers and bhadralog classes were coming to Midnapore town from the adjoining villages for purchasing rice. They could not get any supply and were going back without any rice. The Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy the other day stated in this House that he could not understand why that would be so, because Midnapore was a surplus district. I may state here, Sir, that the population of Midnapore town is roughly 40,000 and that of the district of Midnapore 29 lakhs. Khan Bahadur Saiyed Muazzamuddin Hosain in answer to a question by the Maharaja of Cossimbazar stated that in Midnapore district the production of rice this year was 2 crores of maunds. If that is so, and if the figures stated by the Agriculture Minister are accurate, then we cannot understand why rice is not available in Midnapore district. I was informed that Messrs. Ispahani were the purchasing agents for Midnapore and they were purchasing rice from the Midnapore district in huge quantities. Sir, I would like the Hon'ble the Minister of Civil Supplies to state the quantity of rice purchased by Government agents in Midnapore district and the rates at which they were purchased. We know that in the coastal belt in the Contai and Tamluk subdivisions of the Midnapore district large tracts of land could not be cultivated. We further know that in the police-station of Nandigram within Tamluk subdivision of the Midnapore district, paddy crops failed completely and in course of my visit in January this year to Tamluk and Mahisadal within the Tamluk subdivision I was informed that although there was failure of crops in portions of Tamluk subdivision, there was bumper crop in other portions and that if rice was not allowed to be exported from the Tamluk subdivision, there would be no scarcity. So far as the whole of the district of Midnapore is concerned, assuming that the entire population of 29 lakhs were provided with rice, there should have been no deficiency in the whole of the district of Midnapore. The Gregory Committee estimated 344 lbs. per head as the annual consumption of an individual. This works up roughly to about 4½ maunds of rice per individual, but this is only on the basis of half a seer per day for each individual. As a matter of fact, I learnt on enquiry that labourers, cultivators and bhadralog classes in the villages of Bengal would require much more than half a seer as is proposed in the Report of the Gregory Committee. If we look to the Report of the Floud Commission, we will find there that they have provided 9 maunds of rice per annum for an individual. In answer to my question, No. 245 enquiring from the Hon'ble Civil Supplies Minister as to what quantity of rice was provided for adults, male and female, for working children and adult dependants of a family of cultivators and labourers, the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy answered as follows:—

“Presumably the honourable member refers to rural areas. The answer is—

“The total quantity of rice per week is 2 seers for adult (not below 12) and half the quantity for children between 2 and 12, children below 2 being neglected. If sufficient supplies are available in any area or if the shortage is grave in any area the quantities of ration may be increased to a maximum of 4 seers per week for adult and half the quantity for children between 2 and 12, children below 2 being neglected.

“No special revision has been made for any particular class of workers (diggers, carriers), etc., and no distinction has been made between workers and dependants or between males and females”.

This was the answer that was given to my question, Sir.

Now, I would like to point out in this connection that on personal enquiry from cultivators owning lands, I was informed that they keep for their own provision and the members of their family and also for landless labourers whom they would have to employ for cultivation work during the cultivation season at the rate of one seer per day and if after all this there is any surplus that would be available for sale to the market. Even then they generally wait till September or October up to which time they retain sufficient stock for consumption during part of the next year and if in October the crop prospect is good, then they sell away the surplus stock. If the answer of the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy is based on the fact that after determining a district to be surplus he was making provision for rice as stated in his answer, I submit, that the result which we have noticed now in Midnapore will follow in all the districts. As pointed out above, Midnapore would not be a surplus district if we take into account the provision of rice at the rate of 9 maunds per individual, as indicated in the Floud Commission Report. In the Floud Commission Report the members added that this was necessary in order to give two square meals a day for each individual. At page 106 of the report of the Floud Commission, Volume II, the requirements of Midnapore district on the basis of 9 maunds per head are estimated to be 25,191,000 maunds of rice. On this basis, if 2 crores of maunds were the production, then there would be a deficit. Sir, the cultivators owning lands keep rice for their consumption at the rate of one seer per head and sell only the surplus; and if the Government agents purchasing the surplus stocks from the land-owning cultivators export the rice to other districts, the position which we are noticing now in Midnapore town is the sure result. Sir, on the 26th April, 1944, I wrote a letter to His Excellency the Right Hon'ble Mr. Casey pointing out these facts.

Sir, I addressed a similar letter to His Excellency the Right Hon'ble Field Marshal Viscount Wavell, Viceroy and Governor-General of India, with reference to the question about the procurement of aman rice by the Government of Bengal and I pointed out that special care should be taken in determining what is surplus and what is not surplus. His Excellency the Governor of Bengal wrote to me in reply saying that my letter had been sent to the Department of Civil Supplies for necessary action. I also received a similar letter from the Private Secretary to His Excellency the Viceroy. We were told by the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy that they were keeping pockets of reserve in every district to be drawn upon during the time of emergency. Sir, it is to be regretted that the position of rice in Midnapore town should be as stated above. This clearly indicates that the policy of purchasing aman rice and its equitable distribution has been a total failure. If we refer to the statement of the Hon'ble the Agriculture Minister, we find that the total rice in all the districts of Bengal except Chittagong Hill Tracts was roughly 100 lakhs of tons and I would submit that the position could not have been as stated above if proper steps were taken as indicated in my letter to His Excellency the Governor. We are now, Sir, in August and we have yet to make provision for five months before the aman crop is harvested in Midnapore. I hope the Hon'ble the Civil Supplies Minister would have even now to consider the position very very seriously and take steps so that if there is a Government stock of rice in Midnapore, the rice may not be removed to other districts.

Sir, I would like to point out one further thing in this connection. I learnt on enquiry that the District Magistrate directed sometime on the 5th August that 1,000 maunds of rice would be supplied to the shopkeepers for distribution to the 40,000 people residing in the Midnapore town at the rate of $\frac{1}{2}$ seer per individual. The daily consumption comes to 500 maunds. At a meeting of the Town Food Committee held on the 11th August last, the Subdivisional Officer who was presiding over the meeting, stated that he could supply 5,000 maunds of rice every month and the maximum amount allowed for every individual would be one seer every week, that is about two chattaks per day, which the people would have to take both during morning and evening. I would like the honourable members of this House to consider whether the Department of Civil Supplies is justified in thus starving the people of Midnapore town. Two chattaks a day, one chattak per every meal is nothing. I hope the Hon'ble the Minister of Civil Supplies will realise this and would not be so hard on the people of Midnapore. We would like, Sir, through you to request the Hon'ble the Civil Supplies Minister to disclose the entire aman procurement policy of the Government, the quantity the Government held, the rate at which the Government agents purchased rice from different districts in this connection. I would request the Hon'ble the Civil Supplies Minister to bring in supplies from outside if he has not got sufficient stock in Midnapore. There is one other fact which I would like to emphasize upon the Hon'ble Minister of Civil Supplies. We know that on account of bungling and mishandling of the situation, huge quantities of rice remained stored in the Government godown and were sold in the open market sometime in December, last year, while people were dying in the streets in several villages and towns in the province of Bengal. The situation is serious and if it is not handled properly, we would have a recurrence of the same state of things as we experienced last year. Sir, in this connection I would like to refer to one or two matters in regard to my adjournment motion. On the 7th August, I stated that rice was not available in any shop in Midnapore. In proof of my statement I cite the first editorial paragraph of the Midnapore Hitaishi, a Bengali paper—

কেলায় অভাবনীয় চাউলের অভাব। কয়েকদিন যেদিনীপুর সহরের কোন দোকানে চাউল না পাইয়া লোক অত্যন্ত উৎকণ্ঠ হইয়া উঠিয়াছে। সম্ভ্রতি অতিরিক্ত ব্যাজিষ্ট্রেট মহাশয়ের আদেশে দোকানে হাজার মণ চাউল দেওয়া হইবে বলিয়া শুনিতে পাইতেছি। কিন্তু এই হাজার মণ চাউল কে'দিন চলিবে? চাউল না পাইয়া জনসাধারণ প্রায় ক্ষিপ্ত হইয়া উঠিয়াছে। অতিরিক্ত ব্যাজিষ্ট্রেট মহাশয়ের কৃপায় তাহাৰা পরে ক্ষান্ত হইয়াছে।

Now, Sir, here I would like to mention one thing. I was told that Messrs. Ispahani and Company were the purchasing agents of Government for the district of Midnapore. They have purchased large stocks of rice and exported the same outside the district. I want to know from the Hon'ble Minister what is the total quantity of rice which that firm purchased and the rate at which they purchased and where those stocks have been kept and whether it is a fact that stocks have been exported to outside the district.

With these words, I move my adjournment motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation that has arisen out of the fact that rice is not available in Midnapore Town and in the neighbouring villages. The authorities stopped supply from the 26th July, 1944, and rice is available in very small quantities in the black market at 8 annas to 10 annas per seer. At a meeting of the Town Food Committee on the 11th August, 1944, a resolution was passed to move Government in the matter to supply sufficient rice for the consumption of the people.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, may I suggest one thing? Now that the honourable member has moved the motion let the Hon'ble Minister now reply and on getting the full information we shall speak.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Yes, Sir, that would be convenient.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, Mr. Chakraverti, the rule is that Government has always the last say in the matter. If I accept your suggestion, that would be a novel procedure. I do not think it ever happened before. It is the privilege of the Opposition to move an adjournment motion and an adjournment motion has to be supported by 13 members, otherwise an adjournment cannot be admitted. So, I think those honourable members who supported the motion must have felt the justness of the cause. I, therefore, do not find much justification for accepting your suggestion. I think it would be better that we stick to the usual practice that the members who want to support the motion should speak first and after that the Hon'ble Minister will reply. Your time is limited to ten minutes.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Mr. President, Sir, I beg to support this motion and want to point out that this complaint of want of supply of essential foodstuffs is coming to us from various quarters and the honourable mover of the resolution has done a great service to the people outside by drawing pointed attention to this fact. It only serves to show that our Civil Supply Department is not properly working and that there is something wrong somewhere. The want of rice in Bengal this year is certainly not due to want of the commodity in the province. Calcutta having been taken up by the Central Government, the rest of the province is now required to be supplied by the produce of Bengal. Therefore, there ought not to be shortage anywhere. The only question that is sometimes put forward is the question of difficulty of transport. That also ought not to be a plea for the Civil Supply Department for their inability to supply to the outlying districts. Now it is said that the Civil Supply Department does all it can do: but the transport is in the hands of the Central Government; therefore they are not to blame. With regard to that question my submission would be that it is really an excuse. If you have got to supply to the people of Bengal, you ought to take such steps that would ensure supply and you cannot remain content with the lapse or negligence of another agency. You must foresee that there may be some difficulty of the Transport Department of the Government of India and therefore you must be prepared beforehand so as to ensure supply properly. Sir, I may say that this Civil Supply Department is the youngest issue of the Government of Bengal—the last child I should say—I do not know if there is any other department opened since—but at present I may take it as the last child and as such it has really acquired all the vices that the youngest child imbibes and we find that during this short period of less than two years it has become notorious in various ways. I need not give you the details. Perhaps you are all aware what the charges against this department are, but I would ask honourable members and the Government also to seriously consider whether or not it is better to abolish the Civil Supplies Department and to make over this business of procurement and supply and distribution to some business house which knows the business. I believe a large number of people has been recruited for the purpose of running this Civil Supplies Department who really have got no experience of business. A large number of I.C.S. people and a large number of B.C.S. people and other gentlemen have been recruited and perhaps the cost of running this new department is much more than that of all other departments taken together. The result, however, is that everywhere we find complaints either of this that or other things, and whenever they are asked to explain they say we are not at all at fault. It is the Government of India who do not supply us wagons, and there are transport difficulties and so on and so forth. I think the Government of Bengal should seriously consider the matter of making over this business to some experienced business house which will undertake to procure and supply without the least cost to the Government of Bengal. Any one who has got the interest of Bengal at heart would seriously consider as to what is the amount of expenditure Bengal is incurring for the Civil Supplies Department and what is the benefit that Bengal is getting out of it—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mahalanobish, I hope you will confine your observation to the motion before the House.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, if I am not dealing with the motion before the House, I do not know what I am dealing with. I am dealing with the want of rice at Midnapore, and I said that it is entirely due to the want of ability on the part of the Civil Supplies Department and I also said that Government should entrust this difficult job to some business house which can manage these things. I have not got the least doubt that the mover has correctly given you facts that as a matter of fact there is dearth of rice and that people of Midnapore do not get rice as they require. I would be very chary to accept any contradiction of his statement. Therefore, you should accept this proposition that there is dearth of rice and that the people of Midnapore do not ordinarily get rice from the open market and that they get rice from the black market at high price. This black market again is the creation of the Civil Supplies Department and their agents. There is no proper enforcement of the price control orders, and I do not like to talk of bribery and corruption that is rampant in this department; but I say that it is entirely due to the inefficiency of this department. This is all that I had to say.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Mr. President, Sir, we have not had the privilege of hearing the Civil Supplies Minister before speaking on this matter. Here I have got the statement of the honourable mover, Mr. Mukherjee, on the point. He had been to the locality and he came to know that rice was scarce in Midnapore. Now, Sir, Midnapore is considered to be a surplus district. We wonder how rice could be scarce there. It admits of only one explanation, Sir, and it is that there has been a huge procurement of rice from Midnapore by Government agents. Government agents must have been there in large numbers and they purchased rice heavily and transported that rice to areas outside the district. If they had stored that rice in Midnapore, there would not have been this scarcity of rice there. The procurement policy is good only if it is followed by proper distribution of rice among the people. There has not been proper distribution. It is alleged by Mr. Mukherjee that rice could be had there only at the black market and that too at a very high price. The price was ranging from 8 annas to 10 annas per seer. Government has a way of doing things. There was an opportunity for the people to know about the price of rice when the price was advertised and published in the Calcutta Gazette. We knew what was happening in Chittagong and so we could produce a copy of the Calcutta Gazette to convince you, Sir, that the price of rice there was ranging between Rs. 30 to Rs. 40, and get our adjournment motion admitted in this House. But in the case of Midnapore when it is asserted by Mr. Mukherjee that the price was raging somewhere in the region of Rs. 20 to Rs. 25, probably it will be contradicted—I do not know what the Civil Supply Minister will say, probably he will contradict Mr. Mukherjee's statement and say "No, rice is available there and the price is lower." But we would prefer to believe Mr. Mukherjee's statement as he personally saw the state of affairs there. The ceiling price is certainly lower than the price that was prevailing in the neighbouring provinces and districts. Why is it that the ceiling price of rice could not be enforced and maintained in all the districts of Bengal? It is a primary duty of the Government to feed and clothe the people when they are in want and therefore the Government are guilty of dereliction of duty if they cannot enforce the ceiling price or bring down the price of rice within the easy reach of the poor. As long as rice is not easily available within the reach of the poor, then I should say that living in the midst of plenty people are dying. The Civil Supply Department is being maintained by Government at a huge cost, and I think the expenditure that the Government of Bengal is incurring for the maintenance of this department is somewhere over two crores. If that be the state of affairs, and if Government spend so much for the upkeep of this department, it will be very regrettable if any part of Bengal should be complaining like the complaint that has been made, that rice is not available in Midnapore. Sir, it is very fortunate that one wing of the Legislature is open today, so that it is possible for the people to ventilate their grievances in this Council over this matter. I believe this story of scarcity of rice is not confined to the district of Midnapore only, but that its replica is to be seen in many parts of this province. It may be said by the Civil Supply Minister that although the price of rice has risen higher, yet the condition of the people has very much improved. To that also I desire to say that a certain proportion of the people might have benefited by the present war condition and gathered some amount of money, but generally speaking, the poor middle class and those persons who earn their daily bread by the sweat of their brow and labour from morning till evening—they can hardly meet the expense of purchasing rice.

In this matter why should there have been for a single day scarcity of rice in Midnapore? That answer should be given satisfactorily by the Hon'ble Minister. If you bring in the question of transport—that there is transport difficulty—I would say that that explanation would not be worth accepting. Government ought to be responsible for bringing rice to the doors of every citizen of Bengal. It will not do for them to say that transport is in the hands of the Government of India and thus escape their liability. Even though transport may be in the hands of the Government of India, they should so arrange matters—transport or whatever it may be—that they will be able to save the lives of the people from starvation. It is their primary duty to do so. They must arrange matters so that transport can be possible easily from one part of the province to the other. In this particular case, it is known that large quantity of rice was purchased by Messrs. Ispahani & Co. Government should have so arranged that even this rice could have been made available—this rice should have been sent from one part of the province to the other and here in Midnapore to save the situation that has been created. It is known also that the Town Food Committee passed a resolution in which they recorded the fact that the people are starving for want of rice and desired that the authorities should be moved. In this matter Mr. Mukherji has done a public duty by drawing the attention of the authorities to the state of affairs and I hope similar grievances should be made by other members in case of scarcity so that the Hon'ble Minister may be made to see to the supply throughout the province.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJI: Sir, I rise to support the motion so ably moved by my friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherji. I support it not for the purpose of censuring the Civil Supplies Minister and the members of the happy family to which he has the honour and privilege to belong, but for the purpose of drawing the attention of the Government to the state of things prevailing in the mofussil.

Sir, before the district of Midnapore had time to recover from the effects of the terrible visitation of Nature—I mean the devastating cyclone that swept over the district in 1942—famine appeared, and like other districts Midnapore had also had its share of suffering. It is unfortunate that in spite of the elaborate paraphernalia of the Civil Supplies Department and the system of rationing which we are told has been introduced in some of the districts of Bengal, an important district like Midnapore should suffer from want of rice. Mr. Mukherji spoke from his personal knowledge of what was actually happening in the district of Midnapore. Not only the town but the neighbouring villages had been labouring under a great difficulty for want of rice and we are told that rice was selling between annas eight and ten per seer, which means Rs. 20 to Rs. 25 per maund. The control price there is about Rs. 13 per maund. The Hon'ble Minister pleaded ignorance yesterday when the motion was admitted saying that he had no knowledge of the shortage of rice in Midnapore. I congratulate Mr. Mukherji for the trouble he has taken to visit Midnapore recently and for giving us an idea of what was actually taking place there in the matter of food supply.

Sir, the Town Food Committee, as has been pointed out by Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee, passed a resolution the other day to move the Government in the matter of supply of sufficient rice for the consumption of the people of the town and also of other parts of the district. Sir, we read in newspapers of the tonnage of rice that have been sent to different districts and the picture which is revealed in the press reports fill us with hope that there is no shortage or famine condition prevailing in any part of Bengal. But, Sir, the facts stated by Mr. Mukherjee cannot be controverted, because he spoke from his personal knowledge and it is for the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department to come forward and say that the facts narrated by Mr. Mukherjee are not correct. We would like to hear from him whether or not supply of rice was stopped from the 26th of July and also the reason for stopping the supply. I come from a district which has suffered no less from the effects of the devastating famine that visited Bengal last year and I can speak from personal experience that the reports published in the newspapers are materially different from the actual state of things. Although I have no personal knowledge of the district of Midnapore, yet I feel for the people of that district because they have suffered so many privations: first, from the effects of cyclone and then from the famine that visited this province a year ago. I also congratulate Mr. Mukherjee on his being able to obtain your consent to move the adjournment motion without which it would not have been possible to know the actual position in Midnapore. With these few words, I support the motion.

Alhadj Khan Bahadur SHAIKH MUHAMMAD JAN: Mr. President, Sir, I beg to support the motion moved by my honourable friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee. According to the suggestion of Mr. Shrish Chandra Chakraverti if the Chair had allowed the Hon'ble Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy to speak on the motion first we might have an idea of the situation and could see that his words did not go unchallenged. I also had waited to hear the supporters of Government but none rose to say anything. They only go to the lobby at the time of voting without knowing what they are supporting or opposing. Therefore, if the Chair had allowed the Hon'ble Minister to—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The Chair has given its decision and you cannot discuss or challenge that.

Alhadj Khan Bahadur SHAIKH MUHAMMAD JAN: No, Sir, I did not challenge that. You said that to allow the Hon'ble Minister to speak first on an adjournment motion after the mover was a novel procedure. But, Sir, the world is changing.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If the world is changing, let it change for the better. So, will you please leave that point?

Khan Sahib NURUL AMIN: He has nothing to say.

Alhadj Khan Bahadur SHAIKH MUHAMMAD JAN: It would have been better if instead of interrupting my speech the supporters of Government would have risen and taking courage in both hands give some concrete suggestions to solve the problem.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: On a point of order, Sir. Is not the honourable member making an admission that he knows nothing of the situation and is merely wasting the time of the House. What he is saying is wholly irrelevant. (Mr. Lalit Chandra Das: Is that a point of order?)

Alhadj Khan Bahadur SHAIKH MUHAMMAD JAN: It is true I have not gone to Midnapore—(Khan Sahib Nurul Amin: You know nothing about the motion.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The honourable member should be allowed to speak uninterrupted.

Alhadj Khan Bahadur SHAIKH MUHAMMAD JAN: It is true, as stated by the Hon'ble Minister, that I did not go to Midnapore; but in view of the facts and figures given by one of our colleagues which up till now have not been contradicted by any member of the other side, I wholeheartedly support the adjournment motion moved by Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee. There is little doubt, as was stated by Mr. Mukerji, that the Hon'ble Minister has completely failed to supply adequate quantity of rice and that the rice position in Midnapore is very critical. With these words, I support the motion.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I support the adjournment motion moved by Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee. Sir, after the cyclone and floods of last year, Midnapore would have attracted special attention of any other Government and scarcity of rice would not have occurred there at least. But the present Government complain that as transport is in the hands of the Central Government it can do very little. Evidently, the function of the Ministry is simply to draw money and do nothing else. Whenever they are pressed for any relief, they will say that this is a matter for the Transport Department of the Government of India. Indeed, wherever you press them they will come forward with the plea that the matter was the concern of the Central Government. Sir, when asked why a large quantity of paddy was allowed to rot on a station platform in Jessore last year, Mr. Suhrawardy said that the railway did not supply wagons. But in reply to a question in the Central Assembly, the Railway Member said that Bengal in this case did not indent wagons; they did not include in the programme that they wanted more wagons. During the famine last year, it transpired that wagons full of foodstuff could not be unloaded at Howrah. The Civil Supply Minister is leaving the Chamber, Sir—

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Hon'ble Mr. Tarak Nath Mukherji is representing the Civil Supplies Minister.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: During the prevalence of famine last year, Sir, the Howrah incident took place and they said that they had not sufficient labour force to unload this foodstuff. In Midnapore now the trouble is due to those shopkeepers who are apparently black-marketing the controlled rice. A similar condition was thus described by Sir Thomas Rutherford in his broadcast speech in Bengal:—"As a result of administrative breakdown it is palpable to dispassionate observers, but the question is how long will this inefficiency of administration maintained at high cost to the tax-payer continue in this Province? I would suggest that a Committee of Enquiry should be appointed to investigate into the causes of this failure." I think a Committee should be appointed to go into this matter in detail and examine how the scarcity of foodstuffs can be possible in a district which is called a surplus district. Sir, with these words, I hope that this adjournment motion would be accepted by the other side, at least to show that the Civil Supplies Minister is absolved of his guilt, if there be any, by appointment of an Enquiry Committee.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Sir, the facts stated by Mr. Mukherjee, the honourable mover of this motion, are so difficult to contradict that members of the Government benches have not as yet occupied the floor of the House to take part in this debate and rebut them. (Khan Sahib Fariduddin Ahmad: We are present in the House.) My honourable friend appears to be ignorant of the Parliamentary procedure that to occupy the floor of the House means that one should rise in his place and take part in the debate. Sir, I have been authorised by Mr. Mukherjee to go through a letter written by one Mr. Mitra, a local zemindar and undoubtedly a loyal subject of His Majesty. The letter is dated the 12th of August, 1944. I will read it: "Last evening a meeting of the Town Food Committee was held. We considered our present rice situation in the town. The Subdivisional Officer told that the Government would release 5,000 maunds of rice every month to be distributed in the town with a population of 40 thousand according to the last census at the rate of one seer per unit per week." I ask in all seriousness whether this fact is true. Sir, who is to reply? The Hon'ble the Civil Supplies Minister is not present in the House at the present moment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Hon'ble Mr. Mukherji is taking down notes on his behalf.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: At the meeting of the Food Committee it was known that the Government would distribute one seer of rice per unit per week. I ask in all seriousness whether this fact is true, and whether the Hon'ble Minister is in a position to give an answer to this point. I pause for an answer—

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANOBISH: On a point of order, Sir. Are honourable members entitled to taunt when another honourable member is speaking?

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, it is not proper. I think every honourable member should be given a chance to say what he wants to say without interruption.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: I have been told by my honourable friend Mr. Moholanobish that my friends opposite are taunting. They must do that. They have no other alternative—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Roy, if you answer all these interruptions then you will only provoke further interruptions. So please say what you have got to say on the subject.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: They have no case and therefore—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Roy, you better say what you have to say; do not pursue that point; for, as I have said, my advice to you is that if you try to reply to the remarks of the members on the other side, then you will only provoke further interruptions.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Thank you, Sir. I will follow your advice. However, this most important point must be answered by the members of the Cabinet, namely, the question of one seer per unit per week—

Khan Sahib NURUL AMIN: On a point of order, Sir. The honourable member has repeated this statement for the third time.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: This is not a point of order.

Khan Sahib NURUL AMIN: Drawing attention to repetition is also a point of order.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Sometimes repetition is necessary in order to impress a particular point.

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: Sir, the matter is so serious and so important that it requires repetition for ten times in order that it may enter the heads of the members of the Government of Bengal. His Excellency the Governor the other day said that in the matter of food we were almost out of the woods. Take the case of Midnapore: are we out of the woods? What is it due to? Is it due to the fact that has happened the other day in Howrah, namely, disappearance of rice amounting to Rs. 90,000? Is it a fact that rice has disappeared from Howrah and Calcutta worth Rs. 90,000 and that Government is making an enquiry into the matter? Is it the same case with the district of Midnapore? Then, again, the relationship between the people of Midnapore and the Government is really like that of a red rag to a bull. I ask the Government whether in order to penalise the people of Midnapore they have decided to give one seer of rice per unit per week. I also want an answer on this point. The honourable mover of the motion has made it perfectly clear that from the 26th July the Civil Supply Department stopped the supply of rice to Midnapore. Why? What was the reason? Government must come forward with an explanation which must be satisfactory and acceptable to the members of the House. Mr. Mukherjee has further said that on the 5th August no rice was available. I believe this fact is absolutely true because otherwise Government would not have made a proposal for the distribution of one seer of rice per unit per week. Therefore, the situation is so serious and so difficult that Government cannot escape condemnation, and if the situation as stated by Mr. Mukherjee is still the same as has been described by him, I think the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies does not deserve any credit whatsoever. The situation in Midnapore must be improved and that in the near future. Only a few minutes ago, one of my honourable colleagues on the other side remarked that we have not made out any case. Whether any case has been made out or whether the letter which I have read out to the honourable members is sufficient for the condemnation of the Government is for them to consider. I hope they will think twice before taunting us again. Lastly, Sir, my humble submission is this: the unpleasant situation which has been created in Midnapore is due to the fault of the Hon'ble Minister himself—the situation created in the Civil Supplies Department is due to his fault, because I know it is he who took the initiative in punishing the departmental officers for corruption and a great number of cases were enquired into and reports submitted and the enquiring officers recommended to the Government for dismissal and suspension of many officials belonging to the Civil Supplies Department. But after all no action has been taken by him.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, the honourable member's motion discloses a serious state of affairs. The facts have obviously been collected by him from personal, practical experience of the affairs and cannot be contradicted. The whole difficulty seems to be due to the adoption of a policy of marking some districts "surplus" and others "deficit."

The basis upon which food should be distributed should not be by mere rule of thumb. It is disclosed in a private letter that during the emergency one seer of rice has been provided per head per week. This is hopelessly inadequate. Every working man needs about 7,000 calories daily in order to keep him going. He must, therefore, take food which supplies this average 7,000 calories. If a man takes meat, fish, atta, flour, dal and ghee, a much smaller quantity will be enough for him, because these foods give more caloric value than rice. If a poor man has to depend upon rice alone, he should have much larger quantities than has been provided. Any medical authority on food will support this. For an ordinary cultivator, one seer of rice per week is hopelessly insufficient. For a rice-eating worker, more than a seer per day is needed. This policy of branding one district as "surplus" and another district "deficit" is based upon a fundamental error. The error lies in assuming that a powa of rice per head is enough for a man in a rice-eating area. Much artificial "surplus" is shown by this device and the supposed "excess" is taken away. But workers have to eat to live and eat up the reserve creating an inevitable shortage. The void created in Midnapore is the inevitable consequence of this policy of classification. Too much has been taken away from this area and too little has been left, and there has thus been a scramble for food in Midnapore with the inevitable consequence that food has gone to the black-market. I submit that this aspect of the question should be taken serious notice of by the Government. The Hon'ble the Civil Supplies Minister hails from Midnapore. I come from the neighbouring district and another honourable member comes from the Hooghly district. These are so-called "surplus" districts. The Hon'ble Minister had the sentimental satisfaction of thinking that his district was a surplus district. But now this surplus district is in danger. It was said of the great Napoleon that while fighting throughout Europe, he forgot his little birthplace, the little Island of Corsica. While the Minister is scoring success after success in the Provincial field, he should not forget his native district. I request him to look into the affairs of Midnapore for there is something wrong there.

Now, with regard to the prevalence of corruption, I think it is in the justness of things that this corruption should be eradicated altogether. In fact, two causes have encouraged corruption. The first is the sudden growth of provincial autonomy and the second, the opportunities created by the war. Corruption prevailed in England in the 18th century when the English people were passing through a transition from the worst kind of autocracy to a limited monarchy which began in 1688 with the Glorious Revolution. During the interregnum, corruption was rampant throughout the whole island. Corruption is partly responsible for the disappearance of food and other articles from the open market.

Now, the problem of food-supply in the so-called "surplus" districts should be handled very carefully. Probably too much was taken away from Midnapore leaving a precarious reserve. When the crisis came, the red tape intervened and food could not be quickly brought back to Midnapore. The case of Midnapore is typical. The other day we were shown some weak spots about Chittagong, a deficit district, and the Hon'ble Minister could not fully explain the position. The wrong policy laid down by the department has been too faithfully carried out with the result that a "surplus" district is suffering from starvation.

With these few words, Sir, I support the motion for adjournment.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I rise to support this motion. In doing so I am at the very outset faced by the situation that on the one hand statements were made by the honourable the mover of the motion that no rice was available in Midnapore and on the other, the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supply attempted to raise an objection with regard to the admissibility of the motion itself by suggesting that there was no such shortage. Now, you very rightly ruled that when an honourable member of the House is personal experience vouches for his statement, such explanation on part of the Hon'ble Minister could not be regarded as sufficient ground for disallowing a discussion on the subject. The Hon'ble Minister has in 1943, discovered a very novel method of dealing with shortage—a method which has never before been used in this world. He has said that in order to keep up the public morale, in order to allay panic, even if there is shortage, do not admit it but go on issuing communiques. On this point too, I think Mr. Suhrawardy was depending upon his pet method of dealing with want of rice when he said that there was no shortage. I have been told that the District Magistrate was asked to supply 5,000 seers of rice to the local shops on one condition. The rice should be made available to the stockists of the town, provided rice was distributed at the rate of one seer per adult per week. Is this also a part of the same method which Mr. Suhrawardy adopted when he wanted to sanction 6 chittacks per day to the adult agricultural population of Bengal? The position is slightly better this year, and yet he has thought fit to sanction 1 seer per week! Need I remind him that this one seer is not adequate? Again, if there is no shortage, why this insistence on one seer per week?

It happens sometimes that there are large stocks in the hands of Government but these are not available to the public. We know last year thousands of seers of rice was kept in storage in Jessore and allowed to rot while thousands of people starved. Mr. Suhrawardy says that Government have large supplies in Midnapore and it may be he is correct. But from the experience we have of his methods, it does not follow that that rice is available to the public. Last year also, Government had stocks, but the people starved. Is the same situation being repeated in Midnapore? Mr. Suhrawardy is trying to keep up the morale of Midnapore. If the Government stocks there are not released for the use of the public, the stocks are there merely for show,—merely for the satisfaction of the Civil Supplies Department that the stocks can be obtained if necessary. Before, I would ask the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies to see that there are any Government stocks there, these stocks should be released in such a way so that the people can take advantage of the stocks. Last year the stocks were released too late and when they were released, they were unfit for human consumption. I think more Government money was wasted in attempting to find out whether by any chemical operation these rotten food-stuffs could in any way be made fit for any sort of consumption, either by human beings or by cattle. I would ask the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy to keep this point in mind.

I am sure that Mr. Suhrawardy is aware that Midnapore is not an area where there is much aus crop. It is not an aus-growing area. It is mainly a man-growing area. Therefore, from the month of July till about the middle of October, there usually is local shortage. I think even in normal years there is bound to be a certain amount of shortage during this period. However, since 1942 the conditions of Midnapore have been very abnormal. It was first of all the political disturbances and the repressive measures set up by Government. On top of that, there was the cyclone of 1942 which disturbed the economic life of Midnapore: so much so that in autumn of 1942 the then Government was compelled to re-transport to Midnapore rice which had been taken away from there earlier. The whole of the year 1942 was a black year for the whole of Bengal and it was blackest in Midnapore. An ordinary cultivator in Midnapore cannot be expected to have an adequate surplus. If he does not have an adequate surplus, in view of the fact that it is not an aus-growing area but an aman-growing area, the steps have Government taken to build up reserves?

Again, I would ask the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy to answer whether rationing has been introduced in the town of Midnapore. If rationing has not been introduced, what are the reasons why rationing has not been introduced? I am confident that if rationing had been introduced in the town of Midnapore, the facts to which reference has been made by my honourable friend, Mr. Mukherjee, could not have arisen. If the area were rationed, the shops there would have stocked Government supplies under Government control. The question of stocks going into the black-market could not arise at all. Therefore, the existence of black-market has also been rendered possible only because rationing has not yet been introduced into the town of Midnapore. I would also like him to consider—though this is not strictly the subject of the adjournment motion of today—the position with regard to other areas in the district of Midnapore. I had occasion to visit Midnapore two or three times in connection with famine relief there. When I went there, the conditions I found were appalling. After the cyclone, the economic life of the people of the district had been so damaged that it was very difficult for them to come back to a normal state of affairs. If Government had taken special care to rehabilitate the people, the condition there would have been different. Now, I would like to know what are the intentions of the Government with regard to the introduction of rationing, not only in the town of Midnapore, but in the district of Midnapore as a whole. If complete rationing is not possible, do Government contemplate any scheme of partial rationing by which certain types of the population may be catered for by Government shops?

These are questions which also have to be considered. Then, Sir, there is also the problem of transport to which reference has been made. Transport is no doubt a difficult problem. In Midnapore, which has to use a large number of boats, this problem is the more acute because of a shortage in the number of boats; but I believe that in the course of the last year and a half, the harm caused by the destruction of boats has been partially remedied, and there are more boats available today than there were about one and a half years ago.

Rai Sahib JOGENDRA NATH ROY: Sir, we have received letters which stated that price of rice in Midnapore has been rising since July last. Now rice can only be had for Rs. 25 a maund and in many places it could not be had even at that price. The Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies, I mean, Mr. Suhrawardy, is always giving us hopes that, although the transport difficulties are there, he would try his level best to help Midnapore; but the situation there is getting worse day by day. The middle-class people have been hard hit, while the retired men with big families are in a terrible plight. Last year they sold what they had—their lands, jewellery, their securities and whatever they could sell, to keep their body and soul together. Last year there was however a bumper crop and this year the crop has failed. Because of this, the situation there has become extremely grave. Sir, Midnapore is a place of which we are all proud. But now it appears that dismal plight has enveloped it and no one seriously bothers about it; everybody seems to have forgotten that it is one of the nicest and finest places in West Bengal. In course of a conversation with a high Government official I was told that the transport facilities, which were available in 1943, are not available now. I appreciate the difficulty, but I think that the Government have not taken sufficient steps to relieve the distress there. Will the Government be pleased to state what amount of rice it has stocked in order to meet the situation in deficit areas throughout Bengal? That will give us an idea as to how far Government is prepared to meet the situation. However, I hope that the Hon'ble Minister will take up this matter very seriously and see that Midnapore is not blotted out of Bengal.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, I whole-heartedly support the motion moved by my friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee. He has given a graphic description of Midnapore for the days when no rice was available at a reasonable price and as a matter of fact he says that even at a higher price rice was not at all available. On the day he moved the adjournment motion, he quoted the price to be over Rs. 20 per maund and it appears that the Civil Supply Minister was not at all surprised at the figure, for if I remember aright he said that the price of Rs. 20 a maund was not unreasonable. I do not know what was the controlled rate at which rice was available. In Calcutta it is about Rs. 16 but the rate at which it was then obtainable in Midnapore was over Rs. 20. So I do not know what led the Hon'ble Minister to say that the price was not unreasonable. As the previous speakers have already pointed out—what is the special reason for Midnapore to go without rice so quickly? Midnapore has been selected for persecution, it appears both by man and God. The Hon'ble Minister should have kept a special watch over the affairs of Midnapore. My friend Mr. Humayun Kabir says that Midnapore is the home district of the Minister for Civil Supplies. But I do not think he cares about his home district at all. Probably, because it will be out of the range of Pakistan, therefore he wants to blot it out by persecution and starvation and all sorts of repression which is at the command of the Government. Any way, in connection with the honourable mover's motion here none of our friends opposite has even the courtesy or any sense of public duty to join in the debate. We will even welcome speeches opposing the motion. But they do not want to do so. Only they will go to vote in the Government lobby. I do not know what use this adjournment motion will serve and I do not believe in the efficacy of it. The Hon'ble Minister in charge of Civil Supplies seems not to care so long as he has his supporters to vote. He is laughing and another Minister is also doing the same thing—Minister from Howrah and Minister from Midnapore both are laughing (interruptions from the Government benches) and out to destroy their home districts.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Chakraverti, either you resume your speech or resume your seat. You are not to discuss with the members opposite.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, the Civil Supply Minister does not seem to show any sympathy in this matter. He is quite indifferent to the situation. So far as Civil Supplies Department is concerned, it seems that a white elephant is being maintained at the cost of the people. It is admittedly, even in the language of His Excellency the Governor, full of corruption and I have heard just now on the floor of this House that he himself received a lot of complaints from various officers and he has himself enquired into these cases but has not taken any steps to bring the offenders to book or to let the public know what is the result of the enquiry. We have heard from influential members of his party that the Civil Supplies Department from top to bottom is full of corruption. Many honourable members have pointed out the reasons why Bengal is suffering so much. The Hon'ble Minister is treating every subject with levity and is sleeping away his time. But he must wake up: Nemesis will not be far distant from him if he goes on in this way and again lead this province to famine and starvation and ultimate death.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, it is regrettable that the honourable member who has moved the adjournment motion should have built a case on a casual conversation with certain people of Midnapore during a casual visit to that place. I have tried to get reports from the local officers regarding the condition in Midnapore and I will read a telegram which I received from the District Magistrate on the 10th August. The first adjournment motion was moved on the 7th August and the present adjournment motion is on the same lines and although 7 days have passed the honourable member has not been able to get any further information to support him except two matters which are incorrect. The telegram says: "Retail market price of medium rice in Midnapore is annas 6-6 per seer" which is equivalent to Rs. 16-4 per maund. "Rice is available in Midnapore for the last 8 days and no complaints of scarcity have been received from the neighbouring villages." So, the honourable member has built up a case without knowing whether rice was available in Midnapore or not.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: What is the date of the telegram?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: 10th August. Now, Sir, I do not know whether it is worth while to discuss this motion. But there are one or two matters which the honourable member has raised and which I want to clear up, though those matters are not relevant to the motion. One fact which the honourable member has disputed is that Midnapore is a surplus district, simply because on the basis of 9 maunds per head for a population of 29 lakhs there should be 250 lakhs maunds of rice. But if we were to take an average of $4\frac{1}{2}$ maunds per head per year, Midnapore at once becomes a surplus district. I take it that the honourable members are aware that the population of 29 lakhs in Midnapore includes infants and children, old women and invalids, and that it is not possible for an infant or a child to consume 9 maunds of rice. We have got to take an average and on the basis of that average Midnapore is a surplus district. I do not, however, suggest as a question of fact that four and a half maunds per year represents a fair average consumption, or that an average of half a seer of rice per head daily is sufficient nourishment for the people of Bengal. An investigation is being made and is being conducted even now in order to ascertain what is the average consumption of rice of the people.

The next point, Sir, which has created some confusion are the orders which were passed by me to introduce modified rationing, under which we put on the market 2 seers of foodgrains per head per week, which in consideration of the stock of rice and atta available would be 1 seer rice and 1 seer atta. This is not complete over-all rationing, and does not represent all the foodgrains a person is expected to consume. If we were to introduce over-all rationing as in Calcutta, then the amount which we would give would be $3\frac{1}{2}$ or 4 seers per week at least. This rationing is being introduced in order to put foodgrains on the market for the purpose of taking the pressure off the market, for the purpose of reducing prices in general, for the purpose of making rice available to the people and thus prevent a hold-up, and for the purpose of stimulating the flow of rice into the market; and this policy has succeeded. It has been tried in Chittagong and today I have received a letter from the District Magistrate of Chittagong, which makes it clear that the policy has succeeded and that the price of rice has fallen below the price of Government rice to such an extent that excepting in Chittagong town itself and nearabout there is little off-take from Government shops. This amount which we propose to put through our shops will appear only to those places, where there is also rice available through the trade. Instructions have been issued and many Magistrates are giving more than 2 seers per head where there is no local market. In some places, as in Kustia, where the local market was dry, we have been giving as much as 4 seers of rice per head per week. In some places we are giving 2 seers of rice per week instead of 1 seer for the purpose of ensuring foodgrains which the people prefer, and this has resulted in ample foodgrains coming into the market. I have not the least doubt that in Midnapore there is still considerable amount of hoarding and that there are cultivators of the class of jotedars who have got still considerable stocks in hand. For the time being I see no reason why we should start frightfulness at Midnapore and force them to de-hoard, for I am certain that the time will come when these persons will be most anxious to sell their foodgrains themselves without any pressure from us. When the honourable gentlemen opposite predict that I will not admit a shortage, it appears to me that they know what the true facts are; and they seem to be anxious to proclaim a deficiency where it does not exist in order to create panic and if possible to bring about difficulties in this province. As regards the next point to which the honourable member has referred, namely, the removal of rice from Midnapore, I may state at once that although purchases have been made in Midnapore, they have not been in any measure commensurate with the amount that Midnapore could have yielded. We have not forced Midnapore at all. Very small quantities comparatively have been purchased and from the 15th of July not a single grain of rice or paddy has been removed from Midnapore—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a point of information, Sir. What is the quantity?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I am not prepared to tell you that. My word is enough.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: We do not believe it.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I know that. I did not expect you to.

At present, there is in Midnapore town itself a stock of 22,838 maunds of rice, and this stock is being put on the market. I feel, Sir, that if the market of Midnapore can absorb 500 maunds of rice per day, I see nothing to prevent us from putting that quantity on the market. I would certainly, for the purpose of stimulating substitute foodgrains, divide the off-take into rice and atta. I think it is well for the people of Bengal to have atta, and although I have no further information in the matter I am certain that the Subdivisional Officer must have also told the people that along with one seer of rice per head per week he would also give one seer of atta per head per week. But it is surprising that the honourable member never referred to atta at all. He only referred to the one seer of rice. Now, as I have said above, there is no shortage of rice in the market, and the price of rice is not as high as the honourable member puts it. It is only Rs. 16-4. I have stated that the honourable member is misinformed and his statement is incorrect. No orders were passed on the 26th of July, as alleged, and the facts on which the honourable member has based his motion are incorrect. But, Sir, I am never content with a mere refutation of an argument. If a complaint is brought to my notice—it does not matter whether the motion succeeds in this House or not—I very carefully inquire into the matter, and if I find there is anything wrong or needs rectification, I take all possible steps to rectify it; and it makes no difference to me if it has been brought to my notice through incorrect information. I am in touch with the District Magistrate of Midnapore, and I hope, Sir, that all necessary steps will be taken to remedy any faults or errors.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will you go there?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: It is not necessary at the present moment. If it is necessary, I shall certainly go there.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I have heard the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies very carefully. I think he has tried to hoodwink the House on the basis of a telegram from the District Magistrate of Midnapore, dated the 10th August, which says that rice is available for the last 8 days. Now, Sir, I would request the Minister if he has any idea of arithmetic to say if 8 days are taken from the 3rd to the 10th of August. Why is it that the District Magistrate does not say anything as to the non-availability of rice from the 26th July onwards? The telegram is discreetly silent on this point and suppresses facts which I think ought not to be allowed by the Hon'ble Minister. I had definite information before I tabled my adjournment motion that supply of rice was stopped from the 26th July and that rice was not at all available for a large number of days. I think the Midnapore Hitaishi is submitted to the press officer for the purpose of being censored and we find in the very first paragraph of the editorial note.

শেয়ার অভাবনীয় চাউলের অভাব। কয়েকদিন বেদিনীপুর সহরে কোন দোকানে চাউল না পাইয়া লোক অত্যন্ত উদ্ভিগ্ন হইয়া উঠিয়াছে। সম্প্রতি অতিরিক্ত ম্যাজিষ্ট্রেট মহাশয়ের আদেশে দোকানে হাজার মণ চাউল যেওয়া হইবে বলিয়া শুনিতে পাইতেছি। কিন্তু এই হাজার মণ চাউলে ক'দিন চলিবে? চাউল না পাইয়া জনসাধারণ প্রায় ক্ষিপ্ত হইয়া উঠিয়াছে। অতিরিক্ত ম্যাজিষ্ট্রেট মহোদয়ের রূপায় তাহারা পরে কান্ত হইয়াছে।

I would therefore request the Hon'ble Minister to consider and to enquire from his department as to why it is that they allowed all these things to be published in the Midnapore Hitaishi which has a wide circulation in the Midnapore district. The fact that it was published in that newspaper justifies that—

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: What is the date of this issue?

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: 7th August, 1944. I came back to Calcutta on the 5th, 6th was a Sunday and on the 7th, Monday, I tabled the adjournment motion.

Then, Sir, the Hon'ble Minister has stated that the current market price of rice is 6 annas 6 pies per seer in Midnapore. I would request him to state what was the controlled rate of rice in Midnapore. Will he be able to contradict me if I say that the controlled price there is Rs. 13 per maund as fixed by Government themselves? Therefore, I submit that the statement of the Hon'ble Minister that rice was available at 6 annas and 6 pies per seer is not the price of the open market but is really the price which some shop-keepers realise in the black market because they could not sell rice at that rate in the open market. But I have stated categorically in my opening speech that rice was not at all available at less than 8 to 10 annas per seer. If necessary, the Hon'ble Minister himself may go to Midnapore and I can go too with him to prove that my statement is correct and that the information of the District Magistrate is inaccurate. With reference to the question as to whether Midnapore is a surplus district or not, I would refer him once again to the report of the Flood Commission where 9 maunds per head per year is stated to be the requirement. The Minister has stated that there are some infants; no doubt there are infants, but he did not give us any figure for average consumption of rice by the villagers and cultivators. If the Hon'ble Minister will refer to the speech of the Hon'ble Sir Jogendra Singh, Member, Governor-General's Executive Council, he will find that according to his calculation 13 chittaks of rice would be necessary per head to give the necessary calories to an individual who does not get other kinds of food, namely, milk, fruits and other things. Next, Sir, the Civil Supplies Minister stated that there was some suppression of fact with regard to the information about one seer of rice per head per week which was proposed by the Subdivisional Officer to be supplied to the people of Midnapore. Now, in regard to this matter, I did not like to refer exactly to the things that happened. On the 11th of August a meeting of the Town Food Committee of Midnapore was held. The Subdivisional Officer stated at the meeting that Government would release 5,000 maunds of rice per month to be distributed—and this is for a population of 40,000 at the rate of one seer per head per week. Now, Sir, I pause for a moment and take up what the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies has said. According to him the stock is 22,832 maunds. So I think the Subdivisional Officer was right when he said that he would not be able to supply more than 5,000 maunds of rice per month, because from August to December there are still five months and about five months' supply will have to be stocked and with the 22,832 maunds of rice which the Government have purchased they cannot supply more than 5,000 maunds per month. That again works out at one seer per week for each adult population of Midnapore town. Thereafter a resolution was passed by the Food Committee in the presence of the Subdivisional Officer, he himself presided, to the following effect. The resolution was passed unanimously that this Committee views with deep concern that the Government under modified rule of rationing decided to give one seer of rice per unit per week—that this district was declared as a surplus district. The chief food is rice and per head 9 chittacks of rice is indispensable for sustenance of the people. Accordingly, it is resolved that Government be moved to supply rice sufficiently for the consumption of the people at the rate of 9 chittacks till the next harvest, that is December next—and a copy of the resolution be forwarded to the Subdivisional Officer, Additional District Magistrate, Food, District Magistrate, the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Civil Supplies and the Food Commissioner, Bengal. I do not know if the Hon'ble Minister has received a copy of the resolution. (The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: No.) He says that he has not. In any case, I think that from what I have stated it is clear that it is he who is guilty of suppression of facts. Now, Sir, it is clear that the Government have purchased rice in large quantities from Midnapore. The Hon'ble Minister will not say what is the quantity and will keep it in his pocket for future reference. The Hon'ble Minister has said that the Subdivisional Officer must have proposed to give atta or wheat in addition but I do not know what he means by that. It is an inference which has no foundation: otherwise the Subdivisional Officer should have opposed the resolution. It was passed unanimously.

With reference to the distribution of atta, I may say that I had been to Kharagpur and was discussing the matter of atta with one of the biggest merchants of Midnapore who is a non-Bengali and he told me that the wheat which the Government is releasing is rotten and unfit for human consumption. (Here the member reached time limit and resumed his seat.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is: That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation that has arisen out of the fact that rice is not available in Midnapore town and in the neighbouring villages. The authorities stopped supply from the 26th July, 1944 and rice is available in very small quantities in the black market at 8 annas to 10 annas per seer. At a meeting of the Town Food Committee on the 11th August, 1944, a resolution was passed to move Government in the matter to supply sufficient rice for the consumption of the people.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The Ayes being 13, and the Noes 22, the motion was negatived.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. PRESIDENT: We shall take up the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill now. The House will remember that two points of order were raised yesterday. One was with reference to marginal notes. I have very carefully looked up that point. I would now like to hear Mr. Mukherjee. I would like to have those authorities from you which you wanted to give me.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Now, with regard to this matter, we find that the position so far as England is concerned, in the parchment roll in which the Bills were printed marginal notes were not printed at all. The Bills come to the House of Commons and also to the House of Lords without the marginal notes and the marginal notes are put in sometimes when the Bills are passed later on. In Britain, the practice has been that marginal notes should be printed and should be referred to in the House of Parliament, and you will find, Sir, that the point has been discussed in some of the English Acts, but for my present purpose I would only refer you to the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill and also refer you to where the marginal notes were brought to the notice of the Legislature—both in the Lower House and in the Upper House. If you refer to the Select Committee Report on clause 6 of the Bill, you will find that in the marginal notes the Select Committee wanted to add the words “rent and revenue”——

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, it is the Select Committee of the Lower House. I do not think you can refer to it.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: You cannot rule it out in this way, Sir. If the marginal note has been amended in the Lower House, then it must be added here. It has been decided by the Lower House, so far as this Bill is concerned, that the words “rent and revenue” should be retained in the marginal note. Therefore, I do not think that there is any escape from the proposition that marginal notes have been referred to by the Legislature and that they are part of the Statute. Now, I think that this ought to conclude this question as to whether marginal note so far as this Bill is concerned is part of the Statute or not.

If you now refer to Halsbury which was shown by the Secretary to you and if you read a few lines below the portion referred to by the Secretary, you will find—

Mr. PRESIDENT: There should be no reference to Secretary, Mr. Mukherjee.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I am sorry, Sir. Reference was made to Halsbury, and if you refer to a few lines below the paragraph which you quoted from, you will find that “the Houses of Parliament have nothing to do with marginal notes and that the courts cannot look at them, etc.”. You will also find mention of local Acts in the marginal note, so that I think that so far as this particular Bill is concerned, we need not discuss the point further. Otherwise, I could have given you, Sir, a host of rulings from the Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, and Allahabad and also other High Courts where it has been held that marginal notes can be referred to for the construction of Statutes. If the sense of the text is ambiguous, then the court may take recourse to the marginal notes.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The position regarding this point seems to be this. Marginal notes are generally not considered by the legislature, and it has been held over and over again that marginal notes should not be considered. In fact, I have got here a decision of the Privy Council where it has been said quite clearly—I think by Mr. Justice Macnaughten—that “it is well settled that marginal notes to the sections of an Act of Parliament cannot be referred to for the purpose of construing an Act. The contrary opinion originated in a mistake and it has been exploded long ago. There seems to be no reason for giving marginal notes in an Indian Statute any greater authority than to marginal notes in an English Act of Parliament”. That has been the settled law on this matter and I find that the practice at least here in this province has been that marginal notes have been changed and amended on an Act being revised and reprinted. The Calcutta Police Act and the Bengal Village Self-Government Act—these are all Bengal Acts and it is mentioned there that marginal notes have been revised where necessary, so that they were revised without any reference to the Legislature. But the point is this: as you Mr. Mukherjee have pointed out that in this case the Lower House has taken the marginal notes into consideration, I am inclined to think that marginal notes form part of a Bill and therefore I rule that amendments to marginal notes are permissible. It has been found that the other House did actually go into the matter and modified the marginal notes. So there is no dispute as to that. That point is settled.

As regards the other point, namely, whether negative amendments are permissible or not—

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, may I rise on a point of personal explanation? Yesterday I wanted to give you some authority on this point and you were pleased to ask me to see you in your Chamber. Unfortunately, I could not do so. Will you, therefore, kindly permit me to place the matter before the House now?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have seen that Mr. Moholanabish; you need not refer to that. In fact, my decision was very guarded.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Not only as President but as a member of this House also you agreed to such a proposition, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, as a member we are not so very responsible.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Your predecessor also held that such amendments were proper amendments. Let us go by the rules and authorities, Sir.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: I want to submit something on this point, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Chakraverti, the point was very carefully discussed yesterday and you may remember that it is only when the Chair invites discussion on a point of order that such discussion may take place; otherwise not.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: The point that I want to place before you, Sir, is practically from your own instruction and I will show that it has been admitted by you.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It may have been admitted by me, but since then I have carefully considered the matter and gone into the whole question. What I have said I can certainly reconsider, and I have done so. No man is infallible, you know.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: From the President's Standing Orders I will show unmistakably that this sort of amendment has been allowed in the past, wholly or partially. If you give me 5 minutes time, I will easily show that to you, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Why five minutes? Why not quote the rule now?

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, it is in the President's Standing Order—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Which one you are referring to?

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: First, I want to refer to rule 113(3) of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You are referring to the form and manner?

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Yes, Sir, it is by this rule you are empowered to determine the form and manner in which notices of amendments should be issued. Before the Standing Order of the President was published, members used to choose their own language and there were no forms. After the Standing Order of the President was passed—and I would refer you to rule 20 of the President's Standing Order—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have seen that. The difficulty is that it was not done by me—

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: But, Sir, it is binding on you—

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, it is not. There is one very important question which you should consider and this is whether it is in conflict with our rules. Yesterday I referred you to rule 43(?) which lays down that cannot be done—

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: But, Sir, the Standing Order—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Chakraverti, there should be no discussion on argument. I have carefully considered the matter. You do not bring in any new argument—

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Well, Sir, if you do not hear our argument and give your ruling, we are helpless.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, you cannot say that I do not hear your arguments. Whenever I found that there is any force in the arguments of the members of the Opposition or of any members of the House, I always concede to them. Two minutes ago, I accepted the contention of Mr. Mukherjee—

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, we will have grievance if you do not hear us; and you are not hearing us now—

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I hope, Sir, you will give us a hearing. A new point has arisen out of the Standing Order of the President and you are bound by it. It is not the Standing Order of somebody else but it is the Standing Order of the President of the Bengal Legislative Council and if you want to change this Standing Order, you must intimate the members and till you change the rules you are bound by these rules—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid, Mr. Kabir, there may be Standing Orders which are in direct conflict with the rules and in such cases I think it is the privilege of the President to consider this matter.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: By issuing the forms you have already committed yourself. If you are wrong, members cannot suffer.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of order, Sir. Standing Orders of the President have been made under rule 111 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules. Rule 111 of the Procedure Rules says "The President may, by orders, not inconsistent with these rules provide for matters for which no provision is made, and may give such directions as may be necessary for giving effect to these rules and such orders." So, we say that the President has been empowered to make rules and while the Procedure Rules have empowered the President to make the Standing Orders and the Standing Orders are passed by the President, he is bound by them. He cannot evade them—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Das, I have considered all the points.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, if you say that you are not bound by those rules, then it will be our painful duty to refer your decision to the Privilege Committee of the House. It will be our contention that you are infringing the privileges of the House and it will be our very painful duty to refer your ruling to the consideration of the Privilege Committee of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, why do you say that?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Because, Sir, you say that you are not bound by the Standing Rules and you say that you are not bound by what the former President has framed. In fact, he has again and again ruled on this point. I would refer you to an occasion when on the 11th May 1939, a similar motion for the deletion of a particular clause came up and the late President allowed that. And now, if after all these, you today say that you are not bound by those rules and if you think that you can do just as you please, then we consider that to be an infringement of the privileges of the House. In that case, it would be our very painful duty to refer your ruling to the Privilege Committee of the House. It has already been seen in another place that the ruling of the Speaker can be discussed and it was allowed to be discussed for days. If, therefore, Sir, you want a repetition of that thing, we shall also discuss your ruling though that would be a painful duty. But, Sir, if you want to take away a right of the House, the members cannot allow that right to go away without a struggle. Then there is another matter. You said a moment ago that members are irresponsible. You said that though as an honourable member you may have moved such amendments for the deletion of a clause, still as a President you cannot allow it. You know, Sir, what is implied by that. You know the implication of the remark. Though I admit that you spoke in a very guarded language, still the implication of that is clear that the members are not responsible. And that is a reflection on the honourable members which we resent very much. Because there are members who take up the business of this House seriously.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, I did not mean any reflection on any honourable member when I said that. I said humorously that as member we do many things which as President one cannot do.

- Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: All right, Sir, I do not like to refer to that because as you say you said those words humorously. Now, Sir, as regards the admissibility of this deletion clause, I may say that on many occasions it has been held by the late President that these are admissible. It has been held by you also till only yesterday and I am quite sure you yourself moved several amendments of this nature and there are precedents for this. So, if this right of the House is taken away by you in this way, I submit that we cannot allow that without a struggle.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, it is the settled practice of the House established in accordance with the rules framed by the late President that such motions are admissible. There are many instances of this in our proceedings. I submit that, before unsettling a settled procedure, caution should be adopted and the matter should be investigated by the Privilege Committee or taken up by the Rule-making Committee. If we abide by a decision, the spirit of the decision should be taken. Here it is a mere technicality. If you allow the omission to be moved first, then it gives certain practical advantages. If the amendment is lost, members will then be required to move textual amendments; but if the omission is carried, then we will not have to move the minor amendments. It is an economy of time. The usual practice is that amendment which seeks the omission of a clause is given the first preference. This is the practice which we have been following since the very beginning of this House. Many precedents can be cited to show that this practice has been uniformly adhered to. This is also the practice in the Central Assembly. Deletion should come first. If you allow speeches on the minor amendments first and then the deletion of the clause, much of the discussion would be useless. I, therefore, submit, Sir, till the practice is re-examined by the rule-making committee, the past practice should be adhered to.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: May I say a few words, Sir? I was referring to rule 113(3). By that, the President of the Council is empowered to determine in which form the notice of amendments and resolutions and other things should be given by the members. Then I refer to section 20 of the Standing Orders of the President of the Legislative Council, which refers to notices and the form. I refer to Form "E". This is for giving notice of amendments to clauses of the Bill by the members. In the form that have been supplied to us, you have yourself invited the members to send the amendments in this form and I believe those forms were printed under your instructions. I respectfully submit, Sir, that it is mentioned there that members are entitled to send amendments for deletion of the whole clause or part of it.

Mr. W. B. G. LAIDLAW: Sir, I have the impression, I may be wrong, that you have at hand a definite authority on this subject. On the other hand, it is a matter which evidently some of us feel fairly strongly about, and if I may make a suggestion, it is that you meet the leaders to discuss it; and in the meantime we take up other amendments to the Bill passing over this matter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think that it would be most helpful if we discuss this matter round the table with the leaders and find out what are the difficulties. I shall then place all the authorities that I have obtained.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: We want that the matter be discussed on the floor of the House. You had better adjourn the House for a few minutes for a discussion of this matter.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, you are unsettling a settled fact—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Why do you object to the matter being discussed round the table?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Because we want that all the members should take part in the discussion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, it is not only the leaders that are interested in this matter, but all the members are interested in a matter like this.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, we will only hold an informal discussion with the leaders, but we will make it final here on the floor of the House.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: No, Sir. Let us discuss the question here.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think Mr. Laidlaw's suggestion is most helpful that we meet the leaders for a discussion of this question and in the meantime we go on with the amendments.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Mr. Laidlaw's suggestion is always helpful to you.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHARAVERTI: Sir, if you meet the leaders, you adjourn the House today.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, how can we proceed with other amendments. Suppose that amendment is carried, what will happen then?

Mr. PRESIDENT: The amendment which we were discussing is Nos. 339-344A, namely, that clause 49 be deleted. So we have practically finished all other amendments.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, before you proceed further with today's business, may I bring to your notice the question of the amendment that you disallowed yesterday on the ground that it would be corrected by Secretary—I mean the marginal notes?

Mr. PRESIDENT: That point cannot be raised again now.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, one amendment of Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad has become admissible in view of your recent ruling, I mean amendment No. 335.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But that amendment comes after No. 354.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Yes, unless we settle the clause we cannot legislate with regard to the marginal notes.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, therefore what I suggest is that in the meantime let us proceed with other amendments, while I shall be considering this point further.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I suggest that the whole House should consider the matter and not a few party leaders.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Let us be regular, Sir, and why not discuss the matter here on the floor of the House and now?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am prepared to adjourn the House for 15 minutes. Will therefore honourable members please come over to my Chamber so that we may discuss the matter in an informal atmosphere? The House stands adjourned for 15 minutes.

(The House was then adjourned for 15 minutes.)

(After adjournment.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I am grateful to the honourable members for their advice and views on this intricate question and I have re-considered the matter now. Though I reserve my formal ruling till a later date, I am prepared to allow amendment Nos. 339-344A to be moved—

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, in view of your ruling another deletion clause may be—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Das, you moved yesterday amendment No. 336—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, that will be done after this amendment now that you have allowed amendment 339 to be moved.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But you have already moved it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I have mentioned it because you did not allow us yesterday to move amendment No. 339. Now that you have allowed it, if we fail here in amendment No. 339, then my amendment No. 336 will come; otherwise not.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, you have moved it. Let amendment No. 339 be moved now and let it be discussed and then I shall put this amendment first and if it fails then I shall put Mr. Das' amendment.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: I beg to move that clause 49 of the Bill be deleted.

Sir, clause 49 of the Bill provides for reciprocal relief in respect of double taxation with other Governments. In this clause, Sir, as you will see, Government want to reserve powers to themselves with a view to make provisions for the granting of relief in respect of agricultural income on which both agricultural income-tax under this Act and other income-tax have been paid. Now, Sir, I object to this clause on two main grounds. The first ground is the principle of granting relief. My second ground is the reservation of powers by executive with a view to frame rules according to their own sweet will, to regulate the method of relief. Now, I would just read the clause which is not a very long one in order to show what actually is in the mind of the author of this clause. Clause 49 says "The Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make provision for the granting of relief in respect of agricultural income on which both agricultural income-tax under this Act and other income-tax have been paid."

(2) For the purposes of this section 'other income-tax' means any income tax, super-tax or sur-tax charged under—

(a) any law of a Province other than Bengal in force in that Province or

(b) any law in force in any Indian State, or in any part of His Majesty's Dominions, or in the United Kingdom

where the laws of such Province, State or part of His Majesty's Dominions or of the United Kingdom, as the case may be, provide for relief in respect of tax charged on income both in such Province, State or part of His Majesty's Dominions, or in the United Kingdom, as the case may be, and in Bengal, which appears to the Provincial Government to correspond to the relief which may be granted under this section."

As I have already stated that my objections are two-fold, first on the principle of reciprocal relief for double taxation and my second objection is with regard to the method of granting agricultural relief by executive order. With regard to the first point, I think I should not be misunderstood by honourable members on my left because I oppose this provision and because perhaps they would be mostly benefitted if this clause is retained in the Bill. But I am really moving this amendment not with a view to look the interest of this section or that but I am moving this amendment in furtherance of the interest of Bengal as a whole and I believe honourable members of this House, and every one of them, have got the same interest in their hearts to see Bengal's interest first and other interest next.

Now, the main idea of including a clause like this, I suppose has been brought into being sometime later on. So far as I remember, here I speak subject to correction, this provision was not there in the original Bill as it was published. Oh! I am told that it was in the original Bill, it was dropped in the Select Committee and it was reintroduced in the Lower House. But what is the idea really behind this provision? We know that there is a provision for relief against double taxation both under the Indian Income-tax Act as well as under the Income-tax laws of the United Kingdom and the Income-tax laws of the Dominions. Probably it may be argued that when such a law has been accepted in the United Kingdom, in the other Dominions and in India as well. So what serious objection can there be to the adoption of the same rule so far as Bengal agricultural income-tax is concerned? My reply to that will be that this tax of ours stands on a different footing. Unlike those Acts this Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill is in a way, a domestic taxation Bill and this Bill, as we have been told over and over again by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister who is in charge of the Bill, the Hon'ble the Leader of the House and every member of the Government side, is necessary to augment the finances of Bengal, to give relief to the toiling and half-starved population of Bengal, the cultivators of Bengal, to improve agriculture in Bengal. That being the object of this Bill we shall have to consider whether this Bill should be put on the same scale as the Indian Income-tax Act or as the Income-tax Law of the United Kingdom or of the Dominions. We are really taxed by several enactments, e.g., Bengal Municipal Act and other enactments under which we are bound to pay tax and no question of relief from those taxes arises. I would ask the members to seriously consider whether the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill should or should not be taken in that light. The children of the soil will have to pay the full tax and the provision in this clause is that if there are assesses who do not actually live in Bengal or who are not permanent residents of Bengal but come from the United Kingdom or from His Majesty's Dominions or from other provinces, then an exception should be made with regard to them so that their hardship may be minimised, for there is a law in that province under which there is a provision for reciprocal relief. In the circumstances it would strike anybody that those who are not actual residents of Bengal, are getting some relief which the sons of Bengal are not getting under this law. I do realise that there will be hardship for those who have to pay this tax and who will have to pay the same income-tax over again in their home country. There is no doubt about that. But is Bengal responsible for that? Are we responsible that the tax is laid at their door again? If you answer this question you will come to the right conclusion. We are not; and if there are persons who come from abroad and occupy land and make money out of Bengal they are in the first instance to pay the Bengal tax and then if there is any question of relief they ought to look to their respective home countries for relief and they should not ask Bengal to sacrifice a part of their revenue. But the question is whether the relief should be granted by Bengal or by their home countries. That is the question before the House. Suppose a man has got income for which he has to pay tax at 2 shillings per pound in Bengal and 3 shillings per pound in the United Kingdom. Then he would have to seek for relief there by which he will not have to pay more than half of the United Kingdom tax and the relief would be proportionately given both by the United Kingdom as well as by this Province. That I think is the idea behind this provision. I would certainly ask those honourable members who would seek for this relief or ask for the provision of this relief being retained to seriously consider whether for their own personal interests they would be prepared to say that Bengal should sacrifice substantial portion of its revenue in order to give them relief. I think that they can get very much relief if they actually move their home countries or the authorities in their home countries to make a provision in their law under which income-tax or the agricultural income-tax that is paid here or is payable here in Bengal be deducted from their income as deductible allowance. As for instance, when you carry on business on a particular premises in this country or in any country you are entitled to deduct the Municipal tax that you pay because that is necessary for earning the income. So that is a permissible deduction under the Income-tax law of this country, and I am sure that is the law in the United Kingdom also. I am not unmindful of the fact that income-tax that is paid is never regarded under any income-tax law as allowable deduction. Therefore that is not allowed to be deducted in order to find out the actual income of an assessee for the purpose of taxation, but in a case like this when a particular income that is earned here out of land in Bengal is taxed here at the source and the actual income that is derived from the produce of land in Bengal is so much less by the amount of the tax than it can very reasonably be said in their respective home countries that that amount has been deducted from our actual income or in other words we had to pay this amount of tax practically with a view to earning the income. Therefore that ought to be deducted as permissible deduction in their respective home countries. Thereby they will have their double taxation relief and Bengal will be saved from loss of its own revenue. Now, Sir, one ought to be generous for the country in which he lives. He earns his livelihood there and so he should not try to deprive that country of its fair share of revenue because of his own personal hardship. Therefore I would ask honourable members who seems to be interested in retaining this provision to very seriously consider whether or not they can very generously sacrifice that much so that they may stand on the same footing as the sons of Bengal in respect of taxation under this Bill. Now, Sir, I would just put it from another point of view as to why Bengal should not be asked to sacrifice its revenue for the sake of others. This provision and similar provisions in the income-tax law of every country is made on the theory of reciprocity—an international idea that every country should give relief to the assesses who are doubly taxed, so that there may not be any difference between the principle of taxation of one country and another. This reciprocity we have accepted as a principle under the Indian Income-tax Act yet as a matter of fact India does not get anything really by reason of this principle of reciprocity. It gives and gives but it takes very little by this principle of reciprocity. Sir, how many Indians are there who earn any taxable income I say in the United Kingdom or in His Majesty's Dominions? I think very few, if there are any at all, but in India hundreds and thousands of people from the United Kingdom and from His Majesty's Dominions earn a lot and yet they now are grudging payment of this tax on the plea of double taxation. Even if there is a semblance of justice with regard to the granting of reciprocal relief under the Indian Income-tax Act I should say that there is absolutely no chance of any reciprocity so far as agricultural income is concerned. In Bengal our land is occupied not only by us, Bengalees, Hindus and Mussalmans, but it is occupied by many others belonging to other nationalities living in different countries and making large amounts of profit out of Bengal lands. The question is if it is based on the theory of reciprocity how is Bengal or the inhabitants of Bengal going to have agricultural income from land in the United Kingdom or in the Dominions or anywhere else? We have not yet forgotten how we are treated in other countries; though there is no such law in the United Kingdom yet we should not forget that we are not even given accommodation in the best hotels in England. We have not forgotten the Pegging Act in South Africa where we are not allowed to hold practically any land, whatsoever, far less any agricultural land from which taxable income can be had. If that is the position of Indians and Bengalees in countries outside India where is the scope of any reciprocity here? Why should we make any concession with regard to those who have come here from 7,000 miles away to exploit India, to make profits out of her agricultural lands in Bengal and then they would say "look here, we have to pay the tax in our own country and if you also tax us in that respect, it would be very hard on us. Please therefore reduce it to half, etc.". This is the plea that my European friends have put forward to the Finance Minister on this theory of reciprocity. If there is no reciprocity I am sure my friends to the left would not insist on this particular relief so far as the agricultural income-tax is concerned. They have enjoyed the fruits of Bengal's land all these years without payment of a single pice as income-tax in Bengal out of it. In consideration of this fact they may now give up their claim for relief on the ground of double taxation and I think it will not be too much for me to ask this from them. But, Sir, when there is a question of taxation we know that under the Government of India Act we cannot make any discrimination and the law insists that by virtue or by reason of the place of residence or nationality or race or colour there should not be any discrimination in taxation. We are bound by that and we accept it as we are bound to accept it. Isn't it in a way a sort of discrimination on the ground of residence? Why should those who would come from a different country ask for this concession? I would certainly—

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, may I suggest that if Mr. Moholanabish does not feel inclined to finish his speech now, we may rise now.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Let him finish his speech. Have you finished your speech Mr. Moholanabish?

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: No, Sir. We in Bengal receive everybody here in open arms. We do not restrict any body in his possession of land, in his possession of other vocations and professions. Therefore we expect that those who kindly come here and kindly earn money here, they may also kindly pay taxes and they should not turn and say that because they are foreigners and residents of other countries and as they are being also taxed at their home countries, Bengal should just remit a portion of their tax in order to ameliorate their position. That is an aspect which we cannot agree to, because this particular taxing Bill is intended to augment the resources of Bengal's revenue and if that is the idea behind it, I am sure the Hon'ble Finance Minister would look to it that not a single pie of this tax is remitted to anybody whatever may be the reason. Taxation which is always taken as a ground of hardship—but tax is not remitted on the ground of hardship. Nobody can pay his income-tax without feeling the pinch and without feeling that this money is wrongfully deducted from his income. Therefore when an income derived not practically by personal exertion but from the fertile land of Bengal, well, in that case those who are deriving this income should not grudge paying 2½ annas in the rupee as tax at the maximum rate. We take this from another point of view. If, as I have already suggested, reciprocity is the key-note of this relief then that reciprocity is wanting in the case of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill. Therefore if reciprocity goes, the foundation for granting relief goes altogether. Because we in Bengal cannot expect, as I have submitted before, to have any income from agricultural land outside India either in the United Kingdom or in His Majesty's Dominions or anywhere else. Therefore, Sir, if you leave out the question—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Moholanabish, will you finish just now?

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: I will take some more time.

Mr. PRESIDENT: How long will you take?

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, my heart is full now; so I may take 15 to 20 minutes.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Then you resume your speech on the next day. I now adjourn the House till 2-15 p.m. tomorrow.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 80.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Friday, the 18th August, 1944, at 2-15 p.m., being the eightieth day of the First Session, 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

MINISTER in charge of the HOME DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) Yes.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state when will the decision of Government on this matter be announced?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As soon as they come to a decision, it will be announced.

Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state when did Mr. Bal complete his 14 years' imprisonment?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice.

Statement on milk situation in Calcutta.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Hon'ble the Leader of the House will now make the promised statement on the milk situation in Calcutta?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Milk is selling now at 10 to 12 annas a seer, whereas in 1941 it used to sell at about 4 to 5 annas a seer. These quotations are, of course, in respect of pure milk. It will appear, therefore, that the price of milk has gone up now by about 100 per cent. compared to that prevailing in 1941. If lower prices are quoted for milk in 1941, it must have been of inferior quality, i.e., diluted with water.

The prices of other essential commodities, rice, dal, cloth, etc., have also gone up—in many cases by more than 200 per cent. For some commodities prices have gone up by 300 per cent. Compared, therefore, with the prices of other essential commodities, the rise in price of milk does not appear to have been very disproportionate. During the period of inflation as we are now passing through, it is inevitable that prices of commodities will have more or less equal rise for the very practical reason that a producer of milk has to pay higher prices not only for his own food, but also for the fodder of cattle and he has, therefore, good reason to expect an equally higher price for the milk, he produces.

As in the case of other commodities, higher price for milk is bound to reduce its consumption to a certain extent inasmuch as a consumer whose income is low cannot afford to buy the same quantity as he used to buy before, or any quantity of milk at all. It is true, therefore, that poorer section of people have been very hard hit by the high price of milk and many of them are perhaps going without milk altogether.

But the position is not the same with regard to comparatively well-to-do people who are still having their milk, although owing to its high price they have probably reduced their consumption as they have introduced economy in the use of other commodities, because of their high prices. The public institutions, such as hospitals, orphanages, etc., are having their required supply of milk without difficulty, altogether in many cases consumption has been reduced to economise expenditure. Inquiries were made in this respect, in the (i) Medical College Hospital, (ii) Campbell Hospital, (iii) the Refuge (Orphanage), and (iv) the Calcutta Muslim Orphanage, and the result of the enquiries are noted below:—

(i) Medical College Hospital.—Daily requirements in this hospital at present is 10 to 11 maunds as against about 18 maunds in normal times. The reduction is due to reservation of certain vacant seats for emergency and consequently decrease of patients by about 30 per cent. Co-operative Milk Societies Unions supply milk on contract basis at Rs. 19-8 per maund. No difficulty is experienced in getting the required supply. Extra supply to patients amounting to nearly 4 maunds has been stopped with a view to reducing expenditure.

(ii) Campbell Hospital.—Daily requirements at present is 10 to 11 maunds as against the same quantity in normal times. The only difference is that there is now a influx of about 200 destitutes for whom extra milk to the quantity of about 3 maunds is required. Apparently this quantity has been reduced in respect of other patients and this had to be done to keep down expenditure. Here also the Co-operative Milk Societies Unions supply the required quantity at Rs. 19-9 per maund. It was represented by the Co-operative Milk Union lately that its total production of milk has decreased by about 30 per cent. at present owing to cattle mortality.

(iii) The Refuge (Orphanage).—Daily requirement now is about 15 to 20 seers as against about 10 seers during normal times. A number of destitutes are at present accommodated here and the requirement has increased. Supply is received from ordinary Goalas at 8 annas a seer, but the milk is of inferior quality.

(iv) The Calcutta Muslim Orphanage.—Daily requirement is about 15 seers as against the same quantity in normal times. Sick inmates and also weak and emaciated boys are given milk here. Supply is received from Chitpore Sadagar Putti at 10 annas a seer. No difficulty has been experienced in getting the required supply.

It will appear, therefore, that there is an acute shortage of milk, but not scarcity and that those who can afford to pay are still having their supply up to the quantity required, although owing to high prices individual requirements have been reduced.

The shortage is largely due to increase in the population in Calcutta but there are other causes also which contributed to the shortage. The population in Calcutta has now increased by about 50 per cent., while export of milch cattle has been banned by other provinces. Owing to the famine and fodder difficulties as well as epidemics of cattle diseases which prevailed in 1943, there was considerable loss of milk-producing cattle.

Apparently, therefore, far from keeping pace with the demand, the supply of milk has fallen considerably short of it. This reduction in supply is also a contributory factor to the shooting up of the price of milk; but as already observed the rise has not been disproportionately higher than the rise in the prices of other food articles and consumers' goods.

With a view to increasing the supply of milk, Government are prepared to recommend transport facilities to persons wishing to bring milch cattle to Calcutta from other provinces. Requests for transport facilities for bringing any fodder from outside are being liberally recommended to the proper authorities. The supply of milk has hitherto been in the hands of private individuals and the milk-consuming people have to depend mostly on the milk produced by the poor agriculturists. The economic condition of the poor agriculturists who produce most of the milk is known to the honourable members. Even normally such people cannot keep themselves above starvation throughout the year and it cannot be reasonably expected that they would feed their cows properly for securing sufficient quantity of milk. No improvement in the milk position can be expected unless large scale dairies are established throughout the country. With a view to encourage the establishment of such dairies by private firms and individuals, Government has decided to bring two Breeding and Dairy Experts from New Zealand and running a few breeding farms and demonstration dairies under their supervision for showing to the people that bulls and cows can be appreciably improved and dairies can be profitably run on commercial basis. The experts are expected within a couple of months. It is hoped that with the establishment of dairies nearabout the headquarters of every district, the milk shortage problem of urban areas will be solved to a great extent.

The solution of the milk problem of rural areas is not, however, so easy. Milk is an item in the recipe of balanced diet; but 80 per cent. of rural people cannot at all afford it. The producers of milk themselves cannot afford milk even for their infants, and sick relations as they have to sell off all the milk produced for purchasing rice, cloth and other absolute necessities of life. The solution of the milk problem of rural areas is thus closely linked up with the solution of the problem of increasing the income and raising the standard of living of the mass. Government will, however, do all that they can for easing the situation by improving the breed of milch cows, encouraging the production of fodder crops and thereby increasing the supply of milk.

Government is also considering seriously if the use of milk for non-essential purposes should not be forbidden by the Defence of India Rules.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: May I put a supplementary question, Sir, arising out of the statement?

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is not usual; you can only ask for elucidation of any particular point.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: On a point of information arising out of the statement, which has just now been read out. There is no reference in the statement that one of the causes of the shortage of milk in Calcutta is the slaughter of milch cows and breeding bulls. So far as I remember, Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury tabled a resolution sometime ago asking the Government to stop the slaughter of milch cows in view of the shortage of milk, and we want to know whether this is one of the reasons for the shortage of milk in Calcutta.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, we have heard the statement, but have not received a copy of it. In that view how can we put supplementary questions?

Mr. PRESIDENT: You cannot ask any question on the statement, but you can ask for elucidation of any point that you want to be further elucidated.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: We have not received any copy of the statement and therefore are not in a position to put supplementary questions. We can only hear but at the same time cannot commit to memory the contents of such a long statement.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If the Hon'ble Minister wants to supply a copy of his statement, he may do so.

Mr. SULTĀNUDDIN AHMED: So far as I know, Sir, it is not the usual practice to ask supplementary questions in regard to a statement. If any honourable member wants elucidation on any point in particular, then he may do so.

Mr. PRESIDENT: In fact, I have already pointed out to Mr. Chakraverti that it is not the usual practice to put supplementary questions in such a case. If any honourable member desires to have any particular point cleared up, a question may be put by him for information.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, the Hon'ble Minister spoke for several minutes and it is not possible to hear the whole thing and commit it to memory.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But it is not the practice to circulate copies of statements made by the Hon'ble Ministers.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: It is a very unwholesome practice.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Many unwholesome practices have become the usual practice.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Government are not aware that there is any abnormal slaughter of milch cows.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: May I know if slaughter of milch cows is one of the reasons of the shortage of milk? If so, what steps are being taken to put a stop to that practice?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Ordinarily, milch cows are not slaughtered.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANOBISH: Difference has been made by the Hon'ble Minister between the words "serious shortage" and "scarcity". May I know what is the difference?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: When there is scarcity, one cannot get the commodity even for money; serious shortage means those who have got money can purchase, but those who have not cannot purchase it.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: The Hon'ble Minister has stated that the increase in the price of milk is but natural in the general inflationary condition prevailing now. There is abnormal increase in the prices of all commodities and the milk-sellers have also increased the price of milk. If this is correct, will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what steps Government propose to take to bring down the price? It is true that on account of general increase, the increase in the price of milk is to some extent justified; but the person hardest hit is the consumer, because if milk had been the only commodity of which the price had increased, then perhaps the consumers could economise in certain other directions and somehow or other managed with the particular item, the price of which has increased. But here, there has been an all-round increase. So, it may be an explanation that since the prices of all materials have increased, milkman are bound to increase the price of milk. The Hon'ble Minister has not told us what steps he proposed to take to bring down the prices of milk.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Well, Government are more interested in protecting the growers than the consumers and in this particular respect the growers are not charging anything more than the prices of other articles. In comparison with the percentage of increase of other articles, their price is lower. In their case, the increase is cent. per cent. but the prices of other articles have increased by 200 to 300 per cent. So it is not proper for Government to force down the prices. As I have stated, the policy of the Government is to increase the supply which will automatically bring down the price.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that Ordinances have been passed by the Provinces of Bihar, Madras, Bombay and U.P. prohibiting the slaughter of milch cattle of certain age in order that the supply of milk may be kept up and that a letter written to His Excellency the Governor requesting him to pass such an Ordinance was forwarded to the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Agriculture for necessary action? Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether he has considered the desirability of having such an Ordinance in Bengal in order that such slaughter may be stopped?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: That matter is under the consideration of Government.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, I would discourage supplementary questions.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, the Hon'ble Minister knows everything and it is not a new thing to the Hon'ble Minister.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: That subject is under the consideration of the Government.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: The Hon'ble Minister has said a moment ago that his policy was to protect the grower and not the consumer. But I may tell him that in this matter a distinction cannot be made between grower and consumer, because milk is a commodity which is required by every one including the growers.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, I do not think you can ask that question. If you have any question to ask out of the statement of the Hon'ble Minister, you can do so; but if you have any information to convey to him, you need not do so.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: All right, Sir. I have one further information to ask. Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state to what extent there has been draft upon the available milk supply of the province by the military and whether this is not one of the factors which has contributed to the scarcity of milk in the province?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Might be, I have not got any statistics.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Has the Hon'ble Minister any idea of the total quantity of milk taken by the military within the province?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: No, but I know that they are taking a very large quantity of milk.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister consider the advisability of supplying tinned milk to the British Officers and others just as the American Army are using tinned milk instead of allowing them to draw upon the milk supply of the province?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: They are already using tinned milk; it is only the patients and others of the same class that are using milk.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: The statement of the Hon'ble Minister is not correct. I have personal knowledge of the army stationed at Dacca, where they are using ordinary milk. I have seen military contractors are supplying canister loads of milk.

Statement regarding the order of the District Magistrate of Murshidabad on the Berhampore Municipality.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, the position regarding the Berhampore atta is as follows: Out of 13,000 maunds of atta which would be equivalent to 6,500 bags received at different times, seven samples were drawn by somebody without the knowledge of Government or the Civil Supplies Department. From what stocks they were drawn, whether they were drawn from bags or sacks which were obviously rotten is not known; but on the basis of the examination of these seven samples, the entire stock of the 13,000 maunds was condemned and the Chairman of the Municipality attempted to get hold of all the 13,000 maunds of atta from Government stocks. Now, Sir, the only order, the District Magistrate passed was that the Chairman of the Municipality was entitled to take into possession and destroy any atta in the retail shops, but the Chairman of the Municipality had no right to take all the 13,000 maunds of Government atta and destroy the lot at his own sweet will. Government, Sir, are going to grade the atta into three compartments. Grade one, which is usable for human consumption; second grade, which is not fit for human consumption, but fit for cattle and the third grade which cannot be used either by human beings or by cattle. It is not proposed, Sir, to infringe upon the rights of the local authorities to destroy the atta which is being sold in shops for retail consumption. The authorities are at perfect liberty to take possession of all such atta in accordance with the law.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANOBISH: Sir, I believe the Hon'ble Minister has not answered the point. The point was: whether the Collector of Berhampore had issued an order under the Defence of India Rules abrogating the powers of the Municipality under those relevant sections. He has entirely avoided that. He has said that the Municipality was not properly doing its duty and the District Magistrate was going to question the propriety of the Municipality. The two matters are entirely different. It is a very serious question whether under an order of the Defence of India Rules the District Magistrate is entitled to abrogate the Bengal Municipal Law.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, if the honourable member had listened to my statement properly, he would not have asked this question. I stated definitely that the District Magistrate only prevented the Municipality from getting hold of the 13,000 maunds of atta, but has not abrogated the powers of the Municipality. The words are to the following effect: "He has not actually abrogated the powers of the Municipality." He has only prevented the Chairman of the Municipality from getting hold of the 13,000 maunds of atta, which he was doing on the pretext that seven samples drawn from somewhere were found to be unfit for human consumption.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: The Hon'ble Minister always takes the members opposite to task for not being mindful and I think he has avoided the question whether any orders under the Defence of India Rules were or were not passed.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I have admitted that the Magistrate has passed such an order under the Defence of India Rules.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: What would be the effect of that order? The question is: whether such an order should or should not be passed. That is the question which I have raised in the adjournment motion. I therefore submit—

Mr. PRESIDENT: The point that was raised by Mr. Mahalanobish is this: that the powers given to the Municipality under the Bengal Municipal Act were abrogated by the orders passed by the District Magistrate under the Defence of India Rules. Did the orders of the District Magistrate apply only to the 13,000 maunds of atta and only that quantity?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: It certainly did not apply to the general powers vested in the Municipality; also it did not apply to all the 13,000 maunds of atta. It specifically stated that the Municipality was prohibited from taking hold of Government stock of atta in the possession of Government, but it could get hold of stocks which Government has sold or passed on to the retailers, and that if there was any stock of unwholesome atta with them, the Municipality could take possession of that atta and destroy it. Therefore, the powers of the Municipality had not been abrogated at all. The effect is that the Chairman of the Municipality should not imagine that merely because he has got some samples of bad atta, he should get hold of the entire stock of atta irrespective of the fact that the atta was wholesome or not. It has left to the Municipality full and complete authority to seize unwholesome atta, but they are prohibited from seizing Government stocks. The powers of the Municipality to seize unwholesome atta sold to private retailers has been preserved. That power has not been abrogated. This was not an abrogation of the powers of the Municipality.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: The Hon'ble Minister has not read out the text of the order passed by the District Magistrate. He has given its meaning or explanation of that order to the effect that this order refers to the 13,000 maunds of atta. My information is that the order is unqualified and by that order the Municipality was prevented from exercising their right to seize or destroy unwholesome food. The text of that order must be in possession of the Hon'ble Minister and I wish that this order must be placed before the House for consideration.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: May I say, Sir, that I have not given my view or interpretation of the order. I have not read out.

the telegram from the District Magistrate: but I have for the benefit of the House tried to explain it, because I find that some honourable members cannot follow a statement, if read out.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, I object to the Hon'ble Minister saying repeatedly that some honourable members cannot follow the statement read out by Hon'ble Ministers.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May we express our views, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Views on what?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Our views on the statement of the Hon'ble Minister.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is not the subject-matter of discussion today. If the adjournment motion is moved, then that question may arise. But now the adjournment motion is not before the House, and so I do not think that question arises today.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, after hearing the Hon'ble Minister, I am not satisfied with his statement and—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mahalanobish, I hope you do not expect the Chair to decide or give his view in anticipation of the adjournment motion. There is no adjournment motion before the House today.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: It was moved on that day and you fixed today for the statement.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If it is actually moved, then the question might be considered.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: I am sorry, Sir, I do not follow the procedure that is adopted in this House. When we move an adjournment motion, Sir, you always ask the views of the Government and then after hearing that Party you decide whether you should grant your consent or not. In this particular case, they wanted time to obtain information from the District Magistrate on the point, and today was fixed for their statement—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid, you are very much mistaken. In every case you will find that if it is deferred to a later date, the motion has to be moved anew.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: I cannot move it unless we hear the Hon'ble Minister.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But you have heard him.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: But after hearing him I am not satisfied, and so I want to move my motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You cannot do it today, because it is not on the agenda.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, when I actually tabled the motion, it was the duty of the office to put it on today's order paper.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I waived the urgency on that day, and I distinctly remember to have said that if the honourable member is not satisfied with the statement, then he might move it.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: That is exactly the position. Now, after the statement am I not entitled to move it? You said, Sir, that after hearing the Hon'ble Minister, you would decide whether you would give your consent or not. Now, as I am not satisfied with the statement, I propose to move my adjournment motion, provided you give your consent, and now, Sir, it is for you to decide whether you give your consent or not.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Unless you move it, how can I decide?

Adjournment Motion.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: I beg to move the adjournment motion of which I gave notice the other day.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Now arises the question of my consent. I have followed the Hon'ble Minister's statement and now I will read your adjournment motion to the House: It runs thus:—

That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation arising out of the recent order of the District Magistrate of Murshidabad purporting to be one under the Defence of India Rules, by which he seeks to abrogate the powers of the municipalities of the district under the Bengal Municipal Act, in the matter of seizure, destruction, and prevention of sale of unwholesome food articles belonging to the Executive or the Civil Supply Authorities even though such food articles are found to be unfit for consumption by man and the cattle and thereby seriously endangering public health.

So far as I could follow the Hon'ble Minister, I understand that the power of the municipalities had not been abrogated: the power remains intact. The order only refers to a particular quantity of atta in the hands of the Executive in the district. That is the position. I understand that the power of the municipalities under the Bengal Municipal Act to deal with unwholesome food remains intact, so that their power in the matter is not at all abrogated. The situation arising out of the order as mentioned in your adjournment motion has not arisen, in my opinion.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: May I make a submission, Sir? The Hon'ble Minister has not produced the text of the order complained of before the House and I may definitely say that the version that he has given is only his interpretation of the order of the District Magistrate which has been referred to in my motion. Then, Sir, even with regard to the statement made by the Hon'ble Minister that the District Magistrate has passed his order only with regard to 13,000 maunds of atta—there also, you will find that the order infringes the Bengal Municipal Act, because it is not for the District Magistrate to dictate to any municipality as to whether they should act under that particular provision of the law; and if they act at all, in what way they should act.

There is a provision in the Bengal Municipal Act, under which a person in whose possession any foodstuff alleged to be unfit for human consumption has been seized or destroyed—has got the right to go before a Magistrate. The Magistrate takes evidence and decides whether a particular food is wholesome or unwholesome and then an order is passed: so that no municipality can do it simply because it chooses to do so. The order has to be passed by the Magistrate in a court of law and the District Magistrate cannot by any arbitrary order abrogate the power of any municipality or dictate to it in any way. The law is there and the procedure is there. He must obey it and the violation of such a thing should be a matter of adjournment of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mahalanobish, the point that is now require to be decided is: whether you have got my consent to the moving of this motion.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, may I make one submission? May I point out by reference to the Bengal Municipal Act that even so far as the admission has been made by the Hon'ble Minister it has certainly abrogated the power of the municipality concerned, and therefore the motion is in order. If there has been any abrogation of the powers of any municipality under the Act, then the motion would be in order. That is my submission, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I have a look at the section—read it please.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: It is section 430 of the Bengal Municipal Act. It runs as follows:—

“If any Magistrate is satisfied on the application of the Commissioners Health Officer, Sanitary Inspector or any other officer authorised by the Commissioners in this behalf that there is just cause to believe that any diseased living thing intended for human food or any food or drug, which is unsound, unwholesome or unfit for human food or medicine is in the possession of any persons for the purpose of being sold or offered for exposed for sale within the limits of a municipality, for such consumption he may grant a warrant to enter upon the premises of such person, and to search for and seize such living thing, article of food or drug”.

Then, Sir, section 432 says:—

“When any authority direct in exercise of any powers conferred by this chapter, the destruction of any living thing, food or any drug, or the disposal of the same so as to prevent its being used as food or medicine, the same shall thereupon be deemed to be the property of the Commissioners”.

After the Commissioners had taken samples of the atta, they declare it unfit for human consumption. The Hon'ble Minister has stated that seven samples have been taken. After taking seven samples they were satisfied that it is unwholesome and unfit for human consumption—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have understood your point, but the difference is—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I have not finished. I ought to be allowed to finish my argument. Why are you in such a hurry, Sir?

Mr. PRESIDENT: We must finish the thing and must not continue ad nauseam.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I am not repeating it ad nauseam. My point is that although the municipality thinks that the atta is unfit for human consumption, Government seem to think that it is fit for human consumption and want to sell that to the public with the result that they will get all sorts of diseases.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have understood your point: you better resume your seat.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, allow me to resume my argument, I have not finished.....(interruptions).

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, will you kindly allow me—

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is for the President to give his consent or not. It is not the practice to allow such things to be discussed. I have heard two honourable members and I do not give my consent to it—

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, it is proper for you to hear different parties before you give your consent—

Mr. PRESIDENT: The point is that so far I have understood Mr. Suhrawardy, he said that the District Magistrate's telegram shows that this order only applies to a particular quantity of atta in the hands of certain dealers—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a point of information, Sir. Is the stock within the Berhampore Municipality? Government held the stock within the limit of the Berhampore Municipality(interruptions.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is not abrogating the powers of the Municipality as a whole—

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN and Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Yes, it is.....(interruptions from the Opposition Benches.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Mahalanobish's adjournment motion says "... he seeks to abrogate the powers of the municipalities of the district under the Bengal Municipal Act, in the matter of seizure, destruction and prevention of sale of unwholesome food articles that means as if all the powers have been abrogated. But, if it does not give rise to that situation—that the municipalities were divested of all powers, then the adjournment motion is out of place; and no such situation having arisen, I refuse consent.....(interruptions from the Opposition Benches.)

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: If you refuse your consent in this way without hearing us, our position becomes helpless—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I have got to come to a decision and I can't go on arguing—

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: You should certainly come to a decision; but you must hear us before you refuse consent. You are always inclined to help the other side—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order—

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, you are helping the other side—

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: You are the custodian of the honour of this House; but you are helping the other side. Who sent you there as custodian of this House (pointing to the Chair)? It is we, who sent you there.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order, Mr. Chakraverti, you should not be disrespectful to the Chair.

I am very sorry that you take up that attitude.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Certainly, we must.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have very carefully considered—

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: You have not.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Before you give your decision, don't you think you should look at the text of the order I complained of?

Mr. PRESIDENT: He read that.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: He never read that.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I want you to consider whether according to the section of the Bengal Municipal Act which I have quoted, the order of the District Magistrate does not offend that section. We are entitled to have a considered decision from you on that point.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is the section?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: You are now asking me what is the section, but when I was speaking you did not allow me to finish my speech. You ought to have considered the order of the District Magistrate with reference to the section I have quoted.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: You did not allow him to finish.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, I think the Opposition is taking too much advantage of your goodness.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. There is no question of goodness. I am always prepared to change my opinion, provided anybody can convince me that I am wrong.

Mr. SULTANUDDIN AHMED: Even after ruling is given?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Now, I have considered the matter. I have heard the Hon'ble Minister on the subject, I have heard Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee—

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: But you did not allow him to finish.

Mr. PRESIDENT: He did finish. I refuse my consent.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: When your decision infringes with our rights and privileges, certainly we have a right to protest. It is up to you to maintain the dignity of the Chair and it is for us to see that no action is taken by the Chair which takes away the right of the House and the action you have just now taken is one that takes away the right of the House. We on this side of the House protest against this decision of yours.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: May I request you once again to give your considered opinion on this point after referring to the section I have quoted and the order of the District Magistrate?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have given my decision and the matter should end now.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I want that you should give your ruling after seeing whether the order of the District Magistrate of Berhampore does not offend the section of the Bengal Municipal Act which I have quoted. You should see the text of the order first.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, ruling may be given on a point of order but here it is a question of giving consent. I think you understand that. I listened to the Hon'ble Minister and I listened to Mr. Nagendra Nath Mahalanobish and I have heard your views also. So after considering all these points I have refused my consent to the motion. There is an end of the matter.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: On a point of order, Sir. With regard to this matter, I cannot question your decision in the House but I can ask you to reconsider your decision at a later stage. You have in the past at times reconsidered your views. Even yesterday you disallowed a motion first but afterwards you were pleased to reconsider your decision and allow it.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Is that a point of order, Sir? He—

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Well, Sir, I would not brooke interruptions by Mr. Hamidul Huq Chowdhury. He is now liable to a charge of disorderly conduct. Sir, I shall first state what is the situation and then I will come to the point of order. Day before yesterday, Mr. Suhrawardy was allowed to do this. And what is permissible for Mr. Suhrawardy, is permissible for me also. Therefore, as I was saying, it is the prerogative of the President to guard the dignity of the House. Whenever he finds any decision of his is liable to misinterpretation or is capable of improvement, the President exercises his discretion in allowing the matter to be discussed thoroughly. This was the procedure in the past. In virtue of that right you were pleased to reconsider yesterday your decision regarding a subject which was at first held to be out of order. On that occasion also, some section of the House were not allowed to say what they had to say. If they had been allowed, perhaps that situation would not have arisen.

The point of order is this. While you were giving your opinion, you made one statement. There was a reference to the abrogation of the powers of the municipality. I thought you said that since all the powers of the municipality had not been abrogated, there could be no motion for adjournment. The point of order on which I want your decision is: is it your ruling that if all the powers were not abrogated, motion for adjournment would not be allowed? If one single section of any Act is violated, you will give your decision whether—

(Here there was much disorder and interruption as several members began to speak at a time.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. If you go on in this way, I shall have to adjourn the House.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I have not made any reference whatsoever to the Government order. I was asking about the point of order and it is for you to decide and give your judgment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have understood your point. I would not call it a point of order because there is no subject before the House. I shall give you my views.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: You cannot give your views on a matter which is not before the House.

(Here several members shouted at a time and again there was disorder in the House.)

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: On a point of order, Sir. Can any member of the House raise a problematical question which is not before the House?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I should say "No." That is why I said this is not a point of order. I am not disposed to allow any reference to the adjournment motion. As, however, the honourable member wants elucidation of certain facts, I feel that it would be courteous on my part to give him a reply. I hope he does not question my decision.

The point is that apart from the adjournment motion which has been disposed of, Mr. Humayun Kabir rose on a point of order and wanted my opinion on an abstract question.

Mr. SULTANUDDIN AHMED: How can he rise on a point of order You have already given your decision. The Opposition have challenged your decision. (Loud and continued interruptions from the Government Benches.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I hope the honourable members on both sides will try to restrain themselves. It is very very unpleasant for the Chair to try to explain any matter or any issue raised by the honourable members if I am disturbed in this way.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I never challenge your decision.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Thank you very much. Mr. Humayun Kabi wanted to know from the Chair whether, if any particular power of the Municipality is abrogated, it does not give rise to a situation on which an adjournment motion can be moved. Now, after hearing the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy it is quite clear that the powers of the municipality under the Municipal Act remain quite intact. The seizure of a particular quantity of atta was stopped by the orders of the District Magistrate under the Defence of India Rules, but the powers of the municipality remain intact with regard to other matters. Therefore, that is not a situation of sufficient urgency or importance as to justify an adjournment motion. That is my view. Now I will move on to other business that is before the House.

Point of Privilege.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, I rise on a point of privilege of the House—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mahalanobish, there are other things before the House today, and I am sure the House is very much interested in some of the Special Motions that are on the agenda for today.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, I have got a very important piece of news which I hope you will kindly permit me to deliver to the House, and I hope the honourable members will kindly listen to me. This morning, Sir, one of the newspapers in this city published a scurrilous attack both on the President of the Council and on the honourable member of this House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: What paper is that?

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Morning News.

I would ask you to take serious notice. So far as I know, of course it would be for you to consider what steps you can legally take, but I think that you have got ample powers to punish those people who try to bring into contempt the Hon'ble President and the honourable members of this House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I have a look at the paper?

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: I am reading it out.

"The Legislative Council is trying to ape the Assembly in tactics of delay and obstruction." This I think is a reflection on this House as a whole. "We are disappointed that the President has tried to accommodate these tacticians even at the risk of discommoding." I am afraid I could not understand the meaning of this particular word "discommoding" "The Muslim members who would like to spend the month of Ramzan in their home surroundings....." "It will however be admitted by the President that the deliberations in the Houses of Legislature cannot go on indefinitely and be carried to an inordinate length. Within limits and with a due sense of proportion the Upper House may revise but it should realise at the same time that public money and public patience are being exhausted in the manner in which the sting lies in the tail), the Speaker and the President seem to appreciate their duties and functions which lead to the inevitable conclusion that the procedure in our two Houses of the Legislature was intended to be a complete negation of parliamentary activity to the detriment of the majorities in both Houses".

Now, Sir, here you will find—

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I suggest one thing, Mr. Mahalanobish? I think it would be convenient for all of us if you handed over to me the copy of the newspaper and I would like to take time to consider the matter, and then, if necessary, the matter may be followed up—

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, we would like to know what action you actually take against this particular paper.

Mr. SULTANUDDIN AHMED: Let us not anticipate him.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Well, in such a matter it is not for the Chair to decide; the matter will be referred to the Privilege Committee and it is for that Committee to decide.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I have an adjournment motion, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, I have seen it; I may tell you that the appointment referred to in your motion has been made by His Excellency the Governor in his individual judgment.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: But, Sir, perhaps His Excellency does not know the relationship that exists between Mr. Afzal and Mr. Akbar. That is my point.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But that cannot be discussed here; the responsibility for this appointment does not lie with the Ministers. It is the Governor that has made this appointment.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: May be so, Sir, he has no doubt made that appointment on the advice of Ministers and, if so, the House could also in this connection come to know what, if any, advice they offered to His Excellency in the matter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I may again tell you, Mr. Mazumdar, that I have looked up all the points; but as the appointment has been made by His Excellency in his individual judgment, the matter cannot be discussed. I have considered your motion very carefully and I have given you my views.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Kindly let me move the motion and in the course of the discussion of the motion we shall be able to know what advice has been tendered to the Governor by the Minister concerned.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is not the object of your motion. You cannot discuss the matter without criticising the conduct of the Governor, which you cannot do under the Rules.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I think His Excellency the Governor did not know the relationship between the judge and the accused, so to say.

May I repeat that perhaps the Governor does not know of this relationship and on knowing this through the discussion in the House he may change his mind—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have said more than once, Mr. Mazumdar, that the appointment lies with the Governor personally and therefore the House cannot discuss the matter. I am sure that if you will yourself look up the Rules, you will be convinced that the matter cannot be discussed in this House.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: But, Sir, we are not going to discuss the conduct of the Governor in this respect.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I may repeat, Mr. Mazumdar, that the Tribunal has been appointed by the Governor himself in his individual judgment and the question cannot be discussed.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, in the High Court it very often happens that if an application is brought forward before any honourable judge and if he finds that he is related to any of the parties, he immediately transfers the case to others.

Mr. PRESIDENT: There is no analogy, I am afraid. I am sure that you have made this point sufficiently public and the authorities concerned will take note of it. It cannot be moved here.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: All right, Sir.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a matter of information, Sir. Are we going to sit up till 6 o'clock today?

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, I propose to sit up to 4-15 today. There is no Bill today, so let us adjourn earlier.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: All right, Sir. Before you take up the Special motions may I know—

Mr. NUR AHMED: May I have leave of the House for extension of the time for submitting the report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Court of Wards (Amendment) Bill?

Mr. PRESIDENT: When will the date expire?

Mr. NUR AHMED: The date will expire on the 30th September.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Leave has been asked by Mr. Nur Ahmed for extension of time for presentation of the report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Court of Wards (Amendment) Bill. Has he got the leave?

Voices: Yes.

Mr. NUR AHMED: I beg leave to move that the time for submission of the report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Court of Wards (Amendment) Bill be extended up to 31st December, 1944.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Leave has been asked for extension of time for submission of the report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Court of Wards (Amendment) Bill up to 31st December, 1944. Has he got the leave?

Voices: Yes.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On an important matter of information. The Hon'ble Sir Nazimuddin is now here, so may I mention that Mr. Kiran Sanker Roy, Leader of the Congress Party, and Mr. Santosh Kumar Basu, Leader of the Bengal Congress Parliamentary Party, have been prosecuted for holding a public meeting at the Sradhananda Park with an uncovered light. May I ascertain from the Hon'ble Chief Minister whether answer would be given to the short-notice question tabled on this subject by me or whether he is prepared to give us some information about it now?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I do not think any short-notice question is needed, because the question has now been put and I may say that I have called for a report in this matter. I cannot say anything more. It was brought to my notice two days ago and I have called for a report.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But the case is now pending and will be taken up for decision on the 26th August.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: There is still plenty of time.

Special Motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Now we will take up the special motion. Mr. Latafat Hossain was in possession of the House when we adjourned on the last occasion.

Mr. MESBAH UDDIN AHMED: He is not there.

Khan Sahib NURUL AMIN: Sir, with regard to the work of this House—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Not at present.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: May I speak on the special motion of Mr. Lalit Chandra Das?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Mr. President, Sir, this motion was moved by my honourable friend, Mr. Lalit Chandra Das, and very ably supported by my respected friend Khan Bahadur Abdul Momin, the Leader of the Coalition Party. (Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Not in support, but I gave my personal opinion.) The Leader of the Coalition Party in this House very ably supported the motion in his speech, although he now says that he only gave his opinion. I take his speech at its face value. I have no doubt that this House had an inkling of his mind on this question. What transpired on that day was that with the exception of one single member, there was all-round agreement on this question. Every one in this House desires that the question of appointment of military officers to important offices in Bengal should be considered seriously by the Provincial Government. Such appointments are likely to infringe the rights of the nationals of this province. Now, the statement which the Hon'ble Sir Nazimuddin read before the House tried to make the very best of a rather bad case. It proceeded on the assumption that recruitment of military officers was due to the fact that on account of the exigency of the war people were not now being normally recruited through the usual channels. The competitive examinations in the case of the Indian Civil Service, Indian Police and other Imperial Services had been suspended. The reasons for such suspension were that the ability and talent of the community should not be diverted from the channels of employment in the war. Only one channel was left to young men and that was to enter the war services, because this department required tremendous expansion. Therefore, recruitment to all other departments was suspended.

Now, the first question I would like him to answer is this. It is not a question of answering us here. Let him himself consider the matter and answer himself. I am convinced that even though we are speaking from opposite sides of the House, there is not really much difference in our points of view and in the general desire among the members of the different sections of the House. Every section wants that the youth of Bengal should find suitable avenues of employment and no unnecessary recruitment should be made from outside. Therefore, I would ask the Hon'ble Minister to consider it himself. It is not necessary that he should answer us here for the sake of the debate. I know the Hon'ble the Home Minister is an expert in making a point even when there is no point to make. He is always able to answer well. So, I will not take his speech at its face value in the Council.

Probably his first argument would be: that because young men are liable to be called for the war, therefore recruitment of young men in the other services should be stopped. I do not think that argument is sound. And in any case, it no longer holds good. All the young men are perhaps not needed in the army. Otherwise, how can the military release so many men for civil posts? There can be only two reasons for releasing them. Either these persons who are being released are rotten or they are no longer required in the military. If the latter be the case, then why not again resume the normal course of recruitment, namely, through examinations? As I have said, either they have been found to be unsuitable in the military line, or they are superfluous. Whichever of these alternatives be true, I do not understand why they should be sent to fill in civilian posts. In his statement, the Hon'ble Minister has said that there is a very great demand of persons in the military. Then, how are such persons released? The Hon'ble the Home Minister should satisfy himself whether we are not getting the rejections of the army. That would be a most undesirable state of affair. He will himself agree with me that we in Bengal, specially in view of the crisis through which we are passing today, need the very best material to run the administration.

It has been stated by the Hon'ble Minister that these men worked for some time in the military and now they are being re-drafted to civilian posts. There may be two reasons. Either they are unsuitable or there is superfluity. While in the army, they have acquired set habits there. They have developed ideas of discipline of a type which perhaps do not obtain in civilian posts. This is the first question I would ask of the Hon'ble the Home Minister.

The second question I would ask is this. Why does he not use the talent available in the province? I refer specially to the Bengal Junior Civil Service. The members of the Bengal Junior Civil Service are recruited as a result of an examination which is the same as that for the Bengal Civil Service. The difference between the Bengal Civil Service and the Bengal Junior Civil Service is often nominal. The same type of students sit for the examination. It is often only through accident that one gets into the senior service and the other gets into the junior service. They get more or less the same type of training. They do the same work. We have in this House two very distinguished members of the Bengal Junior Civil Service. They have proved that they are not in any way inferior to men of the Bengal Civil Service, if not men of the heaven-born service, viz., the Indian Civil Service. I think, Sir, you will bear me out when I say that there have also been cases of persons who have failed to compete in the Provincial Service and have subsequently got into the Indian Civil Service. Among my friends there are some who were not able to compete in the Provincial Service but are today distinguished members of the Indian Civil Service. Now, Sir, if that be the case, there is no difference so far as quality is concerned between Indian Civil Service, Bengal Civil Service or Bengal Junior Civil Service. I would ask the Leader of the House if he is prepared to accept the position that the members of the Bengal Junior Civil Service are inferior to the members of the Bengal Civil Service. I doubt very much whether the Leader of the House or the Leader of the Coalition Party will be willing to say that the members of the Indian Civil Service are always superior to the members of this or other Provincial Services.

That being the case, why instead of drafting from outside men who have no experience of this country, no experience of the custom and habits of the people and the conditions of this province, the permanent members of the Bengal Junior Civil Service should not be utilised? I have always held that even so far as the Indian Civil Service is concerned, there is a very strong ground for provincialising that service. Sir, I ask the Home Minister to consider these facts. There is very little difference between men of the different services in ability. There is unanimity of opinion on this question. With the exception of one single member, all others have agreed that such drafting of members of the military staff from outside into the civil executive of the province is undesirable. I ask whether the Bengal Junior Civil Service men could not be utilised for some of the work which these new men are expected to undertake.

Even today, there is a large number of qualified young men who want employment. It is true that as a result of war and the tremendous expansion of the Supply Department of the Government of India, the question of unemployment of our educated people has been partially solved. It is so but we all know that this is a purely temporary solution. The Supply Department of the Government of India and the Civil Supply Department of the Government of Bengal may or may not become permanent. It may be that they will become permanent; but at any rate there is no guarantee for that so far. The type of employment that is going to be offered to these military men is of a much better standard than that offered to our young men. If these posts to which the military people are now being brought were thrown open to the members of the Bengal Provincial Civil Service and the Bengal Junior Civil Service, and the posts thus vacated by the members of these two services were filled by men in lower services or by unemployed young men, that would be a practical way of not only solving the unemployment problem but it would also be of very great future value to the province. These young men would gain in administrative experience. The existing members of these two Provincial Services will also acquire greater administrative efficiency and experience on promotion. Therefore, when the war will be over, these experienced officers will be of use to the province. These are the considerations which I think the Hon'ble the Home Minister should bear in mind when he decides on this question.

There is one other aspect to which I would like to draw his attention. I have received reports,—I cannot vouch for its accuracy,—that out of the military officers that are going to be brought here, an overwhelming majority are Australians. In fact, I am told, it is not an Europeanization of the services but an Australianization of the services. These posts which are going to be offered to military people can easily be filled by our young men. Therefore, this influx is not only unnecessary but also undesirable. Moreover here is one risk. As you yourself know, if you wanted to land in Australia, I think you would be probably debarred on the ground of illiteracy. There is a rule in Australia that any one who wants to settle there, has to pass a test in literacy. The authorities will not let him know in which language the test would be held. Now, Sir, if you go there, you will probably be tested in Eskimo or in Finnish or some such languages. They will perhaps not risk German, French or Latin, for they might think that the Hon'ble President of the Bengal Legislative Council might be proficient in languages like German, French or Latin which are fairly well known. They sometimes select most obscure languages. I met a German Jewish Professor in 1930 who had been refused permission to land in Australia. He knew 12 languages. The particular language in which he had been asked to satisfy the authorities in literacy was one which is probably not known to more than few thousand people in the whole world.

I have nothing against particular members of the Australian Forces. What I would suggest is that if a large number of such persons are provided in the civil administration of our province, there is bound to be friction. The deprivation of the legitimate prospects of our young men who are already in the services and the deprivation of the prospects of those who are waiting for employment would cause discontent. Some of them may have secured temporary employment in the different temporary departments. Employment by Government in the posts meant for these military men would be much superior to the employments they have now. The point that I want to submit to the House is the great fund of ability that is available amongst the so-called subordinate gazetted services. In the Bengal Junior Civil Service, and among Sub-Registrars and subordinate gazetted officers there are many who could easily be used in order to recruit officers for the administration of the province.

Sir, I will conclude with a final word. If there is no longer any necessity for these young men to be drafted into the military, if the situation now is that a large number of officers can be released from military duty for employment in the civil administration, it is obvious that the suspension of the competitive examinations should no longer continue. If it is a fact that the men can now be re-drafted into the civil administration, then the normal channel for appointment should be revived. Instead of doing so, why should you employ and draw upon a particular kind of ability which may be very great in its own sphere but which from the very nature of the case and from the difference of employment in the two cases and from the difference in the type of activity to be pursued cannot be expected to do well in civil administration? This is also a point which the Hon'ble Minister ought to consider when he takes a final decision in the matter. Competitive examination should be immediately revived. The posts in the lower grades of the Bengal administration should be drawn upon in order to make promotions to higher posts. If we have the ability and resources available here, why should we go outside the province in order to bring in elements which might or might not prove satisfactory? There is also the question as to what will happen to these military officers after the period of emergency is over. Are they going to be in permanent employment in Bengal? Are we then going to have a large number of military officers who will be permanently drafted to the civil service of the province? If so, the Hon'ble Minister ought also to state that clearly before the House. I am sure many honourable members of this House, including my honourable friends to my left, I mean my friends of the European Party, will agree with me that it is desirable that so far as the civil administration is concerned, it should be carried out by civil officers. They will certainly not want military officers without previous training drafted into the civil administration. If they are going to be taken away at the end of the war, then all the training and all the experience which they will have acquired would be entirely lost. The expenses that Government will incur in order to train them up will be so much money wasted.

Sir, I have seen in the papers brief reference to some sort of psychological test to be used in order to find out which military officers are suitable for civil employment. I have something to do with psychology. It has been found that such psychological tests, intelligence tests and the devices upon which such tests are carried out are not at all satisfactory. In fact, it is common experience that some of the people who come off with flying colours out of these tests fare very badly in life.* In America, where such tests are greatly in vogue, I do not think either commercial or industrial firms or the civil administration pay much attention to the results of intelligence tests. I would like to ask my friends to my left whether they would have any faith in such a psychological test or in a certificate from a psychological institution when they recruit men for employment in their business houses. I am sure they depend more upon personal experience, on the past educational career and past social status and experience of the person who is employed and not on certificates on a set of tests. These psychological examinations are often tricks. Some can do the trick and others cannot. Honourable members of this House who have experience of such psychological tests know that these tests are not perfect. Some day they may become perfected and may be able to find which man is suitable for which kind of job. But as yet it is an incomplete and unsatisfactory method of recruitment.

If money is to be used for training these military officials to be absorbed into the civil administration, why cannot this money be used for training new men? These military officers are just as raw and inexperienced and as new to their job as the newest graduates passed a month ago. In view of these considerations, I hope the Hon'ble Home Minister will tell us that he has reconsidered the decision and that he agrees with the consensus of opinion in this House. I hope he will see that the civil administration is manned as far as possible by men of the province taken from civil avocations and stop the recruitment of military officials. Those who have already come can be redrafted to their permanent military posts.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN:
Sir, the circumstances which led to Bengal Government's agreeing—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, will not the Hon'ble Chief Minister speak on this subject?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN:
If he desires, he may speak. But I am prepared to speak on the subject. The circumstances which led to Bengal Governments' agreeing to 100 military officers being sent to Bengal for employment in civil posts were explained by the Hon'ble Chief Minister when he made a statement on the floor of the House on the 19th instant. I should like to give some more facts and figures to the honourable members of the House in order that they may appreciate properly the position in Bengal with regard to our requirement of officers and shortage: the Civil Supply, A.R.P., Revenue and other miscellaneous departments have already taken away 236 men of Indian Civil Service, Bengal Civil Service and Bengal Junior Civil Service. Those departments have again come up with fresh requisitions and 150 more men of Indian Civil Service, Bengal Civil Service and Bengal Junior Civil Service is 245 and 504 respectively (total being 749) 179 (temporary Bengal Junior Civil Service). The services have already been depleted of one-fourth of their members. If we were to supply the additional demand of another 150 from the normal strength of Bengal Civil Service and Bengal Junior Civil Service and fill up the vacancies caused thereby by taking in new hands, more than one-third of the members of the services would be either inexperienced raw graduates or men of inferior calibre recruited from subordinate services who could not possibly be expected to run the general administration efficiently. In Bengal Junior Civil Service we have already taken some 179 men of experience from different departments (Revenue, Debt Settlement, Co-operative, Jute Regulation and Registration) and including these recruits the total strength of Bengal Junior Civil Service is now 683. We had practically exhausted the number of men fit for promotion from the lower services. We cannot possibly get another 100 men of ability from the lower services and the only way of strengthening the Bengal Junior Civil Service and Bengal Civil Service left to us is by direct recruitment from outside. We have recruited some 60 lawyer-Magistrates and intend to recruit 18 more from Bar. We can hardly increase the number of such inexperienced Magistrates with due regard to efficiency of work. We are re-employing retired men of the service also and as many as 12 are now employed. We have also got loan of 38 officers from other provinces through the intervention of the Viceroy. But, Sir, the demand of the Civil Supply Department is inexhaustible and Major-General Wakely's Movement Directorate of Civil Supply consisting of 28 army officers are to be replaced by us by 1st October as they are wanted back by the army. There are other departments like Agriculture, Fisheries and Revenue which are sending requisitions for experienced officers from Provincial Services and we cannot refuse them if we are to meet the abnormal situation created by last year's famine and guard against future calamity. We have already tapped all the sources for supply of officers of ability and experience. We have depleted the Provincial Services and have replenished them to some extent, as already stated, by appointing men from lower ranks by bringing men from other provinces and by recruiting from the bar. We want some more responsible men of the calibre of the members of Indian Civil Service and Bengal Civil Service; and failing to secure them from the Indian Civil Service and Provincial Services of other provinces we have decided to take in military officers who we all know are well disciplined men with strong sense of duty. The military officers saved the situation when cholera and malaria in epidemic form was devastating the whole of rural Bengal. But for His Excellency the Viceroy's timely intervention more people would have died of diseases than of starvation. The military not only helped us in controlling diseases but also in supervising our transport arrangements for sending rice and medicines to deficit areas. From our experience of last year, we think the military in civil posts of responsibility will be far more efficient than inexperienced youths who were our only other alternative. The work in Civil Supply Department, particularly in the distribution and transport branches, is more or less akin to Military Commissariat work and as such military people would be very useful for such works. It is also not correct to hold that military officers cannot hold civil posts with credit. It is forgotten that even now in our I.C.S. cadre we have got quite a large number of men who were recruited after the last war on account of War Services and they can hardly be distinguished from our normal Indian Civil Service, unless one cares to go through the civil list. From India Government communiqué we can safely infer that the military officers who are coming will be of the type of the War I.C.S. who are now serving in the province and their proportion will be 50 per cent. Indians and 50 per cent. Europeans; and it is definitely stated in the Government of India press-note that the type of officers proposed to be selected will be exactly of the type who would have been competing for posts under the Civil Government. We need not, therefore, be unnecessarily apprehensive that they will not be the right type of people to hold civil posts.

We fully realise that men of ability and trust are not wanting in our Bengal Civil Service and Bengal Junior Civil Service. The strengthening of superior staff by bringing men from the Military Department is certainly not a reflection on their abilities. I yield to none in my appreciation of the merits of our own country men in the Bengal Civil Service. No one knows it better than I do that there are ablest men in our Provincial Services who could hold any responsible post under Government with credit. That fact is unquestionable. But the difficulty we are confronted with is: how and wherefrom we could get men of the standard of efficiency and experience of our B.C.S. and B.J.C.S. men for meeting the additional demand of officers. We could not create such men overnight. The problem could not possibly be solved by giving promotions, as suggested by men like Khan Bahadur Abdul Momin. We have already promoted some 179 men from lower services and thereby exhausted almost all the men fit for promotion. We are going to take the desperate step of taking in another 90 or more from lower services. Men of right calibre in the lower services are not unlimited. There is no possibility of getting more men of the right type from the lower services. We had to ask for loan from other provinces and we got some but not sufficient. How is the demand for another 150 men of experience and proved efficiency to be met? Raw graduates of the University or men from the Bar will not serve our purpose, as we could not all at once entrust them with responsible posts requiring practical experience. They will require 2 years to get accustomed to the arduous duties of an Executive Officer. Fortunately, we got the offer of 100 army men from the Central Government and we readily accepted the offer as we thought they would be certainly better than inexperienced graduates. These military officers, Sir, are being taken on a temporary basis for employment till the return of normal times. Their employment does not affect at all the prospect of our existing Bengal Civil Service men. As a matter of fact, we are employing far more number of B.C.S. men in posts reserved for Indian Civil Service (the present number of such officiating listed posts being 15 as against the normal of 4 only), and against all previous precedents we have decided to promote even B.J.C.S. men temporarily to Bengal Civil Service for meeting the demand of officers of higher rank, as a result of which at least some 50 men of Bengal Junior Civil Service are going to be promoted temporarily to Bengal Civil Service almost immediately.

Sir, at abnormal times when we are struggling for saving lives of millions of people we cannot afford to be too punctilious about interest of communities and province. We must take service of anybody and everybody (X, Y or Z) who is capable of rendering useful service. The larger interest of the country demands that for the time being we should rise above communal and provincial considerations. Only recently in connection with the posts in the Fisheries Department we decided that the communal ratio rules should, for the time being, be suspended and the posts should be filled up with the best men available on temporary basis, irrespective of caste or creed; and that later on communal ratio should be adjusted. The record of services rendered by the military last year in connection with combating disease and arranging transport for rushing in food to deficit areas, as we all know, Sir, was simply splendid. They are well disciplined men and have had experience of grappling with difficult situations with promptitude and courage. When we, therefore, were offered the services of the military, we thought the best interest of the country required that we should accept the offer with thanks, as they are likely to be more useful and resourceful than raw graduates or civilians from other provinces not used to grappling difficult situations. After what the military had done for us last year it would have been height of ingratitude not to accept the offer and the best interest of the country also demanded that the offer should be accepted. Let the people at large judge if it is not a reasonable and sound decision we have taken. After all, these military officers are coming on a purely temporary basis and will go back as soon as normal times return and they are coming to help us at a critical time. There is certainly no superfluity among army officers, as suggested by some, but the India Government thought that having stopped recruitment for the Indian Civil Service and Indian Police Service for facilitating military recruitment, it was only fair to help Bengal with army officers at this time of Bengal's need. In fact, we should be grateful to the Government of India for sparing their services at this war time when the needs of the army are supreme and have priority over all other needs. It is a pity, Sir, that the members in the Opposition should have thought fit to condemn the action taken by Government in the best interest of the province and its people.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, the Leader of the House has very fully dealt with all the points that have been raised and has given all the information. There is only one or two things I should like to mention. First of all, the members of the House are aware that we have already adopted the policy that after the war a certain number of posts will be reserved for those who have gone for war service and that is the object of the stoppage of recruitment of Indian Civil Service and Indian Police Service also. At first a certain percentage of the posts were asked to be kept reserved or to be temporarily filled up and later total stoppage of recruitment was decided upon. The object has always been to give encouragement to those young men who have gone out for war service and to serve as an incentive to join the armed forces. The Provincial Government have reserved a certain number of posts for them to be filled up after the war.

Now, in this case by taking the military officers we are merely doing what we have to do after the termination of the war. That is one aspect of the question which must be remembered by this House. After all, we are employing men who would have been employed after the termination of the war, because that is the policy that has been laid down. The second thing is, as has been explained already, that it is not a question merely of promotion from the bottom to the top. The demand for men is so great that practically every estimate that we make of the number of men required becomes within a month or two an under-estimate. Every day departments are expanding and the requirements of some of the departments are very large. Especially, take the case of the Civil Supplies Department and the Branch which is controlled by General Wakely, namely, the Movements

Department. This is a very expanding department, and, as you are aware, 10,000 boats are being made for the carriage of commodities and for these boats a large number of officers will be required. Here I would like to point out that the total number of men that are being recruited by General Wakely directly includes a large number of officers that we depute to that department. This recruitment and this assistance from the military is not going to stop all further direct recruitments. Direct recruitments are continuing already before your eyes. You will find in the papers advertisements for direct recruitment of men for the Fishery Department and also for the Agricultural Income-tax Department for which a large number of men are being taken. But in spite of direct recruitments a certain number of trained officers are necessary, and Government have also got to supply trained men from the Bengal Civil Service and also from the Bengal Junior Civil Service. Even from the existing officers, apart from those that have been mentioned by the Leader of the House, a large number of men are there who are getting a certain amount of acting allowance for doing very responsible work. Over and above this, a large number of them is already holding either what is called listed posts or similar other posts. Actually, 8 persons are holding such appointments at the present time. In this way, men both from Bengal Civil Service and Bengal Junior Civil Service are being given posts of responsibility and trust with higher emoluments. We are going to promote 50 or more officers from the Bengal Junior Civil Service to the Provincial Civil Service and we are also going to take a certain number of men from other services into the Provincial Civil Service.

In spite of all this, there will still be room for employment of these military officers, most of whom will be on a temporary basis during the duration of the war. They may be recalled at any time for military requirements and will then have to go back. Some of them are going to replace persons whom they have left temporarily and will go back permanently to the army and some as I have said are going to the Movements Department of Civil Supply. (Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: How many Australians are coming?) I am glad that Mr. Das has put this question. We know nothing of this, Sir, about who are coming. But of course Mr. Humayun Kabir has better information and has told us that a good number of them are Australians. But so far as I am aware I have no information at all as to who they are and what they are. (Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: How many are expected?) Altogether one hundred military officers, I think, out of whom at least 20 or 30 will go to the Civil Supply Department on the Movements section. So far as I know they have not arrived yet. But their number will never be more than 50/50. They will perhaps be British, Canadians, Australians or others represented in the ratio of 50 per cent. I do not think I have anything more to add. We are in very great need of officers and we cannot weaken the general administration which is the sheet-anchor of all governments or allow the standard of administration altogether to go down. Everything depends upon general administration and unless Government can get hold of officers of experience and some training in district work to officiate as Subdivisional Officers or Central Officers general administration cannot go on. This is the basis on which the whole thing hangs and therefore it is necessary to see that general administration is not weakened and that is the reason why there has been placed a limit to promotion from existing services to the new appointments that are now being made. I may say that the importation of these officers does not in any way hamper the natural promotion or rise of any officer in the services. They will all continue to be employed as before. It is necessary to have these military officers only because new appointments have got to be made and new posts have got to be created. They will fill not all the new posts, but a portion of them only.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: May I offer a word by way of personal explanation? With regard to the recruitment of Australians I made it quite clear in my speech that I was asking for information from the Hon'ble Minister and he has given the information. I did not make any definite assertion and throughout my speech it was in the form of a query as to whether it was a fact that among the military officers there would be a good number of Australians.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I say a few words in reply? It has been emphasised by the Hon'ble the Home Minister that the running of the general administration should be kept at a high point of efficiency and that for this purpose men of experience are absolutely necessary. These, Sir, are the two grounds on which he bases his claim for importing army officers for civilian posts.

I am astounded at the way in which he made his basic proposition. If the basic proposition is to be made that the general run of the administration must be kept at the highest point of efficiency, he should run miles away from the military. Military is not the source from which recruitment should be made for general administration. As the Gregory Committee pointed out, the qualities necessary for the purpose of general administration consist not only of the highest standard of education but also of the knowledge of the people of the area and the knowledge of the trade. These are the three important points urged by the Gregory Committee. Does the Hon'ble Home Minister expect that these officers coming from other provinces or from beyond India are likely to know the condition of the people or of the trend of the requirements of the situation? I wonder why our men should go on default. It has been pointed out by the Leader of the House that the B.C.S. and B.J.C.S. officers are numbering hundreds and only a very small fraction of these two services were absorbed in the new posts. I say, why not recruit at the base in large numbers by competitive examination? Then take away from the senior posts both from Bengal Civil Service and Bengal Junior Civil Service as many as you want not only for the Civil Supplies Department, but also for the Agriculture, Fisheries and other departments, as the situation arises. If it is now urged that the highest men have been taken away in other departments—men from Bengal Civil Service and Bengal Junior Civil Service—I say why not recruit from the Bar? In the Bar there are men who can adorn any position to which they may be placed. That is also an inexhaustible source. If proper men are to be found, they could be found in abundance from the Bar. Government are anxious that the general run of the administration should be improved and that by persons with efficiency. If that is so, I think members of the Bar should be taken in instead of importing army officials from abroad. Another point referred to by the Leader of the House is that the army did very good work in combating diseases and in meeting the needs of the famine-stricken people and destitutes and taking aftercare of them. Well, I do not disagree. But is it as a prize that these people should be taken in and merged in the civil administration? Did the army officials do that service with that end in view? What they did on that occasion they did as army officials. Here what are you doing? You are importing certain military officials to be employed in the civil administration and you say that these appointments are only temporary. But what are the qualifications of these officers for the efficient work of the general administration? If it is at all a point of gratitude in recruiting these military officials, that is a point to which we do not answer in the way in which it is done. I say Government erred grievously in recruiting the military officers for civil employ.

I never knew that there was such a superfluity of officers in the army. It has been stated by the Hon'ble Minister that many educated men entered military service in the hope that after the war they would fill civilian posts and that certain proportion of the available posts has been kept in reserve to be filled in from among them after the war. If you now find that some persons who entered the military service are now eager to enter the civil service, why not hold a competitive examination? Let them sit with other boys in that examination and if they come out successful, let them get the posts. You cannot do a thing now which you intended to do after the war.

The war is not finishing soon. It will take years to finish the war. I submit, Sir, that these persons do not answer all the qualifications laid down for the holding of a civilian post.

With these few words, I move that my motion be accepted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that this Council disapproves of the action of the Bengal Government applying to the Central Government for services of a large number of army officers to hold civilian posts in this province to the detriment of the claims of the Bengalees to those posts intensifying at the same time the problem of unemployment in Bengal.

(The motion was negatived.)

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, on behalf of Government I would ask for an adjournment of the House owing to the Ramzan till the 4th October, 1944.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I would suggest 5th October.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, we have got a Hindu festival on the 14th October. So, we may adjourn till then.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That will be too long.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, if we can adjourn for Ramzan for one month, can we not adjourn for 7 or 8 days more? Because there is Kali Puja and then Bhatri Dwitiya. So, I think you will consider all these holidays. When so much has been done for the Muhammadan members, something should be done for the Hindu members also.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: There is no question of your being afraid. You should adjourn the House till—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House stands adjourned till 2-15 p.m. on Thursday, the 5th October, 1944.

Adjournment.

Oath.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Any gentleman desiring to take the Oath under section 67 of the Government of India Act, 1935, will kindly come forward to do so.

Mr. J. S. Graham took the oath of office.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Now, I will take up the questions.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Arrest of Mr. Niharendu Datta Mazumdar.

257. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state if the attention of the Government has been drawn to the judgment of the Hon'ble Judges of the Calcutta High Court, delivered on the 14th July, 1943, in the case of In re Niharendu Mazumdar vs. A. E. Porter and others over the arrest of Mr. Niharendu Datta Mazumdar, M.L.A., in the corridor of the Calcutta High Court on the 3rd June, 1943, in which the Hon'ble the Chief Justice found that one Mr. Syed Hasan, Inspector of Police, showed discourtesy to Mr. Datta Mazumdar and applied premature and possibly unnecessary force in effecting his arrest and the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Khundkar, referring to the conduct of the said Mr. Syed Hasan, held inter alia that there was no justification for such conduct, and that it was unwarrantable and merited the disapproval of the Court and called for an expression of the severest displeasure?

(b) If so, have any steps been taken against the said Police Officer for such improper conduct? If so, what are they?

(c) If not, what steps do Government propose to take against him to show its disapproval and condemnation of such conduct and to prevent the recurrence of such misbehaviour by the Police Officers generally?

MINISTER in charge of the HOME DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) Yes.

(b) The comments of the Hon'ble Judges of the High Court were brought to the notice of the officer concerned for his future guidance.

(c) Does not arise.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether Mr. Syed Hasan, Inspector of Police, was punished for his misbehaviour towards Mr. Niharendu Datta Mazumdar in accordance with the judgment of the High Court?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I refer the honourable member to my answer (b).

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether this Inspector, Mr. Syed Hasan, has been promoted to the rank of an Assistant Commissioner of Police?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Yes.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state if this promotion is his reward for his behaviour towards Mr. Datta Majumdar?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No, but for his consistent good work.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Or is it in defiance of the remarks of the Honourable Judges of the High Court that he has been promoted to be an Assistant Commissioner of Police?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have nothing further to add,

Mr. NAGENDRANATH MAHALANOBISH: With reference to (b), may I enquire if Government considered whether in view of the severe condemnation of the conduct of this Inspector as expressed in the judgments of the Judges of the High Court the officer in question deserved any punishment from the Government?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have nothing further to add to what I have already said.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state if the promotion awarded to Syed Hasan was after considering the remarks of the Honourable Judges of the High Court in the case referred to?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The promotion was awarded on the entire period of the service of the officer.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Was not this promotion a mark of disrespect to the Honourable Judges of the High Court for their remarks on the conduct of this Inspector?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I submit that it is a matter of opinion.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether he considers that the remarks of the High Court Judges is a mere matter of opinion, or whether their remarks should not have been considered in awarding promotions, etc., to the officer concerned?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I refer the honourable member to my reply in (b).

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, the reply in (b) does not answer my question at all.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have nothing further to add.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether such a promotion will not encourage other police officers to be discourteous to the prisoners?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No, in view of the action mentioned in answer (b).

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to explain what does he mean by the expression "consistent good conduct"?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I would refer the honourable member to the English dictionary.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, this is not the answer to my reply. It is an impertinent reply—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Put your question.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to explain the expression "consistent good conduct" expressed by him with reference to his reply to Mr. Moholanabish's supplementary question?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I do not think this is a class room: nor am I a teacher of English.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether the conduct of Mr. Syed Hasan towards Datta Mazumdar was not inconsistent with his consistent good conduct?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: It is a matter of opinion.

(Mr. President then asked Mr. K. C. Roy Choudhury to call the number of his question—No. 258.)

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, I withdraw my question.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point of order, Sir. Can any honourable member withdraw his question?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, if the House gives him permission to withdraw.

Mr. LATAFAT HOSSAIN: Sir, I should like to put the question standing in the name of Mr. Roy Chowdhury—

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSSAIN: Sir, the Hon'ble Minister is away on tour; so the question may be held over.

Mr. PRESIDENT: In the absence of the honourable member who tables a question some other member can put it. Now that the Hon'ble Minister is away, the question should stand over.

Prisoners detained under Defence of India Rules in the Alipore Central Jail.

259. Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if it is a fact that two prisoners under the Defence of India Rules now detained at the Alipore Central Jail were asked to work on oil-press, otherwise known as ghancee, in the third week of July, 1944;
- (b) if it is a fact that on their refusal, they were beaten under the order of the Jail authorities;
- (c) if it is a fact that other security prisoners went on hunger strike as a protest against such action; and
- (d) whether the Hon'ble Minister proposes to enquire into the matter and take such steps as may be necessary to prevent a recurrence of such incidents?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (a) I understand that a convict under the Defence of India Rules was put to work in the oil mills but he refused to work.

(b) No. He was only punished with two days' penal diet for refusing to work.

(c) Security prisoners, in sympathy with the convict in question, abstained from taking their meals for two days.

(d) I have enquired into the matter but do not consider any further action necessary.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if persons convicted under the Defence of India Rules are liable to work the ghanis or oil presses in the jail?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: All persons who are convicted are subject to the Jail Code rules.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is it not a fact that the persons convicted of political offences have in the past been exempted from this type of work in the jail?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: It is entirely the discretion of the Superintendent of the Jail.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if it has not been the custom heretofore to exempt the political prisoners from this class of work?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have nothing further to add.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether since his assumption of office this practice has been introduced or whether it was before the practice?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have been the Minister in charge of the Home Department for the last seven years and I have seen this practice since then.

Lawyer-Magistrates.

260. Rai Sahib JOGENDRA NATH RAY: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state if the Government of Bengal have recently been appointing a number of Magistrates from amongst the practising lawyers?

(b) If so, will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state—

(i) the numbers respectively of Muhammadans and Hindus of different castes so far appointed, giving separate figures, district by district;

(ii) the names, academic qualifications and experiences (of each) of those appointed as Magistrates;

(iii) the names of persons recommended by the Public Service Commission of Bengal for such post; and

(iv) how the final selections have been made?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (a) Yes.

(b)(i) and (ii) A statement is laid on the Table.

(iii) Government do not consider that it will be in the public interest to furnish this information.

(iv) On the recommendation of the Public Service Commission.

Statement referred to in reply to question No. 260.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: With reference to answer (b) (iii), namely, that "Government do not consider that it will be in the public interest to furnish this information," does the Hon'ble Minister mean that it has not been possible in all cases to respect the recommendation of the Public Service Commission?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No, Sir; the recommendation of the Public Service Commission, as far as my information goes, has been scrupulously followed.

Security prisoners Babu Prithwish Chandra Ghosh and others.

261. Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

- (a) whether Babu Prithwish Chandra Ghosh, Babu Ranjit Ghosh and Babu Ajit Ghosh are being detained as security prisoners in the Faridpur District Jail;
- (b) whether all of them are sons of Babu Srish Chandra Ghosh, an old muktear of Madaripur, who has to maintain a large family;
- (c) whether it is a fact that Babu Prithwish Chandra Ghosh has a wife and children but no allowance has been allowed to them and a small allowance of Rs.30 per month allowed to him alone, is insufficient for his own personal needs;
- (d) whether the other two, Ranjit Babu and Ajit Babu, have been granted any allowances; if not, why not;
- (e) whether Babu Prithwish Chandra Ghosh applied for increase of his allowance and for allowances to his family and his old father; if so, whether that application has been disposed of and whether his prayer has been acceded to;
- (f) whether the Government propose to examine these cases with a view to seeing if they can be released now or at early date having regard to the present position in the country; if not, whether the Government propose to increase the allowance to Prithwish Babu and grant allowances to his family and reasonable allowance to Ranjit Babu and Ajit Babu; and
- (g) whether the Government propose to consider the position of their father, Babu Srish Chandra Ghosh, who has been deprived of the financial help that these three sons could have rendered in these difficult times and grant him some allowances to maintain his family?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (a) Yes; but Babu Ajit Ghosh is not a security prisoner but a convict.

(b) Yes.

(c) and (e) The prisoner was not granted any personal allowance. A family allowance of Rs.30 per month had been granted to the wife of the prisoner. This allowance has since been enhanced to Rs.50 per month with effect from the 1st April, 1944, out of which Rs.20 per month is being given to the father of the prisoner.

(d) Babu Ajit Ghosh is a convict and no family allowance is granted in the case of convicts. Babu Ranjit Ghosh has not applied for any allowance.

(f) The cases of Babu Prithwish Ghosh and Babu Ranjit Ghosh have since been reviewed: further detention has been considered necessary in their cases.

(g) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the answers to parts (c) and (e) above.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: May I enquire whether Government are prepared to consider the case of Ranjit Ghosh for an

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No, not without an application.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Is it necessary for a detainee to apply for an allowance; or is it the practice that Government consider each case and allow such allowance as they think fit?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The detainee is to make an application.

River Dakatia.

262. Maulvi MUHAMMAD HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Communications and Works Department be pleased to state whether any representation has been received by the Government from the people of Raipura thana of Noakhali, for the excavation of the river Dakatia? If so, what action has been taken by the Government?

The Hon'ble Mr. BARADA PRASANNA PAIN: Yes. The scheme was examined and it was reported that a new mouth of the Dakatia Khal had been opened by the pressure of upland water and it was expected that the river would improve. Some improvement of the drainage condition has been noticed in the locality but the scheme requires further examination after the current flood season, in order to arrive at a final conclusion. On receipt of the report on the proposed further examination, the question of executing the scheme will be considered in November next.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The remaining two questions should stand over.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, as regards question No. 263, as the report has already been submitted, may I enquire from the Hon'ble the Home Minister when it will be published?

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question is to be answered by the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad and he is not present to-day.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: But the Hon'ble the Home Minister can answer the question.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That has never been the practice.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: The purpose of the answer is already out of date. The Home Minister is here; he may give the information whether the report will be published soon.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If the Hon'ble the Home Minister wants to answer the question, I have no objection.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I think the right course would be to put a short-notice question.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, are the questions finished?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a matter of privilege, Sir—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Just a minute, Mr. Mazumdar.

Application from a member praying for condonation of absence.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Chair has received the following from Mr. Humayun Reza Chowdhury, M.L.C.:—

“Sir,

Most respectfully I beg to state that owing to serious troubles, I had been advised by my attending physician not to move from the bed and consequently I could not attend the meetings of the Chamber from the 13th March, 1944, during the current session of the Council; and as I am still suffering very badly, I have not also been able to attend any meeting of the Council during the current session up till now. I, therefore, solicit the favour of your kindly moving the matter in the Chamber as required under section 68(4) of the Government of India Act, 1935, to grant me leave of absence for the period referred to above.

Yours faithfully,

HUMAYUN REZA CHOWDHURY, M.L.C.”

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the Council is that permission be granted to Mr. Humayun Reza Chowdhury for absence for a period of more than sixty days (from the 13th March, 1944).

(The motion was agreed to.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Haridas Mazumdar.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, it was in response to a motion here that the Hon'ble the Home Minister promised an enquiry into the affairs of the Howrah Municipality and as a matter of fact an Enquiry Commission was appointed. The officers of the Commission, I understand, have submitted their report on the 16th September. It is a very urgent matter of public importance, and this House has the privilege and right to know the decisions of the Committee of Enquiry. No Press-Note has been issued by Government as yet. Our information is that the Committee of Enquiry found against the Hon'ble Minister—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, how is the privilege of the House affected, I do not understand. Every matter that comes up before the House cannot be construed as a question of privilege unless it affects the privilege of the House.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I am prepared to show how it affects the rights and privileges of the House—

Adjournment Motions.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, I cannot go on arguing with you on this question. Now, let me take up the adjournment motions. The first adjournment motion in the list stands in the name of Mr. Mangtaram Jaipuria. Now, Mr. Jaipuria, may I just enquire of you one point? What do you mean by “the 29th rationing week”? When did it start and when did it end?

Mr. MANGTURAM JAIPURIA (made his observations in Hindi).

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Jaipuria, You do not follow what I ask you. I asked when did the “29th rationing week” start and when did it end?

Mr. MANGTURAM JAIPURIA (spoke in Hindi).

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am told that it started on the 14th of August and ended on the 19th.

Mr. MANGTURAM JAIPURIA (spoke in Hindi).

Mr. PRESIDENT: In any case, I do not consider this matter to be of urgent public importance and of recent occurrence. So I am afraid, I cannot give my consent to it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The time-limit is over by several weeks.

Mr. MUNGTURAM JAIPURIA (spoke in Hindi.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: You do not understand me, Jaipuria Sahib. What I say is that there is no urgency now, and therefore the adjournment motion cannot be admitted.

The next motion stands in the name of Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. Mr. Das, do you want to move this motion?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Yes, certainly.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am prepared to give my consent to this. Has Mr. Das got the leave of the House?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: I object, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: In that case, those who are in favour of the leave being granted will kindly rise in their places.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: But, Sir, no one has objected yet.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, the Chief Whip has made an objection.

(Hon'ble members rose in their places.)

As less than 13 members have stood up, leave is refused.

The next motion also stands in the name of Mr. Das, and I give my consent to this motion. Has Mr. Das the leave of the House?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: I object, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will members who are in favour of leave being granted kindly rise in their places?

(Honourable members did so.)

Leave is refused, as less than 13 members have stood up.

Now I come to the adjournment motion standing in the name of Mr. Humayun Kabir. Do you propose to move your motion, Mr. Kabir?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Yes, Sir. My point is that very great inconvenience was caused —

Mr. PRESIDENT: I give my consent to it. Has Mr. Kabir got the leave of the House?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Am I not allowed to make a brief statement on the subject of my motion?

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is not necessary, as I have given my consent to the motion.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Then, it is all right.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Is there any objection?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: Yes, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Those members who are in favour of the leave being granted will kindly rise in their places.

(Honourable members did so.)

As more than 13 members have stood up, leave is granted to Mr. Kabir to move his motion, and I fix 5 o'clock on Monday the 9th October, for discussion of this motion.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: On a point of enquiry, Sir. Is it your intention that in future the sittings of this House will continue beyond 4-15?

p.m.? When we separated last, we were sitting for longer hours in view of the imminence of the Ramzan to try and see if we could finish the Bill within the month of August. Since the urgency has lapsed, there does not seem to be any reason why our sittings should continue beyond 4-15 p.m. Therefore, Sir, it would probably be proper if you would consult the different parties in the House as to whether they would sit beyond 4-15 p.m., though it is certainly within the power of the Chair to fix longer hours.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I will explain my difficulty to you, Mr. Kabir. There are several adjournment motions and I have examined them in a preliminary way. I am inclined to think that most of them are admissible. Now, if most of them are admissible we cannot go on discussing adjournment motions day after day without transacting our normal business. We have also to proceed with the business of the House and at the same time allow the honourable members of the Opposition to move their adjournment motions. In that view of the matter, we have got to sit for longer hours.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: May I make a few remarks, Sir? Dissatisfaction is expressed by moving for the adjournment of the business of the House. Now, the statement which you have made just now would allow the business to proceed in the normal course and also allow the Opposition to have the doubtful luxury of indulging in speeches on every adjournment motion till the time for the meeting is over—

I was going to submit that that would defeat the very purpose of the adjournment motion and it would go against the spirit and the actual language of the rules relating to adjournment motions. The business of the House finishes at 4-15 and if thereafter you take up the motions for adjournment, then the question does not arise—

Mr. PRESIDENT: The business of the House is not adjourned unless the adjournment motion is carried (Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee rose to speak). Excuse me Mr. Mukherjee—so the Chair is prepared to give every facility to the Opposition to move adjournment motions; but before an adjournment motion is carried, mere tabling of the adjournment motion and its discussion cannot be interpreted as decision of the House to suspend the ordinary business of the House altogether.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: But, Sir, it must be at the beginning of the meeting after the questions. How can there be adjournment of the House if it is taken up at the end?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I point out, Sir, that as it is a matter of urgent public importance, why not start discussion on it at once—why not allow the discussion now? It is fair because it is a matter of urgent public importance. Why should you defer it till Monday?

Mr. PRESIDENT: It has never been the practice to fix discussion on an adjournment motion on the same day. It is admitted, because that clashes with the sitting hours of the other House. So, generally it is the practice to have the discussion on the following day; and in this case the next available day for discussion of the adjournment motion is Monday.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: But it must be taken up at the beginning. It would be a violation of the rules to allow extra time and then to start discussion of adjournment motions—

Mr. PRESIDENT: You should, I think, realise also that as there are so many adjournment motions, you cannot go on discussing only adjournment motions—

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: But, Sir, this situation is the creation of the Government—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: But the point is that it should be taken up at first, after the questions.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You want to begin with adjournment motion?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Yes, Sir.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: We are not prepared to sit beyond 4-15 p.m.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: That is, of course, a matter for the President to decide.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I have the opinion of the Government on this matter?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As far as Government are concerned, I would like to point out two things. Firstly, it has been the practice in the Legislature in Bengal—here and in another place—to take up adjournment motions at the end (Voices from the Opposition benches: No, no). As far as the other place is concerned, it is always fixed at a later hour and after discussion of the adjournment motion, the House is always adjourned. As far as the Council is concerned, because the House sits only for two hours, the practice is to fix it on a day next to the day on which it has been admitted.

And on that day by convention, though against the rules, questions are not answered, so that complete two hours might be given to the discussion of the adjournment motion, as required under the rules. That has always been the practice; even after the adjournment motion was defeated, no business was transacted on that day. The reason is obvious. An adjournment motion is moved to censure Government—(Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: To express dissatisfaction). I am quite prepared to take that suggestion that an adjournment motion is tabled either to censure Government or to express dissatisfaction with the action of Government. If the motion is carried, it is a censure on Government and if it is not carried then, though technically it is not a censure on Government, but it might be said that the motion was brought to censure Government. Therefore, it makes no difference whatsoever whether the adjournment motion is discussed in the earlier part or in the latter part of the day's sitting. The main object is to express dissatisfaction or to censure Government.

Now, Sir, you have very rightly pointed out that Government have placed before the House an important Taxation Bill, a Bill on which the future financial position of the province is very much dependent. Therefore, it is essential that this Bill should be enacted into law as early as possible. I would appeal to the members of the Opposition to take serious note of the fact that at the present moment this province is faced with a huge deficit, which can only be met by means of financial assistance from the Government of India and which in its turn is to a large extent dependent on the efforts that Bengal makes towards meeting that deficit (Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: And not by curtailing expenditure). Therefore, I hope that the members of the Opposition would look at this question from the point of view of the ultimate good of the province: it is not a question of the position of the present Government, but it is a question of the future of the province as a whole, since it has been made clear by the Government of India that their financial assistance will be dependent on the effort that Bengal makes to meet some part of the expenditure that has been incurred by this Government. That being so, the members would realise that this Bill should be pushed through without any further delay. I would appeal to the Leader of the Opposition and to the members of the Opposition to try to get this Bill through as quickly as possible, so that it could be given effect to within this financial year. I hope the honourable members would agree to the sitting hours suggested by the Hon'ble the President, which is, in my opinion, most reasonable and meets the Government's needs and at the same time gives opportunity to the members of the Opposition to discuss by means of adjournment motions the various points that will be given notice of. I hope the sitting hours, as suggested by the Hon'ble President, will be accepted by the Opposition.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I find that in the House of Commons the admissibility of a motion for adjournment is considered at 3-45 p.m. and at 7-30 p.m., the motion is actually taken up. In the meantime, other business is transacted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, may I refer to the rules in this connection? So far as this House is concerned, I think, we are to be guided by the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules and our powers are limited by the rules prescribed therein. Now, Sir, the Hon'ble the Home Minister in his speech just now made an appeal to the House which in a way resembles the request made by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister when the Agricultural Income-tax Bill was taken up for consideration, namely, that the Bill be passed without a single comma being changed. I submit, Sir, that you should not countenance such a procedure which would be a serious encroachment on the privileges of the members of the House. The rules have been framed, Sir, for the purpose of discussing various matters of urgent public importance. Part VII of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules deals with the motions for adjournment. Sir, even when Bills far more important than the present one were being considered by the House, adjournment motions had also been considered. In rule 98, you will find that "no motion for an adjournment of the business of the Council for the purpose of discussing a definite matter of urgent public importance shall be admissible if it relates to a matter which is not primarily the concern of the Provincial Government". Now, we do move adjournment motions which do concern the Provincial Government primarily and adjournment motions are only allowed if they are of urgent public importance which means that they are to be considered as soon as possible. Now, if you consider rule 102, you will find that "the debate on a motion to discuss a matter of urgent public importance, if not earlier concluded....." That means that the debate is to begin at a time when sufficient time for consideration of the motion may be available and is to go on for 2 hours from the very beginning of the sitting of the House after the questions. Therefore, Sir, if you have to follow rule 102, in the light of the other rules from 97 to 101, and if the rule is to be construed strictly in the light of what has been said in the previous rules, I submit that adjournment motions have to be considered before any other business of the House is taken up. We do not know the rules of the House of Commons. We are not guided by those rules. So far as this House is concerned, we should be guided by the rules framed by this House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will you kindly enlighten me on one point? Rule 102 lays down that the debate on a motion to discuss a matter of urgent public importance, if not earlier concluded, shall automatically terminate at the end of two hours' debate, and thereafter no question can be put. That is, two hours must be allotted for discussion of an adjournment motion.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, it is thus: The House begins at 2-15 p.m., and you propose to fix 5 p.m., for the discussion of this adjournment motion, so that we must proceed with the motion for two hours, that is, till 7 o'clock. You want to detain us till 7 o'clock giving greater importance to the Bill itself than this business. That is my point—you are making us sit for 5 hours. If you fix Monday, however, I have no objection.

Mr. PRESIDENT: My proposal is that we start at 5 p.m., with the adjournment motion and then go on up to 7 p.m.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I submit that it would then mean that the business of the House would commence at 2-15 p.m., we are to remain here till 7 p.m.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, the business of the House continues. We meet at 2-15 p.m. It is open to the Chair to take up either an adjournment motion first and allow two hours' debate on it and when the adjournment motion concludes to carry on the business of the House for a considerable period of time, or take up adjournment motions afterwards, at the end, and give full two hours to it.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: If I understood you aright, Sir, when you fixed the commencement of the meeting of the House at 2-15 before we parted in August, you fixed only 3 hours, that is, from 2-15 p.m. to 5-15 p.m. Then you stated that if you had occasion to change the time of the House afterwards, you would consider if it caused any inconvenience to the House. If you will kindly look up the proceedings of that day, Sir, you will find that you increased the two hours' sitting to three hours. You have not yet increased the three hours to 5 hours and I hope you will not do so without considering the question of convenience to the different parties. Therefore, as I say, the time as it at present stands, is from 2-15 to 5-15 p.m., and you are to fix the time for the adjournment motion with reference to that time and not with reference to any new time that you may fix later on, after, of course, considering our objections, if any.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The position, Mr. Mukherjee, is this: Certainly the Chair has got to look to the convenience of the members of the House; but at the same time I hope you will agree with me that the Chair must see that the business of the House proceeds. Now, there are as many as 21 adjournment motions, and assuming for the sake of argument—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: That is not your concern, Sir. Adjournment motions have been tabled no doubt, but they are based on certain grievances.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, I am not discussing the merits of the adjournment motions.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: And they are, all of them, very urgent.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Well, most of them have some importance in my opinion and I am inclined to admit most of them on a preliminary examination. There are as many as 21 adjournment motions, and supposing that 15, or 14 or at least 12 of them are admitted and the House gives its leave for discussion thereof, they will take about a month. That will mean that we shall be discussing only adjournment motions for nearly a month; we have only 4 days in the week for discussion of official business and I do not think that it is the desire of the House that adjournment motions should be taken up on non-official days, nor do I think that it is the desire of the House—unless there is an expression of opinion to the contrary—that the House should sit on a Saturday for consideration of adjournment motions. So all the four days in the week may be exhausted in considering adjournment motions and even then it will require nearly a month to dispose of the list of the adjournment motions that have been tabled, without transacting any other business. That will give rise to a difficult position.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: How so, Sir? Who is to blame for the state of affairs that gives rise to adjournment motions? You should carry on the business of the House as usual, as you do, Sir, conscientiously and in the best interest of the House and of all concerned. You need not look at these things—whether the discussion of the adjournment motions will take two months or three months or even one month. This sort of calculation is not for you, Sir, to make.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order, Mr. Mazumdar. I cannot forget that the main business of the House is the Bill—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Yes, no doubt, from the point of view of the Ministerialist party; but these adjournment motions are also very important—

Mr. PRESIDENT: No doubt, they are very important. They are going to be taken up and they are not going to be shut out. So we have got to extend the sitting hours in view of the fact that there are so many adjournment motions.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, our position is that it should be taken up at the beginning at 2-15.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, two points have been made out by Mr. Mukherjee. He pointed out that under rule 102, the debate might proceed up to two hours. This is the absolute maximum. But it may be finished in lesser hours. In view of that, he suggests that the debate should be brought to a close after two hours in order to permit the business of the House to be adjourned, if the motion is carried and if it is not carried, the business will proceed thereafter. If that was not the intention of the rule, then it would not have been framed for the purpose for which it has been actually framed. I would point out that you yourself have been good enough to refer to the House of Commons where questions are taken at 3-45 and adjournment motions are taken up at 7 or 7-30. But the House of Commons sits till 11 or even later at night. Then again, the Hon'ble Home Minister in his speech a short while ago detailed the procedure followed till now. But so far as the other House is concerned, if he looks up he will find that in most cases adjournment motions are taken up after some business of the House is gone through and not after the business of the House fixed for the day was completed—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Your suggestion then is that instead of starting the discussion at 5 or 5-30, we should start at 3 or after the questions and discuss the motion for two hours and then proceed with the business of the House? May I have the views of the Government?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Personally, I think that this would not be advisable unless and until the Opposition agree to sit up to 7-30 p.m.—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Obviously they will have to.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Then we are prepared to agree to the suggestion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think now the matter is simplified. Both sides agree on this point, namely, that we take up the adjournment motion on Monday, immediately after the questions, continue the discussion for two hours and then continue with the business of the House—

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: After the adjournment motion, if there is any time left—

Mr. PRESIDENT: What do you mean by "if there is any time left"?

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: We mean, Sir, that we are not prepared to sit for more than two hours. The question of urgency for the passage of the Bill about which the Hon'ble Home Minister spoke has been waived by yourself and the Government by adjourning the House for more than one and a half month before the Puja Recess. And now the Hon'ble Home Minister comes up before the House with the suggestion that it is a very urgent matter, the province will be in danger and the province will not get the Government of India's subvention if we do not sit till late hours.

This is a wrong thing for him to suggest. We feel that we should sit as we used to sit normally.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point of information, Sir. May I enquire whether this Bill will have retrospective effect? If this Bill has a retrospective effect, then it may be passed at any time, there is no hurry.

Mr. PRESIDENT: We are not going into that question now. It is then generally agreed that after the questions we take up the adjournment motions.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: As regards time, we shall decide it afterwards.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, we cannot decide that afterwards.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: We shall not sit beyond the normal hours. We are not prepared to sit after the normal hours.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is for the Chair to decide how long the House will sit—

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: But the Chair must look to the convenience of all the members and not only look to the interests of one particular section of the House, who come and sleep and vote—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I hope the honourable members would appreciate the difficulties of the Chair. You cannot discuss the adjournment motions only and not proceed with the main business before the House. That is a proposal to which I cannot certainly subscribe. Then I take it that we take up the adjournment motions after the questions are over and discuss the adjournment motions for 2 hours (Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: If the discussion is finished in less than two hours?) It is so much the better—

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, we want to be clear on one point. Do you want to have any fixed hour for the meeting of this House or do you want to fix a certain period after the adjournment motion is discussed, for the regular business of the House. I think hours should be fixed and may I suggest—

Mr. PRESIDENT: What I suggest is this: we sit at 2 o'clock instead of at 2-15 p.m., and after giving one hour for questions, we start at 3 o'clock to discuss adjournment motions up to 5 o'clock; then from 5 p.m. we sit till 8 o'clock for the consideration of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Sir, may I say a few words on a point which requires clarification?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I am in possession of the House. Formerly, we used to sit from 2-15 to 4-15, which you extended first up to 5 p.m., and later on up to 6 p.m. So far we submitted, but there is a limit to human endurance. Beyond 6 o'clock, it will be unpleasant and therefore here also I think that I shall be expressing practically the opinion of every member of this House, (Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: No)—of course, barring the non-speaking members, who come and go and take no part in the debate,—that it will be impossible to sit beyond 6 o'clock. To sit from 2-15 to 5 was a concession and then you extended the time up to 6 p.m.; but beyond that it is impossible to sit.

There is another point. There will not be adjournment motions every day. You have no doubt admitted that. It is impossible. Adjournment motions are not actually discussed every day. If you go through the list of adjournment motions, you will find that one motion will cover many. For example, as you have taken up my first adjournment motion, my next adjournment motion will not arise, because whatever I have got to say in the next adjournment motion will also have been covered in course of the discussion on the one which you have admitted. Therefore, I think that out of 21 adjournment motions, only six or seven will remain and out of these six or seven again, there is the question of luck and the consent of the President; and then even after this formidable obstacle there is the question of objection of the Government Party. To add to this, Sir, from your own experience you know that very often the debate do not go for two hours. Therefore, we agree to sit till 5-30. From 2-15 to 5-30 is a sufficient concession to Government. We have already given one hour more than the normal time, and, as was pointed out by my friend Khan Sahib Wahiduzzaman, Government have partially by their own behaviour waived the urgency of the Bill. In view of this, it is not fair for Government to say today that unless and until we sit for longer hours the Ganges will be on fire; and as for your suggestion that we should sit till 8-30 p.m.; that was, I, believe, only to test the temper of the House and therefore I make no comment on that.

Mr. PRESIDENT: So far I have been able to form an idea from the list of adjournment motions, there will be an adjournment motion almost every day. Out of 21 adjournment motions, very few will be inadmissible. Four days in a week will be taken up for adjournment motions and therefore, unless we sit longer hours, we shall not be able to dispose of the business of the House. There is no getting away from the fact that we should continue to sit longer hours.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, may I make a suggestion? My suggestion is that we can easily sit at 10 o'clock now-a-days. The advocates of the High Court are now free. So we can all sit at 10 o'clock with a lunch hour in between, and I believe there are rich members who will stand us lunches.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If you come to an amicable arrangement, I shall consider that point. Now, as regards the adjournment motion of Mr. Humayun Kabir, which has been admitted, I decide that just after the questions we shall take up the adjournment motion on Monday and continue for two hours if necessary and after that we shall take up the business of the House and continue till—

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Sir, may I make a suggestion? The practical result of longer sittings would be that some members would remain during the discussion of the adjournment motion, but during the discussion of the important Bill the House will be found empty. It will not improve the situation in the least. Of course, the time has to be prolonged but it should not go beyond 5-30 p.m. In my opinion, the adjournment motions will not take full two hours in every case. I have looked at the time taken by most of the adjournment motions and I find that they do not usually require full two hours. I would, therefore propose that for the present, we go on till 5-30 p.m., and see the result, and if thereafter it appears that more time is necessary, then we could do so.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, may I make a practical suggestion by way of improvement on the views of the Leader of the Opposition? Let the adjournment motions continue for two hours; after the adjournment motions, the Bill will be discussed. If the adjournment motion is finished in one and half hours then further two hours may be available for the Bill; that is $3\frac{1}{2}$ hours for the whole day. According to the time-table suggested by the Chair, it was 2 to 3 p.m.—questions; 3 to 5 p.m.—adjournment motions; and thereafter from 5 to 8 p.m.—the Bill. Whether the questions will take one hour or half an hour is a matter that is in the hands of the members of the Opposition; it is for them to prolong or shorten the period. Then as regards adjournment motions, we can take two hours or one hour, that also is in the hands of the members. After that, we should sit for $2\frac{1}{2}$ hours for the Bill, and that I think is quite fair to the Opposition. The question whether the House should have to sit up to 5-30 or 7-30 p.m., is in the hands of the Opposition.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I may submit that what has been stated by the Hon'ble the Chief Minister infringes very gravely the rights of the members of the House and is in a way almost a veiled threat. I am surprised that so careful and usually a cool member as the Honourable the Home Member should have been carried away suddenly and made a statement which he does not generally make.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I suggest one thing? Let me adjourn the House, for say half an hour and discuss the matter in my chamber. Honourable members are welcome. I would request Government members also to come. We shall discuss the matter till we come to a settlement.

Mr. SULTANUDDIN AHMED: Why half an hour? I think ten minutes will be enough for the purpose.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think ten minutes will be sufficient. Will honourable members kindly come to my chamber?

The House now stands adjourned for half an hour.

(The House was then adjourned for half an hour.)

(After adjournment.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: We have considered the question regarding the sitting of the House, and I am glad to announce that it has been unanimously agreed that on days on which there will be adjournment motions, we start at 2 o'clock and sit up to 6 o'clock and on days on which there will be no adjournment motions, start at 2 p.m. and sit up to 4-15 p.m. This we shall try next week and if this is found unsatisfactory, we shall have to extend the hours—that was the unanimous agreement.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: May I rise on a point of information regarding a very urgent matter? I will take only two minutes. This matter concerns the Hon'ble the Leader of the House and the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies. The rate at which wheat is supplied is Rs. 14 per maund—

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I suggest Mr. Mukherjee, that you mention this matter tomorrow. Let us now take up the Bill—

Point of privilege.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, before you take up the Bill, may I rise on a point of privilege of the House? And this is a matter which is fairly important and therefore I would draw the attention of the House to it. In doing so I would refer to the Government of India Act, as well as to the past procedure in our House. I submit, Sir, that the present Government have in two ways very grossly gone against the privilege of the House—I would refer to the promulgation of the two Ordinances during the period when this House was having a recess. The matter to which I would draw attention is: that we find that on the 8th

September, the Bengal Destitutes Persons Repatriation and Relief Ordinance, 1944, has been promulgated by the Governor as also the Bengal Alienation of Agricultural Land Ordinance, 1944, during a period when you adjourned this House.

Now, Sir, under the Government of India Act Ordinances can be promulgated only under two sections. There is section 88, which says "If at any time when the Legislature of a province is not in session, the Governor is satisfied that circumstances exist which render it necessary for him to take immediate action, he may promulgate such Ordinances as the circumstances appear to him to require". Then a particular condition——

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, may I just interrupt you for a moment? I quite realise the importance of the issues you have raised. As a matter of fact, it also struck me when I saw the Ordinances in the paper. I was also wondering how Government could promulgate them when this House was in session. However, I find from the list of adjournment motions that there is one adjournment motion standing in the name of Mr. Nagendra Nath Moholanobish on this very subject. I think instead of spending more time on this question now, I shall be inclined to give preference to this adjournment motion after your adjournment motion is disposed of and in that connection the entire issue may be considered.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I have only one more submission to make. I have no objection to postpone the discussion of this matter now. I suggest that this matter may be considered as a Privilege Motion and not as an adjournment motion. Because it may not be possible to discuss all the issues in two hours. I myself shall have certain information to ask for and draw your attention and the attention of Government to a similar breach which was once before committed in this House. The then President permitted me to draw the attention of Government to that matter, but I find the Government have not profited by their past experience. At that time there was no Government in Bengal, and there was an interregnum of 4 or 5 days——

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, I shall consider your suggestion.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: All right, Sir.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: How this matter can be discussed as a privilege motion?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, may I show how this matter should be discussed as a Privilege Motion? The Hon'ble the Finance Minister who is an economic and constitutional expert is ignorant of the fact that an Ordinance interferes with the rights of the members of the Legislature to legislate. This is certainly a question of privilege. Such a matter has already been discussed previously and you, Sir, very rightly admitted that this struck your attention also and you yourself desire that this matter should be discussed. However, the Hon'ble the Finance Minister will have plenty of opportunities at the time of discussion of this matter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I will request both Government and honourable members not to take more time over this matter. I propose to consider it myself before I express any opinion. In any case, it is a very important issue, no doubt.

Now, let us take up the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Before we take up the Bill, I propose to give my ruling with regard to the point of order raised by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das in connection with amendment No. 145, on clause 6 of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill. I hold that the Chair has the inherent right to correct a slip of tongue. The Chair has no right to revise the decision of the House, but any bona fide mistake that might occur as it actually occurred in announcing the decision of the House regarding the amendment in question, that mistake can be rectified by the Chair immediately.

The correction made by me was, therefore, in order. As, however, there may be a feeling amongst some sections of the Opposition that they did not get a chance of dividing the House on the question, the Chair would be prepared to put it de novo, if that be the desire of the House.

I do not propose to put that amendment to vote today. I propose to give both sides full opportunities to marshal their strength.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, may I enquire whether you are going to revise your decision with regard to that point of order?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am giving my ruling on it.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: That was a point of order on your decision. Can there be any point of order on your decision? In that case, in future we will raise points of order on your decision and ask you to revise your decision.

Mr. PRESIDENT: In any case, I consider that there is an end of the matter.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: One thing is to be noticed in this connection. We have not yet known the full text of the judgment of the Appeal Court in this matter—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am not concerned with the judgment of the Appeal Court. This House is immune from the jurisdiction of the Civil Court. In any case, I am not going to discuss that question.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Now, the point is this that—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, will you please resume your seat? When the Chair is on his legs there should be no interruption. I propose to put the amendment to vote on Monday after the question hour, if so desired by the Opposition.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Our question was: whether you are immune from the decision of the High Court. The High Court has opined that this House is not immune—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. That question cannot be considered. The matter has been sufficiently considered elsewhere and disposed of. Now let us take up the Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, the High Court has held that your powers are limited within the rules. If you want to gag discussion in this way, we are willing to submit. But I would request you to look up the proceedings of that day and see where we ended when the discussion was closed—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. What are you trying to make out?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I am trying to make out that on the day when this matter was discussed—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Which matter?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: The matter about which we are now discussing.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, the matter is now closed. The matter has been sufficiently considered.

Mr. Moholanabish was in possession of the House and so I call upon him to continue.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: On the last occasion I was submitting to the House that this clause 49 was intended to give relief to residents of different countries, provided they have got a provision of law under which the residents of Bengal may have similar relief in those countries or in those states and that I submit is the basis of this provision. Now, what will be urged by the supporters of this clause seems to me to be that while you will find in the law of the United Kingdom or in the law of many other dominions a similar provision in their Income-tax Law and therefore you are entitled to get similar benefit or similar relief in those countries and justice requires that you should be prepared yourself to give that relief to others. That I think is or would be the gist of the argument in support of this clause; but my submission to this House will be that it is not really the provision in the law which would entitle us to get any benefit out of a similar clause. It is not the question of a provision in the law. It is a question of actual benefit—whether the residents of Bengal can have any actual benefit from other countries having a similar provision in law with regard to their income-tax provisions in the law. My submission will be: that as a matter of fact we, the residents of Bengal or sons of Bengal, really do not expect to have any relief from other countries, from the United Kingdom, or the Dominion. Now this provision in section 49 of the Bill before the House and similar provisions in section 27, I believe of the English Income-tax Act, for relief against double taxation is based, if I remember aright on an international agreement between the United Kingdom, India and several other countries, under which all those countries have agreed to make concessions of this nature and therefore we find a similar provision in the Indian Income-tax Act. But what I would ask honourable members of this House to consider is: whether Bengal would be really benefited by a similar provision in her law owing to the existence of a similar provision in the law of other countries. We are only entitled to tax the agricultural income derived from land within this province and whatever be the benefit that may be derived by residents of India with regard to their income from outside India and under reciprocal provisions of relief in the law of other countries—that would not be available to us, residents of Bengal. Bengal will not be in a position to touch any other income by virtue of this Act, any income other than income derived from agricultural land. That being the position in fact, my submission to the House is that provision of this nature inserted in our Act will not give us any right to reciprocal relief and therefore we should not try by a provision of this nature to grant relief to those who come from thousands of miles away to Bengal, hold land in Bengal, make profits out of it and then carry them home, simply because they say that they are being doubly taxed. I would submit that it would then really be a case of unjust remission of tax. I am afraid, I may be understood to be raising a racial cry; but we know that our friends to my left will be the persons most benefited by this provision or are expected to be so benefited. I do not grudge them this at all, nor do I grudge it because they hold the balance of power in this House. Therefore, people might suspect that the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Bill is making a provision of this nature in order to placate them, so that this particular section of the House through their friends and relations might get some benefit or might be relieved from the burden of taxation to a certain extent. I am not really looking at this provision from that point of view. I find that the Hon'ble Finance Minister has himself made out that this Bill is aimed at raising funds for Bengal, which is now in an extremely difficult financial position. Therefore, my submission will be that you should not make any provision whatsoever in this enactment which would reduce your income. If you consider that the actual benefit that that section of the assesseees or would-be assesseees would get, would be very small, then why ask for it? If you take the rate of the United Kingdom—the rate of income-tax as at present prevailing—there would be very little relief to be granted by Bengal. But that rate might be changed at any time and if they get any relief that would go out of the pocket of Bengal. There seems absolutely no necessity, neither from the point of view of the amount of taxation from which they will get relief or from the position that they would be in, if the present rates in Bengal and other countries continue. My point of view will be that the amount involved so far as individual assesseees are concerned will be very small. It may be argued that if the amount is small, why do you grudge? My point is that that is not the reason why Bengal should give up the tax in favour of those gentlemen who can well afford to pay. I, therefore, submit that this provision is entirely unnecessary and the provision of reciprocity or theory of reciprocity is not apparently applicable as it will not give any real relief to Bengal. At any rate, the gentlemen concerned ought not to grudge the tax which they are to pay for earning a lot from Bengal.

My next point is: you should not leave the entire matter to the executive as has been proposed to be done in this clause. You do not say anything definitely, you merely say that this would be done by certain notification in the official gazette: that means, you leave the matter and the details to be legislated by the Executive—and legislation by Executive has been always taken exception to by the highest authority. There is no safeguard, no discussion by the members of the Legislature and it is really done by the vote of one or two or three persons legislating in the name of rules and regulation. In section 49 of the Indian Income-tax Act, you will find that there is a definite provision made so far as the United Kingdom is concerned. But so far as other places are concerned, section 49A provides that that may be done by notification. In this clause I find that the principles of sections 49 and 49A of the Indian Income-tax Act have been taken together and here in this clause, you want everything to be settled by Government notification. I submit, Sir, that if really the Hon'ble Minister wanted to give some relief to those assesseees who would be doubly taxed, he should come with a concrete proposal so that every one of us would be in a position to consider and discuss the matter thoroughly on its merits; but to have a blank cheque authorising himself or his department to legislate in this matter, I submit, is objectionable.

Lastly, I would appeal to the Hon'ble the Finance Minister and to the members on my left to give up this provision under clause 49 and they may—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, it is 4-15 p.m., already.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House stands adjourned till 2 p.m., tomorrow.

First Session, 1944—No. 82.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Friday, the 6th October, 1944, at 2 p.m. being the eighty-second day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

Communication from the Government intimating action taken by them on Motion under rule 112 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules adopted by the Council.

The SECRETARY (Dr. S. K. D. Gupta): Sir, the following communication has been received from the Government intimating the action taken by them on the motion, referred to in the said communication, which was moved in and adopted by the Council on the 3rd March, 1944, under rule 112 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules:—

FROM

Assistant Secretary to the Government of Bengal,

TO

THE SECRETARY, BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL
DEPARTMENT.

No. 983-A.R., dated Calcutta, the 2nd September, 1944.

SUBJECT:—Shipping of cereals and other food grains and milk powder to Bengal.

SIR,

I am directed to refer to your memorandum No. 368/1L.C., dated the 14th March, 1944, forwarding therewith a copy of an address presented to the Governor under rule 112 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules on the above subject, and to state that a copy of the address together with a copy of the Council proceedings relating to the motion has been sent to the Government of India for necessary action.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

Sd. S. C. CHATTERJI,

Assistant Secretary to the Government of Bengal,

Motions under rule 112 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Haridas Mazumdar.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I beg to move that an address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal—

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: On a point of order, Sir. Under the provisions of the Standing Orders, an adjournment motion has to be moved at the earliest available opportunity; but if Mr. Mazumdar does not move his motion but keeps it for another day, then his motion will not be moved at the first available opportunity. Therefore, I think that his adjournment motion should be moved today.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I quite agree with you as regards the interpretation of the rules. But it has been the invariable practice of this House not to consider the admissibility of another adjournment motion till one already admitted is disposed of. According to the strict interpretation of the rules you are correct; but I would not like to depart from the usual practice today, as in that case the Opposition might be taken by surprise.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I beg to move: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to direct that immediate steps be taken by the Government of Bengal to translate and publish all the proceedings of this House in Bengali in order that the same may be made available to the public in general, and the electors of the Legislature of Bengal in particular, more than ninety-five per cent. of whom cannot read and write English.

This motion is self-explanatory. Therefore, I move it without any speech.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to direct that immediate steps be taken by the Government of Bengal to translate and publish all the proceedings of the House in Bengali in order that the same may be made available to the public in general, and the electors of the Legislature of Bengal in particular, more than ninety-five per cent. of whom cannot read and write English.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: I beg to support the motion.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I beg to move: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to summon the Bengal Legislative Assembly without delay for the purpose of consideration and passing of the following Bills which were piloted through the Bengal Legislative Council as urgent and emergency measures, namely:—

- (1) The Bengal Embankment (Amendment) Bill, 1944, as passed by the Bengal Legislative Council,
- (2) The Coroners and Criminal Procedure (Bengal Amendment) Bill, 1944, as passed by the Bengal Legislative Council,

- (4) The Bengal Destitute Persons (Repatriation and Relief) Bill, 1944, as passed by the Bengal Legislative Council.

I move the motion without any speech, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to summon the Bengal Legislative Assembly without delay for the purpose of consideration and passing of the following Bills which were piloted through the Bengal Legislative Council as urgent and emergency measures, namely:—

- (1) The Bengal Embankment (Amendment) Bill, 1944, as passed by the Bengal Legislative Council,

- (2) The Coroners and Criminal Procedure (Bengal Amendment) Bill, 1944, as passed by the Bengal Legislative Council,

- (4) The Bengal Destitute Persons (Repatriation and Relief) Bill, 1944, as passed by the Bengal Legislative Council.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to support the motion which has been moved by Mr. Mazumdar. The motion deals with a very important and urgent matter and cannot brook any delay.

With these words, I support the motion.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I beg to move: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to direct the Government of Bengal to take immediate steps so that the direction contained in the judgment of the Special Bench of the Hon'ble High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal in connection with the order of supersession of the Howrah Municipality be complied with and that the Government of Bengal take steps in accordance with the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act to safeguard the interest of the rate-payers of the Howrah Municipality.

I do not think any speech is required in support of my motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to direct the Government of Bengal to take immediate steps so that the direction contained in the judgment of the Special Bench of the Hon'ble High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal in connection with the order of supersession of the Howrah Municipality be complied with and that the Government of Bengal take steps in accordance with the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act to safeguard the interest of the rate-payers of the Howrah Municipality.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, I support the motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to direct the Government of Bengal to take immediate steps so that the direction contained in the judgment of the Special Bench of the Hon'ble High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal in connection with the order of supersession of the Howrah Municipality be complied with and that the Government of Bengal take steps in accordance with the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act to safeguard the interest of the rate-payers of the Howrah Municipality.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I beg to move: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency on behalf of the Muslim subjects of His Majesty in Bengal to make an immediate representation to the Government of India to exempt the printing and publication of the Holy Quran, which is daily read by the Muslims serving in the different fronts in the United Nations Armies and other Muslim population, from the operation of the Paper Control (Economy) Order, 1944, of the Government of India, dated June 12, 1944, so as to enable the Muslims to perform their religious duties freely.

Sir, the Motion placed before the House is a very simple one. It is obligatory upon every Muslim to read the Quoran. This book guides the Muslims from birth to grave and every Muslim is bound to read this book every day of his life. Many Muslims have been enlisted in the army and have been serving in many parts of the world. So a very large number of this Holy book will be required for them also. There are 9 crores and more of Muslims and this book is required for their reading. So exemption should be given from the Paper Control Order for the printing of this book. Sir, I need not take much time of the House.

With these few words, I place my motion for the acceptance of the House.

MR. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency on behalf of the Muslim subjects of His Majesty in Bengal to make an immediate representation to the Government of India to exempt the printing and publication of the Holy Quoran, which is daily read by the Muslims serving in the different fronts in the United Nations Armies and other Muslim population, from the operation of the Paper Control (Economy) Order, 1944, of the Government of India, dated June 12, 1944, so as to enable the Muslims to perform their religious duties freely.

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to support the motion. (The motion was agreed to.)

MR. NUR AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to make an immediate representation to the Government of India urging upon them the necessity of immediate revocation of the order of suspending Haj sailings so as to enable the Muslim subjects of His Majesty to perform one of their obligatory religious duties, namely, the performance of Haj at Mecca this year.

Sir, this is a simple motion which also relates to one of the obligatory duties to be performed by the Muslims. Sir, I know that the Government of India have partly withdrawn the restriction; but my motion goes further. My motion says that this restriction which has been imposed should be revoked. I do not know the exact figure of the pilgrims who have been allowed to go to Mecca this year. So far as my information goes, only 600 Muslims from Bengal have been allowed to go on pilgrimage. There is a bitter disappointment in many quarters. The pilgrims are very anxious even at the risk of their lives to perform this obligatory duty this year. There is still time for the Government of India to revoke the order of suspension. Sir, Bengal's Muslim population is about 3½ crores and the number of people on whom Haj will be obligatory will be more than one million. Therefore, I request the Government of India through this motion to give larger facilities to Muslims to perform Haj this year. With these words, I commend my motion to the acceptance of the House.

MR. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to make an immediate representation to the Government of India urging upon them the necessity of immediate revocation of the order of suspending Haj sailings so as to enable the Muslim subjects of His Majesty to perform one of their obligatory religious duties, namely, the performance of Haj at Mecca this year.

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to support the Motion.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: While supporting this motion I may remind the House that it is too late this year because the Haj sailings will be over by the 26th of this month if not earlier; but what the Muslims of Bengal feel very strongly is the manner in which they have been treated by the Government of India in connection with the Haj sailings this year. In the beginning the Government of India were very reluctant to allow any Haj sailings; but at the very strong representation of the Muslims of India they very reluctantly agreed to only two sailings from Karachi and the sailings from the Calcutta Port which caters for the pilgrims of Bengal and Assam were entirely suspended. This has led to a lot of harassment and inconvenience to the intending pilgrims from this province from which the largest number of pilgrims go every year to Mecca. There is a great feeling of discontent amongst the Muslims of this province about the manner in which they have been treated in this matter and it is a matter of great importance that this thing should be brought to the notice of the Government of India. The arrangements that were made this year were peculiar. The Haj Officer of the Government of India acted in the most Hitlerian way overriding the advice and request of all the Port Haj Committee in Bengal. The procedure he adopted was that intending pilgrims should send their money for the tickets as well as for the expenses of Hedjaj direct to the Haj Officer at New Delhi and the officer should send the reservation cards on receipt of which the pilgrims could start.

It was pointed out to them by the public as well as by the Port Haj Committee of Bengal that this procedure would act very harshly on the intending pilgrims most of whom come from the remote villages of Bengal; and what was pointed out by them has actually come to pass. The money that was required was sent by the pilgrims on receipt of the communiqué as published in the daily papers; but as you know, Sir, the postal arrangements in Bengal are dilatory, and sometimes quite inadequate; and specially in the remote villages of Bengal the postal service is sometimes only weekly and even once in ten days, and the result was that although these pilgrims sent money for the tickets they did not get any reservation cards in time. They were, therefore, in a dilemma as to whether to start for Karachi or not, because the previous order said that unless they received reservation cards they were not to start. Then another order was published in the newspapers that those who had sent money by the 18th of the last month could sail even if they had not received any reservation cards. That order was received on the 25th and the communiqué said that those who reached Karachi before the 30th, they only could do so. This was a physical difficulty, nay an impossibility. Perhaps the Haj Officer in Delhi thought that all the intending pilgrims were in the towns either sitting before a business counter or were accessible to radio talks and so forth. He did not realise that the religious elements in Bengal were mostly in the villages and not in the towns, with the result that there were many people who sent in money, purchased their tickets but did not get reservation cards. But still they came to Calcutta and found nothing to help them. So they took their chance and went to Karachi. I do not know whether they will be stranded or whether they will have to return. In spite of our advice, the Haj Officer refused to listen or alter his procedure. I am afraid, the Government of Bengal in this particular department concerned are absolutely ignorant of the conditions in Bengal. The Secretary to the Government of India, Commonwealth Relations Department, is an I.C.S. officer. I believe he is an efficient officer but his adviser is from the Punjab. Then there is the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Department from Central India who has no idea of the Bengal conditions and much less about pilgrims and pilgrimage. I did not know that Mr. Nur Ahmed had put in a motion like this or that it was to come today, and I had intended to ask a short-notice question on Monday in order to elicit from our own Government, the Home Department, what they have done or have been doing in the matter. So far as I know, they never took the slightest interest in the matter; although strong representations were made to the Government of Bengal to approach and move the Government of India, I am afraid nothing was done. And now Mr. Nur Ahmed has moved that an Address should be presented so that His Excellency the Viceroy should be informed of this. I am rather pessimist about the result. But this is a matter in which I assure you that Muslims are very much perturbed. This Haj pilgrimage is undertaken once a year and the people are very much eager to perform the Haj. Muslims are not afraid of risking anything to perform this pilgrimage. In the first place, the Calcutta Port has been closed for this purpose and they may put forward the excuse that on account of military reasons probably the Indian Ocean is not safe. (Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: It is quite safe now.) I think it is quite safe but our knowledge will not probably be accepted. Then again, only two trips were arranged for for the whole of India. From Bengal alone the average number of pilgrims who go to Mecca normally is something like 900. When there is plenty of money and there has been no Haj for the last two years, there are many people who would be very anxious to go for the pilgrimage and they do not care if their boats were torpedoed or met with accidents. I am afraid, the Government of India have not treated this matter sympathetically. I would request you to represent strongly the feelings of the Muslims in this respect. This matter will be again dealt with here. I propose to ask the Home Minister who is not probably present here today— (Voices: He is here.) Well, if he is here, he may tell what action the Hon'ble Minister has taken in this matter—in what way the Government have provided facilities to the pilgrims; whether they have made any communication with the Government of India protesting against the arrangement made. The Haj Committee has at every stage informed the Government of their inconvenience. Has any action been taken to move the Government of India in this matter? Did this matter ever come to their notice through newspapers and through the All-India Hajees' Welfare League and other committees? It is a matter of extreme regret that while Bengal is a Muslim majority province and where this particular matter is dealt with by a department predominated by Muslims and particularly where the head of the department is a pious and religious Musalman, the intending Hajis should suffer in this way. With these words, I very strongly commend this motion to the acceptance of the House.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, whether it is a question affecting the Muslim or Hindu community or any other community in this province, it is the duty of every member to support a motion of this nature. I cannot understand why it should be necessary for a member of the Legislature to draw the attention of Government to such a question of vital importance to a particular community. I do not know what the Bengal Government have done in this matter; but I think that it was their primary duty to move the Government of India for providing necessary facilities for the Haj pilgrimage. The argument is: that it is unsafe on account of the war to undertake a journey by steamer. But I think that the situation has now considerably improved so as to permit the passage of ships through the Indian Ocean and the Mediterranean Sea safely to the Mecca Port. We await an answer from the Hon'ble the Chief Minister as to what his department has done to provide these facilities to the members of the Muslim community. Sir, it is really unfortunate that at this late hour it should be necessary for us to remind the Government of their primary duty towards the people of this country on an important matter like this. The Hon'ble the Chief Minister himself is a Muslim and as such it was his bounden duty to see that these facilities were not stopped for which there were no cogent reasons.

With these few words, I support the motion and I hope that if the Government have not done anything in this direction they should take early steps to urge upon the Government of India for the immediate revocation of the Order.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to make an immediate representation to the Government of India urging upon them the necessity of immediate revocation of the order of suspending Haj sailings so as to enable the Muslim subjects of His Majesty to perform one of their obligatory religious duties, namely, the performance of Haj at Mecca this year.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I beg to move: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to make an immediate representation to the Government of India to make an additional allotment of 35,000 bales of cloth for Bengal in 1944 to make up the acute shortage of cloth in Bengal and to increase Bengal's quota to 42,000 bales a month from other provinces.

Sir, last year we passed through an acute famine of foodstuff. This year there is acute shortage of cloth during the two great festivals of the two great communities which inhabit Bengal, namely, the Hindus and the Muslims. During the last Id, many Muslims had to perform their prayer with a worn-out cloth and similarly there was shortage of cloth during the Durga Puja festival. Government of India has fixed 12 yards per head of population. According to that calculation, Bengal's quota comes up to 42,000 bales a month and 504,000 bales a year. Bengal's handloom and mills produce 20,000 bales a month, or 240,000 bales of year. So the shortage is 22,000 per month or 264,000 bales a year and this shortage has to be met from other provinces. During six months of 1944 only 169,911 bales were sent to Bengal and Assam. The actual deficit for these two provinces is 196,414 bales and the total deficit is 265,004 bales. Bengal's merchants were entitled to a quota from ex-mill, but the supply received by them comes up to 50 per cent. of the quota according to the Government of India's fixation. There was a deficit of 50 per cent. of cloth in Bengal out of which Bengal only got 25 per cent. So there was a shortage of 25 per cent. in Bengal which resulted in the acute shortage of cloth during the two great festivals to the great hardship of the people. This shortage will be aggravated if we take into account the people who have come into Bengal, namely, the labour population and other people who have come into Bengal amounting to more than 4 lakhs. If this 4 lakhs were taken into consideration, this shortage will be greater. Sir, there are 9,000 wholesale dealers and 45,000 retail dealers in Bengal and many of these dealers do not get their quota in due time and they in most cases resort to black marketing. Sir, it is an admitted fact that during these Id and Puja festivals people had to purchase cloth from the black market at much higher prices. To aggravate the situation, Bengal's handloom industry also suffered because out of 16,000 bales of yarn which used to be sent to Bengal, Bengal got only 6,000 bales during the whole year with the result that the weavers who used to produce handloom cloth could not produce their expected quantity. In this connection, I pray to the Government of India to give full quota to Bengal according to their fixation, and I think every honourable member of this House is conscious of this shortage of cloth, and I hope that they will wholeheartedly support this motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to make an immediate representation to the Government of India to make an additional allotment of 35,000 bales of cloth for Bengal in 1944 to make up the acute shortage of cloth in Bengal and to increase Bengal's quota to 42,000 bales a month from other provinces.

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: I rise to support the motion.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: I am glad that my friend Mr. Nur Ahmed has at last realised the necessity for an increased supply of cloth to Bengal. It was about a month and a half ago that I tried to bring forward by means of an adjournment motion the difficulties that were being experienced by the people of Bengal in the matter of cloth supply. The Hon'ble Minister then opposed the motion on the ground that it was inopportune and that in view of the impending visit of Mr. Vellodi, the Textile Commissioner, it was not necessary to move a motion for the adjournment of the business of the House. He argued—(The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy also mentioned that the matter of cloth supply was not a provincial subject.) Well, Sir, I am coming to that. The Hon'ble Minister also added that it would not be helpful to move a motion of this nature and that he would take up the question with the Textile Commissioner and point out to him Bengal's difficulties. The Hon'ble Minister also assured us that he would see to it that an increased supply of cloth was made before the Id and the Puja festivals. Both the Id and the Puja festivals are over, but the Muslim and the Hindu public of Bengal did not get any cloth. I am glad that Mr. Nur Ahmed has also pointed out in unmistakable terms that there was a hopeless shortage of cloth during the Id and the Pujah. I took some pains in going about the streets of Calcutta and Dacca before the Id and the Puja festivals and found to my utter surprise that the shortage was appalling, in spite of the assurance given by the Textile Commissioner and the hopes held out by the Civil Supply Minister. The only cloth that was available was handloom fabrics, the prices of which are much higher than mill-made cloth, and it was extremely difficult for the the poor and poorer middle class public to purchase this cloth in the market at high prices. I may point out in this connection that the pre-war consumption of cloth in India was 16 yards per head per year and on the virtual stoppage of imports the available supply can give only 12 yards of cloth per head per year. On that basis of allocation, Bengal and Assam—these two provinces constituting one zone—were given 961 millions of yards per year. Against this, the Bengal mills produced 220 million yards, Bengal handlooms 184 millions and Assam handlooms 31 millions leaving a deficit of 526 million yards to be supplied by other provinces. I think I should point out in this connection that the main supply centres were Bombay, Ahmedabad, Sholapur, Nagpur, Amritsar, Cawnpore, Coimbatore, Delhi, Indore, Baroda, Lahore and Madras.

Sir, it is well-known that the mills have been compelled to sell only to dealers who are in business with them during 1940-42. It did not ensure the supply to Bengal even 50 per cent. of her deficit and for the balance she had to depend upon the merchants of other provinces. Such supplies are now coming, as the dealers are attracted by the profits of black marketing. I think that unless some definite arrangements were made with the Central Government ensuring a regular supply of Bengal's quota, acute cloth famine in Bengal would be inevitable. In Bengal there were 9,000 wholesale dealers, 45,000 retail dealers and 3,000 hawkers handling mill-made cloth and yarn costing Rs. 40 crores per year. The legitimate profit from this business was so substantial that there should be no desire for undue profits. With regard to the scheme of distribution, which I understand has already been prepared by the Civil Supplies Department, we do not know what the full scheme is; but from the press note published in the newspapers it is understood that the Government has made substantial advance in this direction. In the absence of any scheme I am unable to examine it in detail. But I think some sort of useful scheme—not paper scheme—with which it is possible to put into practice the scheme should be prepared regarding distribution of cloth. It was some time in August that the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy, the Civil Supplies Minister, reviewed the position of Bengal with regard to cloth and yarn and pointed out various difficulties about cloth.

being sent to Bengal. He suggested that this question would be taken up with the Textile Commissioner for clarification of the position. I do not know whether the Hon'ble Minister, when he had met the Textile Commissioner, pointed out the difficulties; and if he had pointed out the difficulties in the ordinary course a statement should have been published in the newspapers that these points have been discussed and that there was some chance of improvement in the cloth situation in Bengal. It reminds me of the administration of the Department of the Civil Supplies or for the matter of that administration of any department by the Ministers. It reminds me of Cowper's "My Mother's Picture"—"the dupe of tomorrow even from a child". We have been duped although we have no doubt been assured that cloths will be given before the Id and Pujas; but we have been suddenly disappointed and I congratulate Mr. Nur Ahmed for bringing forward this motion which is useful not only for a particular community but to the people in general. With these words, I support the motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to make an immediate representation to the Government of India to make an additional allotment of 35,000 bales of cloth for Bengal in 1944 to make up the acute shortage of cloth in Bengal and to increase Bengal's quota to 42,000 bales a month from other provinces.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Monday, the 9th October, 1944, at 2 p.m. being the eighty-third day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Test relief work in Contai.

265. Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Revenue Department be pleased to state—

(a) if he has received a petition from Mr. R. Maity (Contai P. O.), President, Bara Chowka and Kalighai Flood Prevention Committee, containing suggestions for the test relief work for the repair of the general bunds and embankments in the Sobong, Bhawganpore, Potashpore, Egra and Contai police-stations in the district of Midnapore; and

(b) if he proposes to start the works before the rains this year; if not, why not?

MINISTER in charge of the REVENUE DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Mr. Tarak Nath Mukerjee): (a) Yes.

(b) Some of the works were taken up before the rains this year as test relief measures and the remaining works were proposed to be taken up after the rains.

Cruel kitchens.

266. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Revenue Department be pleased to state—

(a) if he is aware that large number of gruel kitchens in the adjoining districts of Calcutta were closed by the end of January, 1944, or thereabout;

(b) the number of gruel kitchens or relief centres now working in the adjoining districts of Calcutta;

(c) the number of destitutes that are receiving relief from the centres just at present; and

(d) whether the Government consider the advisability of opening fresh relief centres in different parts of the Province at once so that the destitutes may have no occasion to go out of their native places to the nearest urban stations?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEE: (a) Yes.

Howrah. 24-Parganas.

(b)	Kitchens	Nil	7
	Free grain dole distribution centre	82	16
	Milk canteens	70	162
	Poor-houses	Nil	3
	Work-houses	Nil	14
	Orphanages	1	5
	Test relief centres	10	16
(c)	Howrah	20,060
	24-Parganas	19,634

(d) The District Officers have already been instructed to open fresh relief centres whenever necessary, so that the destitutes may not have to flock urban areas in search of food.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please tell us how many fresh test relief centres have been opened in the district?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: Sir, the answer is dated 28th July, 1944. So I cannot say off-hand how many centres have been opened since then.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state why all gruel kitchens in Howrah have been closed?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: Because the District Magistrate reported that they are no longer necessary.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is the closing of the poor-houses and work-houses also due to the same factor?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: The poor-houses and work-houses are working in Howrah.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: From the answer it appears that there are no poor-houses and work-houses in Howrah.

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: They have been again started.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: How many poor-houses and work-houses have been opened since that day?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: I want notice.

Reappearance of the destitutes in Calcutta.

267. Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Revenue Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if he is aware that every day emaciated and ill-clad destitutes are making their appearance in large number in Calcutta from the adjoining districts; and
- (b) if so, what steps the Government are going to take to deal with these destitutes before it is too late?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: (a) Some destitutes are coming to Calcutta, but their number is not large nor are they noticeably emaciated.

(b) Government have already taken steps to deal with the destitutes in Calcutta. They are collected from the streets and housed in the different Destitutes' Homes opened in Calcutta, clothed and fed there, and are ultimately repatriated to their village home. In all distressed areas there are a number of poor-houses and work-houses for taking care of destitutes. Free doles are also regularly distributed to such destitutes as prefer to live in their own homes.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please give us some idea about the figures of the destitutes who are coming to Calcutta or who have come to Calcutta in July and August?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: I want notice.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please tell us what is the standard by which he estimates the emaciation of destitutes?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: I may tell the honourable member that this answer is dated 31st July, 1944. If he wants more recent information, I can supply that afterwards.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I shall certainly be thankful to the Hon'ble Minister for additional information; but my question was: how is the standard of emaciation to be measured? Is it by comparison with the honourable members who occupy the Treasury Bench?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: There cannot be any standard for emaciation certainly, but every one has got a general idea of it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: With regard to (a), will the Hon'ble Minister please explain that unless these destitutes are noticeably emaciated from day to day, how is it that we find destitutes dying, as reported in the newspapers? How are these deaths taking place if those destitutes are not emaciated?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: What is the question? Will Mr. Das please repeat it?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: My question is this: Everyday we notice in the papers that so many destitutes are dying in the hospitals, etc. How can that be unless the destitutes that are coming to Calcutta were noticeably emaciated?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: I am sorry that I have not yet been able to follow the actual question.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: All right, for the elucidation of the Hon'ble Revenue Minister I shall be prepared to repeat the question. It is this: I hope the Hon'ble Minister knows that everyday in the newspapers we read of deaths of destitutes in hospitals; do you follow this?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: Yes.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Then how do you reconcile this fact with your reply that these destitutes are not noticeably emaciated? Will you please explain?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: No doubt, some destitutes are being admitted to hospitals from day to day, but I do not exactly follow what emaciation has to do with the admission of the destitutes to hospitals.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You were saying that these destitutes were not noticeably emaciated; but Mr. Das' contention is that the hospitals are reporting deaths from starvation of destitutes everyday; so they must be emaciated, otherwise they would not die. That is the point of the question.

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: I see; but as I have already pointed out, the answer was framed in July.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether the number of such destitutes who are coming to Calcutta is on the increase or on the decrease?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: These destitutes are dying from various illnesses.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: No, no; that is not my question; it is quite different. It is stated in the answer that the number is not large: is the number of destitutes coming to Calcutta on the increase, or is there a variation? Or, if there is a variation, whether this variation is on the side of increase or decrease?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: For a detailed answer I must ask for notice.

Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1938.

288. Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Revenue Department be pleased to state—

(a) if his attention has been drawn to a letter published in a Calcutta Weekly of the 16th June, 1944, containing allegations against the violation of the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1938, by the Manager of the Kettlewell, Bullen and Company, Limited, Bowria, Howrah; and

(b) whether any action has been taken to enquire into the said allegation; and if not, why not?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: (a) and (b) Yes.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: What is the result of the enquiry in this respect?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: The report of the Collector is being awaited: it has not yet been received.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister give direction so that enquiries are made with regard to each item of the grievances to which attention was drawn in the said publication in the papers?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: The difficulty was that the honourable member did not mention the paper in which it was published. So, we had to trace the copy of the report for detailed report from the Collector.

Mr. BIREN ROY: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state what he means by the answer "Yes"?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: "Yes" means that action has been taken to enquire into the said allegation.

Mr. BIREN ROY: What action has been taken?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: The Collector has been written to to enquire into the matter.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: With regard to the statement of the Hon'ble Minister about the name of the paper not being given, I believe the duty of the office was to send the cutting with the question.

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: The cutting was not sent originally.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House will now take up the adjournment motion of Mr. Humayun Kabir. Mr. Kabir.

Adjournment motion.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I beg to move: that this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the refusal of permission by the Additional District Magistrate of Faridpur to the Krishak-Praja Samity, Faridpur, to hold a public meeting at Bakhunda in police-station, Faridpur, on the 27th August, 1944.

Now, Sir, my honourable friends might ask: why this particular occasion should be chosen for bringing in an adjournment motion—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, is it not proper that the Hon'ble the Home Minister should be present to listen to this debate?

(The Hon'ble the Home Minister was entering the Chamber at this moment.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: He is there.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I am glad to find that the Hon'ble the Home Minister is coming perhaps in psychological sympathy with my honourable friend, Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. I hope this spiritual affinity between the two will be carried further, so that we may have more harmony in this House and less acrimony than we have had in the past.

However, to proceed with the subject. I was saying that it may at first sight seem that the question of a particular meeting in a not very well-known part of a particular district is not very important. I want to urge through you upon the House the public importance involved in this matter. Every honourable member of this House knows that recently, I think, it was on the 24th August, 1944, an order was promulgated on behalf of the Government of Bengal declaring that no public meeting or public assembly would be allowed unless previous permission had been obtained therefor. When we first saw that order, we were astonished at this order curtailing the rights and privileges of the citizens of this province: Why in this way restrictions should be imposed preventing the people at large from discussing those questions which are of vital importance to the province? Further, we thought that this order was unjustified and I think that every member of this House will admit that today there is very little justification for a general order of that type. In the past, sometimes public rights have been curtailed in times of emergency or when grave difficulties were apprehended. Indeed, when there was fear of any breach of the public peace, occasionally orders like these have been promulgated with the result that meetings could not be held without obtaining previous permission. At the beginning of the war, such an order was enforced in Calcutta. I should have thought that with the passage of time when there has been distinct improvement in the war situation, all those apprehensions have become memories of the past. It seems that this had actually been recognised to be so; for that order is found practically withdrawn. In fact, for nearly a year or so public meetings have been held all over Bengal without any interference from the local authorities or without any reference to the authorities, not to speak of any previous permission being taken.

Now, Sir, I would like the Hon'ble the Home Minister to tell us what suddenly happened in the middle of August last that he should have issued a general order prohibiting meetings all over Bengal. In the past, a public meeting had often been defined as a meeting which has been organised—

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: On a point of order. Is the honourable member speaking on the motion which is on the agenda and of which he has given notice?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I should think so.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I am afraid the Hon'ble the Home Minister has not been able to collect his wits at the moment. I am talking on the motion of which I had given notice and which I moved a few minutes ago with your permission. I was discussing the general principle which underlay that particular order which we are discussing in connection with this motion at the moment. I think, Sir, every member of this House knows that when you are discussing a particular order, we are within your rights and not only within your rights, but it is necessary for us to discuss the principle or the law under which that order is issued. Therefore, Sir, at the moment I was preparing the background and I was suggesting to the House the reasons why we are discussing that particular order in the adjournment motion—

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: On a point of information. Will the honourable member kindly inform the House when this notification prohibiting general meetings was published?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: On the 24th of August, 1944. That is the order which we are referring to. My contention is that this order was altogether unnecessary, uncalled for and without any justification whatsoever in the context of the present political situation in the province. Indeed, Sir, it was passed in a most extraordinary manner at a time when the political situation in India had shown no signs of deterioration and when the military situation did not require any kind of curtailment of public liberties. If there had been any cause or apprehension of breach of the public peace, that was probably two months ago. If during the months of May, June and July any such order was passed, we could understand it; but when the political situation showed no signs whatever of deterioration, when there was no reason whatsoever for an order of this kind, suddenly this particular order was issued—

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I enquire if orders were issued to the District Magistrate of Faridpur under the general orders of the Government?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I am coming to that in a moment, Sir. That is the background in which the cause of this adjournment motion arose. Now, Sir, we had made preparations for holding meetings in different parts of the district and on this particular day, viz., the 27th of August a meeting at Bakhunda had been announced pretty long time before this order had been promulgated. Now, as I stated at the outset, I do not know what was the reason why the Hon'ble Minister had issued that order. We saw that order published in the newspapers on the 24th August and on the 25th we informed the District Magistrate that this meeting had been arranged beforehand and that all arrangements had been complete. The reply given by the District Magistrate was that as the notice had been very short he could not give us permission to hold that meeting.

Now, Sir, my contention is twofold. First of all, that a general prohibitory order of that nature was quite unnecessary, quite unjustified and constituted an unwarranted interference with the rights and liberties of the citizens of the province. There was no reason whatsoever as to why Government should prevent public discussion of its own policy or its different administrative acts. That is the general objection which I have towards the order. In addition to that, there is a specific grievance that even after the general order had been passed why should the District Magistrate refuse permission for holding a meeting to a well-constituted and recognised party which is carrying on its parliamentary activities for a long time and which in course of its parliamentary activities is regularly holding meetings in almost every district of this province. These are my two specific questions to the Hon'ble the Home Minister. He has to justify, first of all, his general order. What was the change in the situation of Bengal which necessitated the abrupt promulgation of such a prohibitory order? Why this tranquil province had to be disturbed? Or I may put it this way: why did it become necessary for the Government of Bengal, as represented by its Ministry, to disturb the public equanimity and create a feeling of nervousness in the public mind? I am sure every honourable member will agree with me that whenever an order is passed restricting the liberties of the public without adequate reason, the reaction in the public mind is that something very serious must have happened, otherwise the Ministry would not have acted thus insanelly. Here, I must admit that the public generally pay them the compliment of thinking that the Ministry is not insane. And, therefore, when in that perfectly quiet atmosphere and tranquil condition of the province a general order, a drastic order of this kind, is passed, the first reaction on the public mind is that something serious is brewing which the public know nothing of. Therefore, I might charge the Ministry with creating a feeling of nervousness in the public mind and consequential disquietude in the province. There may be two reasons for this action of theirs. On the one hand, something might have happened which warranted such an order; or it may be that the Ministry were afraid of public criticism. It knew that some of its actions of last year have not been quite free from criticism; it is liable to criticism and time and again it has found it difficult to explain away its actions before the public. Therefore, they might feel that since they were not able to face the count for justifying their policy, since their actions and programme were not supported by the country at large and since in the Assembly they had been losing their strength from day to day—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, you had better come to your point, namely, the promulgation of a general prohibitory order.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: That is what I am doing Sir. I am explaining what their general order may be due to. It is due to the fact that they feel that the record of their actions is not such as to command the support of the public; it may also be attributed to the fact that they are afraid of facing the public lest their actions and inactions might be exposed or revealed to the vast multitude of the masses in so far as they failed to solve the food problem of the province as well as many of our most vital and outstanding difficulties. It is this apprehension in the mind of the Ministry which was responsible for this general order. Further, it might be that because of this apprehension, the District Magistrate—I have nothing to say against him personally—I do not even know who he is—did not think it proper to allow the meeting to be held. I would, therefore, ask the Hon'ble the Home Minister to reply to these two questions, namely, what is his justification for issuing a general order like this? If he can adduce any evidence and convince this House as to why an order should be issued curtailing the right of the citizens to hold public meetings, then we are prepared to consider the question. Was it an attempt by Government to stifle the Opposition or was it an attempt to prevent the Opposition from placing various grievances before the public? Sometimes the supporters of the Ministry try to prevent meetings by organising a demonstration of hooliganism. Are we then to understand that this sort of order is to legalise those acts of hooliganism on the part of the supporters of the Ministry? This general order seems to have been issued either for encouraging or conniving at the orders of their subordinates upholding such hooliganism and disturbances by the supporters of the Ministry. These are my two questions and if the Hon'ble the Home Minister can satisfy me upon these two points, I may assure him that I shall withdraw the adjournment motion which I am moving now.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: that this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the refusal of permission by the Additional District Magistrate of Faridpur to the Krishak-Praja Samity, Faridpur, to hold a public meeting at Bakhunda in police-station Faridpur, on the 27th August, 1944.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I would like to intervene in this debate at this early stage. I shall show to the honourable members of this House that the apprehension which the mover of the motion has given expression to is absolutely groundless and that there is no basis for the complaint that has been made. I know this information will deprive some of the honourable members of the opportunity of giving vent to their eloquence. In this connection, I want to mention, Sir, with your permission, that adjournment motions are very serious matters as they interfere with the normal business of the House. I may suggest that the honourable members should utilise the procedure of putting short-notice questions for eliciting information on matters like these, and this will save a great deal of the time of the House.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: On a point of information, Sir. On this particular subject, I sent in a short-notice question which was due to have been answered on the 5th last.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I am sorry it had not been placed before me. Otherwise, I would have certainly answered this short-notice question. As a matter of fact, I feel that we ought to have issued a communiqué at the time when this notification was published on the 24th August last. That would have clearly removed all misunderstanding. I may, however, state for the information of the honourable members that whoever approached me at the time when the notification was issued, I explained to all of them that the situation which was there before the 24th August last had not been altered in any way by this notification. The reason of this notification was this: we were advised by our legal experts that there was some technical legal defect in the wording of the notification which was promulgated before. We, accordingly, wanted to improve the draft of that old notification. So we re-issued the notification on the 24th August.

I may here explain the position as it was before the 24th of August. The honourable members will remember that soon after we took over office in April, 1943, we issued a Press-Note saying that although the prohibitory notification was there, yet we had given instructions to the District Magistrates to allow public meetings to be held all over Bengal without any permission being asked for, except in Calcutta, Dacca and Midnapore. The result of that Press-Note was that permission was given to hold meetings freely without any hindrance whatsoever throughout Bengal. The fact that this Ministry had removed one of the main grievances of the public relating to the right of free speech was acknowledged, I believe, in the Press and by some members of both the Houses. As I stated before, the legal position is that the old notification exists and the Magistrates, if they like and if they think that there is a very serious danger to the public peace, can use that power. But they have been clearly given to understand that unless there is any serious apprehension of breach of the public peace, this power should not be used and that meetings could be held without permission being asked for. Indeed, the fact that this notification was again published on the 24th of August, has not led to any change of policy which is obvious from the fact that all over Bengal meetings are still being held without having to obtain such permission (Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: No, Sir, No.) and we have not received any complaint from any quarter. I have heard shouts of "No, no" from some honourable members; but as far as I know there has been no specific case of meetings being stopped. (Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I have got documentary evidence in this respect.) It may be, but I would like to state here that at the present time the position is this that we are exactly in the same situation as we were before the 24th of August; that is to say, except in Calcutta, Dacca and Midnapore, meetings can be held without permission being asked for—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point of information, Sir. The Hon'ble the Chief Minister states that the notification stands and that there is a Press-Note to the effect that if there is no serious apprehension of breach of the public peace, meetings may be allowed to be held without permission. Now, the point is: how will the people know beforehand that there will be a breach of the peace so that they might go through the formality of obtaining permission for holding a meeting. Will the Hon'ble Minister kindly reconcile these two conflicting points?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have made it absolutely clear and the Press-Note to which I have referred and which has been appreciated by the general public and the political parties in Bengal also made it clear that meetings can be held all over Bengal without permission being asked for. (Mr. TALIT CHANDRA DAS: That was before the 24th August.) Certainly, but after the 24th August also the position has been exactly the same. As we have not cancelled our instructions to the District Magistrates, the position still remains exactly the same, and at the present moment except in Dacca, Midnapore and Calcutta, the public are entitled to hold meetings without asking for permission. If at any place owing to misinterpretation of the Press-Note meetings have been stopped, I can give the House an assurance that (interruptions by Mr. Haridas Mazumdar) I am prepared to issue another Press-notification making it clear that our instructions to the District Magistrates remain the same, so that they may permit meetings to be held in any place, except in the districts of Dacca, Midnapore and Calcutta without obtaining previous permission therefor.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: That notification with reference to other districts then goes out?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I am sorry that it is very difficult to explain to Mr. Mazumdar what all his colleagues have understood very clearly and I am afraid, as I said the other day, one cannot go beyond what is plain English.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Yes, but one should use a language which one knows fully.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Therefore, I think the House will realise that the eloquence of my friend Mr. Humayun Kabir about this so-called restriction on public meetings was misplaced in so far as he thought that the Ministry was afraid of public criticism. As a matter of fact, our first step after assuming office has been to give to the public freedom of speech and we still maintain that position. We are not afraid of criticism, because by the grace of God we have nothing to be afraid of; what we have done is on the record—clear and clean. As regards the particular place to which reference has been made in the motion under discussion, the meeting was stopped because sufficient notice was not given to the District Magistrate and application also was not made in proper time. Therefore, the District Magistrate intimated that permission would be given if permission was sought after giving sufficient notice. And so we find that when the party applied again for permission on 4th September, 1944, to hold a meeting on 10th September, 1944, at the same place, permission was given to hold a meeting. Therefore, it is clear that the Ministry or its supporters were not afraid of any criticism that might be levelled against them at the meeting in Faridpur. Unfortunately, the record of Faridpur is rather "loaded", as my friend Mr. Goswami says. There have often been frictions at meetings that have been held in Faridpur district during the last 7 years and not only during the period we have been in office, but during the last 7 years on several occasions meetings held both in the town and in the rural areas have ended in trouble and the police had had to intervene and take action.

So, if the District Magistrate thought that it was necessary that he should have adequate notice before a meeting is held in view of the frequency of troubles in the district, then it would not, I think, be quite fair to criticise the action of the Magistrate. I may say here for the benefit of Mr. Humayun Kabir that I have since had discussion with the District Magistrate and told him that it was not our policy to stop meetings, as used to be the policy of the past Ministry when we were in the Opposition. I have also said that meetings should not be stopped unless there is serious danger of breach of the peace and that generally permission should always be given. I hope I have sufficiently cleared up the matter and I think it will not be necessary to further press the adjournment motion. I hope the honourable member, in view of the clear statement and the assurance given by me that there has been no change of policy as regards the right of holding public meetings, will withdraw his motion.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I would like to support the adjournment motion that has been moved by my honourable friend

Mr. Humayun Kabir with regard to the refusal of permission by the Additional District Magistrate of Faridpur to the Krishak-Praja Samity to hold a public meeting at Bakhunda in police-station Faridpur on the 27th August, 1944.

Sir, we have heard the Hon'ble the Home Minister just now. I do not know whether his speech was by way of explaining the real situation that has been created by reason of the promulgation of the order, dated the 24th August, 1944, or whether he wanted to make it clear that the situation in the Province of Bengal is the same as it was before the 24th August, but that there was some technical flaw in the previous notification which was sought to be clarified by the fresh notification. I could not understand, Sir, the Hon'ble Minister when he said in the same breath that he had a discussion with the District Magistrate of Faridpur and he had stated to him definitely and categorically—possibly these were his words—that he did not want to stop meetings unless there was serious apprehension of the breach of the peace. He stated in the same breath that he was going to issue a fresh statement which would make it clear that public meetings will be allowed to be held throughout Bengal except possibly in the three places which he mentioned and to which I will come later on, namely, Calcutta, Dacca and Midnapore, without permission. I would ask the honourable members to note the words “without permission” with particular care, because I will presently refer to the statement of the Hon'ble the Home Minister in this House when I moved another adjournment motion a short time ago in connection with a conference which was organised by the Scheduled Castes—I mean the Lora Conference in the district of Barisal—but was banned by the present Ministry.

I think that the Hon'ble Minister was indulging in a lot of inconsistencies which could not be reconciled with one another. It is therefore necessary that when issuing a fresh statement which he has promised to us today the Hon'ble the Home Minister would not indulge in conflicting statement, but that he would clearly state that meetings will be allowed to be held throughout Bengal without permission and that the District Magistrates concerned should notify if they think that there is any apprehension of the breach of the peace anywhere that meeting will not be allowed to be held unless previous permission is sought and obtained.

Now, I would like to refer to some of the incidents to which I referred in the beginning. From the facts which we have heard from Mr. Kabir with reference to this meeting, we know that the authorities were aware of the meeting sometime before the fixed date. The meeting had been announced and the leaders from Calcutta had reached the place when the order of the District Magistrate refusing permission was communicated to them. Only the other day when I moved the adjournment motion relating to the banning of the conference organised by the Scheduled Castes people at Lora, we were told by the Hon'ble the Home Minister that the action was taken as a temporary measure in order that an agrarian trouble which cropped up in the neighbourhood led the authorities to believe that the holding of the conference would not be safe. I pointed out in course of the discussion of the adjournment motion relating to Lora that the apprehension was absolutely unjustified; as a matter of fact it was nothing but an act of interference with legitimate public rights to hold a meeting as was announced some time before, and for which permission was also granted by the local authorities. That time, Sir, it was the Scheduled Castes people who had been attacked by the present Home Minister, possibly on the ground that they were going to consolidate Scheduled Caste opinion against the Hon'ble Ministers belonging to the Scheduled Castes. As a matter of fact, we also pointed out that at the same time the Hon'ble the Home Minister and the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy held a Muslim League Conference in Dinajpur for the purpose of consolidating public opinion in favour of the Muslim League propaganda about “Pakisthan”. It is well known that the Krisak-Praja Party is a formidable group opposing the present Ministry in the Legislative Assembly and in the Legislative Council and the meeting was organised after the Assembly had been prorogued. The Hon'ble Ministers apprehended that if the meeting was allowed to be held at Faridpur, they would organise and consolidate public opinion against the present Ministry which it would be difficult for the present Ministry to break through. It is needless for me to refer the landslides from the Ministerial Party as the sequel to which a large number of their adherents had crossed the floor and had joined the Opposition. We do not understand what other reason there could have been for the purpose of banning the meeting in question. In his answer to the adjournment motion moved by me regarding the Lora Conference, the Hon'ble the Home Minister stated that public meetings were being allowed to be held throughout Bengal without any permission being necessary for the purpose. I would like to know whether the Hon'ble the Home Minister in his statement before this House on the occasion really wanted to assert something which was the state of things as prevailing in the province, or whether it was a mere statement to hoodwink the honourable members of this House whereas the real state of affairs so far as the province is concerned was just the contrary.

Sir, I went to Kharagpur in the district of Midnapore and organised a meeting to be held there for the purpose of considering the attitude of the local people with regard to Rajaji's formula for Communal Settlement that was then under consideration. I was told that no meeting could be held without the permission of the Subdivisional Officer. I personally saw the Subdivisional Officer of Midnapore and wanted permission to hold the meeting on the same date, as I could not wait. The Subdivisional Officer, however, refused to grant me the permission saying that no permission could be granted unless a report was obtained from the local officers and it was necessary that at least 3 days' previous notice should be given. The refusal of the permission of the Additional District Magistrate of Faridpur now in question is another instance. It is therefore clear that the statement of the Hon'ble the Home Minister was merely a camouflage and that authorities throughout the province had orders just the contrary to what was asserted by the Home Minister on the floor of the House. We would request the Hon'ble the Home Minister to explain how he made this statement on the earlier occasion when public meetings were being refused throughout the province. If he had issued orders subsequently to his statement in the House he should explain what was the reason for that attitude. If, however, the order was existing from before, we would like him to state what led him to make the assertion that he did on the floor of the House. It is a matter for serious consideration and the Hon'ble the Home Minister should realise that, his position being that of Chief Minister of this province, he should not make statements on the floor of the House which are really not in agreement with but just contrary to the state of things in the province. I have got the letter which I wrote to the Subdivisional Officer of Midnapore on the 5th August, 1944, and I may read it. It is as follows: "Sir, I would like to state that the inhabitants of Kharagpur (Midnapore) intend to hold a meeting—

MR. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, you need not refer to the terms of the letter for we are discussing a particular motion.

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: It is a matter which has arisen directly out of the remarks of the Hon'ble the Home Minister to the effect that after resumption of office—

MR. PRESIDENT: I quite realise that—

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Mr. Mukherjee, however, does not say that Midnapore was already excluded.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: When he spoke on the Lora Conference adjournment motion, the Hon'ble Home Minister did not say anything about the exclusion of certain districts from the general principle.

Mr. PRESIDENT: However, please try to confine yourself to the point at issue.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I am within my motion I trust; but if the Hon'ble Home Minister wants to issue a statement he should make the position clear and I think I am within my rights in bringing his attention to this matter. Now I may continue with my letter: the inhabitants of Kharagpur intend to hold a meeting to consider the formula of the Rajaji at 3 p.m. But he wrote back to say that the Superintendent of Police's opinion should be taken, etc.

(At this stage the honourable member reached the time-limit and resumed his seat.)

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I could have said a lot of things on this subject but the statement of the Hon'ble the Home Minister has made the situation easier and I will only refer to some points which have arisen from the statement. It will appear that the notification in question is dated the 17th August, 1944, No. 4248P. and runs as follows "in exercise of the power conferred by sub-rule (1) of rule 56 of the Defence of India Rules, and in supersession of notification No. 1384P., dated the 4th March, 1944, the Governor is pleased to make the following order". It is clear therefore that it is a fresh notification and that notification No. 1384P. of the 4th March, 1944, was done away with. Now this being therefore clearly a fresh notification, the reasons for this should have been made clear. One of the remarks in the Hon'ble Minister's statement is to the effect that there is a lacuna in the previous order, but what that is has not been pointed out. In any case, it would appear that this notification is an all-embracing one, covering the whole province, not only Calcutta, Dacca and Midnapore.

Now, Sir, in this notification we find that "for the purpose of securing compliance with or preventing any contravention of clause (a) of paragraph 1 of this order an officer authorised under paragraph 7 may, by an order in writing, direct that no person shall, during such period as may be specified in the order, convene, organise, hold or take part in any public procession, meeting or assembly unless (a) written notice of the intention to hold such procession, meeting or assembly has been previously given to such officer....."

If really after the press-note had been issued by the Ministry it was intended that meetings should be allowed to be held without permission, nothing was assured in this notification itself. The notification could have said: that without previous permission no meetings should be held in Calcutta, Dacca and Midnapore. This has not been done. On the 13th June last at the time of the discussion of the Lora Conference the Hon'ble the Chief Minister thus observed: "Sir, those members sitting over there supported a Government which banned all public meetings, which banned all processions and which banned all freedom of speech. It is surprising that they accuse us of depriving them of their civil liberties. As a matter of fact, at present except in one or two places you can hold meetings without permission anywhere you like and speak whatever you like; yet look at the righteous indignation, because one particular conference has been banned at a place where there was a serious danger of rioting and spreading of communal tension over a wide area....." Sir, he pointed out how even in Calcutta without notice meetings were allowed to be held. He says "My friend Mr. Ambica Datta, I am sorry, Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta, speaks of the Nazis. But his leaders are holding conferences in the parks of Calcutta about the Secondary Education Bill. They talk now of the curtailment of civil liberties. Have they no sense of proportion. This is a most irresponsible attitude". Now, Sir, if meetings could be allowed to be held in Calcutta, the nerve centre of Bengal why meetings could not be allowed to be held in Dacca and Midnapore? If it is the real intention of Government that things should go easy, a fresh instruction should also be given to all the Magistrates on the lines that no public meetings should be banned. Therefore, I would like to see that the words "no ban is imposed in Calcutta, Dacca and Midnapore".

With these words, I support the motion.

MR. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Sir, I would only say a few words just in response to the statement made by the Hon'ble the Home Minister. So far as I am concerned, I appreciate the spirit underlying his speech today. We accept the assurance given by him that his Ministry will allow public meetings to be held without any previous permission having to be obtained from the District Magistrate. But I think the whole position ought to be clarified a little more. This notification was issued in exercise of the power conferred by sub-rule (1) of rule 56 of the Defence of India Rules. It has, therefore, the force of law and any contravention of it would be an offence which might be visited with serious consequences. Mere executive instructions will not exonerate the person from the offence. So, in order really to give effect to the assurance given by the Hon'ble the Home Minister, I think there ought to be some modification of the notification, besides clear instructions being issued to the District Magistrates. Rule 1 says: that no person shall convene, organise, hold or take part in any public processions, meetings or assemblies. ...in contravention of any order issued under paragraph 3 or of any condition imposed in granting permission under that paragraph. Now, paragraph 3 says: that for the purpose of securing compliance with or preventing any contravention of clause (a) of paragraph 1 of this order, an officer authorised under paragraph 7 may issue a general order prohibiting all meetings and under paragraph 7 the District Magistrate, the Commissioner of Police, the Subdivisional Magistrate and the Deputy Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, have been authorised to issue notices banning all meetings and been given powers to prohibit all meetings where these meetings had been held with the object as specified in sub-clause (9) of clause 1. But in order to secure compliance with the purpose of that sub-clause, an omnibus power has been given to these officers. So if these officers want to issue a notice in a particular area, in that case the rest of the notification will come into operation and no meeting can be held in that particular area without obtaining the previous permission of these authorities. It was for this reason that you, Sir, were pleased to enquire from my honourable friend Mr. Kabir whether orders were issued to the District Magistrate of Faridpur under the general orders of the Government. But as a matter of fact, as it usually happens whenever there is a notification, the District Magistrates and the other authorities spoken of, issue notices. So if the Hon'ble the Home Minister intends that his assurance should be given effect to, instructions ought to be issued at once to these authorities that they should not issue any such notification and that if such notification had been issued, they should be withdrawn. Otherwise, the simple executive assurance given here that meetings can be held without permission is of no use.

So, in order to clarify the position regarding the holding of meetings, instructions should be issued directing that no notification is to be issued under sub-clause (3) banning all sorts of meetings. So far as I have been able to understand, some areas have to be excluded from the purview of that notification. As to that, one must say that there may be some areas in which it may be thought proper to enforce the banning of meetings. I should, however, think that instead of having such a general power of banning all meetings in the province, there is ample power in the ordinary law to prevent such meetings. There is the ordinary law of the land regarding public meetings, by which if there is an apprehension of a breach of the peace it can at once be stopped even without any notification, under the Defence of India Rules. So, in respect of holding meetings I agree with my friend, Mr. Lalit Chandra Das, about including Calcutta also. Instructions should be given saying that no notification should be issued by any District Magistrate or by any other authorities referred to in sub-clause (7) regarding banning of all meetings; otherwise the assurance of the Hon'ble Home Minister will not have any efficacy. If the Home Minister really wants that the public should be given unfettered right to ventilate their grievances, their views and their demands, then the instructions embodied in the notification regarding the holding of public meetings should at once be cancelled and fresh instructions should be issued to the District Magistrate and to other authorities referred to in sub-clause (7) that they should not issue any such notice at all, and further that if they have already issued such notifications they should be publicly withdrawn and rescinded intimating to the public that they are now free to hold meetings. It should be declared that there is now no restriction on the ventilation of public grievances. The situation has changed for the better; and all the world over people are talking of post-war reconstruction and plans for finding out means of improving their standard of life. At a time like this, there should not be any sort of restriction on our power of ventilating our grievances and demands. If I may say so, Sir, with a great deal of sorrow in my heart, the people are suffering miserably at the hands of the profiteers still aided by corrupt officials; therefore at this time the public should not be restrained from ventilating their grievances and bringing the real state of affairs to the notice of the authorities who if they are so minded can very easily give relief to the people. So I would say again that to clarify the position about the holding of public meetings this sort of instruction should be issued to the local authorities concerned—so that the general public may not be afraid of holding meetings and fearlessly criticising the authorities. Of course, if they hold meetings for discussing matters of a prejudicial nature, then for that no notification like the one under discussion is required. The Defence of India Rule is quite enough for the purpose; for if any one commits any action which comes within the definition of "disaffection", then under rule 37 of the Defence of India Rules he cannot escape the penalty. To me, therefore, it seems that the notification is absolutely superfluous and at this particular moment there should not be any such notification banning public meetings.

(At this stage the honourable member reached the time-limit and resumed his seat.)

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Mr. President, Sir, I had no intention to intervene in this debate but for the statement that the Hon'ble the Chief Minister has made. I could not understand exactly what the Chief Minister wanted to convey to us. To my mind it seems that he intends to say that in spite of the notification under the Defence of India Rules you can merrily go on holding meetings unless there is serious apprehension of the breach of peace. He says that meetings can be held everywhere except in Calcutta, Dacca and Midnapore. But I would like to ask the Chief Minister to answer the question as to how can he, being at the head of the executive authority, advise people to go on holding meetings in the face of a notification under the Defence of India Rules? I am quite sure that he knows that offences under the Defence of India Rules are cognisable and non-bailable. People who violate run great risks as they would be at the mercy of the Subdivisional Officer, police officers and others and they are liable to be arrested and imprisoned for the offence of holding a meeting. I would ask the Chief Minister this question and secondly if really there is absolutely no necessity for checking meetings throughout the province save and except in those three places, then why not resort to section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code to deal with the situation? And about leaving out Calcutta, Dacca and Midnapore, I think there is nothing to distinguish these places from other places, except that there were some riots. These are the two points which should be explained by the Chief Minister.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, in spite of my doubts regarding one or two points referred to by the Hon'ble the Home Minister, I feel I must compliment him on the statement which he has made today. Really, it does go a long way towards removing the apprehension both in the public mind and in the minds of the members of this House. I only wish that what he has stated here today on the floor of this House will be made actually a part of an executive order of the Government. For, as has been pointed out by my honourable friend who has just sat down that an assurance from the Hon'ble the Home Minister will not in itself be binding against the declared provision of law; and as the law now stands, meetings cannot be held in any part of Bengal without obtaining previous permission and it is clearly stated that such non-holding of meetings shall come into force on the 24th of August and shall remain in force so long as the Defence of India Rules continue in force. Therefore, I would, first of all, request the Hon'ble the Home Minister to issue an executive order in terms of the statement which he has made on the floor of the House today. If he makes it clear there, as he has made clear to the House today, that there is no intention on the part of the Government to prevent criticism of either their action or of the political condition in the country excepting those which are covered under the existing provisions of the Defence of India Rules, that I am sure will satisfy both the members of this House and the general public. I would, however, at the same time draw his attention to that part of his statement where he said that he made this point quite clear to the District Magistrate of Faridpur. In view of this fact, it is really surprising to find that this particular meeting which is the subject-matter for our discussion today was prohibited by the District Magistrate on the ground of short notice. Therefore, even though the Hon'ble the Home Minister said that it was not the intention of the Ministry to prevent meetings being held in any part of Bengal save and except Calcutta, Dacca and Midnapore, yet that has not been the interpretation which has been put on the order by his own executive officers. And, Sir, if such a mistake has been made by his own executive officers and officers who hold such high posts as those of District Magistrates and Additional District Magistrates, it is easily to be understood that the mistake was not entirely the fault of themselves but that there was a lacuna in the order itself.

I would, in passing, refer to the point stressed by my honourable friends Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee and Mr. Lalit Chandra Das that Calcutta, Dacca and Midnapore should not have been excluded from the list of places where meetings can be held without obtaining previous permission. Sir, Calcutta and Dacca are the centres of public opinion in Bengal and they also are the centres of public activity. Very often when grievances are ventilated at these two places, they receive more immediate attention and are redressed than if such grievances are ventilated in less well-known places. Therefore, I would request the Hon'ble the Home Minister, when he would issue his order, to consider the desirability and also the imperative necessity of including Calcutta and Dacca along with other districts. I also think that in view of the improved situation in Midnapore at present, it should not be excluded. Therefore, Sir, in a way I feel glad that the purpose of my adjournment motion has been served. In so far as it was a protest against the order prohibiting meetings all over Bengal, the Hon'ble the Home Minister has assured us that the Government have no such intention. No doubt, he made a certain reference to the condition of Faridpur in order to justify the action of the District Magistrate there. I would like to remind him that during the period he was in the Opposition no public meeting was banned in Faridpur. I have made it quite clear and it is my belief that these disturbances are very often created by the zealous followers of the Hon'ble Ministers who are apt to run to excesses. I would further remind him that during the period when he was in the Opposition his first meeting in Faridpur was not interfered with, and that he was allowed to hold his first meeting in the town of Faridpur. It was immediately after the loss of his office, and the campaign against the then Ministry was started in the town of Faridpur without any interference from the Government of the day. However, Sir, as I said before, meetings can be held without any disturbance if only some of the followers of the Party, which my honourable friend the Home Minister has the honour to lead, can be restrained, for some times they become very unruly as would be borne out by the Hon'ble Minister himself even to his own cost in the town of Calcutta. As I stated before, the main purpose of my adjournment motion has been served as Government have made it clear that they do not want to interfere with the right of public speech and meetings and that meetings can be held in any part of Bengal even without applying for permission.

These are words which require emphasis and underlining, and therefore we may take it that from today meetings can be held practically all over Bengal barring the two districts of Dacca and Midnapore, and Calcutta without applying for permission. And as it has been practically admitted that some of the District Magistrates have not been able to understand the order whether it is their fault or whether the fault lies in the wording of the communiqué, I do not know, I leave that to the Hon'ble Minister in charge—but since both the points have been conceded, I would like, with the leave of the House, to withdraw my adjournment motion.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I do not want to take much time of the House, Sir, except explaining one or two minor points. It is obvious that so far as the Opposition is concerned, at least Mr. Kabir has fully understood the position of the Government and has had the courage to appreciate that at no time was there any idea of banning public meetings. As regards Faridpur, I may say that when we were in Opposition, at the very first meeting that was held there, the first speaker was immediately arrested and he was pursued up to Chandpur and again arrested. When we were there a second time, the order was passed that in our speeches we must not criticise the Ministry; permission was given subject to that condition. So, the less said about what took place during the regime of the previous Ministry, the better.

I would now say only one word about the speech of my friend, Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee. One disadvantage of manuscript eloquence is that the speaker does not take into consideration all that has been said on the floor of the House and I think Mr. Mukherjee at least owes an apology to the members of the House for misleading them with reference to what he said on the occasion of the last adjournment motion on the 13th June. He quoted me as having said that throughout Bengal permission had been given for holding meetings. As a matter of fact, here I have got a copy of the proceedings of the Council, as printed by the Council Department—"as a matter of fact, except in one or two places you can hold meetings anywhere you like and whatever you like"—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a point of personal explanation, Sir. So far as I remember, I said perhaps that meetings could be held without permission but at that time the Hon'ble Minister did not specifically mention the exclusion of Calcutta, Midnapore and Dacca; he did not mention the three exceptions at the time. If, therefore, there has been any misleading on my part or if any members of this House were misled by what I said then, I withdraw what I said.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Thank you. I have nothing further to add except this that before the 24th of August meetings could be freely held without permission throughout Bengal except at the places I have mentioned. Similarly, after the 24th of August, the same is the position. The law as it stands now does not in any way curtail the right of holding a public meeting. But so far as Calcutta is concerned, here, again, the Commissioner of Police can allow meetings to be held but retains the right of taking action if he finds that speeches are of such a character as to come under the provisions of the Defence of India Rules.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Then, so far as Calcutta is concerned, permission is necessary?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Yes, so far as Calcutta, and the districts of Dacca and Midnapore are concerned. I am, however, prepared to go so far as to say that in view of the improved situation in the Dacca district, the restriction will be confined to the town of Dacca, and that in the rest of the Dacca district meetings may be held without permission. Instructions will be issued to the district authorities accordingly. But so far as Calcutta and Midnapore are concerned, I am afraid I cannot consent to any relaxation beyond what is prevalent at the present time.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of information, Sir. In his last speech in connection with the adjournment motion regarding the Lora Conference, the Hon'ble the Chief Minister did not mention these places but only said excepting one or two places; subsequently, he referred to Calcutta, etc., and said that "in the parks of Calcutta meetings are being held about the Secondary Education Bill....."

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I have already made it clear that the Commissioner of Police in his individual capacity can allow meetings to be held. I do not want to take away the discretion of the Commissioner of Police.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point of information, Sir. What about the legal difficulty that was pointed out by the Chief Minister? As long as that stands, how a press-note can help the people to hold the meeting?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As I have already said, we have instructed the District Magistrates not to prosecute anybody unless they get definite orders. My conversation took place with the District Magistrate of Faridpur on the 24th August, and not before.

Rai KESHBAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Is the Hon'ble Minister in a position to say whether or not permission of the District Magistrate was obtained for holding a meeting supporting the C.R.'s formula in the Dacca town?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have no information.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point of information, Sir. In response to the suggestion of the Chief Minister, I tabled a short-notice question regarding the Howrah Municipality—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As I have already said, I am prepared to issue a further press-note.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Leave has been asked by Mr. Humayun Kabir to withdraw his adjournment motion. Is it the pleasure of the House to allow him to withdraw his motion?

(The motion was then, by leave of the House, withdrawn.)

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill, 1944.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House will now resume discussion on the Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: What about my short-notice question regarding Howrah Municipality?

Mr. PRESIDENT: You mention that to-morrow, please.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: All right, Sir.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: Mr. President, Sir. I have stated at some length the reasons in support of the deletion of clause 49, and before I resume my seat I would like to emphasize that this clause 49 should not be passed, because the principle on which it is based does not apply. The argument that according to the international agreement this provision for relief against double taxation has been incorporated in the income-tax law of different countries does not apply to the case of Bengal, because Bengal really cannot have any reciprocal relief. The residents of Bengal cannot have any actual benefit out of this provision, although residents of other countries may have such benefit. Therefore, there is no reason why Bengal should go to the length of making a provision of this nature. I have already stated that the position in which Bengal finds herself today, I mean her financial position, does not allow her to become generous and that Bengal cannot afford to lose even a pie out of the tax that is leviable under this Bill. Therefore, on that ground also—and that being one of the main grounds of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister for enacting this Bill—no provision should be made for refund of any taxation on the ground of hardship to others. I have submitted that these assesseses or these gentlemen who reside outside Bengal did actually make their money in Bengal from Bengal's agricultural land; so they should not grudge the excess demand that they may be required to pay under their own law in their home countries. Now, it is really a question of domestic taxation and has no analogy to the ordinary income-tax law. Therefore, that analogy should not be extended to the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Law. Lastly, I submit that if they require any relief, they can have that relief by approaching their home countries where they can expect to have this amount of tax deducted as a legitimate expense or allowance. All these considerations would really lead you to this position that this provision is certainly unnecessary, and I would last of all appeal to the Hon'ble Minister and the honourable members to give up their claim, out of generous consideration for Bengal, to have this provision in this Bill.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I support the motion so ably moved by my honourable friend Mr. Nagendra Nath Mahalanabish; but in doing so I do not propose to be long. This clause was not in the original Bill but it was incorporated as an amendment on the motion of one of the members of the European Group. Sir, this clause deals with reciprocal relief in respect of double taxation with other Governments. It is but fair and proper that when there is any question of reciprocal relief, the companies, firms or associations or any person deriving assessable agricultural income from land situated in Bengal shall pay agricultural income-tax in Bengal, even though he or it might have paid income-tax elsewhere in India or outside India on his or its world income including agricultural income derived from lands situate in Bengal. I say that this clause is intended specially to benefit a very large section of His Britannic Majesty's subjects, namely, the European Group who have world income. According to the law prevalent in the United Kingdom, they can easily get relief stating that they have paid so much in Bengal for their income on agricultural land situate in Bengal, but they want something more, and it is this: that having paid there in full for world income they want relief in Bengal, whereas Bengalees will have no such advantage vis-à-vis the United Kingdom as the Bengalees have no agricultural income in Great Britain. So on the face of it, it would not appear to be a fair proposition to insert a provision for reciprocal relief in respect of double taxation with other Governments. In practical operation it will give relief only to those hunters of gold in the world who have an income all over the world and particularly, to the enterprising community, the European Group. So I make an appeal to the gentlemen of the European Group that they should love Bengal and loving Bengal they should not think of reciprocal relief. They should pay fairly and squarely what is due to the Bengal exchequer; they can make their point for relief in Great Britain showing payment in Bengal. That is what I think is just fair and proper. With these words, I support the amendment that this section 49 be deleted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Mr. President, Sir, this clause, which the amendment seeks to eliminate, is a very important one. Clause 49 attempts to compress, within the compass of a single section, the elaborate provisions of sections 49 and 49A of the Indian Income-tax Act. Section 49 of the Indian Income-tax Act deals with reciprocal relief in respect of double taxation between British India and the United Kingdom. Section 49A was later introduced in the body of the Indian Income-tax Act and deals with reciprocal relief between British India and the Dominions and the Indian States. Section 49 is complete in itself and embodies the principle to be applied; but in section 49A there is no provision indicating the principle as to how the rule is to operate. Things have been left to the Executives to prescribe the principles by executive rules. It will, however, be apparent that the principles embodied in section 49 will be followed by the Executives in making the rules under section 49A, as it is to be presumed that the two sections should be read together.

So far as clause 49 of the present Bill is concerned, it has compressed these two sections of the Central Act into one. But while the Central Act has prescribed the principle upon which and the limit up to which the Executives must act, this wholesome principle is entirely missing in clause 49 of the Bill. In the present Bill, the determination of the principle and limit of exemption have been strangely left entirely to executive discretion. No principle or limit has even been indicated in the present clause. Further, the province has been saddled. The principle is extremely attractive, namely, reciprocal relief in respect of double taxation. It is sufficiently attractive and philanthropic persons will rush from their retirement for granting this relief. It is, however, necessary to have a clear idea of reciprocal relief in respect of double taxation. Without a clear comprehension it will be difficult to resist the temptation of the impulse of the moment. It is necessary therefore to consider the limits and the elements of double taxation. Why does relief operate and what is the theory or rather the mechanism of reciprocal relief with regard to the double taxation? Double taxation occurs when resident of a home country derives income in the home and also in another country and when the foreign country imposes a tax upon the income arising within itself and when home country imposes another tax on the same income as part of the assessee's world income. We have instances of double taxation in India from a very long time. There is the Baranagore Jute Mill which pays Indian Income-tax because it is working in India; it also pays the United Kingdom tax, because it operates from that place as it is registered there.

Then the next question would be how does relief operate. Relief is granted in this way that United Kingdom grants relief to the extent of half its own rate. Assuming the United Kingdom rate to be 90 pies in the rupee and the Indian rate is 60 pies in the rupee, the United Kingdom will grant relief to the extent of half its own rate, that is, 45 pies in the rupee. There will then be a balance of 15 pies which is to be relieved. The effect of this would be: once the relief comes from the United Kingdom and again from the Indian Exchequer. The original tax was 90 pies in the rupee. By reduction the balance remaining in the hands of the United Kingdom Exchequer would be 45 pies. The tax realised at the first instance by the Indian Income-tax authorities would be 60 pies and after granting relief to the extent of 15 pies the balance would be 45 pies, so that it is so adjusted that a higher rate, that is, 90 pies in the rupee (English rate) would be divided equally between the United Kingdom Exchequer and the Indian Exchequer. That is how the relief operates.

Then, we come to the more important subject, namely, reciprocal relief. What is reciprocity? It would be quite clear when, so far as British India is concerned, that is, the Central Government is concerned, it has certain advantages over Bengal. In fact, the Central Exchequer can impose taxes extra-territorially. But Bengal cannot impose taxes on income which accrues outside it. Similarly, the United Kingdom would try to tax their assesseees for their home income as well as outside income. This power of extra-territorial operation in the matter of taxation is extremely important. Though India can tax an Indian for income which accrues in India and also in the United Kingdom, it is a matter of frequent occurrence that many assesseees having English income while in India—they are the holders of British securities, share-holders of British companies and buyers of British investments—have to pay English tax while in India; and then Indians have also to pay British income-tax provided they have an income accruing in the United Kingdom. So that is the position of Indians. Then it follows that in refunding the double taxation India has certain advantages as well as disadvantages. India participates in foreign taxation and British India must in equity return extra taxation. There is mutuality between India and the United Kingdom in the matter of taxation. They can have friendly encouragement and therefore by operation of this whenever there is double taxation, India as well as the United Kingdom must agree to share the loss and then share the larger tax, half and half. This is the theory upon which the relief operates and this is the theory behind the mutuality of the reciprocity. There will be no reciprocity in the matter of mere contribution for certain loss which was caused not by anything done in India but elsewhere. There is the advantage of taxation and there must be the disadvantages of participating in refunds. That is how Indians stand vis-a-vis the United Kingdom authorities.

Similarly, an Indian State can have extra-territorial operation so far taxation is concerned. The Dominions have always extra-territorial operation in this respect. They can tax income arising in distant fields outside their own geographical limits. This right of extra-territorial taxation is the basis of the liability to refund extra-territorial taxation. Then again, it is necessary to appreciate the necessity at first of levying a higher tax and then refunding it. The reason is rather departmental. First of all, the Bengal tax at the maximum rate is imposed on a Bengal Company. Then certain refunds are given bringing down the tax to a lower rate. Then, whenever an individual tax-payer's rate is considered, the case is again considered by the taxing authorities. Then, if any tax has been paid along with the dividend, that also is taken into account and there is a further reduction down to the personal rate of the tax-payer. The policy of the taxing authorities in this case is to lay the onus on the assesseees individually to show their total income and to secure a refund by adjustment. That liability to show the entire income is at the base of the scheme of refund. If the taxing authorities instead of going through this adjustment business went through the process of taxing every share-holder of a company with regard to his own personal rate, then the work involved would be administratively impossible. The best thing is to tax a company at the full rate and then to leave the share-holder to work out his own rate and get further refund. This is the reason why first of all 90 pies in the rupee is imposed on foreign income by the United Kingdom taxing authorities and again a 60 pies tax is imposed by the Indian taxing authorities, and then the actual rate is subsequently adjusted. Of course, there are other individual adjustments. Now, the case for clause 49 is this: that if any agricultural income accrues in Bengal, we may impose a tax on this income. The clause has been intended to operate in favour of certain tea companies which are incorporated in the United Kingdom but which are working in Bengal. If a tea company makes an income here in Bengal, 60 per cent. of the income is regarded as agricultural income and 40 per cent. as non-agricultural income. On the 60 per cent. of its income, a tea company will have to pay the Bengal tax. On the remaining 40 per cent. of the company's income, they have got to pay a tax to the Indian income-tax authorities at the rate of 60 pies in the rupee and then the whole income, including the agricultural and the non-agricultural, is subject to a tax in the home country at the United Kingdom rate of 90 pies. So far as the non-agricultural tax is concerned, there is the arrangement for reciprocal relief given by section 49 of the Indian Income-tax Act. It is argued on that analogy that as Bengal has levied a tax on this income and as England also has levied another tax on the same income, therefore there is double taxation and so there should be reciprocal relief. I do not deny that there should be relief; but I deny that there should be or could be any reciprocal relief, because there is no reciprocity between Bengal and the United Kingdom in this respect. Bengal has no right to levy any tax on agricultural income that accrues in England; all the agricultural income that accrues to a Bengalee in the United Kingdom will go to the benefit of the Indian taxing authorities. It is only agricultural income in India that is forbidden to the Indian taxing authorities; but any agricultural income accruing outside India will be available for taxation to the Indian taxing authorities. Bengal has no right to participate in any agricultural income of a Bengalee accruing outside Bengal. That is the difference. There is no mutuality between the United Kingdom and Bengal except in the matter of contribution. Bengal does not participate in the taxing benefits and so it should not be asked to contribute towards the relief of the tax. It has been said that Bengal tax is a domestic tax. Bengal does not derive any extra-territorial tax, while the United Kingdom does, and so there is no comparison between the two. There is no analogy. The question is one of give and take. In case of Bengal it does not take but in the matter of refunds it only gives. There should be no liability to contribute if there is no right to impose extra-territorial tax. I think these considerations alone would be quite enough to rule out the application of clause 49 so far as Bengal is concerned.

Then, there are further complications. I have already stated that there is no mutuality. It is often said that at present the Bengal tax is only 30 pies in the rupee, which is less than half the English tax and for some time this will remain so. It is believed rather widely that this Bengal tax of 30 pies in the rupee is just only a thin end of the wedge. More is expected, and I do not at all grudge the Finance Minister demanding more. Bengal needs money. The principle of agricultural income-tax has been accepted by us and if more is needed Bengal should be ready to pay. In fact, if the money is needed for supplying the needs of Bengal, I do not think there will be any harm in Bengal agreeing to pay higher tax and then as it happened after the last war, the English rate rapidly came down. So, by the operation of two causes—the reduction of the United Kingdom rate and the enhancement of the Bengal rate—the safety limit will be crossed, and then Bengal will be asked to contribute. So the danger of contribution is there and that is no reason why clause 49 has been inserted by way of anticipation. If clause 49 could be inserted by way of anticipation, it is necessary that the anticipation should be a real risk of real contribution. Then, if Bengal rate goes up to 60 pies and the English rate remains at 90 pies, the same situation will occur. The United Kingdom will relieve the tax to the extent of 45 pies, and that is the war-cry of the supporters of this clause. I believe Mr. Laidlaw, who is the spokesman of the European Group for whom I have the highest respect, in order to justify clause 49 should have laid down the law for us. Now, Mr. Laidlaw must certainly lay down the law and he will not waylay or mislay it. I hope he will try to answer some of the questions which are suggested to him. It is by way of friendly suggestion that I speak. I believe that very high hopes lie behind this mistaken conception of clause 49. It simply looks at the double taxation. It has become a slogan:

"double taxation must be relieved. England has relieved it to the extent of 45 pies and so Bengal should relieve it by 15 pies". I am prepared to show that that fear is absolutely unfounded. Supposing this clause is not passed and is deleted what will happen? Will there be double taxation so far as the unrelieved 15 pies is concerned? My answer is "No". I shall quote high authority for that proposition. In fact, I have found the whole law considered by Halsbury's Laws of England, Volume XVII, page 323, Article 642. That is the greatest authority so far as the statement of laws of England are concerned. This book deals with the very question in hand. What will happen to a United Kingdom Company which has paid Bengal income-tax at a certain rate and which is relieved by the Home Exchequer only to a fractional extent leaving a balance? What will happen to this unrelieved balance? Will this income suffer double taxation to the extent of unrelieved balances? The answer is "No". If the United Kingdom authorities find that no provision is made in any Dominion or any taxing unit anywhere in the world, then these home authorities will give a further relief to the extent of the unrelieved balance, i.e., 15 pies in the rupee.

With regard to the balance of the 15 pies in the rupee, what the home authorities will do is to allow an exemption or deduction, that is to say, a refund to the company next year. The relevant passage is extremely important and on that the whole case for clause 49 hinges. Clause 49 depends upon a possible unrelieved double taxation. If clause 49 is not passed, that is, if Bengal has made no provision for the relief of the unrelieved double taxation, then the United Kingdom Exchequer will come forward and make a second refund and relieve the balance. So the tax-payer is entirely compensated so far as double taxation is concerned. I will only quote a few words from Halsbury. It says: "Where relief is not granted in a Dominion in respect of payment of the United Kingdom tax deduction is allowed in estimating the income for the purposes of the United Kingdom tax of an amount equal to the difference between the Dominion income-tax paid and the total relief allowed from the United Kingdom tax for the period on the income on which the assessment or the charge to the United Kingdom tax is computed." A plain paraphrase of this would be that if Bengal does not make any provision for reciprocal relief, the consequence of this would be that first of all the home exchequer will make an initial refund of 45 pies and if there is a balance, the difference between this refund and the Bengal tax would again be refunded by the home authorities. The same has been elaborated in an illustrative footnote in the same passage where it says: "Assume that in a certain year the Dominion tax paid was £50, and the total United Kingdom relief allowed was £25. In assessing the income to United Kingdom income-tax for the following year, a deduction of £25 is allowable from the amount of the assessment." So, if the tax-payer is relieved, first, to the extent of £25 out of £50, then in connection with the assessment for the next year the balance will be relieved from the next year's tax. So a complete deduction will be made by the home authorities and the tax-payer will be completely relieved. Therefore there is in reality no question of any unrelieved balance. And that is how the matter stands. Then, may I ask if a United Kingdom Tea Company is completely relieved with regard to the assessment of the British tax by the United Kingdom Exchequer in two instalments, he has any grievance. The effect of a double relief by the United Kingdom is this: It adjusts the tax to be relieved by the two countries. So far as the tax-payer is concerned, he is entirely relieved. The entire business of relief and its mechanism concerns itself with the allocation or adjustment of the loss between the two countries. The House will be pleased to consider that the United Kingdom tax is 90 pies in the rupee and that the Bengal tax may be assumed to be 60 pies in the rupee. This 60 pies must be relieved.

England initially relieves it to the extent of 45 pies and India 15 pies. So, the net gain between India and England would be India 45 and United Kingdom 45 and loss to the United Kingdom income-tax would be 45 and for India it would be 15 pies. Therefore, the effect of this operation is merely to allocate the loss between the two countries. The matter is between the two exchequers. In fact, I think Mr. Churchill should write to Sir Nazimuddin for mutual relief. A tea company incorporated in England has no locus standi in the matter and also no interest in the matter. This controversy has nothing to do with it. Mr. Churchill is a rich man spending Rs. 20 crores a day and the exchequer is in the hands of a man who had been a Governor of Bengal, I mean Sir John Anderson, during the critical period of our life. I do not think they will condescend to ask Bengal to contribute 15 pies in the rupee. They will certainly appreciate that Bengal has no extra-territorial income and so should not be asked to contribute. This clause 49 is a mistake. We only find our Finance Minister and the third party, Sir John Anderson, is not present here.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, may I suggest that the question be now put.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Now, Sir, there is no interest of any third party involved in the question.

So far as the reciprocal business between India and the United Kingdom is concerned, there was a conference between the representatives of the Indian Government and the representatives of the Home Government. They discussed various questions and it was found that this full taxation and partial relief gives great profit to the taxing countries. So far as Bengal is concerned, there is no profit, there is only loss. So the effect of all this is that Bengal is asked to contribute without any corresponding advantage. The analogy between the United Kingdom and India does not apply. I think this consideration should, in addition, be enough to dispose of the case of clause 49.

Then coming to the details of the clause, I shall deal only with one aspect of the thing, and I shall show how the draftsman proceeded to blindly copy the provisions of the Indian Income-tax Act. It is said that reciprocal refund of taxation should be extended between the provinces, not merely between Bengal and the Indian States, between Bengal and the Dominions, between Bengal and the United Kingdom but between Bengal and the 10 other provinces. I shall show how great a blunder underlies this conception. The whole idea is that there should be a provision for relief of double taxation between the provinces. I may ask the honourable members to subdue their voices for a minute and to consider whether there would be any double taxation between the provinces. If there is an agricultural income-tax in Bengal and it is taxed by Bengal, can we tax the agricultural income of a Bengalee accruing in Assam? The area of Bengal tax is confined within its geographical limit. Bengal cannot tax any income arising in Assam—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur, how long will you take to finish?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: About 10 or 15 minutes.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You have already spoken for a very long time.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, the reason is that this is a very important clause, and you yourself said on a previous occasion that this question can be discussed on the floor of the House and opinions may be elicited thereby.

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right. But please try to cut short.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: As I said just now, there can be double taxation between the provinces. I have got an agricultural income which arose in Assam. I have a dividend warrant with me which shows a deduction of Assam Agricultural Income-tax. Can it be taxed by Bengal so as to enable me to procure reciprocal relief? I think that double taxation between the provinces is a huge blunder and a myth. The provision is based upon a mistake. The provision will have no application whatsoever. In these circumstances, I beg to submit that the question of double taxation between the provinces will never arise. Then, as between Bengal and the Indian States, we do not know their taxing law. We are asked to take relief in the Dominions, but we do not know the taxing law of the Dominions. We do not know the conditions on which they work, and we do not know whether there are taxing rules and refunding rules. The clause empowers the Government to make rules for refund, if it appears to the Government that the other Governments make similar provisions. There are technical questions of ascertaining the exact amount which has suffered double taxation. In fact, there are different rules as to exemptions and exceptions. The exact amount which has suffered double taxation in the two countries is difficult to determine. The next point is as to whether the decision should be left to the department. The department has no experience, no knowledge of the taxing laws in the different countries or units. In these circumstances, it will be dangerous to leave to the department the decision of questions of principle. They should have been enacted in the clause of the Bill itself. For all these considerations, I would submit that clause 49 is a mistake. The question of double taxation does not arise. In this connection, I am reminded of the number 49 which is always full of mischief. There is no double taxation, no mutuality either. So clause 49 suffers from two mistakes. A scientific man once asked a village cockney to define a lobster. The answer of the cockney was that a lobster was a red fish. The scientific man smiled and said that it was an excellent definition of lobster, but that it was mistaken in two particulars, namely, that it was neither red nor was it a fish. I do not say that clause 49 is not an excellent clause making a provision for reciprocal relief in case of double taxation. It is an excellent provision but it has only two mistakes, namely, there is neither any double taxation nor is there reciprocity.

With these few words, I shall conclude my speech. I believe that I have made it plain that I am opposed to the principles of the law embodied in this clause.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Sir, I rise to support the amendment that clause 49 should not find a place in the Statute. Already this matter has been discussed threadbare. There is one aspect of the matter that I would like particularly to lay stress on. To me it appears that clause 49 is inherently bad, because it falls within the mischief of what is called "delegated legislation". It is the Legislature only which can legislate. The Legislature has not been given the power or authority under the Government of India Act to delegate the power of legislation to the Executive. No doubt, it is a well-recognised principle that the Legislature may give the right to the Executive to make rules and that this has been done in the case of the present Bill also, for in section 57 of this Bill provision has been made empowering the Government to frame rules. These rules, however, are not for making any new enactment but only for putting into operation the provisions of the law. So far as clause 49 is concerned, it embodies the principle of refund of agricultural income-tax and this principle has been applied in respect of other Acts also. The principle on which relief should be given it is for the Legislature to lay down. But it is very peculiar that in clause 49 of this Bill the question as to what kind of relief should be given, and what should be the extent of that relief and further what should be the mode of that relief—all these have been left to the Provincial Government.

I would like to point out that this is nothing but delegating power of legislation to the Provincial Government, a thing which is inherently repugnant, and which has been condemned as absolutely invalid in connection with recent cases relating to the Ordinances. This point has been discussed both before the High Court and the Federal Court. Now, it appears that a provision akin to that finds a place in the British Finance Act of 1920 to which reference has been made by my honourable friend, Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad; but there it was not left to the Government to provide what kind of relief is to be given. It has been laid down in section 27 of the British Finance Act that the Legislature has to provide as to what extent the relief would be given, to whom relief would be given and from what fund refund is to be given. Looking to the draft, it appears that it is almost a replica of section 49(a) of the Indian Income-tax. It is really a copy of that Act. There it is said that the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make provision. There under section 49 it is the Legislature that makes provision for giving relief. Apparently, the logical interpretation of section 49(a) of the Indian Income-tax Act would only mean that the procedural portion would be left to the Executive. Here, strangely enough, nowhere in the whole Bill there is any provision to cover where there is double taxation. This delegation of authority to the Provincial Government or to the executive authority is not good. This sort of unfettered delegation of authority to the Executive should not be allowed. Even the Government of India Act does not contemplate the giving of this power. So, I would warn the Government itself that it will be an invalid law if this clause is incorporated in the Bill, as it would come within the mischief of delegated legislation. I say again that nowhere in the Act or in the Bill there is any provision to show that any relief in the shape of refund can be given. Apparently, it contemplates only relief in the shape of refund. This matter particularly should be taken note of. Of course, by majority of votes this clause will be passed but that will not make valid an apparently invalid law. And it would be nothing new. You know, Sir, that some of the legislations recently passed by the Provincial Legislature have been pronounced by the highest court to be invalid with the stricture that they were enacted by incompetent authorities. Here again we are going to enact a similar legislation. We cannot approve of the principle that the power to make law should be handed over to the Executive. It is really delegating the power of making the law to the Provincial Government. It is not only invalid but at the same time it is transgressing the authority of the House and indeed the House would be stultifying itself by delegating that power to the Executive. Looking to the principle underlying this particular clause, it may be said that a similar agricultural income-tax was also enacted in the province of Assam, and indeed this clause is particularly intended for giving relief to the tea-planters. So apparently it is the tea-planters who are intended to be benefited by the inclusion of this clause 49. Majority of the tea-planters are practically working within the province of Assam. But the Assam Agricultural Income-tax has made no such provision for giving relief in respect of refund. It is really strange that Bengal should go out of its way to give the refund. Looking to the principle enunciated in the laws of the United Kingdom itself, we find that the Finance Act of 1920, section 27, provides that relief can be given in respect of tax paid—

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: On a point of order, Sir. Is the Hon'ble Minister entitled to discuss matters in this House with outsiders? There is a decision by the late President that members are not entitled to talk to others who are outside the Council.

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW (Chairman): I expect he was taking their advice.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: There also a similar question did arise, namely, if the same party has to pay tax on the same income to the United Kingdom, whether the Dominions will be asked to claim a refund from the mother country. The United Kingdom agreed to give the refund, but here we have quite a contrary principle, namely, that it is Bengal that will give the refund and not the United Kingdom. They earn their income here and carry it to the United Kingdom and although the United Kingdom gets the benefit of that income, the refund is to be made by the Government of Bengal. Nothing, Sir, can be more unfair and improper than that. We do not get the advantage of the income; that income is not used in this country; only that income accrues here. We help in the accrual of that income; they earn it but do not spend it here. The income is spent in the United Kingdom and yet the refund will have to be made by the Government of Bengal, —quite contrary to the principle of their own Act. So I say, first of all, it is objectionable on the ground that there is the danger of delegated legislation in this case. Such power should not be given to the Executive at all and questions will be raised as to whether this is legal, whether such a law can be enacted by the Government at all. So that if the House agrees to this proposition, it will only be stultifying itself. It is also a valid and cardinal principle that a man is entitled to get a refund only from the country which derives any benefit from the income and not from the country where the income accrues. So a clever manipulation was made: leave the power to the Government and they will make adequate provision for the purpose. Instead of making a clear provision to that effect and laying it before the House as to what kind of relief should be given, and what is the extent of that relief, only a very short provision is made, a short provision no doubt, but a provision pregnant with serious consequences. The Provincial Government should not be given this power to make any provision in respect of relief and I would therefore say that this clause should be deleted and should not find a place in the statute. Further, I do not think that any party considerations should intervene in this matter. We have seen enough of party considerations in respect of some of the laws passed here. The laws should be passed only after taking into consideration the best interests of the country and of the people. In regard to such a provision which affects the main principle of taxation and of refund, we should rise above party politics and unanimously reject this clause 49.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I would like to support the motion that has been moved about the deletion of clause 49 of the Bill. I do not know who is responsible for the drafting of this clause as it stands in the Bill. If we look at the history of this clause itself you will find that in the Bill as published in the Calcutta Gazette on the 26th of August, 1943, this clause was clause 47 and it stood exactly in the form in which it now stands in the Bill. When the Bill went to the Select Committee in the Lower House, the Select Committee reported on the Bill, and we find that clauses 47 and 48 dealing with analogous subjects, as follows: "As the scope of the Bill is limited to income derived exclusively from lands and originating exclusively within Bengal, we are of opinion that any provision for relief of double taxation is not appropriate and that the responsibility for relief of double taxation, if any, is on the country, etc....." We find one of the signatories to the Select Committee report is our Finance Minister, the Hon'ble Mr. Goswami, now in charge of the Bill. That Select Committee wanted to delete these two clauses 47 and 48. We find a note of dissent by Mr. Royen Hodge, a member of the Bengal Legislative Assembly, who in his remarks on clause 47 and clause 48 states inter alia that "As regards the United Kingdom where relief is given first by His Majesty's Government on the present rate.....".

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Mukherjee, I think you cannot refer to the report of the Select Committee because that is not before us. We are considering the Bill as passed by the other House.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: But, Sir, in dealing with the Bill we have to refer to the history of the Bill. It is a question of legislation and whenever a House deals with legislation it is entitled to look to the history of the whole thing, because an Act is a joint product of both the Houses.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is so; but it has never been the practice to refer to the Select Committee report of the other House.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point of privilege, Sir. We have the privilege of referring to the history of the Bill we consider here. In the House of Commons it is also the same. In other Houses of Legislature the practice is the same—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I have understood your point.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: How can you understand my point when I have not finished?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Your point does not require much clarification. All I say is that this has never been the practice.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: That does not matter.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It matters very much. We have to follow the tradition—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: But, Sir, the report of the Select Committee should be allowed to be read—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. You must not talk simultaneously with the Chair.

It is not the practice to refer in detail to the proceedings of the other House, especially to the report of any Select Committee. The Select Committee reports to that House and this House has nothing to do with it.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, there might be some members present here who gave certain opinion on certain facts and we can go into that as far as this matter is concerned. The Finance Minister was there and he gave certain opinions and we can certainly refer to them.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, you can certainly mention the facts without referring to the report of the Select Committee. There is no objection to your stating the fact but you should not make a reference pointedly to the report of the Select Committee of the other House.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I do not understand ভাতে কি মহাভারত অঙ্কন হবে। You are the custodian of the rights and privileges of this House and as such you should—

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is not a question of the rights and privileges of the House? It is a question of procedure. Mr. Mukherjee, will you please resume your speech?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I quite appreciate that the report of the Select Committee should not be referred to, as you have stated and I can refer to the facts mentioned in the Select Committee and that is exactly what I was doing and nothing else. As a matter of fact, in dealing with the facts I am certainly entitled to state something which is stated by other members so that it may not be suggested that I am misquoting.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You realise, Mr. Mukherjee, that it is not the practice here to refer directly to the proceedings of the other House.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Now, Sir, that is the position and the matter was discussed and we find that the clause has been inserted. I am not going to move the reasons and circumstances under which this clause was re-inserted in the Bill in the Lower House. Now, Sir, let us consider the various aspects of the clause itself. I will first of all deal with the legality of certain clauses of the Bill. Now, if we refer to clause 49(2) and then again sub-clause (a) which says: "For the purposes of this section 'other income-tax' means any income-tax, super-tax or sur-tax charged under—

(a) any law of a province other than Bengal in force in that province." we find that the principle provided is that the Provincial Government should be allowed to grant relief if any other province has imposed a tax on agricultural income which is dealt with by the present Agricultural Income-tax Bill which is to be in force in Bengal. Let us now consider whether any other province is under the constitution entitled to impose any tax on agricultural income in Bengal. Now, Sir, if we look to item 41 in List II of the Seventh Schedule, it will be found that agricultural income is an exclusively provincial subject and therefore one province cannot tax agricultural income of another province. Therefore, in the first instance the reference to sub-clause (a) in sub-clause (2) of clause 49 seems to be inappropriate and is likely to bring in confusion. I, therefore, submit that if we do not delete this clause, then we shall be enacting something which is not in accord with the Constitution. Therefore, I say that as far as sub-clause (a) of sub-clause (2) of clause 49 is concerned, it has got to go away from the Bill.

Now let us consider the other sub-clauses in this clause. After (a) and (b) of sub-clause (2), we find the following: where the laws of such Province, State or part of His Majesty's Dominions or of the United Kingdom, as the case may be, provide for relief in respect of tax charged on income both in such Province, State or part of His Majesty's Dominions, or in the United Kingdom, as the case may be, and in Bengal, which appears to the Provincial Government to correspond to the relief which may be granted under this section.

I do not know that any Dominions of His Majesty is entitled to raise any tax on agricultural income—I lay stress on this—on the income in this province and I submit that unless this point is cleared up this provision also seems to be inappropriate. What really has been done is that the United Kingdom Finance Act has imposed a tax on all incomes outside Britain and within the Dominions including India and that is to be found in the various Finance Acts of the United Kingdom. Now with regard to that, I made my position quite clear when I moved other amendments with reference to this Bill and I would only make a short reference to that only so far as the United Kingdom tax is concerned. With regard to that the position is this: under section 27 of the Finance Act, the United Kingdom will give relief to the extent of half the Dominion rate or the rate which is charged in any other country outside Britain. The taxation which we are levying so far as the tea companies are concerned is 30 pies in the rupee; that is 2 annas and 6 pies in the rupee. Now the United Kingdom tax is, I believe, 10 s. in the pound and therefore half of the income is levied as tax in the United Kingdom.

In the United Kingdom, a tax-payer gets a relief to the extent of half the tax which is paid here, he gets the entire amount which he pays here from the United Kingdom itself. Therefore, there is nothing to be relieved so far as the present rate is concerned and I hope the European members will support the motion. They have nothing to be afraid of so far as the present rate is concerned.

Now, let me consider the question from the point of view which has been submitted by my honourable friend Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta, namely, what is the power which the Provincial Legislature wants to retain under this clause. We have been asked to pass a measure by which we are to delegate our authority of legislation to the Provincial Government by authorising them to make provision for granting relief in respect of agricultural income. I submit this matter has got to be seriously considered. If it is outside the scope of the Provincial Legislature to delegate its authority of legislation to the Provincial Government and the clause should not be allowed to retain in the shape in which it stands at present.

Now, before referring to the provision of the Indian Income-tax Act itself, I would refer the Hon'ble Minister to the parent provision in the Indian Income-tax which the Hon'ble Minister quotes frequently. We may read section 49 of the Indian Income-tax Act and see whether the Central Legislature was requested by the Central Government to give to them a delegated authority of the nature which the Provincial Government wants in this clause. We find in the Central Act how relief is to be granted but there is no delegation at all. Under section 27 of the Indian Act we find that he shall be entitled to a refund of a sum equal to the difference between Indian rate of tax and the rate at which he was entitled to obtain relief under that section. I would request the Hon'ble Minister to make note of this. Therefore, it seems that clause 49 does not contemplate any delegation of authority to the Central Government to issue by notification the extent of the relief which the tax-payer has to get from the hands of the Central Income-tax authorities.

Now let us consider clause 49A of the Bill. Clause 49A of the Indian Income-tax Act was subsequently introduced by reason of an amendment which was passed in 1939 and which was inserted by section 58 of the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Act (Act VII of 1939). Now, clause 49A of the Indian Income-tax is in the following words:—

“49A. (1) The Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, make provision for the granting of relief in respect of income on which has been paid both income-tax (including super-tax) under this Act and Dominion income-tax.”

Now, here you will find mention is made with reference to “Dominion income-tax” which are as follows:—

“(2) For the purposes of this section ‘Dominion income-tax’ means any income-tax or super-tax charged under any law in force in any Indian State or in any part of His Majesty’s Dominions (other than the United Kingdom) where the laws of that State or part provide for relief in respect of tax charged on income both in that State or part and in British India which appears to the Central Board of Revenue to correspond to the relief which may be granted by this section.”

Now, Sir, the Hon'ble the Finance Minister may state that there is some amount of delegated authority. The delegated authority comes in only because it is not sure whether any Dominion has yet fixed any tax upon the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Act. On the contrary, you will find that section 49A expressly includes the words “United Kingdom”, because the United Kingdom is provided in section 49 of the Act, and there we find definite rules laid down for the purpose of granting relief. Now, Sir, if we look to the Bill itself as published in the Calcutta Gazette, we find that there was a similar provision in clause 48 of the Bill and so far as the Bill that we are now considering is concerned, I do not find clause 48 which was there in the Bill as published in the Calcutta Gazette and it is not to be found in the Bill as passed by the Lower House. Now, the salutary provision which is there is the clause 49 which we are now referring to and which includes all reliefs to be granted with reference to taxes in the Dominions, in the provinces and in the United Kingdom. I submit, Sir, that this is a clause which ought to have been seriously considered before it was drafted in a way it has been done, and it would have been better if the clause had been split up and drafted in the manner in which we find it in the Indian Income-tax Act so that we might have some definiteness as to the extent of the relief which the assessee would be entitled to claim under clause 49 of the Bill. As the Bill stands at present we have no other alternative but to move for the deletion of the clause so that in the first place the illegal provision may not remain in the Bill; in the second place the provision which is ultra vires may not be there; and thirdly, the Provincial Government is not given this weapon which may be used by them for compelling the European members to support them.

I do not think that the House should be asked to give a weapon of this kind to the Government, whatever may be the composition of the Government be. In the first instance, as has been already pointed out that this is a clause which does not seem to be in accordance with the provisions of the Government of India Act and the powers of the provincial legislature. Now I may refer to one or two sections of the Government of India Act for the purpose of considering the question as to whether this matter could be delegated to the provincial executive in the manner in which it has been intended to be done. Now, Sir, so far as the provinces are concerned, it will be found that Part III of the Government of India Act deals with Governor's Provinces, Chapter I deals with the Provinces and Chapter II with the provincial executive and the powers of the provincial executive are defined in Chapter II of the Act. We find different provisions mentioned in that chapter. Then comes Chapter III which deals with the Provincial Legislature and the powers of the Provincial Legislature for the purpose of passing Bills and the Bills go through the proper authorities for assent till they become law. We do not find any provision any where in Chapter III whereby the provincial executive can be given delegated power. I would refer to a particular part of the section, where for instance there is the question of the finance of the Government of Bengal, namely, Bengal's exchequer. And so far as finance is concerned, we are asked to give to the Provincial Government power for the purpose of abrogating a part of the province's income which is enacted in other portions of the Act. By reason of this abrogation in favour of certain classes of assessee the provincial exchequer will lose a part of the income. I submit that this is a very serious matter and Government should consider seriously whether this clause should be allowed to be retained in the form in which it now stands or should be changed to the form in which it appears in section 49 of the Indian Income-tax Act, so that it may have some definiteness as in that Act.

With these words, I support the amendment which seeks to delete clause 49.

MR. PRESIDENT: Hon'ble Minister.

MR. W. B. G. LAIDLAW: May I have a few words? I shall be very brief.

MR. PRESIDENT: Yes, Mr. Laidlaw.

MR. W. B. G. LAIDLAW: Mr. President, in my view the importance of this clause compared with the rest of the Bill has been greatly exaggerated. On the one hand, the importance of the Bill cannot possibly be too highly emphasised and more particularly the effect of the new tax which the Bill seeks to introduce in respect of agricultural incomes in Bengal. I am not going to attempt to go through all the details in the working of this section: I merely want to draw the attention of this House to one point. When we are considering a Bill introducing a new and quite revolutionary tax so far as Bengal is concerned, we have got to take every possible precaution to mitigate the effects of the new tax on the economic structure which has been built up. I must say that the effect of double taxation relief has been exaggerated. I say that the mere existence of double taxation is an argument for providing a section to mitigate the effects of it not merely from the point of view of the tax-payer but from the Government's point of view. I do not know whether it is fully realised that when double taxation occurs by reason of the fact that capital is being brought into a country from another country, the burden of taxation falls on the borrower country. The House will admit that the burden naturally falls on the shoulders of the borrower country. Is it necessary to explain that? It seems fairly evident. Because all money has a price. When you want finance, you have to pay for it. If by introducing a tax on the return of that money which is the price for borrowing it you reduce the net figure, then normally the lender raises the price next time. Therefore, from that point of view it is said that the burden of this type of double taxation falls not on the lender country, not on the United Kingdom, but on Bengal and therefore it is necessary to have some machinery, some means of mitigating the effect of that. It is not essential as far as we can see that this machinery should be brought into force immediately. But it is advisable, it is a matter of common foresight to provide for some means of mitigating the effect of double taxation. For example, the case of a tea company has been very much quoted. If you look at the section, you will find that there is no immediate effect of it as far as Bengal is concerned. If a tea company pays 2½ annas in Bengal and 8 annas in the United Kingdom the whole of the relief will be within the United Kingdom Exchequer. In the future, I think Government may find it necessary to raise the rate of tax in Bengal and the Hon'ble the Finance Minister will have to consider what is going to be the effect on this capital which is being supplied to Bengal. It is then that he will have to act or may have to act under his section.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Mr. President, Sir, if it is the decree of the Providence that after a few years I should be called upon to write an 'apologia', I will have to make many apologies to God and to men existing under the sun and to the posterity for many acts of omission and commission on my part. But I am certain that I shall not make any apology on my own behalf for the enactment of clause 49 of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Act. If I have to make any apology in that connection, I will have to make an apology on behalf of the erring and perverse humanity who seek to mislead the public by misinterpreting a very innocent clause. Let me refer to the speech of my honourable friend Mr. Mahalanobish. I am thankful to him that very likely due to the very lucid exposition on the subject by me on a previous occasion he was able to make a very clear analysis of clause 49. I am still more thankful to Mr. Mahalanobish for having proved that having made a clear analysis of clause 49 it was very difficult for him to put up a case for the Opposition. Let me say this, and I should be very brief, that Government cannot act under the provision of this clause except under certain conditions, namely, (1) when there is double taxation between Bengal and another country, (2) when the other country provides for some relief for double taxation and if relief is necessary the other country not having provided for the whole of the relief, and (3) provision of the relief in the two countries should be reciprocally and mutually agreed upon.

Sir, I agreed to the incorporation of this clause because I feel that it was appropriate that such a clause should find place in an Income-tax Bill. I cannot foresee that. I wonder if my honourable friends of the European Party can foresee a time when the rate of taxation in the United Kingdom will be less than double the rate of tax provided in this Bill or that our rate of tax will come up to more than half the United Kingdom rate, or to that extent the relief that a United Kingdom tax-payer gets is from the United Kingdom Treasury and not from Bengal.

Then, Sir, it is a purely permissive clause. A situation may arise when Bengal Government may feel called upon to arrange for relief for double taxation on the basis of some kind of reciprocity. That situation may arise, when I do not know, in some distant future and I do not see why our Bill should not follow the Indian Income-tax Act in this respect. In the case of the Indian Income-tax Act, that contingency may arise much sooner than in the case of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Act. But even so, I think it is right—and I say this at the risk of repetition, it is right that such a clause providing for reciprocal relief should find a place in this Bill. I was somewhat confused by Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta's argument and I wonder whether his mind was not also slightly confused. He referred to clause 49 as an instance of delegated legislation. Sir, this is not an instance of delegated legislation. It is a power of delegation; power is delegated to certain authorities. If that is invalid, then the Defence of India Act is invalid and many other Acts also are invalid. The question whether an order or a rule under a particular law is valid or invalid is another matter but the power to delegate the authority of the Legislature belongs to the Legislature—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point of information, Sir, as to whether it is not rather a pistol pointed at the heads of the voters—

Mr. PRESIDENT: What is your point of information?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Regarding this delegated authority, namely, that the Executive will do this and that provided the House or the Legislature gives them the power to do this and that. That is a pistol levelled against the heads of the voters, namely, that unless the voters vote this way, the Executive will not take certain action, etc. That is my point of enquiry.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I fail to understand what Mr. Mazumdar means; perhaps he does not understand it himself. Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta referred to the Assam Act. May I tell him that under section 39 of the Assam Act a similar provision has been introduced in January, 1944, through a rule. Now, Sir, reference was made to the text of the Bill as it appeared in the official Gazette in August last year. Since a reference has been made to it, I may be permitted to make a short reply. It has been said and said rightly that the clause we are discussing, clause 49, is substantially the same as clause 47 as it appeared in the original Bill. It was also mentioned that clauses 47 and 48 were omitted by the Select Committee in another place. That is true, Sir; it is to clause 48 in the original Bill itself that real objection attached and I do think that we have done rightly in having deleted clause 48 as I explained at great length on a previous occasion. So far as clause 49 of the Bill now before us is concerned, it is substantially the same as clause 47 of the original Bill. I cannot think that it is right and proper that it should find a place in the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAQ: Sir, may I most respectfully ask one or two questions?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think you have taken enough time of the House in this matter.

The question before the House is: that clause 49 of the Bill be deleted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Before I adjourn the House, I want to mention one thing. The other day I wanted to put amendment No. 145 to vote and the Opposition wanted time. Is it the desire of the Opposition to put the amendment de novo today? I got the impression that the Opposition felt aggrieved that they could not get the opportunity to divide the House on that amendment. I am willing to give the Opposition a chance of mustering their full strength at the time of voting.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: We want to have discussion amongst ourselves over this matter and I shall let you know our decision tomorrow.

Mr. PRESIDENT: There should be no discussion. Then tomorrow I shall put the question to vote.

Mr. MESHBAHUDDIN AHMED: We shall also require some time to prepare for the voting. The voting may be done today.

Mr. PRESIDENT: No, I must give the Opposition time to muster their strength. The House stands adjourned till 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 2 p.m. on Tuesday, the 10th October, 1944.

Members absent.

The following members were absent from the meeting held on the 9th October, 1944 :—

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 84.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Tuesday, the 10th October, 1944, at 2 p.m., being the eighty-fourth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH HOY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

Point of information.

Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: Sir, before the business of the day is taken up, I have some information to ask for. I rose on that point yesterday and you directed me to do so this morning.

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right.

Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: I do not see either the Hon'ble the Chief Minister or the Hon'ble the Leader of the House. So it comes to this: that when they are not present in the House I cannot mention it and generally they make themselves scarce in the beginning of the sitting.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You may then mention the matter at the end of the day's sitting—before we rise. I presume the Hon'ble Ministers will be here by that time: please remind me then.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I desire to rise on a point of information.

Mr. PRESIDENT: About what?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: It is about a short-notice question, relating to a very urgent matter but has not yet been answered—

Mr. PRESIDENT: About what subject?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: About the supply of wheat. I understand that wheat is supplied by the Civil Supplies Department to Calcutta and the suburbs at Rs. 14 per maund. This wheat is being supplied to this Government by the Central Government—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Just a minute, Mr. Mukherjee: It will be better if you would kindly contact the Council Secretary about this thing—as to whether this short-notice question has been admitted or sent to the department concerned. Will you kindly find this out from the Secretary?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: May I do so now?

Mr. PRESIDENT: You can do so at your convenience.

Privilege of the House.

Mr. NAGENDRANATH MAHALANOBISH: Sir, may I rise on a point of privilege of this House?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, what is it?

Mr. NAGENDRANATH MAHALANOBISH: You will remember, Sir, that just before the House dispersed in August last, I raised a question of the privilege of this House. That was against a particular newspaper which published a libellous statement against the President and the honourable members of the House and particularly against members of the Opposition. At your request I handed over the paper to you with the portion marked. We have not yet been able to know what has happened to it.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have examined the matter and I think it should be referred to the Privilege Committee. I take it that the House agrees that the matter be referred to the Privilege Committee.

(There was general agreement.)

Adjournment Motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The adjournment motion No. 5 on the list is similar to what we discussed yesterday. So I do not think it can be admitted.

Regarding your motion, Rai Bahadur, you referred to the distribution of cloth during "Id" and Durga Puja festivals. But as those festivals are now over, the urgency of your motion does no longer exist but the general question may be considered in connection with another adjournment motion which is rather down below in the list, namely, that of Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee. So instead of taking up your adjournment motion, I will take up that of Mr. Mukherjee.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: The point is this. When I gave notice of this motion, the House was not sitting and it was not possible to move this motion before the House met on the 5th October.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have considered the urgency and importance of the matter and I don't think that they really exist now. The general question regarding difficulties of cloth supplies may be considered in connection with a motion exactly on the same line which is down on the agenda.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: My point is that Mr. Suhrawardy held out high hopes to members—

Mr. PRESIDENT: You can raise that point in connection with Mr. Mukherjee's motion, Rai Bahadur.

Next comes Mr. Lalit Chandra Das's motion. Mr. Das, do you propose to move your motion?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Yes, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I give consent to it. Is there any objection to it?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: Yes, Sir, we do object.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Those members who are in support of the motion will please rise in their places.

(The motion was admitted as the requisite number of members had stood up in support of the motion.)

Mr. Das, you have the leave of the House to move the motion. It will be taken up to-morrow at the usual hour.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House will now resume further consideration of the Agricultural Income-tax Bill. May I know from the Opposition whether they want amendment No. 145 to be put to vote?

Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: No, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I shall now put clause 6 to vote.

The question before the House is: That clause 6 stand part of the Bill.
(The motion was agreed to.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Lalit Chandra Das, do you want to speak on amendment No. 336. You actually moved the amendment previously?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I could not move it because at that time it was decided that this amendment would be taken up after amendment No. 344(A) is finished. However, Sir, I do not move it at all. I shall move amendment No. 345.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You were not present in the House at the time when I called your name yesterday.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, it was decided that this amendment would come afterwards.

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right, I give you a chance to move it.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move: That in sub-clause (1) of clause 49 of the Bill, after the words "by notification in the Official Gazette" in lines 1 and 2, the words "after previous approval of the Legislature" be inserted.

Sir, it is a positively distasteful provision that has been incorporated through section 49. Government should have taken the approval of the Legislature before publication of this provision. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (1) of clause 49 of the Bill, after the words "by notification in the Official Gazette" in lines 1 and 2, the words "after previous approval of the Legislature" be inserted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment. The relief proposed to be granted is necessarily upon the result of mutual agreement between the Bengal Government and another Government and I think it will take place under conditions in which reciprocity is possible. Therefore, Bengal Government agree to negotiate with the other Government and it would be very difficult to consult the Legislature in advance. I think Government ought to be free at the stage of negotiation.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in sub-clause (1) of clause 49 of the Bill, after the words "by notification in the Official Gazette" in line 1 and 2, the words "after previous approval of the Legislature" be inserted.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Rai Bahadur R. B. Roy.
Dr. K. Talukdar.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—16, and the "Noes"—20, the amendment is negatived.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 49 of the Bill, the following words, letter and brackets be omitted, namely:—

"(a) any law of a Province other than Bengal in force in that Province, or";

I had already in a general manner discussed this matter yesterday. So I need only sum up those arguments today. I shall read clause 49 omitting the portions which are not relevant to the amendment. The clause would then read like this: The Provincial Government may by notification in the official Gazette make provision for the granting of relief in respect of agricultural income on which both agricultural income-tax under this Act and other income-tax have been paid;

(2) For the purposes of this section "other income-tax" means any income-tax, super-tax or sur-tax charged under—

(b) any law in force in any Indian State, or in any part of His Majesty's Dominions, or in the United Kingdom, where the laws of such Province, etc., provide for relief in respect of tax charged on income both in such Province, State or part of His Majesty's Dominions, which appears to the Provincial Government to correspond to the relief which may be granted under this section. [and if any law in another province provides that such provision has also made a corresponding provision for relief.]

The provision affecting the province is just like this: if there is a tax imposed by this province for agricultural income arising from the land within its boundaries and if again another province imposes an agricultural tax or other tax upon the same, then there is double taxation and Government is authorised to relieve the double taxation provided there is a corresponding arrangement for relief with the other Government. I do not wish to waste the time of the House by repeating what I already said yesterday. I would simply conclude by saying that there could be no double taxation between two provinces with regard to agricultural income. Each is confined within exclusive watertight compartments. They are exclusive and mutually exclusive taxing units. So there could be no double taxation between the provinces. Any income which accrues in and is taxable by Bengal cannot be taxed by another province. Vice versa, no other province can tax any income accruing in Bengal. The offending words constitute an anomaly and try to remove an imaginary difficulty. The words must be omitted. With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (2) of clause 49 of the Bill, the following words, letter and brackets be omitted, namely:—

"(a) any law of a Province other than Bengal in force in that Province, or"

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (2) of clause 49 of the Bill, the following words, letter and brackets be omitted, namely:—

"(a) any law of a Province other than Bengal in force in that Province, or";

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 49 of the Bill, in paragraph (b) of sub-clause (2), the words and comma "or in any part of His Majesty's Dominions, or in the United Kingdom", in lines 10-12 be deleted.

Already in connection with the amendment regarding the deletion of the whole clause, there has been a full discussion. Now this present amendment is meant to secure the deletion of a portion of that clause. Clause 49 provides for relief in the shape of refund in a case where it is required by any law of a province other than Bengal or by any law enforced in Indian States or in any part of His Majesty's Dominions or in the United Kingdom.

Now, this amendment only contemplates that so far as any portion of the country included within India is concerned, the clause may remain; but if any sort of reciprocal relief is claimed in respect of payment made or required to be made in any portion of the United Kingdom or His Majesty's Dominion which is outside India, that ought not to find a place in it. With that end in view, this amendment has been moved the object being that there should be some reason for giving reciprocal relief in respect of a clause in force within India. There is no reason why we shall go beyond it and think of giving relief in respect of a tax to be paid under any law in the United Kingdom and the Dominions. Now, while discussing clause 49 the Hon'ble the Finance Minister said that the Assam Agricultural Act also makes such a provision for refund and reference was made to section 39 of the Assam Act. Now, section 39 of that Act never contemplates the position which we have in view. I was astonished to find that one in the position of the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Finance Department should make an attempt to interpret section 39 of the Assam Act in that way. That section only says that refund shall be admissible. The circumstances and the manner in which refund shall be allowed shall be prescribed under rule 50. Apparently, it means that so far as the Assam Act is concerned, it does not provide for any refund on the ground of reciprocal relief; it only contemplates refund in case where payment might have been made where assessment has been made, and there has been some mistake and that that mistake could be rectified. In that case, it was a consequential relief. Therefore, the matter has not been placed in its true and proper perspective by the Hon'ble Minister. So, in moving the amendment, I say that while accepting the principle of reciprocal relief so far as India is concerned, my amendment only aims that it should not be extended beyond the shores of India.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 49 of the Bill, paragraph (b) of sub-clause (2), the words and comma "or in any part of His Majesty's Dominions, or in the United Kingdom" in lines 10-12 be deleted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I have already explained my position, I hope very clearly, regarding clause 49 on more than one occasion. One of the justifications for incorporating clause 49 in this Bill is that we looked forward to a much more effective international status to our country in the near future will attain; and effective international status implies obligations as well as rights and privileges. I do not wish to state on that point any more. It was said by Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta that I tried to mislead the House yesterday with regard to the Assam Agricultural Income-tax Bill. Sir, it has never been my habit to mislead people. What I said was this and I said it very clearly that in January, 1944, a provision similar to the provision we are discussing has been incorporated under the rule-making power given by section 39 of the Assam Act. It is a fact of which Mr. Kamini Kumar Dutta may be unaware, nevertheless it is true that in the Assam law a similar provision does exist to-day. That is all I have got to say in opposing the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is: that in clause 49 of the Bill, in paragraph (b) of sub-clause (2), the words and comma "or in any part of His Majesty's Dominions, or in the United Kingdom" in lines 10-12 be deleted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJI: Now, Sir, my amendment No. 334 will come.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that to sub-clause (2) of clause 49 of the Bill, the following proviso be added, namely:—

"Provided that where relief is obtainable under any law in force in the Indian States or any part of His Majesty's Dominions or in the United Kingdom with respect to any portion of the tax payable under this Act, no relief shall be granted by the Provincial Government under this section."

Sir, I have tried to make it definite, so that some vagueness may be removed from the section. I would, therefore, submit that the House will accept it, because if relief has been obtained with regard to the operation of the tax elsewhere, the powers of the Provincial Government should be tied down and they should not give any relief, if any relief has already been obtained elsewhere. With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that to sub-clause (2) of clause 49 of the Bill, the following proviso be added, namely:—

"Provided that where relief is obtainable under any law in force in the Indian States or any part of His Majesty's Dominions or in the United Kingdom with respect to any portion of the tax payable under this Act, no relief shall be granted by the Provincial Government under this section."

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I submit that this proviso is inconsistent with the main clause. By the main clause, clause 49, power is sought to be given to the Provincial Government to grant reciprocal relief in respect of double taxation within the British Empire, only when the laws of other countries in the Empire provide similar relief. This proviso, however, seeks to enact that when the other country grants relief Bengal should not. Such a provision is obviously bad as a basis of reciprocity, for reciprocity means that when other countries give some relief we should also reciprocate and grant similar relief. The mover probably means that when the relief is obtainable from other countries, Bengal should not grant additional relief. But in that case the amendment becomes unnecessary because when the whole of the relief is obtainable from one country, the need for further relief does not exist and will not arise.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that to sub-clause (2) of clause 49 of the Bill, the following proviso be added, namely:—

"Provided that where relief is obtainable under any law in force in the Indian States or any part of His Majesty's Dominions or in the United Kingdom with respect to any portion of the tax payable under this Act, no relief shall be granted by the Provincial Government under this section".

The question being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—19, and the "Noes"—23, the amendment is negatived.

Clause 49.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 49 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 50.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 50 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 51.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That clause 51 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 52.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 52 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I beg to move: that in clause 52 of the Bill, for the word "four" in line 4, the word "three" be substituted.

Sir, this clause deals with limitation of claims for refunds. It says "No. claim to any refund of agricultural income-tax under this chapter shall be allowed unless it is made within four years from the last day of the financial year.....etc." I suggest three years. With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 52 of the Bill, for the word "four" in line 4, the word "three" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is. That in clause 52 of the Bill, for the word "four" in line 4 the word "three" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That clause 52 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 53.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 53 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: That in sub-clause (1) of clause 53 of the Bill, in paragraph (a), the word "or" be inserted at the end.

Sir, there are several sub-clauses: (a), (b) and (c); and so the alternative form should be separated by the word "or" simply to show that it is not cumulative but alternative.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 53 of the Bill, in paragraph (a), the word "or" be inserted at the end.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I think this is a drafting amendment and I think our draft is clear enough. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 53 of the Bill, in paragraph (a), the word "or" be inserted at the end.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 53 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the words "whichever is the later" in line 6, the words "whichever is later" be substituted.

The expression which I want to introduce is usually used in other Acts.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (1) of clause 53 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the words "whichever is the later" in line 6, the words "whichever is later" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in sub-clause (1) of clause 53 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), for the words "whichever is the later" in line 6, the words "whichever is later" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: That in sub-clause (1) of clause 53 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), the word "or" be inserted at the end.

Sir, one amendment of similar nature has been rejected and if this amendment is accepted, the alternative character of the clause will be apparent. I submit that if the clause remains as it is, there will be doubts and difficulties and doubts and difficulties should never be left in a clause, for we may have to go to the High Court for a settlement. It is far better to introduce words which leave no room for doubts or difficulties. Though this is a drafting amendment, yet drafting improvement is often very important. With these few words, I move my amendment for the acceptance of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 53 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), the word "or" be inserted at the end.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I submit that the alternative character of the clause is quite clear. I may refer to our Bible, the Indian Income-tax Act, and I find that the word "or" is not in section 51 of the Indian Income-tax Act. Similarly, in clause 53 you do not find the use of the word "or" for the simple reason that it is unnecessary.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 53 of the Bill, in paragraph (b), the word "or" be inserted at the end.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (1) of clause 53 of the Bill, for the words "punishable with a fine" occurring in the last line, the words "punishable with fine" be substituted.

Sir, the letter "a" seems to be redundant and is not to be found in any section even of the Indian Penal Code relating to crime. I have followed a much bigger Act than the Indian Income-tax Act, namely, the Indian Penal Code which was drafted by Lord Macaulay and which was revised by Sir Barnes Peacock. That Act is a model of legislative enactment. I choose to follow that. With this authority behind the amendment, I beg to move my amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (1) of clause 53 of the Bill, for the words "punishable with a fine" occurring in the last line, the words "punishable with fine" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (1) of clause 53 of the Bill, for the words "punishable with a fine" occurring in the last line, the words "punishable with fine" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 53 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 54.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 54 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 54 of the Bill, for the words "a statement" in line 1, the words "any statement" be substituted.

Sir, I must confess that this is a drafting amendment but I submit that this would be an improvement. The clause begins like this: "if a person makes a statement in a verification". The word "any" is more emphatic and it is used in other Acts which have already received the approval of generations in India, namely, "if a person makes any statement in a verification....." This is more emphatic and more precise and less vague than the letter "a".

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 54 of the Bill, for the words "a statement" in line 1, the words "any statement" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I think our drafting is good. In section 52 of the Indian Income-tax Act the expression is in these words, namely, "if a person makes a statement in a verification, etc., etc.....". So I think that the two geniuses have agreed and therefore I may stick to our draft.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that in clause 54 of the Bill, for the words "a statement" in line 1 the words "any statement" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 54 of the Bill, the comma after the word "punishable" in line 5 be deleted.

Sir, the reason for the deletion of the comma is that there is a parenthetical expression "on conviction before a Magistrate". The usual rule of grammar is that this should either be marked off by commas on both sides or there should be no comma at all. If you put a comma on one side, there should be another comma on the other. This is the usual rule. I have attempted to delete the comma and also put no comma after the end of the parenthetical expression. If you retain it, it makes a good case for the insertion of a comma at the other end. If you delete the comma after the word "punishable", then the other amendments need not be moved.

So I am putting it only in the alternative form.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 54 of the Bill, the comma after the word "punishable" in line 5 be deleted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, recent experience has shown that commas are very expensive. I do not know how much it has cost the various relief funds in Bengal at the back of the Opposition; but I know that it has cost the public exchequer of Bengal a few thousands of rupees. So I oppose the motion.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in clause 54 of the Bill, after the word "Magistrate" in line 6, a comma be inserted.

Sir, I have already given my reasons while moving the last amendment; but I cannot refrain from making a remark or two by way of reply to the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Bill. He said that commas have become very expensive. I quite admit that; but I deny any responsibility on the part of the mover of the amendment concerned for this expenditure. Who was responsible for all that trouble? Was it the mover or the supporters of Government who were not alert on that occasion? I assert that it was due simply to want of alertness on the part of the supporters of Government that this expenditure had to be incurred. In fact, if any money was lost, it was due entirely to the absence of any attention on the part of the supporters of Government to what was happening in the House. The insertion of the comma was moved by me not with any ulterior motive but in a perfectly innocent spirit and it led to a costly mistake. It was the duty of the Government and those who support them to be alert. They did not do what was expected of them and thus the mischief was due to their default. This comma may have cost a certain amount of money but it must be considered to have been well-spent if it has brought the necessary corrective to the members of the Government benches.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 54 of the Bill after the word "Magistrate" in line 6, a comma be inserted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad and in doing so I want to say something in reply to what the Hon'ble Finance Minister has stated a few minutes ago in connection with another amendment relating to the insertion of a comma in this Bill. It is well-known and has already been said by my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad that it was due clearly to want of alertness on the part of the members of that side of the House. I am not, however, going to dilate on that aspect of the matter. The question is: what purpose amendment No. 145 has served so far as this House is concerned? The Hon'ble Finance Minister states that it has cost a few thousands of rupees to the Bengal Exchequer. I do not know whether he will give us the exact amount already spent but what I submit is: that the matter has done a good service so far the privileges of this House are concerned. It has removed a doubt which was prevailing in the minds not only of the members of this House but also in very high quarters that section 87 of the Government of India Act gives absolute immunity to the proceedings of this House. That misconception has now been removed and the Hon'ble High Court has held that section 87 of the Government of India Act does not give an absolute immunity to the House.

The remark of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister does not seem to be quite relevant and I think the hon'ble members of the House should know what purpose that amendment has served. We do not admit that it was a mere ornamental comma. One of the Judges said that it was really necessary and that it would lead to an improvement. So far as the present amendment is concerned, it has been made quite clear by my honourable friend that if you do insert the other comma, you ought to insert this comma in order that it might give some meaning to the section itself. If no comma had been put in the first place, this comma need not have been inserted. Therefore, I submit, Sir, that if you have already negatived the other amendments, you ought to accept this amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in clause 54 of the Bill, after the word "Magistrate" in line 6, a comma be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 54 stand part of the Bill.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Clause 55.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 55 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 55 of the Bill, for sub-clause (I), the following sub-clause be substituted, namely:—

"((I) No court shall take cognizance of an offence under section 53 or section 54 except on the previous sanction of the Commissioner".

Sir, the sub-clause which is to be found in the Bill runs thus:—

"A person shall not be proceeded against for an offence under section 53 or section 54 except at the instance of the Commissioner."

Instead of the word "at the instance of the Commissioner", I have put in "with the previous sanction of the Commissioner". The sub-clause is rather misleading. It is not in the proper form. The proper form is found in section 195 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. If you say, 'a person shall not be prosecuted' it is really a request to the prosecutor not to prosecute without previous approval of the Commissioner. It does not strike at the jurisdiction of the Court by preventing a prosecution. In fact, if a man prosecutes an accused in disregard of the provisions of sub-clause (I), the prosecution would not necessarily be illegal. Every violation of law does not make the proceedings illegal. I may cite a well-known case which had gone up to the Privy Council. In fact, there is a provision that the Indian Police cannot chase an accused into an Indian State and arrest him there. Now, an accused was chased and arrested in an Indian State and convicted in a British Indian court. Eventually this case went up to the Privy Council. The question arose as to whether the police officer's act was in violation of the legislative provisions and whether it was not outside the mandatory provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code. It was held by Their Lordships—and there are a large number of similar rulings of the Privy Council on this point—that though the arrest was illegal and ultra vires, the man had been legally tried and punished. If the arrest was illegal, then it was a case between the police officer and the State in which the violation of the law was made. Sir, this is a nice and subtle question and it might not be appreciated by some members of this House; but it may be of some importance in a court of law and to them it would give rise to a considerable amount of doubt. The amendment follows the line of section 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code. In connection with the Bengal Money-lenders' Act, I moved an amendment which was accepted and that is now part of the Act. That draft can be found in the Legislative Department. In spite of that correction which the House on that occasion made, the Legislative Department which must have been entrusted with the drafting of the clauses of this Bill, did not adopt that but has copied other Bill, as from a copy book which was probably, on the draftman's table. The Legislative Department has evolved a vicious circle beyond which it cannot go. The standard drafting should be adopted.

With these few words, I move my amendment.

MR. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved that in clause 55 of the Bill, for sub-clause (I), the following sub-clause be substituted, namely:—

“(I) No court shall take cognizance of an offence under section 53 or section 54 except on the previous sanction of the Commissioner.”

MR. HUMAYUN KABIR: Mr. President, Sir, I beg to support this amendment. In doing so I would like to advance some arguments in addition to those which have been put forward by my honourable friend, the mover of this amendment. I would, at the very outset, like to point out that I differ from him on one fundamental point. He has commended his amendment to the acceptance of the House on the ground that this draft of the sub-clause is better than what was prepared by the Government. But I would like to suggest to the House through you, Sir, that his amendment is not a mere re-draft of the sub-clause which was placed by the Government. In fact it contains an additional feature which makes it a definite improvement upon the sub-clause which was prepared by the Government. Now, I think so far as the intention is concerned, there is no difference whatsoever between the Government, the mover of the amendment and myself and, I take it, all members of this House. In intention we are all agreed, and the question which arises is: whether that intention has been clearly stated and what exactly is the nature of that intention.

Now, Sir, I propose to take up the Government's draft first. “A person shall not be proceeded against for an offence under section 53 or 54 except at the instance of the Commissioner.” I would suggest in the very beginning that this indirect way of putting a negative has a comparative disadvantage, as it does not clearly state the intention of Government. Here, the suggestion is as if proceedings can be started: but after starting, the proceedings shall not continue except at the instance of the Commissioner. Therefore, Sir, even though the main purpose of this clause would be, if I understand the intention of the Government rightly, to bar any kind of proceedings of that type, it is framed in an affirmative form and that affirmative form is later qualified and made negative by a subsequent qualifying clause. Now, I would submit that that is perhaps the happiest way of expressing the intention of Government. I go still further and say that there is also an ambiguity in the Government draft. On account of this ambiguity that I would prefer the draft of my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. Indeed, his draft is absolutely clear and unequivocal. I have said a moment ago and I think it is beyond question that the purpose of this clause is negative. It wants to put a restriction on any prosecution or proceedings and says that there shall be no prosecution or proceedings except under a special condition and that special condition is the previous sanction of the Commissioner. So far as the previous sanction of the Commissioner is concerned, there is no difference between the two drafts: But this negative intention is much more clearly expressed in the amendment moved by my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad than in the Government draft. My friend has said clearly what you cannot do with the words "proceeded against". Now, Sir, the words "proceeded against" may mean: that you may start a proceeding and not continue it. That is equivalent to not proceeding with a case. It may also mean: You do not institute a case at all. You do not proceed against a person when you institute a case and do not continue with it. You also do not proceed against him when you do not prosecute him at all: Therefore, Sir, the Government draft, as it stands now, is defective. It may be that a case may be instituted but because it has not been done at the instance of the Commissioner, therefore the proceedings may not continue and the person may not be proceeded against. Sir, according to the amendment which has been suggested by my honourable friend, Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad, there is no possibility of any case being instituted at all, as no court shall take cognizance of any offence under section 53 or 54 except on the previous sanction of the Commissioner. Therefore, even if some officers of Government, subordinate to the Commissioner, should institute proceedings,—if the amendment of my honourable friend is carried, no court will take cognizance of it at all; whereas if the Government draft is accepted by the House, there will be at any rate room for ambiguity. The case may be instituted and not proceeded against and between the institution of a case and the dropping of it or not proceeding with it, there may be an interval: and during this interval all kinds of things might happen. In case of intricate questions, and specially in the case of Income-tax Bills we know that large amounts of money might be involved and therefore if in such a Bill there is any sort of loophole by which Government officers might have a hold upon persons who are liable to the tax, many undesirable consequences might follow. I do not say that this will always happen; but there may be cases where advantage might be taken by over-scrupulous or perhaps unscrupulous officers to harass persons and have them hauled up before them. It is well-known that in many cases there are persons who may have money but who do not have either legal knowledge or experience; and in the case of such persons if a case can be instituted at all or if there is a threat of the institution of a case, that itself might suffice to frighten such a person and lead to consequences which are quite undesirable not only from the point of view of the competency, efficiency and honesty of the Government officer but also from the point of view of the transaction of the person concerned. I submit that if the amendment of my friend is carried, then all these possibilities or contingencies would not arise at all. The negative intention is negatively expressed and it is expressed in a form which leaves no room whatever for ambiguity. I would submit that we may generally take it that wherever action is taken with the sanction of the Commissioner, it is much more likely that there will be good grounds for that action compared with a case where proceedings might be instituted or begun or a case started by a private party or at the instance of an officer of the Department. I know that my friend, the Finance Minister, has one supreme argument against all amendments which, however, is not an argument on merits but one might say is an argument of fear. I would submit that even this argument of fear has thinned down by constant repetition. If you take a child to the dark room time and again, then his fear of the ghost wears away. He grows bolder. Now that in any case a session of the Legislative Assembly will have to be summoned very soon for the purpose of the Supplementary Budget, this one supreme argument—argument ad hominem one might call it—would depend more on the psychology of the Finance Minister than either on the facts before the House or the legal points that have been raised occasionally. Since the other House will have to be called, if an amendment which otherwise is required and which if passed would give satisfaction and perhaps freedom from anxiety to a large number of business persons, I think the lingering fear which might still trouble the consciousness and perhaps the conscience of the Finance Minister, that lingering fear should not be allowed any longer to dominate him and this amendment should be agreed to. I would like specially to caution my friends belonging to the European business community who I think would be more affected by a change of this type compared with persons like ourselves who are quite safe so far as any income-tax is concerned, whether agricultural or otherwise. For, in our cases our incomes are taxed at the source and therefore we are free to defy all income-tax officers but persons who have their own accounts to make and their own accounts to submit should be rather careful. In any case, there is in the Government draft room for ambiguity or doubt or misgiving, that the rule might be used in a way which might unnecessarily harass even one innocent person; and so it is the duty of the Legislature to see that that rule is improved. With these words, Sir, I support the motion.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: The amendment suggested by my honourable friend, Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad, is a suitable one; but it does not follow that the form of draft we have adopted in the Bill is not equally suitable. Professor Humayun Kabir's long speech was on nothing at all. The apprehension of my honourable friend is entirely groundless. The words in clause 55 of this Bill are quite clear and there is no danger of any harassment to anybody arising from the drafting we have adopted. If I refer to the Indian Income-Tax Act, that will not be a sufficient convincing guidance but I think it has withstood the test of time: and if honourable members care to look to the Income-Tax Act, they will find that section 53 provides in a way similar to our drafting. I see no difficulty in the present drafting and it is just as good a draft as suggested by my honourable friend the mover of the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 55 of the Bill, for sub-clause (I), the following sub-clause be substituted, namely:—

“(I) No court shall take cognizance of an offence under section 53 or section 54 except on the previous sanction of the Commissioner.”

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The “Ayes” being—17, and the “Noes”—25, the amendment is negatived.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 55 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 56

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 56 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (1) of clause 56 of the Bill, for the words and comma "assessment, proceeding" in line 6, the words "assessment proceeding" be substituted.

Sir, in this case, the comma is really mischievous in the context. What is meant is "assessment proceeding". The two words form a pair. According to the rules of grammar, when two nouns are used together, the first is an adjective and the second is a noun; as the words "silver spoon". In the expression "assessment proceeding", the word "assessment" is an adjective and "proceeding" is a noun. They form a happy pair just like a married couple. If you interpose a comma between them, it will lead to an unhappy separation of the lovers. The comma is positively mischievous and not harmless. It is not even ornamental like the one which went up to the High Court. In the circumstances, the object of the amendment is to remove the unwanted comma. I hope, Sir, the House will remove this mischievous comma and restore amity and unity between these two affectionate friends.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (1) of clause 56 of the Bill, for the words and comma "assessment, proceeding" in line 6, the words "assessment proceeding" be substituted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to support the amendment which has been moved by my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. This time it is not the insertion of an ornamental comma; but it is the deletion of a comma which makes the meaning of the clause altogether different from what it is intended to be. If we read clause 56, we find that the clause stands in this way: "all particulars contained in any statement made, return furnished, etc.....or in any record of any assessment proceeding,....." Now, if there is any comma after "assessment", I do not understand what it will mean, and I do not understand what the framer of the Act means by inserting a comma there. It should be "in any record of any assessment proceeding....." I do not know what my honourable friend meant by talking of a silver spoon in moving this amendment. Possibly he thought that this would mean a mint of gold for the profession to which myself and others like me belong. Possibly by insertion of this comma the clause has been made as vague as it could be and it might be the subject of many proceedings in law courts to which the assistance of the members of my profession will be sought and they will earn a lot. Therefore, Sir, we cannot silently allow this mistake to remain in the clause itself because it might be said afterwards that there were these lawyers present in the Council and they deliberately allowed this mistake to remain in order that they might earn a good lot of money elsewhere. It is for this reason that we are proposing this amendment and I submit that this comma should be deleted and the thing should be made clearer than what it is.

With these words, I support the motion.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (1) of clause 56 of the Bill, for the words and comma "assessment, proceeding" in line 6, the words "assessment proceeding" be substituted.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being—13, and the "Noes"—24, the amendment is negatived.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (1) of clause 56 of the Bill, after the word, figure and brackets "section (3)" in line 11, a comma be inserted. Sir, two commas are necessary to mark off a parenthesis. You cannot insert a comma at the beginning and leave out the other at the end. If you insert one comma, its counterpart should also be put in. I shall read the passage: "The Commissioner may, subject to such conditions as may be prescribed" this parenthetical expression has been marked off by a pair of commas. "Either before or after the institution of proceedings"—this is a place where the next comma should be inserted before the words "compound any such offence". The main sentence begins with the words "The Commissioner". The parenthetical expression should be marked off by a pair of commas. Sir, it has been said that commas are no part of Statute. The exact point is not relevant so far as we are concerned. As to what the effect there will be to the interpretation or to the sub-clause is not really to the point. In the English Statutes it has been said that commas are no part of the Statute. I have looked up the authorities and there is very good reason for the English rule. They say that Statutes should be so carefully and skilfully drafted that commas would not be necessary for clarity, or would be superfluous. In the English Statutes, commas can be entirely ignored without changing the meaning. We have not attained that standard of perfection. Therefore, it is better to follow the grammar so far as the rules relating to commas are concerned. Commas are useful like sign-posts. They are intended to guide us. In the circumstances, it would not be proper to get rid of them.

With these few words, I submit my amendment for the consideration of the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 56 of the Bill, after the word, figure and brackets "section (3)" in line 11, a comma be inserted.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I had at first no intention of speaking on this amendment as I think that my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad has a monopoly of all the commas, semi-colons and full stops. I, think, Sir, you will appreciate the remark of my honourable friend when he said that commas may be ornamental and that in the English Statutes commas are not necessary or required at all; because the draftsmanship is so excellent that there is no necessity whatsoever for the commas to be taken into account when the Statute has to be interpreted. The Khan Bahadur also argued that the same analogy of English Statutes did not hold good in the case of legislations in our country and that it was necessary to have these commas, whether they are ornamental or otherwise. I was thinking whether he was also referring to the ornamental Ministerships which we have in our province. Here also it seems to us that the fundamental business of administration goes without Ministerial paraphernalia the Government can proceed and does proceed without them whenever necessary. Nevertheless, at times Ministers grace the executive proceedings and sometimes cloak the harshness of administration,—which only serves to show that these amiable gentlemen, though perhaps not altogether necessary, are at the same time not altogether superfluous or redundant. Similarly, my honourable friend was suggesting that commas in our statutes are not perhaps altogether necessary perhaps but are also not altogether unnecessary and not altogether redundant. Therefore, in view of the analogy between the position of the Ministers and the position of the commas,—and he was returning to the charge again and again,—I thought that on such a good cause he should have at least a word or two of support from the members on this side of the House. I, therefore, support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 56 of the Bill after the word, figure and brackets "section (3)" in line 11, a comma be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (1) of clause 56 of the Bill, after the words "such record" in line 13, a comma be inserted.

Sir, I am quite convinced with the very powerful appeal which the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Bill makes by simply opposing the amendment. I do not think any argument would be necessary in view of the strong disapproval which a single expression from the Hon'ble Minister is enough to secure.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (1) of clause 56 of the Bill, after the words "such record" in line 13, a comma be inserted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that in sub-clause (1) of clause 56 of the Bill, after the words "such record" in line 13, a comma be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 56 of the Bill, for the words "any of the particulars" in line 2, the words "any particulars" be substituted.

I beg to submit, Sir, that the words "any of the particulars" are redundant. "Any particulars" would be quite sufficient. In these days of paper shortage, some economy of words would surely be appreciated. In these circumstances, the elimination of these two words "of the" might not by themselves be sufficient to economise paper but it may be a pointer in the right direction.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (2) of clause 56 of the Bill, for the words "any of the particulars" in line 2, the words "any particulars" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I oppose the amendment.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (2) of clause 56 of the Bill, for the words "any of the particulars" in line 2, the words "any particulars" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (3) of clause 56 of the Bill, in paragraph (a), for the words "prosecution under the Indian Penal Code" in lines 2 and 3, the words and figures "prosecution under section 53 or section 54 or under the Indian Penal Code" be substituted.

Sir, this is more than a drafting amendment. In this clause, a very important principle is attempted to be introduced, namely, the secrecy to be observed by public servants in the matter of facts which come to their knowledge in the course of examination of the account books and other papers. This is a very necessary measure and it should find a place in all Income-tax Acts. But there is a healthy exception too, namely, where there is prosecution under the Income-tax Act or other Acts or under the Indian Penal Code for an offence. The Bill has proceeded in that way. It has provided for power to disclose in case of a prosecution under the Indian Penal Code. Prosecution under sections 53 and 54 will be absolutely crippled without this amendment. I think sections 53 and 54 of the present Bill were absolutely lost sight of in drafting this clause. The non-disclosure should not apply to them. The ban should be lifted so far as these provisions are concerned. There is no use providing for a prosecution and preventing disclosure of information obtained by an officer. In these circumstances, I submit that this amendment should be accepted.

Mr. NACENDRANATH MAHALANOBISH: I rise to support the amendment which seems to be fair. Otherwise as has been pointed out by the mover, you can only disclose the information in the records of the Bengal agricultural income-tax assessment only in case of prosecution under the Indian Penal Code. The clause says that "nothing in this section shall apply to the disclosure of any of the particulars referred to in sub-section (1) for the purposes of a prosecution under the Indian Penal Code in respect of any such statement, returns, accounts, documents, affidavit, deposition, record or evidence or for the purposes of carrying into effect the provisions of this Act".

The question is: whether you are going to limit this only to the Indian Penal Code or going to extend it to prosecutions under sections 53 and 54 of this Bill. I do not find any reason why there should be such a limitation as we find in this sub-clause (3). It could not possibly have been intended by the draftsman that it is only in case of prosecution under the Indian Penal Code that disclosure should not be an offence but that in case of other prosecutions disclosure should be an offence. Of course, until and unless we hear the honourable Minister in charge of the Bill we cannot possibly learn what was the reason behind this draft—as to why prosecution under the Indian Penal Code alone has been mentioned here and other prosecutions under this Act as for instance under sections 53 and 54 were not mentioned. Is it the intention that in case of prosecution under sections 53 and 54 of this Act the department will not disclose or produce the relevant documents before the court but would do so only in case of prosecutions under the Indian Penal Code? Unfortunately, in this House we are to a great extent at a great disadvantage because in moving these amendments we have to guess the argument or reasons of the other side, for generally we find that the other side except the Hon'ble Minister seldom speaks.

The Hon'ble Minister in charge does not say a word but simply opposes it but even when he gives some reason in support of his objection, this side of the House have got really no opportunity to meet his view point. The other day I was reading certain ruling of President Mitra when it was accepted by him that in cases of debate of this nature generally the President would look to either side one after another so that this side may meet the argument of the other side. But here when there is no member to speak on the Government side I would ask you to consider whether after the Hon'ble Minister gives his reply, we may not be permitted to say a word or two: otherwise it would be no debate, it would only be a lifeless debate. The Hon'ble Minister simply stands up and says that that is not the reason.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If the Hon'ble Minister seldom advances his reason, how can you improve the debate?

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MAHALANOBISH: When he does not advance any reason, we do not want to speak; but when he does we might be given an opportunity to speak.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You should speak in anticipation

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: But sometimes our anticipation may be wide of the mark. As for instance in this particular instance we find no reasonable ground for exclusion of the prosecution under section 53 or 54 and my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad has really found out that this is really a mistake and ought to be corrected. I entirely agree with him and I think the Hon'ble Minister will find his way to accept this amendment or to give cogent reasons. Prosecution other than in the Penal Code should not be excluded even by this clause, so that the restriction to its disclosure may not be limited to its particular item and in doing so I would like to say something with reference to clause 56. Clause 56, sub-section (1) runs thus:—

“All particulars contained in any statement made, return furnished or accounts or documents produced under the provisions of this Act, or in any evidence given, or affidavit or deposition made, in the course of any proceedings under this Act other than proceedings under this Chapter, or in any record of any assessment, proceeding or any proceeding relating to the recovery of a demand, prepared for the purposes of this Act, shall be treated as confidential, and notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, no Court shall save as provided in sub-section (3) be entitled to require any servant of the Crown to produce before it any such return, accounts, documents or record or any part of such record or to give evidence before it in respect thereof.”

Then comes clause (2) which runs thus:—

“If, save as provided in sub-section (3), any servant of the Crown discloses any of the particulars referred to in sub-section (1), he shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to six months, and shall also be liable to fine.”

Then there is a sub-clause (3) which runs thus:—

“Nothing in this section shall apply to.....”

I think the clause should have been worded thus:—

“Nothing in sub-section (2) of this section shall apply to.....etc.” Otherwise the meaning of the section becomes vague. The sub-section (3) says “Nothing in this section shall apply to—(a) the disclosure of any of the particulars referred to in sub-section (1) for the purposes of a prosecution under the Indian Penal Code in respect of any such statement.....etc.” I submit it is rather vaguely worded. The amendment of my honourable friend seeks to improve the drafting in a certain way. It says “That in sub-clause (3) of clause 56 of the Bill, in paragraph (a), for the words "prosecution under the Indian Penal Code" in lines 2 and 3, the words and figures "prosecution under section 53 or section 54 or under the Indian Penal Code be substituted." He wants specific mention of the two sections; otherwise the purpose of prohibiting the disclosure of information contained in the returns as provided in sub-section (1) becomes meaningless, if you absolve the officer concerned from all liabilities with regard to the disclosure. So, this amendment should be accepted in order to remove the vagueness. With these few words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, with regard to the charge made by my honourable friend Mr. Mahalanobish that I advance no reason and that I am content with just saying that I oppose the amendment, I wish to say this that at times in the course of the discussion of this Bill I have spoken at great length and I have sometimes felt that my words were wasted on some of the members at least. I also discovered during my experience in various Legislatures that if one wants to talk sense he must try to be brief. I shall briefly answer the points raised by my honourable friends and in doing so I may just ask the honourable mover and his supporters once again to read clause 56. May I do the reading? "Nothing in this section shall apply to—(a) the disclosure of any of the particulars referred to in sub-section (1) for the purposes of a prosecution under the Indian Penal Code in respect of any such statement, returns, accounts, documents, affidavit, deposition, record or evidence or for the purposes of carrying into effect the provisions of this Act".

Well Sir, sections 53 and 54 are provisions of this Bill. There may be other provisions with regard to which certain amount of protection may be necessary. So I think the objection raised by the mover of the amendment falls to the ground. I wish he carefully read the draft to find that our draft is more comprehensive than the proposed draft, and further I am fortified by the Indian Income-tax Act. I refer the honourable member to section 54 of the Indian Income-tax Act.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: May I offer a personal explanation on this matter?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Is it necessary?

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: It is necessary in view of the remarks of the Hon'ble Minister. It is not merely personal explanation, but it is more than personal explanation—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, if the House is anxious to listen to you, you can go on.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, the question is whether the Chair would give me an opportunity to speak.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Certainly.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: The Hon'ble Minister referred me to a provision of the Indian Income-tax Act. Sir, we are all lawyers and as such we have some amount of experience and so we jointly say that these two sections are necessary.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. It has nothing to do with your personal explanation. The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (3) of clause 56 of the Bill, in paragraph (a), for the words "prosecution under the Indian Penal Code" in lines 2 and 3, the words and figures "prosecution under section 53 or section 54 or under the Indian Penal Code" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I have to draw the attention of the Leader of the House, in the absence of the Hon'ble Minister concerned, through you, to an important matter. There is a proposal with regard to the withholding of the monthly grant of Brojomohan Institution of Barisal—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, you have already put in a short-notice question with regard to this matter, and so far as I remember, I have admitted it—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, this is a very urgent matter, and so I want to know when the reply would be given by the Government, because one of the professors of the—

Mr. PRESIDENT: You must realise, Mr. Mazumdar, that you cannot put in a short-notice question and then follow it up by asking on the floor of the House another question on the same matter.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, the Hon'ble the Chief Minister promised some time ago that he would deal with the matter; but more than a month has passed and he has taken no notice of this matter. I have also tabled another short-notice question with regard to the Howrah Municipality affairs and I want a reply to that question also.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Short-notice questions should not be followed up by other questions on the same matter on the floor of the House.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, if this sort of tactics is adopted by Government, then we are nowhere.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The Hon'ble the Chief Minister will make a statement in reply to this short-notice question.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: One of my questions down on the list has been held up owing to the absence of the Hon'ble Minister in charge. It is a very urgent matter and relates to the Howrah Municipality. May I request that Government will make it convenient for that question to be answered by any other Minister? It is a very important matter and it should not be laid over for a long time.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I have taken a note of it. I shall arrange for this question to be answered—not tomorrow perhaps but on the day after tomorrow.

Mr. PRESIDENT: All right. The House now stands adjourned till 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 2 p.m. on Wednesday, the 11th October, 1944.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 85.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Wednesday, the 11th October, 1944, at 2 p.m., being the eighty-fifth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. Deputy President (Khan Bahadur ABDUL HAMID CHOWDHURY, J.P.) was in the Chair.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, the Public Health Minister is not here. Shall I wait till he comes?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I am going to give reply.

Adjournment motion regarding rising tide of malaria.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I beg to move that the Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance and of recent occurrence, namely, the failure of the Government to stem the rising tide of malaria which is now at its peak causing havoc and decimating millions in Bengal.

Sir, in a speech His Excellency the Governor observed that malaria had broken out in an epidemic form. I do not think it is necessary to make a long speech on this subject and I commend it to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance and of recent occurrence, namely, the failure of the Government to stem the rising tide of malaria which is now at its peak causing havoc and decimating millions in Bengal.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I wish to speak on the motion that has been moved by my honourable friend, Mr. Lalit Chandra Das. Malaria is a very grave problem for Bengal. I must say at the commencement of my speech that I do not approve the idea of Mr. Das to censure the Government by this motion; but I must say that malaria is a scourge on Bengal. The incidence of malaria is on the increase in Bengal. Sir, it is spreading day by day. There was a time when some parts of Bengal, specially Eastern Bengal, were not affected so much; but for some years this scourge is spreading and sapping the vitality of the people of Eastern Bengal also. The published Statistics of Government say: that in 1941 about 388,000 people died from malaria in Bengal, i.e., about 32 per cent. deaths occurred from malaria in Bengal. Sir, owing to the reduced vitality of the people, during 1943 malaria could spread throughout the length and breadth of Bengal. Speaking from my personal experience I may say, Sir, that formerly in Chittagong there was very little incidence of malaria; but in 1943 there was not a single family there who was not affected by malaria. Since then malaria has made a permanent abode in that place. Sir, the peculiarity of the disease is that it does not make any distinction between rich and poor or high and low. Those who were unaffected by the famine were attacked by malaria and once attacked it is very difficult to get rid of this disease. Personally speaking from my own experience in Chittagong I find that those people who had been affected by malaria had been trying all sorts of medicine but they cannot recover fully. Sometimes there is a remission of one month or two but it occurs again after that period. Sir, it appears from the statistics that the consumption of quinine in Bengal is very low compared with her requirements. According to her population Bengal required about 2 lakhs pound of quinine per year but its consumption in 1938-39 was only 141,000 pounds. It was further reduced to 111,000 pounds in 1941. Since then it has been further reduced with the result that malaria is spreading day by day. Of course, I am conscious of the fact that Government of India supplied to the Government of Bengal during these years large quantities of mepacrine and other anti-malaria medicines; but the system of distribution is not what it ought to be. Sir, the agency through which this quinine and other drugs are being distributed requires very careful consideration of the department concerned. Sir, sometimes it is said that as soon as quinine is given to any agency for free distribution it goes into the black market. I can cite one instance. Once I was sitting in a dispensary of a doctor when one gentleman came with a box containing quinine. He sold the quinine to the doctor. After enquiry I found that he happens to be the Chairman of a Union board. This quinine was supplied to him for free distribution to the villagers. So, Sir, the system of quinine distribution at present is not perfect and it requires to be improved in all possible ways. It is true large quantities of anti-malaria medicines have been supplied to Bengal. But, Sir, Bengal requires a permanent scheme for checking and preventing this fell disease. It is said that 70 to 80 per cent. of Bengal's population are affected. According to Dr. Bentley even as far back as in 1923, out of Bengal's population of 384 lakhs about 3 crores was affected with malaria and there were no remedial measures. According to him only a small portion got treatment in hospital and dispensaries. Even East Bengal districts are affected now very seriously: specially, Dacca, Tippera and Bakarganj. A virulent type of malaria has been raging there. Chittagong town even is now not free from this virulent type of malaria. In the Chittagong town in 1941 about 2,000 people died from malaria and in the rural areas about 10,000 died in place of 2,000 to 3,000 in 1940. Various remedial measures can be suggested. Our Hon'ble Agriculture Minister whose devotion to duty is well known, and who has been trying to do some good to the masses in all possible means has taken up this aspect of the question, namely, measures for the prevention of malaria. By irrigation land will yield larger crop and the condition of agricultural people will be improved, and malaria also will disappear. This experiment has been carried out in Italy where people were very much malaria-stricken and they have got wonderful results. It was experimented in Mauritius, and in Australia with equally wonderful results. For Bengal, it is a very small thing. Dr. Bentley said that irrigation should be tried. Sir, I appeal to the Hon'ble Minister of Agriculture to pay attention to irrigation. He will do immense good to the people of Bengal if he seriously paid attention to this aspect of the case. The expenditure on malaria and on medicine is very inadequate in Bengal. Sir, taking the standard of Italy, namely, Rs. 6 per head it will require about Rs. 6 crores per year in Bengal for medical treatment of the malaria-stricken people—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Mr. Nur Ahmed, you have spoken for a long time, so please try to finish now.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I am sorry to say that I cannot support the motion in the form as it is now.

Mr. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: Mr. Deputy President, Sir, there is a good reason to believe that the position with regard to malaria in this Province is serious, and Mr. Das has done well to bring the matter before this House. This is not, Mr. Das will agree, a political question: it affects too directly the lives of the people. What we should be considering today is how, with the co-operation of all political parties, Government can check what Mr. Das describes as the "rising tide of malaria". This is not, therefore, in our opinion, a question for political censure of the Government, and from that point of view we do not support his motion; but we do consider that the situation is serious and that all parties should assist with constructive criticisms. In the present circumstances, the only effective anti-malarial measure for the rural areas is the provision of adequate drug treatment for the sick. It is therefore the duty of Government faced with the threat of a widespread malaria epidemic to make sure that quinine or quinine substitutes are obtainable by all sections of the people. Supplies of quinine are, we know, limited. But this year in addition to Bengal's quota of quinine, Government have been able to obtain large quantities of a well-known quinine substitute, namely, mepacrine. According to a Press statement, the quantity of mepacrine already received amounts to no less 81 million tablets and a further quantity of 19 million tablets is expected. If this quantity is properly distributed, then it should be possible for every sick person to obtain anti-malarial drugs. Government have already announced that it is their intention that no persons should have to go more than 2 or 3 miles from their door-steps in order to obtain quinine or quinine substitutes. We believe that elaborate instructions have been issued to the Civil Surgeons to this effect. Under these instructions mepacrine should be issued to all medical practitioners and a large number of retail selling agents should be appointed by the Civil Surgeons. We can only say that our information from a large number of areas, such as, Serajgunge and Nakalia in Pabna district, Charnugria in Faridpur district and Chandpur and Ashugunge in the Tippera district and Tarpasha in the Dacca district—from these areas our information is that generally speaking mepacrine is available only for those who want fair quantities in the divisional headquarters through the Civil Surgeons. It involves the sending of a special messenger to take delivery and it often takes 4 to 5 days on the job owing to the distance and travelling difficulties. This is not however of much use to the ordinary persons in the village; and so far as we can gather, mepacrine is practically unobtainable by him in these areas. The situation calls for an immediate check-up by Government. Do Government actually know the number of selling agents appointed by the Civil Surgeons and are they able to state that these agents are properly distributed—union by union? The idea is, we believe, to have at least one agency for the sale of mepacrine and one for free distribution in each union. Do Government know that these agents have actually been appointed and have received their quotas of mepacrine? What steps have been taken to publish the lists of appointed agents in each union? What arrangements have been made for supervision? It has been stated that at the present juncture the only effective anti-malarial measure is the provision of anti-malarial drugs in large quantities. This is, however, not to absolve the Government from pressing on with the anti-malarial scheme which will check the breeding of mosquitoes. It may not be possible to obtain supplies of insecticides; but it is surely possible to do something to check the breeding of mosquitoes by cleaning up tanks and stagnant waterways and by educating people most directly concerned in what they should do to provide for the prevention of mosquito-breeding. Sometime ago a Malaria Engineer was appointed and District Boards were asked to submit anti-malarial schemes. District Boards were, we believe, slow in submitting schemes and for some time there has been silence as to the position. We would like to know what is being done as regards anti-malarial schemes and whether any programme is being carried out with regard to these schemes. In conclusion, I would like to say one word with regard to Calcutta. There was a serious increase in the incidence of malaria in Calcutta last year and this year there are signs that this will be repeated. The situation calls for an immediate expansion of the anti-mosquito control unit of the Corporation. This is a matter in which the Government must take an active interest and we would like to know whether the question of expansion of the Corporation's anti-mosquito control unit has been taken up by Government with the Corporation and what is the present position.

Mr. BIRENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, I support the adjournment motion tabled by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das.

I am speaking of my own constituency, the Eastern part of Mymensingh, where particularly this year malarial fever has broken out in the form of an epidemic of the most virulent type we have ever heard of. Most attacks being fatal, the people have become panicky and as a matter of fact people so affected are deserting their places of abode in considerable numbers and rushing towards cities and towns. Such desertion will turn the green valley into desolate wastes not only defeating the Government policy of "Grow More Food" campaign but also paralysing the economic life of Bengal at large.

I should say that lack of adequate medical aid is largely responsible for such state of affairs. I mean the inadequate supply of quinine bi-hydrochlore, as yet the only known effective drug for malaria fever. I am not a medical man but I am sure that the authoritative medical men will confirm this statement of mine. What the anti-malarial drugs the Government claim to have distributed so far in larger quantities, comprise largely of substitutes for quinine, known as mepacrine. Quinine bi-sulph comes next. There has been very little supply of quinine bi-hydrochlore. The substitutes for quinine so far found out, according to the medical authority, cannot be regarded as an infallible remedy for malarial fever which in most cases have become chronic and taking the turn towards deadly Kalazar. There is no denying the fact that the quantity of genuine quinine known as quinine bi-hydrochlore now distributed falls far short of pre-war consumption even in normal circumstances. Products like mepacrine, according to the users, cause jaundice, skin disease, etc.

Then again, supply of any of these drugs not being readily available near at hand and at call, the ignorant villagers are the worst sufferers. Very few suffering peasant, losing working days, in these days of acute labour shortage, can, when bed-ridden, be expected to apply to the proper authority for the required supply of quinine.

I also do fail to believe that such supplies of all anti-malarial drugs (I do not say quinine) which Government claim to have distributed all over the country, have reached the actual consumers of Bengal. With undesirable elements operating in the market, quite a large quantity of the available supplies, I have reasons to believe, is carried away even outside Bengal. Vigilant watch on the part of the Detective Department could have surely checked this flow.

The question of cultivation of quinine in Bengal had been agitated long ago. Will the Government throw light as to what transpired of that? The older members of the Ministry must have been aware of these facts and they ought to have moved the matter with the Central Government for permission to cultivate quinine especially when supply from outside was not available for civil consumption.

Have the Government drawn the attention of the International Red Cross for help in the matter of supply of quinine? If not, will the Government do so now which they ought to have done long ago when Bengal is in the grip of the acutest type of malaria.

I would, therefore, appeal on behalf of the people whom I represent here that suitable and adequate measures be taken up immediately and effectively, viz. :—

1. By increasing the supply of quinine bi-hydrochlore, or mixture or other preparations thereof.
2. Should adequate quantity of quinine be not readily available from outside, the Government should send an appeal to the International Red Cross in the name of the suffering humanity of Bengal.
3. By imposing ban on the export of quinine, or mixtures or other preparations out of Bengal.

4. By imposing heavy fines and punishment on unauthorised dealers for unauthorised deals in quinine.

5. Vigilant check and watch to be maintained by the District Officers and Detective Department throughout Bengal.

6. Checking up of quinine preparations by pharmaceutical concerns and distribution thereof.

7. Undertaking plantation of cinchona trees.

8. Undertaking plantation of pyrethrum trees.

9. Adopting any other measures considered necessary.

With these few words, I support the adjournment motion moved by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Mr. Deputy President, Sir, an adjournment motion similar to the one now before us was moved in August last by Mr. Haridas Mazumdar and a reply detailing the steps taken by Government to combat this disease was given at that time by the Hon'ble the Chief Minister. It can be easily found that Government did all that was possible for them to do. The position now is very much the same as has been mentioned in the statement, with the only difference that the supply of mepacrine tablets in larger quantities by the Government of India has enabled us to distribute anti-malarial drugs in the mofussil on a much larger scale than was possible previously. The Government of India have so far promised 109 million tablets during the current year. Out of this 81 million tablets have already been received; and we have asked for allotment of another 300 millions, if possible, during the year.

As regards the method of distribution, I may mention that in addition to the agencies mentioned in the Hon'ble Chief Minister's statement, chemists and druggists are also now being employed for distributing mepacrine tablets. It has further been decided that where necessary the net-work of dealers now employed by the Union Food Committees for distributing rationed articles in the mofussil, should also be utilised for distributing mepacrine tablets, so as to bring the drug within easy reach of each villager. It has also been in contemplation to employ, besides the health staff of the districts, the Circle Officers, the Debt Settlement Officers, and the Jute Regulation Officers for checking the sale and free distribution of anti-malarial drugs to the people in the villages. Orders in this connection are expected to issue very shortly.

Sir, I should like to read out up-to-date figures of distribution of quinine that we have gathered from the report of the Director of Public Health. The amount of anti-malarial drugs allotted to Bengal by the Government of India at the beginning of the year is as follows:—

Quinine sulphate	...	50,000 lbs.
Cinchona febrifuge	...	30,000 lbs.
Mepacrine	...	50,000,000 tablets.

The Government of Bengal, anticipating severe malaria during the current year after the epidemic of 1943, requested the Government of India for substantial further quantities. A further 15,000 lbs. quinine and 59,000,000 mepacrine tablets were allotted. Of these amounts, all the quinine and 39,000,000 mepacrine tablets have been already made available. So that Bengal has up to date received a total of:—

Quinine sulphate	...	65,000 lbs.
Cinchona febrifuge	...	30,000 lbs.
Mepacrine	...	89,000,000 tablets.

A further 20,000,000 mepacrine tablets are expected shortly.

Of the above amounts, the following quantities have already been issued to the districts from April 1943 up to 30th September 1944:—

Quinine sulphate	...	34,441 lbs.
Cinchona febrifuge	...	15,163 lbs.
Mepacrine	...	60,592,100 tablets.

Out of the above quantities, over one-third of the quinine and mepacrine and all the cinchona were issued for free distribution at a cost to Government of over 12 lakh rupees.

The total quantities already issued to each district is shown in a separate statement.

Government have recently asked the Government of India for a further 300,000,000 mepacrine for Bengal, a substantial proportion of which will be for free distribution; and it is understood that 100,000,000 of this is being flown direct from United States of America and is expected any time now.

The demands of districts required, in addition to the allotment already issued in June, are being met fully from the substantial stocks now available, and the quota system has been more or less discontinued. Comprehensive instructions have been issued in June and July to District Quinine Rationing Authorities concerning arrangements for distribution within districts and popularising use of quinine substitutes. While the incidence of malaria is on the whole higher than last year at this time, the arrangements for procuring treatment are in a way better than they have ever been before.

With the further larger quantities of quinine substitutes which will be available, less control over these drugs will be necessary, and the question of making them available for sale by every chemists and druggists is under consideration. Medical practitioners are already allowed adequate supplies for their practices and are no longer dependent on quinine, the supplies of which are not so substantial.

Sir, I will now quote the comparative figures of the incidence of malaria and distribution of quinine for the last three years, from which it will be found as to what we are doing in this direction. Number of malaria patients attending dispensaries: during 1941 totalled 39 lakhs; during 1943, 47 lakhs; and during the first 5 months of 1944, 2,459,862. The proportion of increase is substantial; but, Sir, the distribution of quinine and other anti-malarial drugs has been also on the increase. The total distribution of anti-malaria drugs to districts by Government during the years 1941-42, 1942-43 and 1943-44 was as follows:—

Years.	Quinine sulphate.	Cinchona febrifuge.
	lbs.	lbs.
1941-42	13,391	14,146
1942-43	11,594	11,682
1943-44	88,624	24,759
1944-45	65,000	30,000
(upto date)
(6 months)

As regards mepacrine, in 1943-44, 6 millions and this year 109 millions are to be distributed of which 89 millions have already been distributed and another 300 millions will be received from the India Government. From what I have stated above, it will be seen that Government are fully aware of the gravity of the situation and Government know that malaria is causing havoc in the country. Government are taking necessary action in that direction. As a matter of fact, the supply of, quinine has been substantially increased from that of the last year. It has increased more than 50 per cent. in respect of quinine sulphate, in respect of quinine febrifuge more than 100 per cent. and in respect of mepacrine more than 2,000 per cent.

As regards anti-malarial measures to which attention of Government has been drawn by the Leader of the European party, I should like to say that the Government is very seriously thinking of having one Subdivisional Health Officer for every subdivision, so that anti-malarial measures for checking diseases may be taken by those responsible officers. Regarding the suggestions as regards the city of Calcutta, it has been noted and Government will certainly make correspondence with the Calcutta Corporation to tell us as to what measures they have taken to prevent recurrence of malaria in the city. I do not think I have anything more to say. I have shown that Government is doing everything which is humanly possible for any Government to do and more than that Government cannot do. There is increase in malaria because it has come from above. You cannot remove malaria immediately all at once. That there is an increase in malaria, nobody denies. Of course, to a certain extent malaria is due to economic causes which you cannot get rid of within a very short time unless you are in a position to supply substantial food to the people to resist the disease.

I hope my honourable friend, the mover of the motion, would please withdraw his motion in view of what I have said.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, of the various ailments we are heir to, malaria is the worst which carries away lakhs of people each year from Bengal. This year mortality is several lakhs over the normal. From April, malaria commenced its general assault and it has now reached its peak. Sir, I hail from Eastern Bengal and I can say, there is hardly a house which is free of it. There are several houses where the inmates en bloc are down with malaria, there being none left to give even a glass of water. Sir, His Excellency the Governor in his broadcast speech on September 22 last observed: "As was expected, however, malaria has unfortunately reappeared in an epidemic form in certain parts of the Province, particularly in the eastern side of Midnapore and in Eastern Bengal." Sir, it is not a mere question of reappearing. It was there in ever-increasing intensity. The proportion of malarial cases to the total number of cases treated at the medical centres operating under the guidance of the Bengal Medical Relief Co-ordination Committee, according to the statistical report received by its President Dr. B. C. Roy, shows: that in May, it was 69·3 per cent., in June, 64·6 per cent. in July, 66·2 per cent. in August, 75·3 per cent. in September, 81·2 per cent. It is clear, therefore, that malaria has assumed such a formidable proportion that I was well within mark when I said in my motion that Government have failed so far to stem the rising tide of malaria which is decimating millions in Bengal. There is no room for complacency. The situation demands utmost vigilance.

Sir, that eminent physician Dr. B. C. Roy so far back as September 28 observed "I admit, anti-malarial drugs such as mepacrine and quinocrine are available today in larger quantities than six weeks ago. But the need for these drugs in Bengal alone is far more than that in the whole of India in pre-war days. Supply of quinine is extremely low in most of the districts and altogether absent in others".

So much for the drugs. Now, I ask, where is the Governmental machinery to meet the situation created by the havoc of malaria in Bengal?

Mr. KADER BAKSH: On a point of order, Sir. Is the honourable member making a new speech or whether he is speaking in reply to the statement made by the Hon'ble Minister?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I am speaking in reply to the Hon'ble Minister's statement. Reference was made by Mr. Laidlaw that mepacrine supply of Government has been larger. I am quoting the opinion of the most eminent physician of Calcutta, Dr. B. C. Roy. The Leader of the House has pointed out that the Government have done all that they could do; but I say that they have not done all that they could do.

Now, Sir, what are our Civil Surgeons doing? Should they sit tight in their chairs? Why do they not in each district organize 30 to 40 centres, and put up requisite competent men to fight malaria? Such organisational works acting in concert with the Bengal Medical Relief Co-ordination Committee and the other non-official agencies will go a long way to meet the situation.

And then, Sir, the distribution of available drugs is most unsatisfactory. Civil Surgeons of the districts have been entrusted with the task of rationing them. There is want of good communication to reach the interior parts of the Eastern Bengal districts. Difficulties of transport have been made still more difficult by war conditions. No fresh requisition of quinine is allowed so long as a particular centre has not consumed the supply given to it. The result has been that the medical officers have to keep their centres in remote villages closed for days together to receive anti-malarial drugs from the authorities dwelling in the town in serene composure. We have heard of such complaints. For instance, the medical unit at Khasial, Jessore, closed its centre for 8 days until the doctor got supplies from the Civil Surgeon. In another case in Tamluq, 1 lb. of quinine cost the Peoples' Relief Committee Rs. 46 to get it.

Next, Sir, non-official relief organisation run by responsible persons get far less facilities in securing licenses for drugs than individuals whose activities have resulted in the black-marketing of the malarial drugs.

Sir, Government ought to change their method of distribution and make it easy for people to get drugs in the remotest villages. For this, organization is necessary which is lacking. Government ought to take a long view also of this problem. Government has not merely no organization of its own to fight this scourge of malaria, but they have also no plan either to carry out, in order to put a stop to malarial attacks in a number of years, although, Sir, it is a bare fact that malaria takes and is taking a total of human lives in Bengal every year which is higher than all the battle casualties so far suffered by all the warring nations put together since September, 1939. In Italy and in Panama they have succeeded in making malaria a thing of the past, and there is no reason therefore why Bengal should fail in this. This is my reply to what has been stated by the Honourable the Leader of the House.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Does the Leader of the House desire to make any further reply?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: No; I need not reply again, for I have already said that we are doing all that we can.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance and of recent occurrence, namely, the failure of the Government to stem the rising tide of malaria which is now at its peak causing havoc and decimating millions in Bengal.

(The motion was negatived.)

Point of information.

MR. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: May I rise on a point of information, Sir? It is this: With regard to the appointment of the Election Tribunal regarding the petition of Sir K. G. M. Farouqui, I tabled an adjournment motion. At that time the Hon'ble President suggested that the contents of the motion had been taken note of by the Minister concerned and he thought that that would serve my purpose. The motion for adjournment stated that as Mr. Ali Afzal, Secretary to the Legislative Assembly, was closely related to one of the Judges, another Judge should be appointed in his place. Now, Mr. Akbar after sitting for some days has resigned on that very ground and the next sitting of the Tribunal will take place on the 24th of this month. Some public money and time has been wasted by not paying heed to my motion and I want to know whether a Judge will be appointed within the 24th instant so that the matter may be expedited. I think the Leader of the House who is present here may kindly be asked by the Chair to supply information, if he has any.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: At this stage, I cannot compel the Government to make a reply. Of course, if he pleases he may enlighten the House on the matter.

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: Does this matter arise, Sir?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Surely it does. I think I can rise on a point of information at any stage. Besides, the work of the House is continuing after the adjournment motion is over.

Mr. KADER BAKSH: On a point of order, Sir. Is the Council competent to go into the question as to whether Government is compelled to make any reply to the question?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: No, the honourable member has only asked for information.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: We think a judge will be appointed but what I want to know is: will he be appointed in time for the next hearing on the 24th instant?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Will the honourable member kindly repeat the question?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I brought in an adjournment motion—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: You need not repeat the question.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I think the proper method would be to put in a short-notice question.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I am afraid, I cannot allow any discussion on the question. You have asked your question and that is all.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: My point is simply when the next judge is going to be appointed.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Without notice I am not able to answer the point; but I may say offhand that one new Judge will certainly be appointed very soon.

Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The House will now resume further consideration of the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that clause 56 of the Bill, for sub-clause (4), the following sub-clause be substituted, namely:— ●

“(4) No court shall take cognizance of an offence under this section except on the previous sanction of the Commissioner.”

Sir, yesterday I moved a similar motion and advanced certain reasons. The Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Bill gave a reply which does not seem to me to be satisfactory. I shall, therefore, submit other reasons which seem to me to be quite clear. So far as the Bill-clause is concerned, it simply says that no prosecution shall be instituted under this section except with the previous sanction of the Commissioner. It prohibits the institution of a complaint except under the sanction of the Commissioner. It does not prevent a court from taking notice or cognizance of the case. Yesterday, Mr. Humayun Kabir was kind enough to support my amendment of a similar nature. He confined his remarks to the supposed high-handed action of the Government; but the prosecution may be instituted also by private persons. Every individual can move the court unless his action is barred. In this case, the Legislature gives a warning that no prosecution shall be instituted. It does not strike at the jurisdiction of the court to take notice of the criminal prosecution. This matter has been dealt with, as I submitted yesterday, in the Code of Criminal Procedure. The usual method of dealing with such a case is to prevent cognizance by the Court of Law. That prevents all kinds of prosecutions. Under section 195, the language is this:—

“No court shall take cognizance of an offence punishable under sections 172 to 188.”

This is the standardised language. It occurs in a chapter which deals with conditions requisite for the initiation of the proceedings. In fact, this section prevents jurisdiction of the court from taking any notice whatever although that is the purpose of the sub-clause. In the circumstances, I have suggested the amendment the language of which is in keeping with the Code of Criminal Procedure. Then I shall draw the attention of the honourable members to a provision of the Bengal Money-lenders Act. In it there was a provision similar to the one in the Bill. At my motion an amendment was accepted and now the section stands like this. In section 42, sub-section (2) of the Bengal Money-lenders Act the language has been accepted in the Court of Criminal Procedure. I do not know what is the point in departing from the standardised language. If you introduce complication, it may lead to trouble. Sometimes the legal difficulty which is created is not appreciated by lawyers. I beg to submit that all doubt should be removed and the standardised language of the Code of Criminal Procedure should be accepted. The mere intention to effect certain purposes without being expressed by adequate language would not be enough. The Judges have repeatedly said that if the language of a legislation is defective, the Judges are not to help them. It is for the Legislature to improve. In the circumstances, I beg to submit that this amendment should be accepted.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that clause 56 of the Bill, for sub-clause (4), the following sub-clause be substituted, namely:—

“(4) No court shall take cognizance of an offence under this section except on the previous sanction of the Commissioner.”

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Sir, I am not a lawyer. So I am not in a position to explain the object of the amendment as lucidly as the Khan Bahadur has done. The only thing that I desire to say in this connection is that the amendment suggested by the Khan Bahadur is very desirable, the difference being that in the case of sub-clause (4), as it now stands in the Bill, any court will take cognizance of a prosecution instituted under this section. The only thing that he will see is as to whether the necessary sanction of the Commissioner has been obtained. But the amendment suggested by the Khan Bahadur says that no court shall take cognizance of an offence under this section except on the previous sanction of the Commissioner. If the Commissioner has not given the previous sanction, then no Court of Law shall take cognizance of the offence. The Khan Bahadur ought to know better because he has long been connected with the administration of the Criminal Courts of this province. I do not think I can advise him in this matter. With these words, I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: The present amendment does not seem to me to be an improvement at all. I, therefore, oppose the amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 56 of the Bill, for sub-clause (4), the following sub-clause be substituted, namely:—

“(4) No court shall take cognizance of an offence under this section except on the previous sanction of the Commissioner.”

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 56 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 57.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Clause 57 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: That in sub-clause (2) of clause 57 of the Bill, in paragraph (c), for the words “is to be prescribed”, in lines 1 and 2, the words “may be prescribed” be substituted.

This is a drafting amendment. The clause makes a provision for rule making power. Paragraph (c) of sub-clause (2) provides that Government may “provide for any matter which by this Act is to be prescribed”. For the words “is to be prescribed”, I put “may be prescribed”. Is to be prescribed rather indicates that something must be prescribed, it rather indicates obligation to prescribe. To say: may be prescribed simply says that Government has power to prescribe. This seems to be better expression.

Then, there is the other difficulty. Instead of giving a list of the sections in which powers have to be exercised as is done in the case of other Acts, there is no such thing done here in this Bill. Mr. Nur Ahmed had suggested an amendment saying that specific powers should be mentioned in the sections. So there is want of definiteness. With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (2) of clause 57 of the Bill, in paragraph (c), for the words “is to be prescribed”, in lines 1 and 2, the words “may be prescribed” be substituted.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Sir, as an Oxford scholar, I think, the Hon'ble the Finance Minister will be better able to appreciate the desirability of this amendment. Every one who knows something of English will admit that the amendment suggested is a distinct improvement upon what has been provided for in the relevant Bill-clause. The clause says “The Provincial Government may, subject to the condition of previous publication, make rules consistent with the provisions of this Act for carrying out the purposes of this Act. (2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may—(c) provide for any matter which by this Act is to be prescribed, etc.” The Khan Bahadur has clearly stated that there is good deal of difference in the meaning of the expression “is to be” and “may be”. There is an element of compulsion in the expression “is to be.” So, I think “may be” will be a distinct improvement. In this view of the matter, I hope this amendment will be accepted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I regret to say that I cannot agree either with the Khan Bahadur or with the Rai Bahadur. If they would only read the clause a little more carefully, they would understand why the drafting as it stands is absolutely necessary and that the amendment would be a mistake. The Act lays down certain things that must be prescribed, otherwise the Act has no meaning. Therefore, I strongly oppose the amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (2) of clause 57 of the Bill, in paragraph (c), for the words "is to be prescribed", in lines 1 and 2, the words "may be prescribed" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that clause 57 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 58.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Clause 58 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (1) of clause 58 of the Bill, after the words "this Act" in line 4, a comma be inserted.

Sir, I am glad to inform the House that this is the last of the commas. I gave the other day an illustration as to how a comma may play an important part if it is properly placed. If it is misplaced what a great havoc it may make. I gave illustration from the Bengali language. Now, I have come across another instance of a similar disaster which may follow if the comma is moved from the right to the left.

A young military officer wanted to marry a girl. He sent a wire to her to agree to marry. The girl sent a telegram in this way: Marry me not to do so would make me unhappy. When the gentleman read it he put a comma after the words "marry me," and then read the telegram in this way: Marry me, not to do so would make me unhappy. So the bride and the bridegroom absolutely differed in their intention.

Apart from these small affairs, a comma may be extremely important and I leave it to the good sense of the House to judge from the merits whether this comma would not improve matters.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved that in sub-clause (1) of clause 58 of the Bill, after the words "this Act" in line 4, a comma be inserted.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I beg to support this amendment. I understand from a friend of mine that yesterday in connection with another amendment of my honourable friend, the Hon'ble the Finance Minister remarked that over that comma some thousands of rupees were spent out of some Relief funds at the disposal of the Opposition group. This is absolutely incorrect. We are not accustomed to squandering our paternal money on girls or whisky; but we always like to spend our good money for a principle. With these words, I support this comma amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, in opposing the Khan Bahadur's amendment, I must not omit to thank him for the entertainment he has given us, although another honourable member took the opportunity of defending the squandering of public funds in this connection. Some persons may have squandered their own money—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: It is a lie.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: No, it is a fact.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: It is a lie positive.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Public funds have been squandered for an illicit purpose, and I am glad that my remark yesterday has done this good—

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Can the Hon'ble Minister say—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order, Khan Sahib, you must take your seat.

The question before the House is: that in sub-clause (1) of clause 58 of the Bill, after the words "this Act" in line 4, a comma be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Before you proceed to the next item, I would like to make a submission. The Hon'ble Minister has made an aspersion with regard to the squandering of certain public funds by members on this side of the House. Can he do so?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The Hon'ble Minister simply made a reply.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Unless the Hon'ble Minister comes up with facts to substantiate his allegation, will he not be asked to withdraw the expression?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: Why, Sir. Can the Hon'ble Minister make use of such expressions?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Well, you have made your submission and I do not consider it fit to ask the Hon'ble Minister to withdraw the expressions.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: After all, it is an aspersion on the honourable member.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. Next amendment.

Mr. KADER BAKSH: May I speak a few words?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. Do you want to rise on a point of order?

Mr. KADER BAKSH: Yes, Sir. Is the word "lie" parliamentary?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: That is not a point of order.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 58 of the Bill, in the Explanation to paragraph (i), for the words and inverted commas "Banking company" in line 1, the words and inverted commas "The expression 'banking company'" be substituted.

Sir, in the definition clause the word "company" begins with a small letter. In sub-clause (2) of clause 58, paragraph (i), the word "banking company" has been used with a small letter, but in the Explanation to paragraph (i) banking has begun with a capital letter. There are two other definitions in paragraphs (vi) and (iii) where the word lawyer has been used with a small letter and accountant has also been used with a small letter. That is the technical reason why this amendment should be accepted.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (2) of clause 58 of the Bill, in the Explanation to paragraph (i), for the words and inverted commas "Banking Company" in line 1 the words and inverted commas "The expression 'banking company'" be substituted.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (2) of clause 58 of the Bill, in the Explanation to paragraph (i), for the words and inverted commas "Banking Company" in line 1, the words and inverted commas "The expression 'banking company'" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I think our drafting is quite all right and I think there is no necessity for improvement. I therefore oppose it.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in sub-clause (2) of clause 58 of the Bill, in the Explanation to paragraph (i), for the words and inverted commas "Banking company" in line 1, the words and inverted commas "The expression 'Banking company'" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 58 of the Bill, in paragraph (iv), for the words "Agricultural income-tax practitioner", the words "agricultural income-tax practitioner" be substituted.

Sir, the word "agricultural income-tax practitioner" is not a proper noun and therefore very properly the expression has been used with a small letter in the text of the Bill but in the definition it has begun with a capital letter. Sub-clause 2, paragraphs 2 and 3 have begun with a small letter. So in paragraph 4 of the sub-clause the word "agricultural income-tax officer" need not begin with the capital letter because it is not in the beginning of a sentence. The House will also please consider that in sub-clause (1) in lines 2 and 3 the expression "agricultural income-tax authority" has been written with a small letter. There are also two other words in 2 and 3 of the Explanation with small letters and there is no reason why a capital letter should be used here. In order to be consistent this should also be a small letter. With these few words, Sir, I commend my amendment to the acceptance of the House.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (2), of clause 58 of the Bill, in paragraph (iv), for the words "Agricultural income-tax practitioner" the words "agricultural income-tax practitioner" be substituted.

Rai KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE Bahadur: Sir, I like to support the amendment. I admire the consistency of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister. He has been very brief in his replies throughout the proceedings. I think he will also realise that the arguments advanced in support of this amendment are really sound. Khan Bahadur has already given his reasons as to why the capital letter should be placed by a small letter. Though I have managed to forget grammar still I think it is a grammatical mistake to use a capital letter after a comma. Capital letters can only be used in the beginning of a sentence. In sub-clause (ii) of this clause the word "lawyer" begins with a small letter and in (iii) the word "accountant" begins with a small letter and there is no reason why in sub-clause (iv) the word "agricultural" should not begin with a small letter. I think, Sir, the Hon'ble Minister will bear me out in this matter.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I am not at all convinced that there is any necessity for the substitution of a small letter for a capital one. After all, "Agricultural income-tax practitioner" refers to a category of person. Therefore, I think the capital "A" is just suitable.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (2) of clause 58 of the Bill, in paragraph (iv), for the words

"Agricultural income-tax practitioner", the words "agricultural income-tax practitioner" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 58 of the Bill, in paragraph (iv), for the words "such a practitioner" in line 5, the words "such practitioner" be substituted.

Sir, this amendment would economise a word and probably the expression would stand better than it is in the context.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in in sub-clause (2) of clause 58, of the Bill, in paragraph (iv), for the words "such a practitioner" in line 5, the words "such practitioner" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I agree that it is a matter of opinion and therefore I stick to my language. Sir, I oppose the motion.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (2), of clause 58 of the Bill, in paragraph (iv), for the words "such a practitioner" in line 5, the words "such practitioner" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 58 of the Bill, after sub-clause (3), the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

"(4) In the case of the Ruler of an Indian State the recognised agent of such State or any other Officer authorised by the recognised agent in writing in this behalf may attend the Appellate Tribunal or any Agricultural Income-tax authority in connection with any proceeding under this Act".

Sir, as I stated before, the object of my amendment is to see that the Ruler of an Indian State who cannot be brought by any notice to the Appellate Tribunal or the Agricultural Income-tax authority, a provision may be made so that a recognised agent of the Ruler of the Indian State may appear before the Appellate Tribunal or the Agricultural Income-tax authority in order to represent the case of the Ruler of an Indian State before the Appellate Tribunal or the Agricultural Income-tax authority. This is merely a formal matter so far as the provision with regard to the enforcement of the tax against the Ruler of an Indian State is concerned and I hope the Hon'ble Finance Minister will accept it. One of his arguments will be, I suppose, that there is ample provision in the Bill to bring in the Ruler of the Indian State, but, I am afraid, he will find great difficulty to enforce provision against the Ruler of an Indian State with the existing provisions in the Bill and unless there is some concession made with regard to some of the amendments which would be necessary for the purpose of enforcing the orders of the Agricultural Income-tax authorities, so far as these Indian States are concerned, I am afraid the authorities will find it difficult to enforce the realisation of the sums imposed under the Act if the Ruler of an Indian State proves obstructive and take legal steps for the purpose of avoiding payment of the tax imposed upon him. With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 58 of the Bill, after sub-clause (3), the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

"(4) In the case of the Ruler of an Indian State the recognised agent of such State or any other Officer authorised by the recognised agent in writing in this behalf may attend the Appellate Tribunal or any Agricultural Income-tax authority in connection with any proceeding under this Act."

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to support the amendment. We have already decided to levy tax on the Rulers of Indian States. This sub-clause would serve that purpose. In this view of the matter, I support it.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I find that my friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee has not lost his interest in the Rulers of the Indian States. I would point out that—although I am not mentioning it as a point of order—he failed to move his amendment at an earlier stage of the discussion in which he sought to define the recognised agent of an Indian State. Therefore, that definition has not found its place in this Bill. So, technically this amendment would be out of order.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: On a point of personal explanation, Sir. If the Hon'ble Minister looks up the Civil Procedure Code, he would find that the agent has been mentioned there.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: However, Sir, as I said in the beginning, I was not trying to raise this as a point of order. I wanted to say that this amendment is quite unnecessary, because any assessee can appear by agent under the circumstances mentioned in clause 15(a). Therefore, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is: that in clause 58 of the Bill, after sub-clause (3), the following new sub-clause be added, namely:—

“(4) In the case of the Ruler of an Indian State the recognised agent of such State or any other Officer authorised by the recognised agent in writing in this behalf may attend the Appellate Tribunal or any Agricultural Income-tax authority in connection with any proceeding under this Act.”

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 58 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 59.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 59 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 60.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Clause 60 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that in clause 60 of the Bill, in sub-clause (2)(b), the words “the Ruler of an Indian State” in line 1, be deleted.

Sir, I would refer to the provisions of the Government of India Act and also the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code wherein it is provided that you cannot serve any notice or requisition upon the Ruler of an Indian State. There is a special machinery provided for that and the provision seems to be illegal and ought to be deleted. With these few words, I move the amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved that in clause 60 of the Bill, in sub-clause (2)(b), the words “the Ruler of an Indian State” in line 1 be deleted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: It is within the competency of the Legislature to enact a law like the one which is before the House. We are not going to let off our dues from the Rulers of Indian States. That is our settled policy. I, therefore, oppose this amendment as unnecessary.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 60 of the Bill, in sub-clause (2)(b), the words "The Ruler of an Indian State" in line 1 be deleted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move—

Mr. W. B. G. LAIDLAW: On a point of order, Sir. This amendment is consequential or would have been consequential on the previous one; and as matters stand, it is repugnant to what we have already agreed on in clause 60(2)(b).

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I think Mr. Laidlaw is not right when he says that my amendment is out of order. What I propose is an additional paragraph, so that even if a notice served on the Ruler of an Indian State becomes abortive, the notice may be served upon the recognised agent of the Ruler. Therefore, it is not consequential but it is an amendment which stands by itself, and if accepted will be an improvement because as the Ruler of an Indian State cannot be brought in under the provisions of the Bill clause, 60(2)(b), they may yet be brought in by this amendment which I have proposed. Therefore I think Mr. Laidlaw is not quite accurate when he says that it is a consequential amendment and should be ruled out of order. I submit that this amendment is in order and I beg to move it as follows: That in clause 60 of the Bill after paragraph (b) of sub-clause (2), the following paragraph be added, namely:—

"(c) in the case of the Ruler of an Indian State, to the recognised agent of such state".

I need not repeat the argument which I have already made. I think the Hon'ble Finance Minister when he replied to my amendment No. 392B probably did not notice this amendment, namely, 192C and therefore he made an irrelevant remark that having accepted the principle of taxing Rulers of Indian States, he was not going to let them off by deleting this clause. I think the Hon'ble Finance Minister should have taken his lessons from some other quarters in order to make his speech in opposing the amendment which was moved by me before. I have always maintained that I am not in favour of exempting the Rulers of Indian States from taxation and I have already accepted the position that the Rulers should be taxed and therefore the remark of the Finance Minister was not only irrelevant but was not in justification of the attitude which I have taken throughout with regard to the assessment of the tax upon the Rulers of Indian States. I hope the Finance Minister should realise this and in future when he replies to my amendments he would consider this matter more seriously; otherwise he would be guilty of placing something on record which would not be to his credit. He should remember that his speeches are going to be recorded in the minutes of the proceedings of this House which would be handed down to posterity, so that when they come to read his speeches they may not say "Oh, it is very difficult to follow how the Finance Minister could say all this", after having read the proceedings in connection with the very next amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in clause 60 of the Bill, after paragraph (b) of sub-clause (2), the following paragraph be added, namely:—

"(c) in the case of the Ruler of an Indian State, to the recognised agent of such State."

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I rise to support this amendment. The question is not, as the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has said, mere determination to levy tax upon a particular Ruler of the Indian State. For that purpose, the entire House is of one mind. The point is: whether that determination has been given effect to sufficiently by means of adequate provision. The amendment seeks to introduce a machinery to give effect to the determination with which determination the entire House has agreed. The Hon'ble Minister in charge is probably emphasizing the very obvious point that we are all determined to levy tax; with regard to that there is no difference of opinion. This amendment seeks to legislate on that point effectively.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I am very glad that my honourable friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee is very anxious to tax the Rulers of Indian States, as many others of this House are. So if I have said anything in derogation of the present position, I apologise and withdraw. But still I think that our object in taxing the Rulers of Indian States will be attained without the amendment proposed by the honourable mover. Therefore, Sir, as it is unnecessary I oppose this amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in clause 60 of the Bill, after paragraph (b) of sub-clause (2), the following paragraph be added, namely:—

“(c) in the case of the Ruler of an Indian State, to the recognised agent of such State”.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 60 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 61.

Clause 61 stand part of the Bill.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (2) of clause 61 of the Bill, the following be added at the end, namely:—

“or at the option of the assessee any of the areas where the agricultural land is situated”.

Honourable members will please notice that this clause 61 deals with the place of assessment and different places of assessment has been prescribed for different classes of assessees. Under clause (1) it is prescribed that when an assessee is a company, it shall be assessed at the place where the registered office of the company is situated. Under clause (2), it is stated that where an assessee is a company not having a registered office in Bengal or is a firm or other association of individuals, it shall be assessed by the Agricultural Income-tax Officer of the area where the principal accounts relating to its agricultural income are kept. My amendment intended to add these words at the end of this sub-clause (2). I propose that save and except the place where the principal accounts are kept an option may be given to the assessee of this class to have the place of assessment fixed according to his own convenience provided it is at a place where the agricultural land is situated. The author of this sub-clause thought and naturally considered that the place where the accounts are kept must be very convenient to the assessee of this class. I do not disagree but there may be circumstances under which an assessee of this class might like to be assessed at some place other than where their accounts are kept. With a view to give that facility to this class of assessee I have proposed this amendment. I think it will not inconvenience the assessing officers nor the agricultural income-tax officers in any way. So that if you can, by adding these few words, give an additional convenience to an assessee, I think you should not grudge it and I hope that this is a most suitable amendment to help certain class of assessee and the House will be pleased to accept this amendment.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in sub-clause (2) of clause 61 of the Bill, the following be added at the end, namely:—

“or at the option of the assessee any of the areas where the agricultural land is situated.”

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I fail to see how this option can give any real advantage to the assessee. The honourable the mover of the amendment did not give us any instance where exercise of such option may be of any advantage. On the contrary, it would introduce an element of uncertainty. I submit, Sir, that assessment is best done at the place where the accounts are kept. Therefore, Sir, in view of this uncertainty, I oppose this amendment.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (2) of clause 61 of the Bill, the following be added at the end, namely:—

“or at the option of the assessee any of the areas where the agricultural land is situated.”

(The amendment was negatived.)

MR. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, I beg to move: That in sub-clause (3) of clause 61 of the Bill, for the words “the agent or the principal officer of such assessee resides” in lines 4 and 5, the words “the principal officer or any agent, naib or gomostha of such assessee resides” be substituted.

Now, this sub-clause fixes the place of assessment, irrespective of the question as to whether an assessee resides in a particular place or not. If the assessee is living outside the province we would fall back upon the principal officer or his agent. That, I think, would be a source of constant dispute between the assessee and the authorities, because whether a person is or is not an agent cannot be determined unless there is a power of attorney registered or authenticated properly. Therefore, I want to widen the scope by including the naib or gomostha or any agent. Now, one of these persons must stay there. Therefore, the addition of these words would certainly improve the clause as it stands at present and would avoid all possible disputes and quarrels between the assessing authorities and the assessee. I hope the Hon'ble the Finance Minister would see his way to accept this amendment for the benefit of easy assessment.

MR. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved: that in sub-clause (3) of clause 61 of the Bill, for the words “the agent or the principal officer of such assessee resides” in lines 4 and 5, the words “the principal officer or any agent, naib or gomostha of such assessee resides” be substituted.

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to support the amendment which has been moved by my honourable friend Mr. Moholanabish. Now, I was surprised to find, Sir, when the Hon'ble the Finance Minister was opposing the previous amendment and he said that it was not made clear as to what advantage the assessee would have if he had the advantage of being assessee in any place where his agricultural land is situated. The advantage to the assessee was obvious and it ought to have been so to the Hon'ble the Finance Minister because the assessee might choose to get assessed in any one of the places where his land is situated. Now, so far as the present amendment is concerned I hope the Hon'ble the Finance Minister will be a little more careful and consider and see that the amendment is accepted. The wordings as they stand at present in the Bill “the agent or the principal officer of such assessee.....". Now, the word "agent" has not been defined in the definition clause 2, but the principal officer is defined. The principal officer is defined in clause 2(12), and therefore if honourable members will refer to the clause itself, I mean sub-clause (12) of clause 2, they will find the following definition of the principal officer: "(12) 'principal officer' used with reference to an Indian State, a company or any other association means—

(a) (i) the manager or agent in Bengal of the Ruler or the Indian State, or

(ii) the secretary, treasurer, manager or agent of the company or association; or

(b) any individual connected with the Indian State, company or association upon whom an Agricultural Income-tax Officer has served a notice of his intention of treating him as the principal officer thereof."

Therefore, so far as the principal officer is concerned which is defined in the Act it refers to certain classes of assessees. I hope the Hon'ble the Finance Minister will realise that that definition does not exhaust all the assessees which are included within the operation of the Agricultural Income-tax Act. We know that naibs and gomasthas the well-known officers under zemindars, and I hope the Hon'ble the Finance Minister knows it very well because he himself is one of the landed aristocracies in Bengal, and therefore when dealing with Agricultural Income-tax officers one should have brought of these naibs and gomosthas who are the officers of the landlords and upon whom notices ought to be served for the purpose of enforcing attendance or serving processes under the Act. Therefore I think that the amendment really supplies an omission which may have been accidental but an omission which cannot be ignored and ought to be supplied. I therefore submit that the amendment should be accepted. With these few words I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, it is not correct to say that the word "agent" has not been defined in this Bill. In fact, a very wide definition of the word "agent" is given in clause 20. It is a very wide definition and it would include naibs and gomosthas or officers of that kind by whatever name you call them. Therefore, I do not think there is any necessity of mentioning naibs and gomosthas who have been specifically defined in this Bill.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (3) of clause 61 of the Bill, for the words "the agent or the principal officer of such assessee resides" in lines 4 and 5, the words "the principal officer or any agent, Naib or Gomostha of such assessee resides" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 61 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 62.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in clause 62 of the Bill, for the words "retaining or paying" in line 1, the words and comma "deducting, retaining or paying" be substituted.

Sir, the amendment has the effect of introducing another word "deducting". In fact, there are three words which are necessary in the context of this clause. In the Bill-clause only two words, namely, "retaining or paying" are to be found. The expression "deducting," is a necessary expression to give completeness of meaning to it. As an authority for the soundness of my argument I can refer the Honourable Minister to the previous amendment of which notice was given by a very able member of this House, Mr. Nur Ahmed. He did not move that amendment but that amendment of which he gave notice had the same effect. I do not wish to read it but I would simply refer to the fact that that amendment aimed at the same effect. For the purpose of supporting my argument I may say that I live in the extreme westernmost district of the Province and Mr. Nur Ahmed in the extreme easternmost part of the province and when two such honourable members from entirely opposite directions agree upon the introduction of the same word, there must be something in the merits of the expression which should be accepted. I may assure the House that there was no conspiracy between us and both agreed to the introduction of the word "deduction", simply because both of them felt in their humble way that that word was necessary. My honourable friend Khan Sahib Wahiduzzaman suggests that great men think alike but I would not go so far. We are two humble men who thought that the necessity for the word was very great, and this necessity has made us united. With these words, I move that the amendment should be accepted.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in clause 62 of the Bill, for the words "retaining or paying" in line 1, the words and comma "deducting, retaining or paying" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I do not think this amendment is necessary. The word "retaining" covers the entire purpose the honourable mover has in mind. I therefore oppose the amendment.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 62 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

- Clause 63.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Clause 63 stand part of the Bill.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in sub-clause (4) of clause 63 of the Bill, for the words "the Court" in line 3, the words "the High Court" be substituted.

Sir, although a painstaking man might interfere with the expression "High Court", I think in the interest of better draftsmanship it is better to be very particular. Legal enactments are very particular in this respect. I hope this amendment will be accepted.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (4) of clause 63 of the Bill, for the words "the Court" in line 3, the words "the High Court" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, this amendment is unnecessary. I oppose it.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (4) of clause 63 of the Bill, for the words "the Court" in line 3, the words "the High Court" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in sub-clause (6) of clause 63 of the Bill, for words "the Court" occurring at the end, the words "that Court" be substituted.

Sir, there is some difference between "the Court" and "that Court". "That" is more particular and more accurate in the context. That is why I am suggesting this amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in sub-clause (6) of clause 63 of the Bill, for the words "the Court" occurring at the end, the words "that Court" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: I do not think the amendment is necessary. Therefore I oppose it.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in sub-clause (6) of clause 63 of the Bill, for the words "the Court" occurring at the end, the words "that Court" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 63 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Clause 64.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 64 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I believe that by this time the honourable members have received a circular letter signed by the Hon'ble Speaker of the Legislative Assembly intimating certain printing mistakes in respect of clause 65. So if any honourable member wants to give notice of any amendment under the new circumstances, I am prepared to give him time up to 2 p.m. on Thursday next. In that view of the matter, I want to pass over all the amendments in respect of clause 65. Now I want to take up amendment No. 415. Clause 65 would be taken up later.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I simply like to know that after passing through certain amendments whether this is the proper time to receive such a circular letter. In fact, we have got a Bill from the other House and we cannot proceed behind that Bill and go into the proceedings of another place. The question might lead to some constitutional difficulty. If that question is reserved for consideration till that time, I do not want to raise it now.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: As we have not yet reached clause 65, I think that this change can be made. There will be no irregularity in that matter.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: I rise on a point of privilege, Sir. This communication has only been received—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: This is not a question of privilege. You cannot ask the reason for my decision.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: I then rise on a point of information, Sir. This communication has been sent to us only a few minutes before. It is really not authorised by any law or rule.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: This is a different matter. That question was raised by Khan Bahadur and I have given a reply.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: I do not understand—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Please resume your seat. I have already informed you that this office has received a letter from the Hon'ble the Speaker of the Assembly. He has intimated that there is a certain printing mistake in respect of clause 65 and that matter has been made known to you by a circular letter. So I want to pass over all amendments in respect of clause 65.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, you have stated certain facts which are already known to us. The Hon'ble Speaker of the Assembly has sent a communication to us. This fact is known to us. That is neither any order nor a decision. What I want to know is: whether in the circumstances there can be any communication of this nature.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: My answer is in the affirmative. I have already stated that.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, may I rise on a point of order? I don't think you can skip over section 65.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I think I can.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, we refuse to consider the other clauses before clause 65 is finished.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Khan Bahadur, you can move your amendment No. 415.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A(1) after the word "every individual" in line 1, the following be inserted, namely:—

"whether he is a member of an undivided Hindu family governed by the Dayabhaga school or of an undivided Muslim family".

Sir, the Bill has given certain advantageous position to an undivided Hindu family which unfortunately has been defined to be undivided Hindu family belonging to Mitakhshara school. That is because the expression has been used in the Indian Income-tax Act in that way. It is very unfortunate that the expression has been blindly inserted in this Bill without considering what tremendous difference it would make. So far as the all-India question is concerned, a preponderating number is being governed by the Mitakhshara school. Dayabhaga system only obtains in Bengal. So it seems to us that the advantage to the undivided Hindu family would be confined to those undivided Hindu family of Mitakhshara schools. It would be the undivided Hindu family belonging to the Dayabhaga school which would not be able to participate in the benefit. In fact, I believe that the definition of undivided Hindu family has been blindly accepted from the Indian Income-tax Act. But whatever may be the consideration that induced the draftsman to extend the benefit to the Mitakhshara school, there is no earthly reason why the same advantage should not be given to undivided Hindu family belonging to the Dayabhaga system.

There is another point. In Bengal there are many Muslim families which are undivided. It does not matter whether a family belongs to the Muslim community or Hindu community: the test is whether the family is divided or undivided. In the circumstances, I beg to suggest that the expression undivided Hindu family governed by the Dayabhaga school should also be included to enable them to participate in the benefits. That is the effect of this amendment. In fact, a very wholesome provision has been made and this should be extended to all, Hindus and Muhammadans. If it is not possible for the Hon'ble the Finance Minister to accept this amendment readily, I would ask him to consider the matter afterwards when he takes up an amending Bill. With these words, Sir, I move my amendment.

Schedule.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A(1) after the words "every individual" in line 1, the following be inserted, namely:—

"whether he is a member of an undivided Hindu family governed by the Dayabhaga school or of an undivided Muslim family."

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I would like to point out that persons governed by the Dayabhaga school and persons governed by Muslim law have their shares determined unlike the members of families governed by Mitakshara law. Therefore, this particular amendment is not necessary in their case. It is for that reason that Hindu undivided family has been defined as Hindu undivided family belonging to the Mitakshara school. In practice, there must be justice done in the case of members of the Mitakshara family.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A(I) after the words "every individual" in line 1, the following be inserted, namely:—

"whether he is a member of an undivided Hindu family governed by the Dayabhaga school or of an undivided Muslim family."

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A(I) for the words "Hindu undivided family" in line 1, the words "or a Hindu undivided family governed by the Mitakshara school" be substituted.

Sir, this is merely consequential.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A(I) for the words "Hindu undivided family" in line 1, the words "or a Hindu undivided family governed by the Mitakshara school" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, after what I have said, I do not think I need repeat myself. I think I made my position quite clear.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A(I) for the words "Hindu undivided family" in line 1, the words "or a Hindu undivided family governed by the Mitakshara school" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A(I) for the words "consisting of brothers only" in line 2, the words "consisting only of brothers or the representatives" be substituted.

Sir, this is a little more than a drafting amendment. In this case the Bill clause provides for a family consisting of brothers. If we go down to the definition of brother, we find a paradoxical situation. The House will be pleased to consider the definition of "brother" at the bottom of the Schedule paragraph (i) under the heading Explanation. There, strangely enough, "brother" is supposed to include the son and the son of a son of a brother and last of all the widow of a brother. This should appear strange to any one not accustomed to the ways of legislative methods. In fact, how can a brother in the ordinary language be meant to include the son of a brother and the son's son of a brother and what is more obnoxious, the widow of a brother? A certain gentleman wanted to find a suitable bridegroom for his daughter. He found one and interviewed him to ascertain his qualifications. He asked him how many brothers you are তেমনা ক' ভাই? The answer was: three: তিন ভাই; Then the would-be father-in-law asked him who are they? কে কে? The reply was আমি কাকীকাকা ভগ্নী পিসী। In this case this is what exactly the Bill says. This I found in one of the classic dramas of Bengal and little did the author of the drama think at the time that a day would come when this fiction would be realised in fact in his own country! Here, also, speaking of a brother, when one asks who is a brother, the answer is the son and the son of a son of a brother and the widow of a brother. This is exactly what the definition implies. I submit that definitions are used for the purpose of using shorter expressions and the choice of words to represent them should be made with some amount of care. The words which are used to express a large number of cases should be so selected as to really imply the thing designed to express: there should be no contradiction in terms, or any sex perversion in the text of a definition, which is too horrible for any man of the ordinary type to understand. If we did so, we should be blamed for agreeing to a definition which perpetuated such an absurdity or oddity. In these circumstances, I have suggested another amendment which may be taken into consideration just now, namely "consisting only of brothers or their representatives". This idea is again taken from the Mitakshara illustration. The son or widow of a brother is no doubt the representative of a brother. In fact, if we used this alternative, then the horrible contradiction in terms would not be perpetuated and it would remove the linguistic anomaly and also the sex perversion that I have suggested. This is only a fraction of the picture. I have tabled another amendment in order to make the picture complete and this amendment is to the effect that the expression "consisting of brothers only" in line 2, should be changed to "consisting only of brothers or their representatives". The representatives of a brother has been according to another amendment attempted to be defined as a brother, brother's son, brother's son's son and his widow. They are certainly representatives of a brother. In these circumstances, in the interest of good sense and decency, I think this amendment should be accepted. Towards the close of our debate at least one amendment should be accepted and I believe nothing will be lost but much good sense will be exhibited if this amendment is accepted. I leave it to the good sense of the Honourable Minister in charge of the Bill who must himself be very much surprised and shocked by the definition which has been suffered to be placed in this Bill.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A(1) for the words "consisting of brothers only" in line 2, the words "consisting only of brothers or their representatives" be substituted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I rise to support the amendment which has been moved by my honourable friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad.

But I support the amendment on a ground not exactly similar to the ground on which the mover has done so. Sir, I beg to support the amendment which has been moved by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. I would support the amendment on a ground not exactly similar to the ground on which the honourable mover wanted to support it. Now, Sir, if we look to the clause itself we find that the clause runs as follows: "In the case of every Hindu undivided family which consists of brothers only." Hindu undivided family has been defined as joint family governed by Mitakshara Hindu law. In the explanation to the sub-clause there is a definition. It is not exactly a definition but it purports to explain the word "brothers" in sub-clause (2) as follows: "For the purpose of this Schedule, 'brother' includes the son and the son of a son of a brother and the widow of a brother". Now, brother's son's son's son is not included. Therefore if a brother has left a great grandson who is also a member of a family, that family altogether goes out from the definition clause and does not get any benefit of sub-clause (2) of clause A of the Schedule.

There is another aspect of the matter and that is this. The widow of a brother is not a member of the Hindu undivided Mitakshara family. If the Hon'ble Finance Minister will look up the law of Mitakshara joint family he will find that a widow is not a co-partner in a Mitakshara joint family.

A widow gets a share under the Deshmukh Act but that Deshmukh Act does not apply to agricultural land and therefore in the present instance when we are going to tax agricultural property a widow does not get any share with regard to agricultural lands at all. I find the Hon'ble Minister is going to take lessons. I think he will have to go to some other quarter for this purpose. He will kindly consult the authority. In a case the Federal Court held that agricultural lands are outside the scope of the Central Legislature and therefore the widow of a brother does not become a co-partner and therefore so far as the definition itself is concerned that is not quite in accordance with the present law on the subject. I therefore submit that there is considerable legal difficulty in the clause as framed and if the amendment is accepted it would only remove all these difficulties. I submit that the Hon'ble Finance Minister before opposing this amendment will consider seriously whether he should or should not accept this amendment. With these few words I support the amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: The definition seems to be clear enough. Brother represents a legal category and that category has been explained according to relation. I am afraid there is no question of changing this definition. We have followed the Mitakshara law meticulously. I, therefore, cannot accept the amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A(1) for the words "consisting of brothers only" in line 2, the words "consisting only of brothers or their representatives" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I beg to move that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A(1), for the clauses (a) to (f), the following clauses be substituted, namely:—

"(a) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 5,000 but does not exceed Rs. 10,000—six pies in the rupee.

(b) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 10,000 but does not exceed Rs. 15,000—seven pies in the rupee.

(c) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 15,000 but does not exceed Rs. 20,000—eight pies in the rupee.

(d) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 20,000 but does not exceed Rs. 30,000—ten pies in the rupee.

(e) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 30,000 but does not exceed Rs. 40,000—twelve pies in the rupee.

(f) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 40,000 but does not exceed Rs. 75,000—fifteen pies in the rupee.

(g) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 75,000 but does not exceed Rs. 1,00,000—eighteen pies in the rupee.

(h) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 1,00,000 but does not exceed Rs. 1,50,000—twenty-two pies in the rupee.

(i) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 1,50,000 but does not exceed Rs. 2,50,000—twenty-four pies in the rupee.

(j) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 2,50,000 but does not exceed Rs. 5,00,000—twenty-six pies in the rupee.

(k) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 5,00,000 but does not exceed Rs. 10,00,000—twenty-eight pies in the rupee.

(l) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 10,00,000 but does not exceed Rs. 15,00,000—twenty-nine pies in the rupee.

(m) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 15,00,000—thirty pies in the rupee."

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A(I), for the clause (a) to (f), the following clauses be substituted, namely:—

“(a) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 5,000 but does not exceed Rs. 10,000—six pies in the rupee.

(b) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 10,000 but does not exceed Rs. 15,000—seven pies in the rupee.

(c) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 15,000 but does not exceed Rs. 20,000—eight pies in the rupee.

(d) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 20,000 but does not exceed Rs. 30,000—ten pies in the rupee.

(e) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 30,000 but does not exceed Rs. 40,000—twelve pies in the rupee.

(f) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 40,000 but does not exceed Rs. 75,000—fifteen pies in the rupee.

(g) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 75,000 but does not exceed Rs. 1,00,000—eighteen pies in the rupee.

(h) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 1,00,000 but does not exceed Rs. 1,50,000—twenty-two pies in the rupee.

(i) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 1,50,000 but does not exceed Rs. 2,50,000—twenty-four pies in the rupee.

(j) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 2,50,000 but does not exceed Rs. 5,00,000—twenty-six pies in the rupee.

(k) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 5,00,000 but does not exceed Rs. 10,00,000—twenty-eight pies in the rupee.

(l) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 10,00,000 but does not exceed Rs. 15,00,000—twenty-nine pies in the rupee.

(m) when the total agricultural income exceeds Rs. 15,00,000—thirty pies in the rupee.”

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I am not at all surprised that the mover of the amendment did not tell us why he proposed this amendment. Of course, I know the reason why he could not, for he copied this amendment from the Bihar Agricultural Income-tax Act or perhaps from one of the rejected amendments in another place. I wanted to know from the honourable mover what profit would be derived from this amendment. Now, Sir, I made it plain at one stage of the debate of this Bill that we have followed the slab system and there is no reason why we should go back to the old step system. Sir, the time at my disposal just now will not permit me to explain the difference between the slab system and step system; but I may say a few words regarding the slab system. Through the slab system, the distribution of the tax is much more effective and the net result is that more money accrues to the Treasury. That is the reason why we have adopted the slab system and rejected the old step system.

I oppose the amendment.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The House stands adjourned till 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment:

The Council then adjourned till 2 p.m., on Thursday, the 12th October, 1944.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 86.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Thursday, the 12th October, 1944, at 2 p.m., being the eighty-sixth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. Deputy President (Khan Bahadur ABDUL HAMID CHOWDHURY, J.P.) was in the Chair.

Adjournment Motions.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Sir, I find that there are no questions today; so I think the discussion of the Agricultural Income-tax Bill will be taken up straightway.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Before I take up the Bill, I have to take up some of the adjournment motions.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: After that I have to make a statement before the debate on the Income-tax Bill starts.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: There is a motion for adjournment of the business of the House tabled by Mr. Lalit Chandra Das which runs as follows:—

That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance and of recent occurrence, namely, the failure of the Government to give due protection to the Hindus in celebrating the Durga Pujah at Sandwip in the district of Noakhali which was broken up after udbhudhan (Bhudan Pujah) on the 23rd September last and was not allowed to proceed owing to Muslim interference.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I want to know whether the Government is prepared to make a statement on this matter before I actually move my adjournment motion.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYID MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I am not in a position to say anything about it, because we are not really prepared to make any statement today. We thought that the motion would first be admitted and then we would prepare a statement or a reply.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will you take time to make a statement?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYID MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Don't you want to move it?

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I don't move it if you make a statement.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Does the Government undertake to make a statement?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYID MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, this matter does not relate to my department, and so I do not know whether the Hon'ble Minister concerned will be able to get the necessary information within a short time and make a statement. I think, however, he will be prepared to make a statement.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: In the hope, Sir, that Government will make a statement on this matter, I will not move it.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: But the Hon'ble the Leader of the House does not make a definite promise that Government will make a statement.

The next adjournment motion stands in the name of Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee which runs as follows:—

That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation that has arisen out of the action of the District Magistrate, Murshidabad, prohibiting the municipality of Berhampur from seizing or destroying unwholesome food under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I think you are not going to press the motion, Mr. Mukherjee?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Yes, Sir, I do press.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: But I think a motion to that effect had previously been moved.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: We know that a similar motion was moved and a statement was made from the Treasury Bench, but it was not quite accurate. Therefore, I have again given notice of this motion after having secured an exact copy of the Magistrate's order.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: But there is still another motion of the same nature.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: That deals with the general question and you should allow me to move this motion instead of that motion, that being of a limited nature. The full copy of the order was not available at the time and now I have got a full copy of the order which has been forwarded to me by the Chairman of the Municipality. I, therefore, hope you will allow me to move my motion.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Is it not a fact that a similar adjournment motion was tabled by Mr. Nagendranath Mahalanobish on a former occasion?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Not exactly in this form or on these facts. As I have already informed you, I have now got a full text of the order of the District Magistrate of Murshidabad forwarded to me by the Chairman of the Municipality and upon that I am tabling this motion. At that time the order of the District Magistrate which was served upon the Chairman of the Municipality was not with us.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: In that case, I would like to examine the matter more closely and I would require some more time. I cannot decide the matter at short notice.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: As a matter of fact, this motion has been admitted by the Hon'ble President—not exactly admitted, but it has been kept ready for consideration of admissibility.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: As I have told you, I should like to examine the question of admissibility and this will take some time; I cannot do so at short notice.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: If it is held over now, may I not be allowed to move it the next day?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I can assure you that I shall waive the question of urgency, and admit it if it is found to be otherwise in order.

Then comes another motion of Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee which is to the effect: that this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation that has arisen out of the action of the Government of Bengal in preventing the officers of the Corporation of Calcutta from taking samples of food-stuff from the ration shops under the provisions of the Calcutta Municipal Act and dealing with the samples under the provisions of the said Act.

Do you want to move it, Mr. Mukherjee?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Yes, Sir.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Well, so far as the form of the motion is concerned, I think it is in order. Has the honourable member got the leave of the House to move it?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMAD: No, Sir. I object.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: As there is objection, will honourable members who are in favour of leave being granted kindly rise in their places? (After a pause.) As 13 honourable members have risen in their seats, the motion is admitted. Now I have got to fix : time for the discussion of the motion. What time will suit you?

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMED: 2-30 p.m. tomorrow.

Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: But tomorrow is a non-official day.

Mr. MESBAHUDDIN AHMAD: But this also is non-official business! Why not take it up at the earliest opportunity?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I quite agree with the Chief Whip that the matter should be taken up at the earliest opportunity. Then why not take it up at 2-15 p.m. today? I am very glad that the Chief Whip agrees that it should be taken up at the earliest opportunity.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: What does the Honourable the Leader of the House say? Have you got any objection to take it up just now?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Yes, the usual practice is that after a motion is admitted, it is fixed for discussion on the next day. Besides, we are not at all ready for this motion. If, however, tomorrow does not suit the honourable members of the Opposition, it will have to be fixed for the next official day.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: All right; on the next official day.

Statement by Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Sir, I wish to make a statement in respect of a notice which was circulated to us yesterday in the Chamber regarding some alteration in clause 65 of the Bengal Agricultural Income-Tax Bill. I wish to explain the position of the Opposition in respect of this matter—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: It would be better if you raise that question when that clause is taken up.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: We are bound to make the statement before the time fixed for the amendment. As amendments are to be made by 4 p.m. to-morrow, it is necessary that we should make the statement now.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I do not see how your case will be prejudiced if you raise the same question at the time clause 65 is taken up.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: I can assure the Chair that we have already given our anxious thought over this matter and it would really affect our position if the statement is made later. Sir, the statement is a very important one and we hope it will be of much help to the House and also to the Chair. I am making the statement on behalf of the Opposition as a whole.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I can allow you to make the statement on one condition. You cannot discuss the ruling which was given yesterday. You cannot reopen any matter which was disposed of yesterday. You can simply explain your position and in doing so I hope you will not make any observation against the ruling of the Chair already given.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: If in the course of my statement the Chair finds that I have violated any rule or procedure, I may be stopped.

Sir, what I intend to say is this. This notice was circulated together with a certain annexure said to be signed by the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, dated the 6th October, 1944, stating that a certain mistake had crept in the printing of the Agricultural Income-Tax Bill which was transmitted to the Council. I will place before the House the relevant rules and the law in order to explain our position and our attitude in this respect.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: You can simply explain your attitude. As one holding the very responsible position of the Leader of the Opposition, I hope you will not criticise the ruling of the Chair.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Sir, I will be very careful in that respect but at the same time I will not spare the other party for the manoeuvring that has been adopted. No doubt, the Government of India Act, 1935, has laid down that a Bill passed in the Assembly shall be transmitted to the Council. Apparently, taking the cue from that section there has been forwarded the letter of the Speaker of the Lower House pointing out certain mistake which is alleged to have crept in the Bill, as printed and transmitted to this House. My Party thinks that so far as this House is concerned, it has no access to the proceedings of the Assembly and this House has no right to know even what the proceedings in the Assembly were. According to our Procedure Rules, in respect of the Bills which originate in the Assembly and which are to be sent to the Council for concurrence or for amendment has been laid in sections beginning from 59. The rule 65 runs thus:

“When a Bill is passed by the Council, the Secretary shall, if necessary, renumber the clauses, revise and complete the marginal notes thereof and make such purely formal consequential amendments therein as may be required and two copies of the Bill shall be submitted to the President and shall be signed by him.”

And here we have a letter of the Speaker himself saying that as a matter of fact, as required by this Rule 65, the copies were placed before him and were sent by him. So far this House is concerned, there is rule 76 which says:

“When a Bill originating in the Assembly has been passed by the Assembly and is sent to the Council, copies of the Bill shall be laid on the Table and made available for the use of members at the next following meeting of the Council or as soon as possible thereafter.”

So this is the only source of our knowledge of the shape of the Bill, its contents, its terms and provisions. The only source of information for this House is the copy of the Bill sent along with the message of the Speaker and nothing else. This House is not to look at what actually happened in the Assembly at all and it is said in the letter of the Speaker himself that the copy of the Bill which was sent with this message for the consideration of the House was without that expression “no” in the text of clause 65.

As required by our rules, this Bill is to be sponsored in the House either by a Minister for the Government or by a member. As a matter of fact, it was sponsored under rule 77 by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Finance. From that moment this House was in seisin of the Bill as presented by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister for its consideration. That Bill was signed and authenticated by the Speaker and sent to this House for its consideration. No doubt, the Speaker subsequently on the 6th October writes to say that there was a mistake in the Bill which he sent to us. That Bill, Sir, is before us from the month of June last. Since that time this Bill is in seisin of this House and the Speaker is now functus officio so far as this Bill is concerned. That being so, the letter which the Speaker has now sent to the Council is unauthorised of which no cognisance can be taken by this House and my Party refuses to take any cognisance of a letter like this. The Speaker has now no connection with the Bill after he has signed it and transmitted it to the Upper House. This Bill has been transmitted to this House for consideration, and we are engaged in the consideration of the provisions of this Bill. We say it is an interference with the powers of this House; it is an insult to the House, it is encroaching upon the powers of the Legislature. The Speaker had no right to say what correction or what alteration ought to be made. He has already ceased to function so far as this Bill is concerned. Up till now the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has not presented any other Bill. If the Finance Minister now says that he would present a Bill in this altered form, our attitude would be that there can be but one presentation of one Bill at a time. Piecemeal rectification, piecemeal presentation of Bill is not contemplated by any of the rules. There is one Bill, and there can be one transmission only. There cannot be any piecemeal rectification. We are competent to consider only the Bill that was transmitted to this House by the Speaker with his Message and which was moved for consideration by the Hon'ble Minister in charge. We can, of course, consider alterations in the clauses of this Bill only when the alteration comes in the shape of an amendment. With all respect for the Chair, I say that my Party thinks that this matter is outside the domain of the President's ruling. Because, that will be a transgression of the rights of the House. It is not a matter for the President to rule. Rulings are confined only to questions of procedure. Rights and privileges of the House cannot be the subject-matter of President's rulings. My party thinks that this move represents an attempt to come through the back door after failing to come through the front door and is meant to curtail the rights of the House. To take it out of our jurisdiction and to take it to the domain of the ruling of the President is certainly curtailing the privileges of the House. So my party contends that only that Bill which was moved by the Finance Minister for being taken into consideration is now before us. Alteration can be made by way of amendment and, indeed, it would appear from the rulings of the previous President of this House—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Mr. Datta, that does not apply here.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: But, Sir, the Secretary could not rectify that mistake. Evidently this letter of the Hon'ble Speaker was obtained with a view to by-pass that ruling that the Secretary cannot make any alteration. I have already said that my Party thinks that even the Speaker has no right, after the matter has gone out of his hand and after the Bill has been transmitted to this House, to say that there was a mistake. He is functus officio. He is no longer in seisin of the matter. The only House that is competent and that is in seisin of the matter is this House and this House alone; the Speaker of the Assembly has no right to impose himself upon this House and to say that there was a mistake. He is no longer the Speaker who is in seisin of the matter. There may be printing mistakes but printing mistakes can be remedied. It is not a malady which cannot be remedied at all. It can be remedied by means of amendments and indeed I find that there is an amendment which exactly wants to make this alteration. Why is the other party afraid of accepting this amendment? There is surely an ulterior motive behind this. I would appeal to the House and I would say on behalf of my Party that this sort of manoeuvre ought not to be allowed in a responsible House like this, ignoring the cardinal principle that the rights of the House cannot be transgressed—

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: On a point of order, Sir. Is it permissible to cast aspersions on the Speaker of the Assembly? (Voices from the Opposition Benches: It is no aspersion at all.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I have already given him sufficient warning not to criticise the ruling of the Chair.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: I am not criticising the ruling of the Chair. When there is an appeal from a lower court to a higher court, we always say that the lower court has been wrong and that its judgment is perverse. This is always allowed. Accordingly, we are entitled to say that the service of the Speaker was requisitioned in order to by-pass the rules of this House.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: It is absolutely untrue.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: You may say so. But the procedure adopted by the Government gives rise to suspicion. Why do you fight shy of accepting an amendment of this House? Why have you adopted this back door tactics?

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Who has adopted it?

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: You have adopted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: That's a lie.

Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Sir, the Hon'ble Minister has said that it is a lie. He must withdraw it, for he cannot call an honourable member a liar.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I did not mean that. It is a gross untruth.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The fact is that the office of the Council has received a communication from the Hon'ble the Speaker and on that action has been taken. So I think no aspersion can be cast upon anybody.

Khan Sahib WAHIDUZZAMAN: But what about the language used by the Hon'ble Finance Minister?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order.

Mr. KAMINI KUMAR DUTTA: Actually the attitude taken up by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister would remind us only of Hitler's "Mein Kampf" that by repeating a thing any number of times it may be made to appear as true. This lieum is only followed in Nazidom. So what our attitude will be is that so far as the Opposition is concerned, we shall consider only the Bill which had been placed before the House and moved for consideration by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister; but even that is now repudiated by the Minister in charge. He now disowns his parentage for it. So we should ignore his illegitimate child and the only Bill which should be placed before the House for consideration from the Chair would be the Bill which was transmitted and it is on the amendments tabled in connection with that Bill that voting will take place. So far as the request that has been made by the Secretary to the Council for putting in amendments to the altered clause 65 is concerned, our Party's decision is that we refuse to take cognisance of this illegitimate child at all. We shall not put in any amendment to this changed clause 65 and we shall not allow this question to be put in this House. We shall maintain that the real Bill is that which was signed and transmitted by the Speaker of the Assembly and which was moved for being taken into consideration by this House. Lastly, Sir, I should make one point clear to the House. We do not invite any ruling from the Chair and my contention is that it is a matter beyond the domain of any ruling. It is a matter which concerns the fundamental right of the House and not a matter of ruling.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: If you will only permit me to speak for a few minutes, I would make the position absolutely clear in regard to the question that has been raised, namely, why the amendment that has been tabled already in connection with clause 65, should not be accepted. Apart from the fact that the correction has come from the Hon'ble Speaker on his own initiative and without our knowledge—of course, it was discussed with us,—but the question was taken up by him on his own initiative and without our knowledge. The fact remains that if this House were to pass an amendment inserting the word "No", then the Bill would have to go to the Assembly with that amendment, because any amendment made by this House would have to go to the Assembly for their concurrence.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: What is the harm?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I will point out what is the harm. The Assembly may well say that we do not take this change as an amendment, because that thing was there and it had not been changed at all. In the old Bill, that is, the Bill that was passed by the Lower House, the word "No" was there.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, on a point of order; nothing that has happened in the Lower House can come in here. We are only concerned with the copy of the Bill that has been supplied to us.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I am in possession of a copy of the Bill as introduced in the other House and I find that there is a "No".

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: That may be so, Sir, but we are only concerned with the Bill as presented to this House by the Finance Minister.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I am referring to the communication sent by the Hon'ble Speaker and in that communication it was made clear that "No" was there. So it is a printing mistake.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, the Hon'ble Minister cannot refer to that and if he does so, we are not bound to take notice of that.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Please do not interrupt the Hon'ble Minister.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I do not like the members of the Opposition to question the bona fides of anybody; but I would ask the House to remember that this is a matter of legislation and a serious matter and so the practicability of the whole thing has got to be taken into consideration. Even for argument's sake, if the suggestion of the Opposition is accepted by the House, I am trying to point out to you, Sir, and I would again appeal to the members of this House who constitute a very responsible body, not to do anything which is going to make them a laughing stock of the people. I am trying to point out that if this House passes an amendment adding the word "No" and if that thing goes to the Assembly, then the Assembly would be pointing out that we cannot regard this as an amendment—

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: We cannot listen to what the Assembly will say. That is no concern of ours.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: There is an amendment tabled by us. The question of its going to the other House does not arise at all.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I would at least expect Mr. Dutta to appreciate what I am saying, though Mr. Mazumdar may not understand it. The point is: that if this amendment, as suggested by Mr. Dutta, is accepted by this House and the Bill goes to the Lower House, then the Lower House will say that they cannot read this as an amendment, because there cannot be an amendment to a thing which was already there.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But you will point out the printing mistake and that will be the end of the matter.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The mere fact is that if there is a printing mistake then that mistake has been pointed out by the Speaker but it cannot be created by means of an amendment because the Lower House will say that we have not changed anything. This thing will place the Government in an impossible position.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: You will explain that it was a printing mistake.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The Assembly will point out that they cannot accept the amendment and the Council would say that we have passed this as an amendment and therefore the whole thing would be a deadlock; whereas the procedure that has been suggested will remove the deadlock. It does not in any way prejudice the merits of this question. It does not place the Opposition, who want to express their opinion on this question, in a disadvantageous position. On the other hand, if the suggestion of the members of the Opposition is accepted, it will create a deadlock. Therefore, unless the honourable members claim that they want to create a deadlock then certainly the procedure suggested by the Chair can be accepted. But if they want this question to be dealt with in a proper and legal manner, there is no way but to accept the ruling of the Chair.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: We have heard enough and I do not want to allow further discussion.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: This is a point which is very important especially in view of what the Hon'ble Chief Minister has said.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I am afraid, I cannot allow any such discussion. I shall only allow discussion on the matter in the agenda. The House will now take up the consideration of the Agricultural Income-Tax Bill.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A (I), in clause (a), for the figure "1,500" the figure "5,000" be substituted.

Sir, I do not propose to make any speech in this connection. I move my amendment without any speech.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A (I), in clause (a), for the figure "1,500" the figure "5,000" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA. GOSWAMI: Sir, I oppose this amendment. I think there is some disillusionment in the mind of the honourable the mover of the amendment. He wants to substitute the figure "5,000" for "1,500". The figure "1,500" in this case is the slab and therefore the amendment should not come here.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A (1), in clause (a), for the figure "1,500" the figure "5,000" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in the Schedule of the Bill, in clause (a) of paragraph A (1), for the figure "1,500" the figure "3,500" be substituted.

Sir, the scheme of the Schedule seems to be a little unintelligible to me. In paragraph A, sub-paragraph (1), for the first Rs. 1,500 there is no tax. For the next Rs. 3,500 there is a tax but in the proviso (i) it is provided that there would be no tax unless the income is Rs. 3,500. So, the slab which has been referred to by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister is the slab of Rs. 1,500 and this slab becomes absolutely innocuous and needless. The first slab should be Rs. 3,500 because that is the slab of income which is taxable. There is no point in providing a slab of Rs. 1,500 with no tax and then another slab of Rs. 3,500 with a tax of 9 pies to the rupee and again saying that for the first Rs. 3,500 there will be no tax. This is needlessly inserted. The first slab should be Rs. 3,500 and this should be more simpler and more logical. If the first two slabs are added it will be Rs. 5,000. The first part of the slab Rs. 1,500 is not taxable and again about Rs. 1,000 of the next slab is not taxable. Therefore the non-taxable portion should be Rs. 3,500, leaving a balance of Rs. 1,500 wherefrom the tax will begin.

With these few words, I move my amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: That in the Schedule of the Bill, in clause (a) of paragraph A (1), for the figure "1,500" the figure "3,500" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, again there is misapprehension. If the honourable members analyse the thing more carefully, they would find that the slabs have been defined as scientifically as possible.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That in the Schedule of the Bill, in clause (a) of paragraph A (1), for the figure "1,500" the figure "3,500" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move: That in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A (1) in clause (b) for the figure "3,500" the figure "1,500" be substituted.

Sir, I have already submitted that the real taxable slab begins with this Rs. 1,500. So far as the reply of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister is concerned, possibly he was right but unfortunately we could not hear him, and the question is one for elucidation. If I am wrong, I will be the first to withdraw the amendment, but the point I submitted was that the first slab would be that portion of the income which is absolutely immune from taxation. It is not good saying that for the first 1,500 there is no tax, for the next 3,500 there is tax. It is simply making things complicated. I think this should be simplified and I also think the Hon'ble Finance Minister should do us a service by explaining the reason for dividing non-taxable slab into two and mark the second portion of non-taxable slab into taxable slab and then introducing a proviso to make the first 5,000 rupees of income free from tax. That is a thing which requires a little explanation.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. Amendment moved that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A (1) in clause (b), for the figure "3,500" the figure "1,500" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I submit that this is a simple method and does not require any explanation. It provides that income below Rs. 3,500 shall be free from taxation but here we have indicated slabs by which progressive taxation will be imposed on the assessee and it is quite clear from the slabs how the tax is going to be levied.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A (1) in clause (b), for the figure "3,500" the figure "1,500" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. BIRENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOUDHURY: Sir, I beg to move that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A (1), for the words and figures "on the next Rs. 5,000 of the total agricultural income" in clause (c) the words "on the balance of the total agricultural income" be substituted.

Sir, the object of this amendment is to reduce the amount of tax on the higher agricultural income from 2 annas 6 pies in the rupee to 2 annas. I find that in framing the Schedule the Government of Bengal have followed the example of Bihar and Assam and it is quite forgotten by the Government that the zemindars of Bengal are already overburdened with a new cess called the Education Cess. With these words, I move my amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A (1), for the words and figures "on the next Rs. 5,000 of the total agricultural income" in clause (c) the words "on the balance of the total agricultural income" be substituted.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to oppose this amendment. So far as the whole civilized world is concerned it has accepted the slab system as the basis of taxation, namely, for the first slab there will be no tax, for the next slab there will be the minimum tax and for the next slab there will be a higher tax and so on. The principle is to regulate the tax to the income. The higher the income the greater is the resisting power of the tax-payer. So taxation should be adjusted to meet the resisting powers of the tax-payer. In these days, I beg to submit, an important principle will have to be given away if this amendment is accepted. My opposition to this amendment is on a question of principle only. Of course, the landlords will be hit but so will be hit other persons who pay other kinds of taxes. The fact that tax is graded to the income, the principle of the tax rising higher and higher as the income rises higher and higher is a very equitable principle. In these circumstances, with some amount of regret I oppose this amendment.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: My honourable friend Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad has explained the position so clearly that I need not say anything except to say that I oppose the amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A (1), for the words and figures "on the next Rs. 5,000 of the total agricultural income" in clause (c) the words "on the balance of the total agricultural income" be substituted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move: that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A (2) for the words "consists of brothers only", in lines 1 and 2, the words "consisting only of brothers or their representatives" be substituted.

I think I tried to explain my position yesterday without being able to illuminate the position so far as the Hon'ble Finance Minister is concerned. I do not attempt to justify it any more. I simply keep it on record that this amendment was moved.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A (2), for the words "consists of brothers only" in lines 1 and 2, the words "consisting only of brothers or their representatives" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I formally oppose the amendment and give the mover my thanks so that they too may be put on the record.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in the Schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A, after sub-paragraph (2), the following new sub-paragraph be inserted, namely:—

	Rate.
(a) If the share of the member is Rs. 3,500 or less	Four pies in the rupee.
(b) If the share of the member exceeds Rs. 3,500	The average rate applicable to the share of such member if he were assessed as an individual.

I have attempted to explain the principle of this amendment and of other amendments. I want to include in this Bill principles applicable to the Hindu joint family but unfortunately on account of the borrowed definition taken from the Indian Income-tax Act the undivided Hindu family means undivided Hindu family belonging to the Mitakhara school; that is no undivided Hindu family for Bengal. Undivided Hindu family in this Bill would mean no undivided Hindu family in Bengal. In these circumstances the principle should be adapted to the real needs of the province. There are undivided Hindu families which belong to the Dayabhaga school and they are also by habits and association many Muslim families which are also undivided families on principle. They are dependant upon the school of religion or the school of law which that community follow. It really should be dependant upon the economic structure of the family. If there is a joint family it should be treated as such without distinction whether it is a Hindu family or a Muslim family. The principle should apply to all. This principle should be introduced within the structure of the Bill.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in the schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A, after sub-paragraph (2), the following new sub-paragraph be inserted, namely:—

	Rate.
(a) If the share of the member is Rs. 3,500 or less	Four pies in the rupee.
(b) If the share of the member exceeds Rs. 3,500	The average rate applicable to the share of such member if he were assessed as an individual.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: Sir, I think the honourable mover of this amendment is under some misapprehension. I explained this point on a recent occasion, perhaps day before yesterday when he had a similar amendment. There is no confusion. It is true, as I have said that the Muslim family may have to pay a higher rate of tax. That would not be helpful. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in the schedule of the Bill, in paragraph A, after sub-paragraph (2), the following new sub-paragraph be inserted, namely:—

	Rate.
(a) If the share of the member is Rs. 3,500 or less	Four pies in the rupee.
(b) If the share of the member exceeds Rs. 3,500	The average rate applicable to the share of such member if he were assessed as an individual.

The motion being put, a division was challenged and taken with the following result:—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. The House has divided. The "Ayes" being 15, and the "Noes" 24, the amendment is negatived.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in the Schedule of the Bill, clause (i) of the proviso to paragraph A be deleted.

Sir, this is an amendment consequential upon the other amendment which I have already moved and which has been refused by the House. So, in these circumstances; this amendment is no longer necessary, but I move it simply to keep it on record that these consequential amendments were thought of. That being my purpose, I would ask leave of the House to withdraw my amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Is it the pleasure of the House to grant leave to Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad to withdraw his amendment?

(Cries of "Yes, yes".)

(The amendment was, by leave of the House withdrawn.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in the Schedule of the Bill, in clause (ii) of the proviso to paragraph A, after the words "undivided family" in line 1, the words "or an association of individuals", be inserted.

Sir, this is an alternative amendment to the amendment in which I propose to include Dayabhaga Hindu joint family and Muslim joint family within the scope of the Bill. A series of amendments have been changed. It is an alternative amendment. The House will remember that a reference has been made in the definition of a firm to the definition of the same in the Indian Partnership Act, and there are certain association of individuals • which do not constitute a firm in the technical sense of the word, that is, in the sense in which it is defined in the Partnership Act, but there is such a thing as an association of individuals and that is also recognised in the Indian Partnership Act. So if we give any status to joint Hindu family belonging to the Dayabhaga school or joint Muhammadan family living in Bengal and if we do not give them a status as such, there are at least association of individuals within the meaning of the Indian Partnership Act. A joint Hindu family or a joint Muhammadan family has one management and many conveniences. In these circumstances, I submit that a provision of including an association of individuals to be recognised as a firm at least should be accepted. A firm is an agreement between several persons to conduct a joint business and an association of individuals does not rest content with agreement to make a profit. A joint family, Hindu or Muhammadan, is an association of individuals. So that is a status that has been recognised by the Indian Partnership Act and should also be recognised in the Bengal Agricultural Income-Tax Bill. So if a firm has got to be taxed on the basis, an association of individuals should be given a definite status. With these words I beg to submit my amendment for the consideration of the House.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in the Schedule of the Bill, in clause (i) of the proviso to paragraph A, after the words "undivided family" in line 1, the words "or an association of individuals", be inserted.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: I oppose the amendment. I think this is a consequential amendment which the mover only wants to put on record.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that in the Schedule of the Bill, in clause (i) of the proviso to paragraph A, after the words "undivided family" in line 1, the words "or an association of individuals", be inserted.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I beg to move that in the Schedule of the Bill, after clause (ii) of the proviso to paragraph A, the following be inserted, namely:—

"Exception—This proviso shall not apply to the agricultural income of any land where tea is grown."

Sir, this is an exception which is logical having treated tea on a different basis altogether. This should be specifically accepted. The Schedule would seem to include land where tea is grown for the purpose of taxation. So to make it logical I should move it to except it from the operation of the ordinary tax.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved that in the Schedule of the Bill, after clause (ii) of the proviso to paragraph A, the following be inserted, namely:—

"Exception—This proviso shall not apply to the agricultural income of any land where tea is grown."

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: This amendment has been moved perhaps to put on the record the mover's satisfaction at having moved it, for I do not think the mover really expected that the amendment would be carried. I therefore oppose the amendment.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I beg to move that in the schedule of the Bill, for clause (i) of the explanation in paragraph A, the following be substituted, namely:—

"(i) 'brothers or their representatives' means and includes a brother, or brothers, a brother's son or sons, a brother's son's son or a brother's son's sons or a brother's widow or any two or more of them".

I want to remove the sex perversion perpetuated in this Bill and I want to make it more decent in the eyes of people who are not merely legal but a little decent also. In these circumstances this amendment should be accepted. A brother according to the Bill includes also the brother's widow, which is an absurdity. Therefore if this amendment is accepted the anomaly will be removed. After all, if we select words to imply a large number of ideas we should make clear those ideas; if you want to include words then you must use or coin words which would be comprehensive to mean all that you want them to mean, so that they may comprehend what is intended to be meant by them. This amendment would remove all anomalies and at the same time mean what is meant to be meant. I agree with the principle of the Bill so far as the provisions are concerned, my only difference is in respect of the phraseology. In these circumstances I move the amendment.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Amendment moved: that in the schedule of the Bill, for clause (i) of the explanation in paragraph A, the following be substituted, namely:—

“(i) ‘brothers or their representatives’ means and includes a brother or brothers, a brother's son or sons, a brother's son's son or a brother's son's sons or a brother's widow or any two or more of them”.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA COSWAMI: In this amendment the explanation is sought to be replaced in a peculiar form. I regret I cannot accept the amendment because it becomes meaningless. I, therefore, oppose the amendment.

(The amendment was negatived.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that clause 66 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The question before the House is that the Schedule stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: The House stands adjourned till 2-30 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 2-30 p.m. on Friday, the 13th October, 1944.

Members Absent.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 87.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Friday, the 13th October, 1944, at 2-30 p.m. being the eighty-seventh day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2) (a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

Points of Information.

Mr. PRESIDENT: As there is no question, the House will take up motions under rule 112 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules. Mr. Nur Ahmed.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, before the motions are taken up, I want to draw the attention of—

Mr. PRESIDENT: It has been taken up already. You better wait.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Are there no questions today also?

Mr. PRESIDENT: No.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: For the last few days no questions have been answered. Some questions are outstanding for a very long time. Only the other day your office circulated a list of questions outstanding and if the answers are delayed in this way, very often the purpose of the question is altogether defeated.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, in response to the request of the Home Minister, I sent in a short-notice question regarding the Howrah Municipality and it was agreed that that matter would come up today. The Hon'ble the Leader of the House promised a statement today, but I do not know what has happened to that.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I can only request the Government to expedite the answers, so that the questions outstanding may be replied to before the present session of the Council is prorogued.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SA'YED MU'AZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: The statement would be made on the 23rd October.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: The Hon'ble the Home Minister is here now but he may be away again. He gave an undertaking to this House that the notification banning all public meetings will not be applied to the Dacca district except the city of Dacca. It will be applicable to the city of Dacca, Calcutta and Midnapore. But the Press-note already issued covers the whole of the Dacca district also. How is it? Will the Hon'ble Minister explain?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I protest against this method of eliciting information. Information can only be elicited by questions and short-notice questions. I do not propose to give any answer to this sort of questions.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I know that it is not the recognised method, but there is such a thing as amicable and informal arrangement. I think it only helps Government in clearing misunderstanding by supplying information on small matters, because if short-notice questions are put on every matter and the President has to admit any number of short-notice questions, then probably short-notice questions will lose their significance.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, may I also point out that both your predecessor in office and yourself have tried to build up a convention in this House that whenever there is an urgent matter, we might "call for papers". You have also encouraged the practice that in such cases Government should make short statements. The Hon'ble the Home Minister stated a moment ago that there was no procedure for asking for information except by questions and short-notice questions. But, Sir, there is a procedure for calling for papers which is in vogue in this House. It is a recognised constitutional method.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I think the honourable member has asked for this information without reading the Government notification carefully—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I protest against this remark of the Hon'ble Minister that I did not read the notification carefully. I say I read it very carefully—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, I cannot allow you to discuss this point.

Motions under rule 112 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules.

Safeguarding the rights of Indians in re-conquered Burma.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, I beg to move that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to make an immediate representation to the Government of India on behalf of the people of Bengal who are vitally interested in the future of the re-conquered Burma, to safeguard the rights of the Indians in the re-conquered Burma in all reasonable ways, including the rights of free entry on the part of the Indians in future in Burma whether as Burma evacuees or not, restoration of all lost properties to the Indians on their return with proper compensation and also to secure for the Indians the same rights and privileges as would be enjoyed by the subjects of the United Kingdom in Burma.

Sir, in commending this motion to the acceptance of the House, I think I owe an explanation to the honourable members as to why I have tabled this motion at this time when nine-tenths of Burma still remain to be re-conquered. I find that a sub-committee under the caption "Emigration Sub-Committee" has already been appointed by the Government of India to go into the question of the rights and privileges of Indians in re-conquered Burma. This sub-committee has been negotiating with the Government of Burma as regards the future status of Indians in Burma. So I think it is the appropriate time when we should ventilate our grievances as regards Indians in Burma and we should lay our grievances on the table, so that in the coming Agreement when it is concluded their rights may be safeguarded. Sir, there is a long history of this relation of India with Burma. Before 1937 Burma was part and parcel of the Indian Empire and a limb of India so to speak. It was Indian money and Indian capital, Indian labour, Indian skill, Indian industry and Indian co-operation which built up the prosperity and development of Burma before it was occupied by the barbarous Japanese. The Indians went to Burma not of their own accord. They were invited by the Burmese Government to settle in and develop their country. As far back as 1869 all on a sudden there was a great demand for Burma rice in the world and as a result thereof the price of Burma rice all on a sudden rose three-fold. From Rs. 50 for 100 baskets it rose to Rs. 150 for 100 baskets, and that gave stimulus to the cultivation of paddy and a vigorous drive was then made by the Government of Burma to bring vast tracts of land in south Burma under the paddy cultivation.

In 1872 an experiment was made in this direction by importing Burmese labour from north Burma, but that experiment proved a failure. Then Indians were invited to settle and establish zemindaries in Burma to cultivate these vast tracts of land in south Burma but this experiment also did not succeed very much. Then a third experiment was made and Indian labour was now induced to go to Burma to bring under cultivation these vast tracts of land. Even shipping companies were given subsidies to bring Indian labour from India to Burma, and the result was wonderful. In 1872 there were 10 lakhs acres of cultivated land in lower Burma. But with the help of this Indian labour the acreage of land under cultivation increased to one crore acres within at least 20 years. It is a known fact that Burma is the rice granary of Asia and that reputation to a large extent is due to Indian labour. As regards the development of industry in Burma Indian capital has done much. According to the estimated calculation about 58 per cent. of foreign capital belongs to Indians. Then as regards the transport industry, it is also developed by Indians. Sir, this was the state of things when a section of Burmans raised the cry: "Burma for the Burmans". The Imperial Government joined with this section of Burmans with the result that a strong anti-Indian feeling was created in the mind of the Burmans culminating in the riots of 1930 and 1938 in which thousands of Indian lives were lost and properties worth many lakhs were damaged. Burma Government appointed a committee which went under a name of the Braund Committee to go into the cause of the disturbances. It was found that in the field of cultivation the percentage of Indians was 4 per cent., in industry only 16 per cent., in trade only 17 per cent. and in transport 36 per cent. This transport business was confined to the people from Chittagong and Mymensingh. In a population of one crore and 70 lakhs, only 7½ per cent were Indians. According to the census of 1911, the percentage of Indian population in Burma was 7½ per cent. According to the census of 1931, the total number of Indian population was only 10 lakhs and according to the census of 1941 their estimated increase was only from 10 to 14 lakhs. As a result of riots some of the Indians migrated to India leaving their vast property. When Burma was separated, an agreement was all on a sudden entered into by the Hon'ble Sir Girija Sankar Bajpai. Sir, as the Indo-Burma Agreement known as the Bajpai Agreement has already expired, I will not enter into the details of that. I moved a resolution about the terms of that humiliating agreement in this House in 1941. Sir, what we apprehend is that if a similar agreement is again entered into, we Indians will be prejudiced, especially the Bengalees who have larger interests in Burma. Sir, after that Braund Committee another committee was appointed which is known as the Baxter Committee. That Committee also found that the allegations of infiltration of Indians into Burma and ousting of Burmans from economic field altogether correct: it found that the Burmans were so much obsessed with this idea that no amount of propaganda would eliminate this anti-Indian feeling from their minds. They also found that in a big town such as Rangoon, where Indian population predominates, the population of Indians was 55 per cent. and all the big ships belonged to Indians; similar accounts held good in regard to some other big towns. They suggested some remedy and as a result the Bajpai Agreement was concluded and that Agreement laid down very humiliating terms so far as the Indian settlers were concerned. Sir, the question of the re-conquering of Burma is looming large before our eyes. It is time that we should lay open all our demands before the Government of India and through the Government of India to His Majesty's Government, so that our rights may be safeguarded in re-conquered Burma. It is said that Burma owes everything to India. Sir, let those sons of India who have made Burma their home be not treated differently. They should enjoy the same rights that the Burmans enjoy but the Bajpai Agreement sacrificed valuable rights and it is apprehended that their rights may be sacrificed this time also. In my motion I have clearly laid down the conditions that should be embodied in the future Indo-Burma Agreement.

Sir, there is another aspect of this question. There is a trade relationship between India and Burma. Sir, Burma has been benefited largely by her trade with India. It is a known fact that Burma has a monopoly for teak wood and Burma holds surplus rice. Sixty per cent. of Burman's foreign trade is dependent upon Indian markets whereas only 7 per cent. of Indian foreign trade goes to Burma.

So, you will see that Burma owes its prosperity to Indian trade. Burma has got oil and India has to depend on that oil. But Burma has to depend on Indian iron and steel, textiles and other manufactured articles. Therefore, it is desirable that both the countries should be allowed to co-operate in such a way that the future prosperity of Indians in Burma may be ensured.

Apart from these considerations, the defence of India and Burma is co-related. This matter must be apparent to the honourable members of this House.

With these words, Sir, I move my motion for the acceptance of the House.

MR. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: That an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to make an immediate representation to the Government of India on behalf of the people of Bengal who are vitally interested in the future of the re-conquered Burma in all reasonable ways, including the rights of free entry on the part of the Indians in future in Burma whether as Burma evacuees or not, restoration of all lost properties to the Indians on their return with proper compensation and also to secure for the Indians the same rights and privileges as would be enjoyed by the subjects of the United Kingdom in Burma.

MR. W. B. C. LAIDLAW: Mr. President, Sir, we have no hesitation in supporting Mr. Nur Ahmed's motion. Our policy generally is to support the aspirations of Indians overseas and we have not the slightest doubt that Indian labour and mercantile activities will play an important part in the restoration of Burma to her former prosperity. In regard to the wording of the motion, however, there are one or two minor points which the House may wish to consider. In regard to the wording "free entry", I think we have to bear in mind that for immigrants, unless there is some system of control, a Government has not got those records which are essential and which it would have automatically in the case of its own nationals. I think also that it is necessary for the Burma Government to direct immigration into the proper channels and I think myself that it is equally in India's interest that there should be some form of control over emigration from this country and immigration into Burma. It is, therefore, a matter for satisfaction to see that the India and Burma Governments are already discussing the matter, and we hope that in the resulting Agreement there will be none of those terms which some of us regarded as somewhat humiliating in the previous Agreement, and we hope that the Agreement will be such as will not put unnecessary obstacles in the way of free immigration. I noticed in the newspaper Capital on the 31st August last an article relating to the position of the large body of Indian labour which is already in Burma assisting in the re-conquering of Burma making air fields and so forth, and I noticed that according to Capital the Burma Government had already asked the India Government to see that the labour assisting the military operations be not immediately withdrawn after Burma is re-conquered. According to this article, I understand, the view of the Government of India is that. Of course, they have no power to insist that Indian nationals will remain in Burma after their work in connection with the making of air fields, roads and so on is complete; but in regard to those who choose to stay, this article made a statement that the Government of India should insist on the Burma Government giving these people all possible facilities for attaining full rights which go with Burma citizenship. In regard to compensation which is also mentioned by Mr. Nur Ahmed in his motion, there was published in 1942 in Capital a statement which I think had appeared in a Company Report—a statement made by or on behalf of His Majesty's Government. I shall read it out because it is very interesting. It is from Capital, dated 1st October, 1942: "The general aim of His Majesty's Government after the war is that with a view to an well-being of the people and the resumption of productive activity property and goods destroyed or damaged in Burma should be replaced or repaired to such an extent and over such a period of time as resources permit. If the resources in Burma are insufficient to enable this purpose to be achieved His Majesty's Government would be ready to give all the assistance they can in conjunction with such common fund or organisation as may be established for post-war reconstruction."

Now, in order to give Mr. Nur Ahmed's motion full value, I think he would agree with me that the key-note should be the well-being of the people and the resumption of productive activity; and it is with that in view that we give his motion our full support.

Khan Bahadur M. A. MOMIN: Sir, I rise to give my full support to the motion which has been moved by Mr. Nur Ahmed. About the manner in which the Indians were ousted from Burma, there can be no question that the Indians have got a real grievance. Modern Burma was made mainly, if not entirely, by the efforts of Indians. It was the Indians from Chittagong who cultivated the lands in Burma. It was the Indian traders from Madras and the rest of India who established large Houses of Commerce and Industry and the trade that thrived between Burma, India and other places was entirely built up by the Indians from western and southern parts, except, of course, that portion of commerce which was in the hands of the Europeans. We always understood Burma to be a part of India and we treated and were treated as if we formed an integral part of Burma. We, particularly Bengalees, are very much interested in the future of Burma. Indians did not stint themselves in any way to assist the Burmans during this war and they are still fighting for them. Indeed, it will be with the help of Indians mainly that Burma will be re-conquered. Therefore, if after this consummation is reached, the Indians are again thrown out of Burma, it will be a great calamity. We, Bengalees, have large properties in Burma. Everybody knows how lands cultivated by them were taken away from them: how their properties were burnt and destroyed and how Indians had to leave Burma in utter destitution. These we do not mind, because they were acts of war. But surely we shall mind it very much if when Burma is restored to the British flag, Indians do not get the same position as they enjoyed before. Mr. Laidlaw has stressed the point that it is necessary for the good of the Burmans themselves that Indians should have free trade with Burma and that they should be treated as they were treated before. I entirely agree with him. There is another point in favour of the motion. The Burmans by nature are rather an indolent people except the womenfolk, who are very industrious, and this is known to everybody. It is, therefore, not the fault of the Bengalees that they infiltrated into Burma, if I may use the word, and began cultivation of lands that were available, because the Burmans themselves did not take the trouble to cultivate them themselves. Now that the Indians have been turned out, I am afraid all these lands will go to the Burmans. But even then the Burmans will not be as rich as they were. Burma will never be rich because it is impossible for her to take to cultivation if Bengalees from Chittagong do not go there to do so. Therefore, it is for the prosperity of the country itself that it is necessary that the door of Burma should be left wide open for the Indians to go to Burma and be treated just as if they were Burmans without any restriction on considerations of caste or creed or race. It is for their own interest that Burmans should give up their anti-Indian mentality, if there is such a mentality among them, and it is for the British Government to see that when the time comes, Indians get a fair-play and get an entry into Burma not only for justice to Indians but for the good of the Burmans.

MR. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I shall be very brief in giving general support to the object of this motion; but I must confess that the wording of the motion is, to my mind, not only unhappy but astonishing. My astonishment was increased when my honourable friend on my left, the Leader of the European Party, added his words in support of the motion. We have been told that this war which is going on in Burma is for the liberation of the Burmans from the Japanese yoke; but, I am afraid, the mover of the motion and his supporter, the Leader of the European Group, think that it is for the reconquest of Burma. I think, Sir, that there is a great deal of difference between the "reconquest of Burma" and the "liberation of Burma". I do not know whether the Leader of the European Group was speaking his real mind when he spoke of reconquest. Does he speak of reconquest in the case of France or Greece? Why then this difference in the case of Burma? Is it because Frenchmen and Greek are white, while Burmans are yellow? I should have thought that my honourable friend Mr. Nur Ahmed would have more sympathy with the Burmans who are after all, the shuttlecocks of fortune, kicked from British bayonets to Japanese boots. This doctrine of reconquest of Burma comes with ill grace specially from us. We think of the reconquest of no country but are only keen to liberate our own. This, I am sure, is what every Indian aspires.

Sir, that brings me to the second point which was stated both by the honourable the mover of the motion and the Leader of the European Party. The mover of the motion stated that when Indians go back to—shall we call it liberated Burma? I leave to my honourable friend, the Leader of the European Party to find the correct term—they must enjoy the same rights as Englishmen. In other words, outsiders will decide what rights they will enjoy in the country and compel the local people to acquiesce. This is surely an imperialist version of liberation. I would prefer to call it a liberated Burma when the war is over, when the Burmans have achieved their Independence and when they are free as one of the free peoples of the world. The mover of the motion wants to dictate from outside what the status of other nationals shall be and the Leader of the European Party agrees. The mover of the motion wants that Indians should get the same rights in Burma as the subjects of the United Kingdom and again the Leader of the European Party agrees! I am sure you will agree, Sir, that this is not very happily put. The subjects of the United Kingdom had certain privileges, sometimes privileges which were unjustified. I would certainly stand as much for Indian rights as for those of the Burmans. When Burma is liberated, Indians want exactly those rights in Burma which are given to the nationals of other countries; but the Burmans must be the party who shall decide on what terms they are prepared to invite co-operation from outside. They should be the people with the final say in the matter.

Sir, I am not prepared to admit that Indians should have less rights and privileges than the people of any other country, whether it be the United Kingdom or the United States of America. But neither must Indians nor Englishmen nor Americans seek to exploit and oppress the native people of the land. It somewhat mars the harmony of the talks about international brotherhood, freedom and democracy, when imperialists or their satellites talk of imposing upon Burma a thousand conditions under which the subjects of the United Kingdom or Indians will go back. I would also ask my honourable friend the mover of the motion to remember one fact. Have Indians the rights of a free people in their own land? Why talk of Indian rights in Burma when these rights are not recognised in India herself? To achieve rights in Burma, we must first achieve our own independence.

Indian indentured labour played an important part in the development of South Africa and the Crown Colonies; but we find that after they have contributed to the prosperity of the land they are not in the picture there at all. They have been repatriated and expropriated—they have been treated as worse than human beings. When, therefore, the motion is put in the form in which the honourable mover puts it, I must confess that I do not feel happy. How shall I be assured that even if Indians are promised all manner of rights today, those rights will not be taken back tomorrow? A strong and independent India can alone protect the rights of her nationals and so the right move to secure Indian rights in Burma is to work for the achievement of Indian freedom.

I must also make a passing reference to one remark of the Leader of the Coalition Party in this House. I am very glad to find that he believes in the indissoluble identity of Burma and India. It is rather surprising to hear this from a person who does not believe even in the unity of India,—a person who believes that India should be carved out into two, three or four separate ‘sthans’. I am very glad to find, Sir, that my honourable friend, the Leader of the Coalition Party, has transcended the limitations of the political party to which he belongs. Even though I do not agree with the imperialistic part of his speech, I certainly agree with what he says of Indian unity. He goes further and speaks of identities of interest between Burma and India. Such sentiments should be more widespread. There are great identities of interest between Burma and India.

My honourable friend also spoke of the Burmans being indolent. Without the help of Indians, he said, the Burmans cannot run the affairs of their own country. Sir, I thought I was listening to an Englishman speaking about conditions in India. The Englishman also tells us that he is here because we, Indians, are indolent and that without his help we cannot manage our own affairs. We have heard much about the White Man's burden. We have felt it to our cost. The world today is getting tired of the White Man's burden which he transfers to the shoulders of the nearest Black Man. Today in this House, I think, it was for the first time suggested that there is also a blackman's burden and that burden shall be imposed upon the poor nationals of yellow Burma.

Now, Sir, I would sum up the position thus. We want Burma to be liberated. We want that the Burmans shall have the main say in determining what shall be the conditions in that country. They shall be the people who will decide the conditions for others who want to come and trade with them or settle in their land. There should be no discrimination and Indians shall not be behind any other race or people. The Indians must have the same rights as the people of other free countries. All these can be achieved and guaranteed if only India herself is free. If she is to depend on the good offices of others to secure for Indians rights that shall be granted to them in Burma, I am afraid, all the good resolutions of my honourable friend Mr. Nur Ahmed and the benedictions of my honourable friend the Leader of the European Party will be in vain.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Sir, I rise to support the motion. Mr. Nur Ahmed, as everybody knows, is an indefatigable worker who never lets slip an opportunity to voice the popular sentiment with regard to important public matters.

Now, so far as the subject-matter of this motion is concerned, I think there cannot be two opinions that it is a very desirable one. We should request the Government to ensure the rights of the Bengalis who had to come away from Burma after the conquest of that country by the Japanese. I think we should see that as soon as Burma is liberated or freed from the shackles of foreign bondage, the Government would be in a position to restore to Indians all the properties they have lost and the privileges which they used to enjoy when they were the inhabitants of that country. Sir, I do not know how far it will be possible for the Government to do all this in view of the Indo-Burma Agreement which was concluded shortly before the country was overrun by the Japanese. I had occasion to criticise the terms of that Agreement as it stood before the declaration of war by Japanese. That Agreement contains certain terms which are humiliating to the Indians. One of those terms was that nobody would be allowed to enter Burma without a passport and none but those domiciled in Burma would be allowed the privileges which the Burmans enjoy. I do not know whether it will be possible for the Government to consider the question of compensation, because it was due to no act.....(Mr. Mesbahuddin was going over to the European members and talking with them standing)——

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order, Mr. Mesbahuddin you just resume your seat.

Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: That shows the interest taken by the members of the Coalition Party in the subject-matter of the motion before the House.

However, Sir, as I was saying, Sir Girija Sankar Bajpai, one of the trusted officers of the Government of India, was sent to Burma to negotiate the terms of the settlement. As I have already said, those terms were very humiliating to Indians. It is unfortunate that the Agreement was based on the treatment of the Indians as Parihas. In fact, the development and the improvement of Burma, as Khan Bahadur Momin has rightly pointed out, was due to the migration of Indians to that place. Before the advent of Indians there was no trade and commerce, no business in Burma and it was due to the labour of the Indians that it was possible to develop the country. I do not think I will be justified in dilating upon the matter any further and I hope that the motion will be carried without any dissentient voice.

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise to give my support to the motion that has been moved by my honourable friend, Mr. Nur Ahmad. I find that a simple resolution which should have been supported unreservedly has roused some amount of adverse comment at the hands of my friend Mr. Humayun Kabir. I express wonder why Mr. Humayun Kabir should object to the word "re-conquered". (Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: France was liberated and not re-conquered.) Because, in France there was already a party which was fighting for the liberation of France. In this case also, no doubt, the Burmans are fighting for the liberation of Burma with the aid of the English from the yoke of the Japanese; but it cannot be denied that the Burmans are not putting forth that amount of effort as the French did. The question is not of freedom. The question just now is that it is the attempt of those who know how best to deal with Burma and with Japan. Howevermuch we may be sentimental, the fact remains that Burmans have not been trying for their liberation. They have thrown themselves completely at the mercy of the Japanese on account of the mistaken idea about co-prosperity that has been propagated by the Japanese.

There is another fling at the Leader of the Coalition Party, Khan Bahadur Momin by Mr. Humayun Kabir, Khan Bahadur Momin was twitted for having said that he regarded the Burmans as the flesh of his flesh and the bone of his bones. As a matter of fact, the Khan Bahadur did not say those things in so many words. Who can deny that we Indians had regarded Burmans as coming under our sphere of influence? Of course, of late, they belied that expectation of ours. In 1930 and also in 1938, these Burmans treated the Indians with an amount of tyranny and hatred which is simply revolting to any civilized people. Again at the time when the last calamity fell on Burma and when the Indians were coming back to their mother country bag and baggage, what atrocities have not been committed• by the Burmans on the Indians? In view of all these incidents, it is certainly necessary that Indians should know beforehand what will be their status and position in Burma when the time will come for them to go to Burma again and when a new order of things will come into being there on the termination of the present war. It is time that they should think of their own security and safety in Burma where they have settled so long, and where they have spent a large amount of their energy and skill in making the land prosperous. As a matter of fact, when Khan Bahadur Momin said that Burmese males are very indolent, he was only saying what is true. It is their womenfolk who are much more active than their menfolk. It may sound funny to hear such a statement but the fact remains that all major business was practically in the hands of the Burmese women. (Rai Bahadur KESHAB CHANDRA BANERJEE: Just like the Khasi women of Assam.) There may be other people of this kind elsewhere but the males of Burma are really like that. The Burmese males do not do that amount of labour that is generally expected of males all over the world. Practically, all the arduous labour is done by Burmese women. (MR. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTY: How does that matter?) Well, it matters like this: The Burmans, I mean the Burman males, do not put forth any amount of energy or skill in the development of their own country as they ought to do and they have had to depend on Indian indentured labour for this up to now. All the learned professions, trade and commerce and industry as also agriculture are mostly in the hands of Indians. It is Indian labour that practically made Burma a granary in Asia. It is Indians again who are assisting their utmost to liberate Burma from the subjection of the Japanese. This is all that we have done and are still doing for Burma and we should try to get what we deserve in that country after peace returns to the world. In view of all this and also in view of the fact that Indians have got to be fore-armed, it is absolutely necessary that a motion like this should be brought forward. We have already found to our cost that the amount of interest which ought to have been taken to safeguard the interests of the Indians in Burma is not being taken by the powers that be. This was clear from the terms of the Bajpai Agreement some of which are absolutely humiliating to the Indians. Therefore, the cry has been raised that care should be taken from beforehand to safeguard the interests of Indians in Burma. If that be the position, and if the Burmese feeling is anti-Indian and if the Government of India's Agent there does not look to the safety or interests of the Indians there, I consider that Mr. Nur Ahmed has moved his motion at a very opportune moment in order that proper and adequate attention may be focussed on this very urgent and important problem.

With these words, I commend the motion to the acceptance of the House.

Alhaj Khan Bahadur SHAIKH MUHAMMAD JAN: Sir, though I do not oppose the motion, I think the motion is premature in as much as Burma has neither been liberated nor re-conquered and India is not yet independent; therefore I do not think that it is time now to think of the rights and privileges in other countries when the rights and privileges of Indians are not safeguarded even in their own country. We Indians are said to be enjoying liberty in this country, but we are not allowed to do this thing or that without previous sanction of the British authorities. India is governed in the name of Indians but the real Power is in the hands of the Britishers and as long as India remains a subject country Indians cannot aspire to any privileges in other countries, however justified. The houses and properties of the Indians in Burma were burnt and destroyed by the Burmese because India was not independent and strong enough to protect and safeguard the interest of their nationals there. Therefore, in my opinion India must first try to be independent and strong and then ask for their rights and privileges in any other country. There was a great deal of controversy as to whether the Burmans were indolent or whether the Burmese women worked there. We have nothing to do with that. We should see that our rights and privileges are secured first in India and then we can aspire to safeguarding our rights and privileges in other countries. I entirely agree with Mr. Kabir that it is for the Burmans to determine what rights and privileges the Indians should enjoy in their country. They should be the first to decide as to what status we would enjoy in their country, consistently with the principle of self-determination. With these words, Sir, I support the motion.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: A considerable amount of light has been thrown from different directions on this simple question. It is common knowledge that while India offers hospitality to all outsiders, Indians are not granted similar treatment in other places. The well-known example of South African Indians and the example on Indians in Burma would show how Indians are treated outside India. Attention has been bestowed by several speakers who have preceded me on the wording of the motion, namely, whether it should be re-conquest of Burma or liberation of Burma. I think the intention of the mover is the same and it was a most harmless idea that prompted the wording. I am not going to quarrel with mere terminology as affecting the situation. Some time ago, Mr. Nur Ahmed who has been described as an indefatigable legislator, moved a similar motion just before Burma was going to be invaded. At that time Indians were being attacked by the Burmans and driven from Burma ruthlessly. That motion was carried and I remember to have said then that the Government of India should put some amount of pressure on the Burmans as a price to save them. Now, the oppressors and the oppressed have been treated alike by the Japanese. There is today no difference between the two peoples. Burma will be re-conquered or Burmans will get liberated; whatever it may be, the problem will remain the same with regard to the position of Indians in Burma. The question will again arise when Burma is reconquered. One of my friends has recommended the postponement of the decision of the future rights till India is independent. I think this dilatory method should not find endorsement from the members of this Council. I think independence is largely a matter for Indians themselves. I find there is an influential school of thought which believes in absolute abstinence from all sorts of activities till India gets independence. They hold the view that till we get independence we should postpone all our efforts to secure even ordinary rights. I think the position of Indians in South Africa and the position of Indians in Burma should receive immediate attention of all Indians and the matter should be agitated by all. At present the appropriate Government is run by the Government of India partly by British policy and partly by British Indians. We should not, however, wash our hands absolutely clean of this question till we get complete independence. If we do so, things would be beyond recovery. In the circumstances, I submit that the resolution of Mr. Nur Ahmed should be accepted in spite of the slight objection which his wording may have raised. With these few words, I support the motion.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I will not take much time of the House but it is necessary that we should give our views in this matter. I do not see eye to eye with the mover of the motion in the matter of its drafting. The wordings he used are not, in my opinion, happy. Now, Sir, I know of one fact and that is that the Premier of Burma went to England and saw Mr. Churchill and demanded from him a promise of self-government to Burma after the war was over. Of course, he could not return to Burma: the war broke out and the situation completely changed. The cry is democracy, freedom and the general cry is that colonies should be liberated. That is the cry everywhere now. Look at the situation in the West. In Algiers, the French Liberation Committee came into being although France was completely under the grip of Germans. As soon as the Second Front was opened, France was liberated. The truth is that it is the American and the British blood which really liberated France but the Liberation Committee of the French in Algiers is now carrying on the civil administration in France. So it is in the case of Poland. There is a Liberation Committee set up in Lublin and as much part of Poland as has been liberated, has been put into the possession of that Liberation Committee and that Committee is ruling that portion. So is the case with Bulgaria, Rumania and Czechoslovakia. Here, however, we find the mentality is one of the conqueror and the subjugated.

Our view is that Burma is to be liberated. Now, if the Japanese go and the Britishers enter there, it should be a case of liberation. Burma is for Burmans and as soon as it is liberated, it will be the Burmans who will decide their own fate and form their own government. And we do hope that as they are our neighbours, they also would expect to enjoy some rights and privileges in India and reciprocity will be a question. So, all that we do say is that the great fight that is going on now is being fought by the British and Indian soldiers and there are some American soldiers among them and the fight is for the liberation of Burma. We hope and trust that the Burmans will rule Burma.

With these words, I give our view on the question. I neither support the resolution nor oppose it.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I am sorry that a good deal of misapprehension is running in the minds of the honourable members with regard to the subject-matter of the motion that we are discussing this afternoon. I submit, Sir, that the motion states that after the reconquest of Burma the Government of India should be requested to restore the rights of Indians in Burma. Now, with regard to this matter, I would like to know what is the point of view which we hold regarding this war. I am now addressing my Indian colleagues. Whether we want that Burma should be independent after the Japanese have been driven out from that country or whether we want that Burma would be under the British Government as it was before the conquest by the Japanese. If Burmans are to be independent after the Japanese are driven out from Burma, if they are not to be dependent any more, then I think this resolution is misplaced and should not have been moved at all. Because then the question would be Indians' rights as against Burmans' rights. If we have to depend upon the British Government for restoring our rights in Burma, I may assure my honourable friend Mr. Nur Ahmed, that he may have to wait till Doomsday. Because we know what has happened in the case of the South Africans and people of other Colonies and Dominions. It is not a properly worded motion. With these few words, I think, as Mr. Das has said, it is not possible for us to support the motion in the form in which it has been moved.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, as regards the resolution of my honourable friend Mr. Nur Ahmed, my party have got the same objection as regards its wording. We have got sympathy with the object underlying the resolution inasmuch as it wants to get back the rights and privileges which were being enjoyed by the Indians who were in Burma and who helped in the development of Burma to its present position. But his idea of seeing Burma back to its original position as the vassal of the British Imperialism of course is not what we desire or anybody desires in the context of the present world situation. I think I should refer my honourable friend the mover to a recent book written by an Englishman Mr. G. D. H. Cole. The book is entitled: "Position of Britain in the Post-war World". In that book he has discussed the position of Britain after the war and he has categorically stated that Burma, Malaya and other places which have gone out of the British possession will never come back to them again.

He has also made mention about India. If any Indian had written a book like that, probably his book would have been proscribed and he would have been a guest of my honourable friend the Home Minister over there. But as the book has been written by an Englishman, it is in our library and nobody takes any objection to it. So I think although that pious hope of our friend may not be fulfilled, we desire that the Burmans will have the right of self-determination as any other nations of the world. Therefore, I think that this motion ought to be re-worded or changed and then it will have the approval of the whole House.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, as usual in the case of motions of this nature, Government will forward the proceedings of the House to the proper authorities.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Sir, honourable members who have supported my motion have considered the word "re-conquered" which occurs in the resolution as being unhappy and some members opposite have even taken objection to the word. I used the word in the sense of reconquering from the Japanese hands, but whether it is re-conquered by the British forces or by Burmans themselves I have not mentioned it. As regards the future form of Government, I have not mentioned anything in my motion. Sir, it was far from my mind to suggest that Burma should be subjected again and it is the desire of all patriotic persons that Burma should enjoy independence and that the rights of Indians should be safeguarded. I can assure my friends on the other side that I never meant that Burma should be re-conquered for subjection or for domineering by any power in the world.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. The question before the House is that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council requesting His Excellency to make an immediate representation to the Government of India on behalf of the people of Bengal who are vitally interested in the future of the re-conquered Burma, to safeguard the rights of the Indians in the re-conquered Burma in all reasonable ways, including the rights of free entry on the part of the Indians in future in Burma whether as Burma evacuees or not, restoration of all lost properties to the Indians on their return with proper compensation and also to secure for the Indians the same rights and privileges as would be enjoyed by the subjects of the United Kingdom in Burma.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Promulgation of two Ordinances during the pendency of the Council Session.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I beg to move that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council, drawing His Excellency's attention to the fact that the Bengal Destitute Persons (Repatriation and Relief) Ordinance, 1944, and the Bengal Alienation of Agricultural Ordinance, 1944, and the Bengal Alienation of Agricultural Land Land (Temporary Provisions) Ordinance, 1944, were promulgated while the Bengal Legislative Council was in session.

Mr. NACENDRANATH MOHOLANOBISH: Sir, I rise on a point of order.

You will please notice that there is an adjournment motion tabled by me exactly on this subject and it is now under consideration by the Hon'ble President. Therefore, I ask whether under these circumstances my friend can anticipate the motion and bring in this Address Motion covering the same ground. I do not exactly like to oppose this motion, but I want to draw attention to the fact as to whether it is in order.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: (After a pause): Is there any point of order, Sir?

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. The rule to which Mr. Moholanabish refers is applicable to the case of adjournment motions only and not to the case of motions under section 112. So I rule that the motion of Mr. Kabir is perfectly in order.

Mr. NAGENDRANATH MOHOLANABISH: Then I beg to move an amendment—.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Let Mr. Kabir finish; then you can move it, if it is allowed.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Mr. Deputy President, Sir, I believe that a very grave constitutional impropriety has been committed by the promulgation of these two Ordinances at this time. I am not quite clear in my mind as to whether it is not more than a constitutional impropriety. It may even be that these Ordinances, as they are in contravention of certain sections of the Government of India Act, are perhaps not Ordinances at all. In fact, it may even be that these Ordinances are ultra vires and void in fact. These are rather grave issues which are sought to be raised by means of this motion. I will not go into the merits of these Ordinances at all. Nobody in this House will have any quarrel so far as the contents of those Ordinances are concerned. But the point we have to consider is that Ordinances are a very special power allotted to the Governor. His Excellency can exercise this power only under certain specific circumstances. The two sections of the Government of India Act which lay down the provisions for Ordinances are very clear on the point. There is first of all, section 88 according to which Ordinances can be made by the Governor when the Legislature of the Province is not in session. Under section 80 of the Government of India Act, the Legislature of the Province is also defined. The Legislature of a Province means two Houses so far as Bengal is concerned; there is no possibility of doubt in this matter. Therefore, if any one of the two Houses is in session, it cannot be said that the Legislature is not in session. It may at most be argued that the full Legislature is not in session. At the time when these two Ordinances were issued, the Bengal Legislative Council had been adjourned for a period of about 5 or 6 weeks. That adjournment does not in any way break the continuity of the session. If it did, then any Bill which had commenced at the beginning of the session would no longer continue after the adjournment. This however has never been the case. As a matter of fact, we adjourn from day to day. It is quite immaterial from the point of view of law whether an adjournment is for 20 hours or 20 days. The first point which I want to make is that the Legislature was in session at the time when this Ordinance was promulgated. Under section 88, sub-section (1) it is clearly laid down that the Governor cannot promulgate an Ordinance when the Legislature is in session. Section 89 gives the Governor the power to promulgate an Ordinance even when the Legislature is in session. But it will be clear that Ordinances under section 89 are of a very special nature and attract the special responsibility of the Governor or deal with matters in which the Governor has to act at his discretion or in his individual judgment. Now, Sir, it cannot be contended for a moment that the subject-matter of these two Ordinances which have been promulgated come under section 89. Sub-section (1) of section 89 reads as follows: "If at any time the Governor of a Province is satisfied that circumstances exist which render it necessary for him to take immediate action for the purpose of enabling him satisfactorily to discharge his functions in so far as he is by or under this Act required in the exercise thereof to act in his discretion, or to exercise his individual judgment, he may promulgate such Ordinances as in his opinion the circumstances of the case require." Therefore, section 89 deals only with those Ordinances, for which under this Act he is required to act in his discretion or to exercise his individual judgment. I think he will be a very bold constitutional lawyer who would dare to suggest that either of these two Ordinances in any way attracts any of his special responsibilities or is a subject-matter in which he has to exercise his individual judgment or he has to act in his discretion.

There is one other point to which I want you to draw the attention of His Excellency. Even in the case of Ordinances which are the subject-matter of his special responsibilities, the Government of India Act lays down that he cannot act entirely arbitrarily. In fact, this is the intention of the Government of India Act that whenever any law is passed or any Ordinance is passed which has the force of law, such law or such Ordinance shall be subject to popular scrutiny. I shall take, first of all, the case of section 89. Under section 89, there is no provision by which the Legislature can terminate the life of an Ordinance. But nevertheless, the action of the Governor is subject to scrutiny. I would like to draw attention to the fact that wherever the Governor acts in his discretion or exercises his individual judgment, he can do so only subject to the control of the Governor-General. Section 54 reads as follows: "In so far as the Governor of a Province is by or under this Act required to act in his discretion or to exercise his individual judgment, he shall be under the general control of, and comply with such particular directions, if any, as may from time to time be given to him by the Governor-General in his discretion, but the validity of anything done by a Governor shall not be called in question on the ground that it was done otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of this section." But this is not all, Sir. The Governor when he acts in his discretion or exercises his individual judgment, is subject to the general control of the Governor-General and the Governor-General in his turn is under section 14 is subject to the control of the Houses of Parliament. Section 14 lays down: "In so far as the Governor-General is by or under this Act required to act in his discretion or to exercise his individual judgment, he shall be under the general control of, and comply with such particular directions, if any, as may from time to time be given to him by the Secretary of State.....". Now, it is quite evident that the Secretary of State is subject to the control of Parliament. Therefore, Sir, my contention is that even in the case of Ordinances under section 89 there is provision for ultimate legislative scrutiny; only the legislative scrutiny is somewhat remote, for the scrutiny is by the Parliament.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Why do you refer to section 89 when it is clear that the Ordinances were promulgated under section 88?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: That makes my case even stronger. My contention is that even in the case of Ordinances under section 89, the Governor is ultimately subject to the scrutiny of the Legislature. So far as section 88 is concerned, it is clearly laid down that it is only when the Legislature is not in session that Ordinances can be promulgated. When such Ordinances have been promulgated, they shall have to be laid on the table of the Legislature on the very first day that the Legislature meets. In order to strengthen that point, I made a reference to section 89. So far as section 88 is concerned, in sub-section (1) it is laid down that the Ordinance shall be presented to the Legislature on the first day when it meets. A definite procedure is laid down by which the Legislature may express its opinion upon a particular Ordinance. It is laid down that if a motion is moved in the Legislative Assembly disapproving the Ordinance and thereafter if the Legislative Council agrees with the motion of the Legislative Assembly, the Ordinance shall cease to have any force. In case there is no such motion, the Ordinance will even then cease to be in force six weeks after the Legislature is summoned. My contention is that the way in which the present Ordinances have been promulgated is an offence against section 88, because they were promulgated while the Legislature was in session, and so far as I remember, we have not had them on the table of the Legislature. They have not been presented to the Legislature yet. The reason for this is obvious. If the Hon'ble Minister tried to present it, a point of order would have been raised that the Legislature was not meeting on that day. The Legislature was in session and therefore in order to circumvent that point, the Ordinances were not presented to this House at all. But what is the result of that? The result is that even if this Council disapproves of the provisions of this Ordinance, it cannot express any opinion on that. Under section 88, sub-rule (2), the initiative must come from the Legislative Assembly. It lays down: "An Ordinance promulgated under this section shall have the same force and effect as an Act of the Provincial Legislature assented to by the Governor, but every such Ordinance—

(a) shall be laid before the Provincial Legislature and shall cease to operate at the expiration of six weeks from the re-assembly of the Legislature, or if a resolution disapproving it is passed by the Legislative Assembly and agreed to by the Legislative Council, if any, upon the passing of the resolution or, as the case may be, on the resolution being agreed to by the Council....."

The position is that since the Assembly is not in session, the motion disapproving the Ordinance cannot be moved there. If there was anything in this Ordinance to which we have any objection, we would have no remedy. The power which is given to the Legislature to disapprove of an Ordinance by a motion moved first in the Legislative Assembly and later on concurred to by the Legislative Council—that power is sought to be curtailed by promulgating an Ordinance in a manner where no action can be taken by us. In the present circumstances, we cannot take any step whatsoever in regard to the Ordinance.

I know that some honourable members opposite or some Hon'ble Ministers will say: that this Ordinance is on the same line as the Bill which was passed in this House. That Bill could not be carried through in another place, and thereafter receive the assent of the Governor and become law. That is the reason why the Ordinance has been promulgated.

If that be the argument advanced by the Government, I would through you, Sir, like to convey to His Excellency that this is making an improper use of the provision for an Ordinance. The provision for legislation is clearly laid down that legislation can be initiated in either of the two Houses. Legislation initiated and accepted by one House, will be sent to the other House as a Bill passed by that House. The other House will then consider the Bill and if it agrees, it will thereafter be sent to the Governor for his assent. It will then become an Act. It is a salutary method where the representatives of the people have an opportunity of discussing all the provisions of a Bill clause by clause. In the Ordinances under review, this salutary method is sought to be defeated and defeated in an underhand manner. When the Legislative Assembly was prorogued, one of the arguments advanced was that there was no further legislative business to be transacted. Now these two Ordinances prove that that statement was not correct. Since the Legislature is summoned or prorogued at the initiation of His Excellency the Governor under section 62 of the Government of India Act, the action of the Ministry made the Governor responsible for saying something or doing something which is not correct. It has made the Governor make a statement or commit an action which is neither a statement of fact nor can be defended in any way under the existing law. Therefore, there can be no doubt that the action of the Ministry in advising the Governor to promulgate this Ordinance has been most ill-advised and most unfortunate. Sir, my submission to you is that you will point out to His Excellency when these proceedings are forwarded, that by agreeing to the promulgation of such an Ordinance after the Legislative Assembly had been prorogued on the ground that there was no further legislative business, His Excellency has been made a party in the political struggles of the different parties in this House. His Excellency is sought to be dragged in the arena of legislative struggles. It is an improper action on the part of the Ministry to advise His Excellency in such a way. I think, Sir, that His Excellency has been most ill-advised by His Council of Ministers as well as by the Secretarial staff which advises him. They have gone against the law, and committed an outrage on the Constitution, because they have advised His Excellency to act in a way which is ultra vires of the Act. There have resulted two Ordinances which are void in fact and law. It can even be contended that it has put His Excellency in a position where he can be regarded as a partisan in the struggle of political parties.

The Ministers were becoming nervous about their parliamentary position. Continuation of the session was bound to throw them out of office. On any plea, they wanted an end of the session. They represented to the Governor that there was no further business before the Assembly. His Excellency prorogued the Assembly but in fact there was business which was pending and urgent. The Ministers advised the promulgation of Ordinances even though the Council was in session. Two Ordinances were promulgated and belied the former announcements that there was no further legislative business. I ask, Sir, if this is not attempting to drag the Governor into party strife and trying to use his authority for party purposes.

Now this is most unfortunate, and therefore, Sir, I have through this Address wanted to draw the attention of His Excellency to the fact that the way in which section 88 has been abused is not only unjustifiable in law, but is liable to be construed as if he is a party to all these illegal acts and as if he is sheltering a Ministry which is otherwise afraid of facing the Legislature. That is a most unhappy impression to be created in the public mind. Therefore, Sir, I have moved this motion under Rule 112. I trust that when the attention of His Excellency is drawn to the irregularity and illegality and one might almost say, the dishonesty involved in promulgating these two Ordinances, the Ordinances would be forthwith cancelled. The Legislature may then be summoned so that the normal procedure can be followed and these two Ordinances, instead of being Ordinances, can become Acts of the Legislature.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Motion moved: that an Address be presented to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal through the Hon'ble the President of the Bengal Legislative Council, drawing His Excellency's attention to the fact that the Bengal Destitute Persons (Repatriation and Relief) Ordinance, 1944, and the Bengal Alienation of Agricultural Land (Temporary Provisions) Ordinance, 1944, were promulgated while the Bengal Legislative Council was in session.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, I want to move an amendment—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: But where is the notice of your amendment?

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, this is a special motion of which we have got notice about noon yesterday, and there is no provision in the rules—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: But you have not even supplied the Chair with a copy of your amendment.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: I am very sorry, Sir. But there are only 9 or 10 words which I propose to add at the end of the motion. I propose to add the following words at the end of this motion: "and as such are ultra vires and void in law". These are the few words that I propose to add as an amendment to this motion.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: According to the convention of this House, I cannot accept any short-notice amendment unless it is agreed unanimously by this House—

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, I have not seen any such convention in any of the published reports of the proceedings, nor have I seen any rules to this effect—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Order, order. Please take your seat. I disallow your amendment.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: You are perfectly welcome to do that, Sir. But I want to speak on this motion.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Yes, you can do so.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, this motion wants to draw the attention of His Excellency the Governor to the fact that the Ordinances referred to had been issued or promulgated at a time when the Legislature was in session. The obvious object of this is to point out that these Ordinances are illegal and ultra vires. I would like to show that these two Ordinances are illegal and ultra vires on two main grounds. The first ground that I want to make out is that the Governor's power to issue or promulgate an Ordinance is limited by section 88 of the Government of India Act, under which both these Ordinances have been promulgated by one governing factor, namely, that the Legislature of the Province should be in session at the time. Since at the time when these Ordinances were issued or promulgated the Legislature was in session, obviously it was beyond the jurisdiction of the Governor to promulgate these Ordinances. The question is whether the Legislature was then really in session. As a matter of fact, at the time when these two Ordinances were promulgated—I think it was on the 7th or 8th of September—we were not actually meeting in this Hall but we were actually in session because this House was called to meet and actually met on the 7th February and has been meeting from that date up to this day without any break; there have been occasional adjournments it is true, but that does not affect the continuity of the session. If you will kindly refer to sub-clause (8) of rule 1 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules made under sub-section (1) of section 84 of the Government of India Act, which has the force of law, you will find that a session means the whole period from the time when the Council meets to the time when it is prorogued. Now it may be said that this is a definition given in the rules and not in the Act. In the Government of India Act itself there is no definition of "session" but the reasons are obvious—that it is so well-known a term in Parliamentary language that it does not require any definition. But if anything is necessary to enlighten us on the meaning of a term which we find in the statutory terms of an Act, I may refer to the fact that it is a settled law and upheld by the highest courts of law that if we do not find the meaning of a term in the Act itself we can find a meaning of that term if it is defined in the rules made under that Act. And it may therefore be taken for granted—in view of the definition given in the Procedure Rules—that that was the meaning which this House wanted to put on that particular expression. Therefore, there is absolutely no doubt that a session means the period from the date of the first meeting of the House till it is prorogued. As from the 7th of February up till now this House has not been prorogued, the Legislature must be deemed to be in session on the 7th September when these two Ordinances were issued. Therefore, it follows that the Governor had absolutely no jurisdiction to issue any Ordinance at the time. The question that has been raised by my honourable friend Mr. Humayun Kabir about the motive of Government, because the Assembly is not in session and because of the two Acts covering the same ground having been passed by this House, I submit, is entirely relevant. We must look to the Statute and to the Statute alone and if under the Statute it is clear that the jurisdiction that has been invoked does not exist, I submit, that is the end of the affair. The next point for consideration is that the Ordinances under section 88 are Ordinances which were issued not by the Governor in his discretion and not by the Governor with a view to perform such acts as he is required by law to perform under the provisions of the Government of India Act; but it is under clause (1). These two Ordinances were issued under the advice of the Ministers. The distinction between Ordinances under sections 88 and 89 is well-known and clear. An Ordinance under clause (1) of section 88 is issued under the advice of Minister; that is not Governor's action in his discretion. But Ordinances under section 89 are issued by the Governor at his discretion. These two Ordinances were issued not under section 89 but under section 88. It may be said that there is nothing in section 88 to indicate that it has to be issued on the advice of the Ministers. Now, if you will kindly refer to section 89, you will find—

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: Will you please refer to that part of the section on which you base your arguments—that the Ordinances have been promulgated on the advice of the Ministers.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: I am trying to develop that point by a comparison between sections 88 and 89. In section 89 you will find it stated that if the Governor is satisfied that circumstances exist which render it necessary for him to take immediate action for the purpose of enabling him satisfactorily to discharge his functions in so far as he is by or under this Act required in the exercise thereof to act in his discretion, or to exercise his individual judgment, he may promulgate such Ordinances as in his opinion the circumstances of the case require. Therefore, section 89 clearly covers the cases where the Governor is required to act in his discretion or to exercise his individual judgment, and if any other authority is required, I would refer the honourable members to the Parliamentary debates on this section 88—volume 299, I am sorry I cannot give the page number, but this point was discussed during the Parliamentary debates and it was clearly and specifically stated on that occasion that whereas Ordinances under section 89 are issued by the Governor in the exercise of his own individual judgment, Ordinances under section 88 are entirely issued on the advice of the Ministers. Now that being the position, Sir, I do not see how the Hon'ble Ministers could possibly advise His Excellency to promulgate Ordinance under section 88 when this Bengal Council was in session and we are surprised to find the wording has been in the notification promulgating the Ordinances, namely, "whereas the Bengal Provincial Legislature is not in session"—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, before the House is adjourned, I would like to mention one thing. I was directed by the Hon'ble the President to mention it at the end of the meeting.

Mr. DEPUTY PRESIDENT: I cannot allow this.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I am tabling a short-notice question on this matter and I want Government to reply to this on the opening.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944—No. 88.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Monday, the 23rd October, 1944, at 2 p.m., being the eighty-eighth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.), was in the Chair.

Condolence on the Hon'ble President's bereavement.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: Sir, before we proceed with the business of the House, I should like to express on behalf of myself and on behalf of the other honourable members our deepest sorrow at the most unexpected and most sudden death of your dear daughter, which melancholy event occurred yesterday at about 1 p.m. We understand the feelings of a father on such a calamity, especially when it occurs so suddenly for which we are not at all prepared. We can only pray to the Almighty to give you strength of mind to bear up the loss and like to convey through you the sympathy of this House to Lady Singh Roy and other members of your family.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am deeply grateful to the Hon'ble the Leader of the House and to the honourable members for their kind sympathy in my great loss. I am really overwhelmed by the generous expression of your sentiments. It was a bolt from the blue to me as it was least expected. Weak and helpless as we are, we must bow down to the dispensation of the Providence and bear everything in patience. I thank you heartily.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, there was a promise on the part of the Leader of the House that my short-notice question with regard to the Howrah Municipality will be answered today.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Let the adjournment motion be taken up first.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, the Chief Minister is prepared to answer that question tomorrow. He is unfortunately away today; but he has asked me to convey to the House that he would be very glad to answer the question tomorrow.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance—

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, I beg to submit that there can be no discussion on this motion. The adjournment motion raises the question whether Government have any right to prevent the Calcutta Corporation from taking food-grains from ration shops for the purpose of inspection—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point of order, Sir,—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Let us hear the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy first, Mr. Mazumdar.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: It so happens, Sir, that this matter is being tried in a court of law. The Inspectors of the Calcutta Corporation went to the Government Stores in the College Street Market and purchased or attempted to purchase food-grains from that store. The Managers refused to supply them the food-grains and they are now being prosecuted before the Municipal Magistrate by the Calcutta Corporation. It has been filed before the Municipal Magistrate by the Calcutta Corporation, I understand, as a test case. Therefore, I submit that the matter is sub judice.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But objection should have been taken before the motion was admitted—

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I am sorry that at that time this information was not available. As a matter of fact, the prosecution has been launched only this week—

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Has summons been issued?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Yes, summons has been issued and served—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But is it going to affect the subject-matter of this motion?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Absolutely, Sir. The only issue they raise is that Government officers have refused to supply food-grains to the Inspecting officers of the Calcutta Corporation and some Government officers are now being prosecuted—

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point of order, Sir. At this stage when the motion has been admitted, can the Hon'ble the Civil Supplies Minister re-open the matter and ask for your orders to stop the discussion of the motion?

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is possible, though it is not done ordinarily. Suppose a motion is admitted and after that the matter is taken to the court, then certainly the matter becomes sub judice, and it cannot be discussed here.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, according to the statement of the Hon'ble Minister, certain officers of the Government have been prosecuted long before this motion was admitted. Therefore, this motion cannot affect this question—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Quite so. But if the matter is sub judice, we cannot discuss it here.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: But the question is: whether that can affect the present motion which I have moved. They may be prosecuted on some other grounds.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, I submit that at any time even in the course of the debate, if it is brought to your notice that the matter is sub judice, it will be not only within your rights and privileges but quite appropriate for you to stop the proceedings.

Mr. PRESIDENT: In view of the statement made by the Hon'ble Minister, I do not think the matter can be discussed; but objection should have been taken before the motion was admitted.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: But, Sir, we have not got anything beyond the statement of the Hon'ble Civil Supplies Minister before us to show that the matter is sub judice. What is the matter that is sub judice? We want to have all this information.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: We would like to have a disclosure of all the facts and figures in this case.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: My point is: that these honourable gentlemen who must have read the newspapers very carefully, must be aware of the fact that some officers of Government Stores are being prosecuted in the municipal courts. This matter has received wide publicity. All these have appeared in the newspapers, and—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: When we are discussing a matter with regard to which a motion has already been admitted under the rules—

Mr. PRESIDENT: The motion has been admitted, that is true; but—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Kindly allow me to finish before you stop me. What I say is: that the Hon'ble Civil Supplies Minister is not entitled to say that the news relating to this prosecution appeared in the papers; my answer to that is that Government Stores are also similarly aware and all the honourable members of this House were similarly aware and therefore this objection should have been taken by Government at the stage when the motion was admitted. What has happened since the admission of this motion to make it out of order?

Mr. PRESIDENT: That does not matter, because I think that the moment it is brought to the notice of the Chair that a matter is sub judice, the Chair is bound to take the fact into consideration.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: The point is: on what grounds has this prosecution been launched against the managers of Government stores or ration shops—perhaps it may be under the Defence of India Rules.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But the Hon'ble Minister has assured the House that it is on the same issue as that which the adjournment motion seeks to discuss.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: That may not be correct, after all. And the question is: whether the prosecution of these officers is not due to some acts which may have nothing to do with the purpose of the adjournment motion. We do not know anything about the subject-matter of the prosecution referred to by the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: The Hon'ble Minister ought to have come prepared with full facts.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: The whole question is: whether under the rules of this House this motion can be ruled out of order merely on the statement of the Hon'ble Minister—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. We should not disbelieve the statement of an Hon'ble Minister. The adjournment motion runs thus: That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation that has arisen out of the action of the Government of Bengal in preventing the officers of the Corporation of Calcutta from taking samples of food-stuffs from the ration shops under the provisions of the Calcutta Municipal Act and dealing with the samples under the provisions of the said Act.

I hope the Hon'ble Minister makes the statement fully realising his responsibility in the matter. If the same issues are going to be raised in this case, then this motion cannot obviously be discussed.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Then we insist on all the relevant papers being produced before the House.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: What I submit for your consideration is this. The motion stands as follows:—

.....in preventing the officers of the Corporation of Calcutta from taking samples of foodstuffs from the ration shops under the provisions of the Calcutta Municipal Act—

This is nothing illegal and I do not understand how anybody can be prosecuted for acting in accordance with the provisions of the Act. So the prosecution has nothing to do with the matter and if I may refer you, Sir, to the various provisions of the Calcutta Municipal Act, you will find that various procedures have been prescribed for the drawing out of samples in order that the Health Officer of the Calcutta Corporation and the Sanitary Officers of the Corporation whose duty it is to see that the people of Calcutta are not supplied with unwholesome food—

Mr. PRESIDENT: All these provisions are known to us, Mr. Mukherjee. What is your reply to the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy's point?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I am coming to that; but you have stopped me, before I could finish. What I say is this: Two members of the Corporation are being prosecuted by Government.....(Cries of "No, no", quite the reverse): (The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: The fact is that some managers of Government Ration Shops or Government Stores are being prosecuted by the Corporation.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. In view of the clear statement of the Hon'ble Minister and in view of the fact that he speaks on full information and takes full responsibility for his statement, I hold that this motion cannot be discussed.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTY: May I know whether the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies has passed an order on the Government Store-keepers not to supply to the Calcutta Corporation with any sample of the foodgrains which they have stocked?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: That is the matter which is sub judice.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTY: I want to know whether Government has passed any such order not to supply to the officers of the Calcutta Corporation with the samples of foodgrains in their stock?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Government passed an order and that is the matter which is now sub judice.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, on a previous occasion on a similar motion the statement of the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy was not found to be correct; and so without the production of actual papers showing the actual points involved, we are not going to accept this statement in this way. Having regard to this previous experience, Sir, we hope you will certainly ask for better particulars.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I think that is a rather unprecedented attitude for you to take. When the Hon'ble Minister makes his statement—and I have stressed the point—I hope he does it by taking full responsibility. He is very sure about his facts.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: On the last occasion I insisted on the 'text' being produced by the Hon'ble Minister. It was stated that his facts were correct but subsequently it was found that they were not correct.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I hope that there should be no more discussion about it.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Before disallowing my adjournment motion, will you please consider one fact?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have already said that this cannot be considered.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: If you have already ruled that out, I am requesting you to reconsider that.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Please do not pursue that point any more.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: With regard to your ruling, Sir, I am not going to say anything; but what I am suggesting is this. I am entitled to say—

Mr. PRESIDENT: If you have got any further submission to make, I shall be very glad to meet you in my chamber where we can discuss that matter. The Hon'ble Minister takes full responsibility for his statement. So I accept it.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I am not concerned with regard to the responsibility of the Hon'ble Civil Supplies Minister and I think that my talk with you in your chamber will not improve the situation.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point of privilege, Sir. Today I have received a letter from the Assistant Secretary of the Bengal Legislative Council with regard to a short-notice question telling me that if I can make myself responsible for the facts stated therein, this may be accepted. My point is that whenever a member puts a question—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, this is not a point of privilege. Please resume your seat. You gave notice of a short-notice question: has that been disallowed?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I am reading that letter, Sir. "I am directed to inform you that you have not made yourself responsible for the accuracy of the statement made in your question No. 331 of the current session (copy enclosed) and, as such, it cannot be considered for admission. I am to enquire therefore if you accept the responsibility for these statements." As soon as I put a question, I take the responsibility, otherwise a member does not table any question and waste his valuable time.

Mr. PRESIDENT: In that connection, I will refer you to the rules which distinctly lay down that "if it contains a statement, the member asking it must make himself responsible for the accuracy of the statement".

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: As soon as I put a question, I take the entire responsibility.

Mr. PRESIDENT: This is a matter which should not be discussed in this House. The time of the House is valuable.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: My time is also no less valuable.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: May I rise on a point of privilege, Sir? I understand that under rule 76 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules a copy of the Agricultural Income-tax Bill, as passed by the Assembly, shall be laid on the table. I like to see the original Bill. The Secretary possibly has objection and he cannot allow me to see that. That, Sir, is a serious question of privilege.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Bill was laid on the Table. Members are not entitled to look at the files of the Department.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Not at the file, Sir; but we want to look at the original Bill from which the printing was made. The rule says that when a Bill originating in the Assembly has been passed by the Assembly and is sent to the Council, copies of the Bill shall be laid on the Table and made available for the use of members at the next following meeting of the Council or as soon as possible thereafter. Copies of the Bill as passed by the Assembly are sent to this House which are now under consideration. I want to see those things because it is stated that there is a printing mistake.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If you want to see that particular copy, I am sure, Secretary will be glad to show it to you.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I want to see it just now.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Please come here and see.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of privilege, Sir. I addressed a letter to the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly through you, enquiring about a certain matter. I wanted to know from him, Sir, whether the word "guardian" was actually passed by the Assembly or not.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, the point is this that the Chair cannot agree to act as a channel of communication between the individual members of this House and the Speaker of the other House. It has never been the practice.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: That is exactly the point of privilege: there should be a channel through which the Chair can send a requisition or a request to the Speaker and that channel, Sir, should be the President of the Council.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, the members of this House have no privilege to address Mr. Speaker of the other House.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Not even when an occasion arises? However, Sir, my purpose would be served if you would allow me to see the Bill.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Clause 65.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Clause 65 stand part of the Bill. Mr. Amulyadhane Roy.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I see clause 65 does not contain any correction—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I have already called upon Mr. Amulyadhane Roy to move his amendment.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I say that without discussing whether the question of allowing correction is admissible or not, how can we proceed with the discussion on this clause?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, I understand that point has already been disposed of by the Deputy President.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: But, Sir, I find that the Bill which is required to be laid on the Table under rule 76, and which has been circulated has not been corrected. We are concerned only with the Bill as laid on the Table. So, I say that unless the Bill is corrected, we cannot proceed with the discussion of this clause.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The correction has not been made by us. The correction has already been made by the Hon'ble Mr. Speaker. I understand that he corrected it and merely communicated the fact to us. So, we have got to proceed on the basis of the corrected Bill.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of privilege, Sir. The Speaker cannot correct anything in the copies of the Bill which have already been circulated to the members and upon which amendments have been tabled.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, I understand that that point was raised and was disposed of by the Deputy President.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: No, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, it has been disposed of. Mr. Nagendra Nath Moholanabish said on that occasion "Sir, you have stated certain facts which are already known to us. The Hon'ble the Speaker of the Assembly has sent a communication to us. This fact is known to us. That is neither any order nor a decision. What I want to know is whether in the circumstances there can be any communication of this nature." And the Deputy President said, "My answer is in the affirmative. I have already stated that."

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: But, Sir, where is the decision?

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, the Deputy President did not give any ruling as on that occasion this question did not arise. It has arisen now. I want to know what is the effect of that communication on the Bill and on the amendments to clause 65. Certainly, we are entitled to speak on this matter now.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I repeat that point has already been disposed of by the Deputy President.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is it your reading of the circumstances that the Deputy President has disposed of the matter? I think the point is to decide whether that communication has any effect on the originally authenticated Bill which was sent to this House and a certified copy of which was circulated to the members. That is a different point. That was not decided. The only thing was that a communication was made. But what that communication meant was not clear—

Mr. PRESIDENT: That communication means that the correction has already been made.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: So far as we are concerned, the Speaker of the Assembly is a stranger—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Chakraverti, all these points have already been disposed of by the Deputy President.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: The only point that has been disposed of by the Deputy President is that a communication was made—

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, it concerns not only the Opposition but the whole House and it concerns you primarily. Please look at the text of the communication. It is absolutely clear there that Mr. Ali Afzal sent the communication as a sort of order of the Speaker. What does Mr. Ali Afzal mean by sending such a communication? It was, as if the Speaker was passing an order upon you to do certain things, and our Secretary sent a copy thereof to us. What right the Secretary has to send a circular letter like that? It is clearly a breach of the rules.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Chakraverti, all these points were disposed of by the Deputy President. I find that he held that such a communication could be sent by the Hon'ble Mr. Speaker, and the Deputy President definitely stated that on that basis he assumed that the Bill had already been corrected and he allowed time to honourable members to put in fresh amendments. So in that view of the matter, I do not think it is open to me any more to re-open the matter.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Sir, I again tell you that the Deputy President did not give any decision, and nor did we ask for any such decision. This is wholly illegal. The communication sent by the Hon'ble Speaker has no locus standi so far as this Bill is concerned. This point you have got to consider.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am afraid, we have fully considered the point. I find that all these points were raised in the statement made by the Hon'ble the Leader of the Opposition on the following day. The Deputy President disposed of all the points. He said that the Speaker was perfectly entitled to send such a communication; he accepted it and on that basis he asked for fresh amendments. There is nothing left for me to do.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: The Deputy President was inclined to give such a decision, although we did not ask from him any ruling. He could not give any ruling. After the Leader of the Opposition made his statement we said that we were not asking for any ruling whatsoever, because it was not a matter for ruling. In this House we cannot even refer to the proceedings of the other House, and no member of the other House can even be present here except the Ministers under the special provisions of the Government of India Act. So, how can the Hon'ble Speaker of the other House have anything to say in the matter after he has once sent the Bill to this House—that is the matter for your consideration.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I think, Sir, we cannot go behind the decision of this House.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: But no decision has yet been taken or any ruling given.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: One word, Sir. The Leader of the Opposition made a statement and Hon'ble the Chief Minister gave a reply and both these were heard in this House. The decision of the Deputy President who was in the Chair that day was that the circulation of the communication received from the other House was all right. If any honourable member wanted to put in any new amendment, he could do so. That was the decision taken after hearing both the parties.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: No, the decision does not relate to that.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: I do not think the question can be re-opened.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: After hearing all sides, the Deputy President gave no decision whatever.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: May I enquire if the Bill has now been actually corrected by the insertion of the word "No"? I submit that physical and actual correction is necessary, and if so, who has made that correction? Mere pious wish will not do; actual correction has got to be shown.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, you have read out Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad's remark and over and above that you have also read out the remark of the Deputy President who was then in the Chair. The remark of the Deputy President was to the effect: "the answer is in the affirmative"; that is to say, that the Hon'ble Speaker could send a communication like that. But our contention is as to what effect that communication has had upon the printed copies of the Bill which were circulated to us under the provisions of rule 76 and upon which we sent in our notices of amendments. That is the only point which is to be decided now by you, namely, as to what effect that communication from the Speaker has had.

upon the printed copies of the Bill which was originally circulated to us. No decision was given by the Deputy President on that point. The words are there and you are not to curtail and take away the rights of the House. The words are there and there is nothing in them upon which you can take away the just rights of the members of this House. The clear meaning of those words is that one honourable member was making an enquiry and the Deputy President's answer was in the affirmative. The enquiry now being made by us is: what effect that communication has had upon the printed copies of the Bill. Nowhere in that day's proceedings has it been stated that that communication has supplanted copies of the Bill that were circulated to us—

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I understand that the corrected clause has been circulated to honourable members and amendments have been invited.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: That may be, but we have refused to take cognisance of that correction.

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur SAIYED MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSAIN: You had protested that you did not want to take cognisance of that; but the decision of the Deputy President was that in spite of your objections he would proceed with the clause as corrected.

Mr. PRESIDENT: This point was raised by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Now the whole thing is before you and the question is: whether you are prepared to take away the rights and privileges of the House to put in amendments on the printed copies of the Bill as it was circulated to us under the provisions of rule 76; and what effect the communication received from the Secretary to the other House has on those printed copies. This is a point which is very serious; for that means whether you are prepared to curtail the rights and privileges of this House simply because like a Rip Van Winkle some gentleman belonging to Government benches was sleeping and just at the nick of time he rose up to have the discussion stopped—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, I have tried to follow your argument and have also read as carefully as I could the statement made by various members on this point and subsequently by the Hon'ble the Leader of the Opposition on the following day. I find that this matter was really considered and disposed of.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On which line of the statements do you rely, Sir, for this interpretation? Before you take away our just rights, will you kindly say on which line you rely for this decision? I may read out to you—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will you take your seat please, Mr. Das?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Let me read some portion of that day's proceedings. Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad said: "That after passing through certain amendments whether this is the proper time to receive such a circular letter. In fact, we have got a Bill and we cannot proceed behind that Bill and we cannot go into the proceedings of another place. The question might lead to some constitutional difficulty. If that question is reserved for consideration till that time, I do not want to raise it now". In reply to that Mr. Deputy President said "As we have not yet reached clause 65, I think this can be done. There will be no irregularity in the matter."

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, it is a simple thing. It means that this matter will be considered when section 65 will be considered. Kindly read that again, Sir. It means that he has left it open.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, before the Hon'ble Finance Minister speaks, I want to say that so far as the Bill that is there, there is no correction as suggested, and under rule 76 we are to consider the Bill as it is on the Table.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That point was considered.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: How can that be, Sir? It was not known that this Bill had then been corrected. The present point that I have raised is that there is no correction up-till-now in the Bill which is laid on the Table. This may be recorded.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I understand that it is a copy of the Bill which is laid on the Table and the original Bill has been corrected.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: We are not concerned with what Bill is lying with the Speaker nor with the corrections therein. We are concerned under rule 76 with the Bill that is laid on the Table.

Mr. PRESIDENT: All these points were mentioned in the statement made by the Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: There was no such mention.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: The Hon'ble Speaker of the Assembly is bound to transmit to this House the Bill as it was passed by the Assembly. If at a subsequent stage the Speaker finds that there is a slight mistake in the printed copy of the Bill as passed by the Assembly, it was his clear duty to communicate the fact of the printing mistake to this House. I can understand that there would have been some difficulty if we had disposed of clause 65 before the communication of the Speaker came to us, but we had not yet reached clause 65. There are precedents in the annals of the British Parliament where even at the last moment corrections have been received by one House from another, so that the proper Bill, as passed by one House, may be considered by the other House. Now, since clause 65 had not been reached in this House, it was within the power of the President to admit a correction.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: How could the Speaker know that we have not reached clause 65?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, there were enough discussions about this and I think that there should be a finality now.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I request you, Sir, to read again the portion you have read now. It means that there was no decision with respect to that point. Mr. Deputy President said that time for it will come when you reach section 65. Therefore, Sir, I request you again to read carefully what you have already stated.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have understood your point but there is another statement of the Deputy President where he said "my answer is in the affirmative. I have already stated that."

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, I want to say—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have already heard you.

Mr. NAGENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Sir, I was not allowed to develop my argument that day. You have heard the argument of the Hon'ble Minister but you have not heard our arguments.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think that is correct. I have been hearing the Oppositor for the last half an hour.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: The point is: whether that message has the effect of correcting this Bill? What is the legal position and what is the power of the Speaker on that point? You have not allowed us to argue these points.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The point is this. This point which was raised by Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad was finally disposed of by the Deputy President in my absence. In answer to the question that "that is neither any order nor a decision. What I want to know is whether in the circumstances there can be any communication of this nature", the Deputy President said "my answer is in the affirmative. I have already stated that."

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: It is neither a decision nor anything of the sort. What effect has that communication left upon the copies of the Bill already circulated?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I cannot go on discussing it. I find very clearly that the matter was considered by the Deputy President and he disposed of that point.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: How can he dispose of clause 65 before it was reached? Certain discussions took place between the Deputy President and the members of this House. Sir, don't you realise the point that the matter has not been decided at all? Now is the time to decide what would be the effect of that communication.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The Deputy President said that such communication could be received; and the communication that was received stated that the mistake has been corrected by the Hon'ble Mr. Speaker. Now, if you receive that communication you certainly have to go by the corrected Bill.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, before clause 65 is taken up, there cannot be any decision. Now, that clause has been taken up, it is your bounden duty to give the decision on this point.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, the Leader of the Opposition discussed this question very thoroughly in his statement. He did not wait for the reaching of clause 65. So, the matter was considered.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, the Leader of the Opposition was emphatic in his statement that the Speaker had no right to issue a communication like that. The Leader of the Opposition did not rise on a point of order that it would require any ruling from the Chair.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Sir, may we suggest that as the decision has already been given, the amendments may be taken up one by one.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, may I make a submission?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have read the proceedings of that date and I think the matter has been decided. I will now take up the amendments.

Mr. NACENDRA NATH MOHOLANABISH: Why, Sir?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: As the corrected Bill is not before the House, we cannot take part in its third reading; and as a protest against your decision, Sir, with regard to the important point raised by the Opposition, we walk out of the House.

Clause 65.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that clause 65 stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Title and Preamble.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that Title and Preamble stand part of the Bill.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, there are amendments standing in my name.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But you did not rise.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: I must be called by you first, before I rise. The practice is that you call me first. You did not call me.

The Hon'ble Mr. TULSI CHANDRA GOSWAMI: Sir, I beg to move that the Bill, as settled by the Council, be passed.

Sir, in the absence of so many members of the Opposition, I do not wish to speak at great length. It is unfortunate that the Opposition, though not as a whole but a vast majority, decided not to take part in this afternoon's proceedings. This is most unfortunate. Of course, it has given the House an opportunity to pass the Bill in peace. I do realise that in this Province taxation of agricultural income is almost a revolutionary thing; but it is not so very revolutionary. After all, it is one of the recognised sources of public revenue, and whatever hardships it may inflict on a certain class of people, I think it will be generally accepted that there was a serious omission in the taxation law of this province that agricultural income had so far been exempt from taxation. I shall refer to one objection which was raised by the Opposition in the earlier stages of the discussion, on behalf principally of agricultural interests. It seemed to be the desire of certain members belonging to the Opposition that we should ear-mark the proceeds of the agricultural income-tax solely for the purpose of agricultural improvement in this province. These honourable gentlemen derived support for their proposition from the recommendation of the Floud Commission. I wish to tell the House or rather to remind the House that when the Floud Commission wrote out their report, agriculture was a starving department in this province. Since then, greater attention has been paid to agriculture and this year's expenses on account of the improvement of agriculture will be many times more than anything that we may expect from Agricultural Income-tax when this Bill is passed. The Hon'ble the Leader of the House who is also the Minister for Agriculture has told the honourable members times without number how many projects he has in hand. These projects will take a long time to mature and for years to come the Government of Bengal will be spending enormous sums of money on agricultural improvement. I do not wish to repeat that it would not be right to ear-mark the proceeds of any tax for any particular purpose. I have spoken at some length on the subject at an earlier stage of the discussion on this Bill. I would now request the honourable members to be good enough to pass the Bill as it has been settled in the Council.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: That the Bengal Agricultural Income-Tax Bill, 1944, as settled in the Council, be passed.

Khan Bahadur NAZIRUDDIN AHMAD: Sir, I rise most unexpectedly to support this motion for the passing of the Bill. The attitude which I have taken in regard to this Bill should be clearly appreciated. I have on more than one occasion in the course of discussion on this Bill and also on previous occasions spoken in support of the principle of an agricultural income-tax. It was first recommended by the Indian Taxation Enquiry Committee. It has also been recommended by text-book writers like Dr. Radha Kumud Mookerjee in his book "Land problems of Bengal" and also by the Floud Commission. The amendments which I had the misfortune of moving in this House were mostly of a drafting character. They were calculated and intended solely to improve the text of the Bill except in one case, namely, in the case of clause 49, in respect of which I had a fundamental objection. The Bill on the whole is calculated to serve useful purpose. The agricultural income was never subjected to any tax except for a brief period during the early sixties of the last century, when an attempt to tax all the agricultural income or rather the zemindari income was opposed by the zemindars on the ground that such tax would be against the principles of the Permanent Settlement. There was some amount of controversy and Government, not only gave away for the time being the right to tax zemindari income but all agricultural incomes. The matter was again raised before the Privy Council in the year 1934. There the point was discussed and it was held that zemindari income was liable to be taxed. Then came the Government of India Act which actually provided that agricultural income may be taxed and power was given to the provinces. Now, Sir, the principle underlying this tax may be justified from another point of view. We find that all incomes of the world, including even the illegal incomes, are liable to be taxed. There is no conceivable income which can escape taxation; and the fact that so long agricultural income was not subject to any tax was an anomaly. Now, Sir, agricultural income should be taxed like all other incomes. If income-tax is a good thing, it is good also for agricultural income. If agricultural income-tax is a bad thing then the Agricultural Income-Tax Act itself would be bad also. But I submit that all incomes should be subjected to tax. So every person having a decent income should volunteer or rather be compelled to volunteer and should contribute a part of his income. In the circumstances, the principle is well established.

Certain objections which I have raised with regard to the context of the Bill may be broadly considered. I have also suggested certain amendments regarding concessions. They are, I believe, mostly of a necessary character and may perhaps be relevant in the interpretation of the Act.

As regards punctuation, I may say where it has been introduced formally in the Bill it is better to regard it as necessary and my submission to the Hon'ble Minister would be to approach the Secretary of the Assembly who has the power to make minor changes in punctuation, for considering certain amendments regarding punctuation; if he thinks they may be accepted without the necessity of calling the other House to consider them, he should be asked to do the needful.

Then coming to clause 49, my objection was of a fundamental character. That objection was not based on racial or class distinction. It is dependent upon the fundamental question. Bengal has no right to tax income in England but England has the right to tax income received in Bengal. There is no reciprocity between Bengal and the Provinces, between Bengal and the Indian States and the Dominions, etc., with regard to tax. I have attempted to show that if Bengal is asked merely to contribute towards the tax, it would be a one-sided affair. I have also shown that if Bengal do not insert a provision like clause 49, then the United Kingdom will refund the balance left on them to the tax payer, so that the tax payers in any case would be fully relieved. I also submitted and still submit that it is a question between the two Exchequers and the tax payers should consider this matter. In the circumstances, I should ask the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Bill to carefully consider this provision in the Bill and see whether they are not certain aspects of the amendment which should not be passed unnoticed.

The unusual delay which took place to consider the amendments in the House is due to fundamental facts. The facts are that some of the amendments are known to have been accepted by the Legislative Department. In fact, Government also tabled certain amendments through Mr. Mesbah-uddin Ahmed and Mr. Biren Roy. So it was known, of course unofficially, that certain amendments would be accepted. The Hon'ble Minister spoke very frankly that he was conscious of the fact that there were certain defects that require change in the Bill. He said that for certain reasons he was not in a position to accept them but the ostensible object for not allowing them to be moved was the prevention of delay. But unfortunately in the circumstances it has led to the only thing which was attempted to be prevented by the Hon'ble Minister. At any rate, when the Hon'ble Minister admitted that there were certain defects in the Bill which require amendments, the movers of the amendments were justified on that ground. I should therefore on this last occasion request the Hon'ble Minister to carefully consider the amendments. They are weighty amendments supported by weighty reasons. Although for certain well-known reasons the Hon'ble Minister was not in a position to accept them, he has however promised, and I believe frankly promised, to consider those amendments at a very early date. I am sure he will find some of them at least to be very useful. They have been discussed threadbare and there would be no difficulty in finding out which amendments would be good. In the circumstances, he should make a list of amendments and introduce a Bill as quickly as possible to correct the defects. There are many defects in the Bill and the Government experts know them and there will be no difficulty in submitting an amending Bill.

With these few words, I support the third reading of the Bill. My objection was generally with regard to the drafting of the Bill, and in the case of clause 49, with regard to the principle involved in it. I find the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Bill did not make any specific reply on this point. I do not blame him. I raise certain questions which were neither raised in another place nor in the Select Committee or by any other member in this House. I believe they were absolutely new points and I admire the Hon'ble Minister for not replying to those of my constitutional questions. I can only hope that they would be considered later on and if possible might be accepted.

With these few words, Sir, I support the third reading of the Bill.

- (a) if it is a fact that an enquiry into the affairs of the Howrah Municipality has been promised by the Government on the 26th July, 1944, when the adjournment motion regarding the situation created by the judgment of the Hon'ble the High Court was being discussed in the Bengal Legislative Council;
- (b) if it is a fact that the Government contemplate appointing Mr. Jnanankur De, I.C.S., as the Enquiry Officer, who was the District Judge at Howrah, for a considerable period where Mr. Pain used to practise; and
- (c) whether in view of the strong public opinion the Government consider the desirability of issuing orders for an open judicial enquiry at an early date; if not, why not?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): (a) Yes. The Hon'ble Chief Minister gave

(b) No.

(c) Yes: order has issued; the honourable member is referred to the statements referred to in reply to question No. 263. This enquiry will deal with allegations against Mr. Pain personally. The general enquiry into the affairs of Howrah Municipality will be held later.

Arrest of Babu Ananda Prasad Chowdhury.

269. Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

(a) if it is a fact that Babu Ananda Prasad Chowdhury, B.Sc., was arrested at Contai (district Midnapore);

MINISTER in charge of the HOME DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Khwaja Sir Nazimuddin): (a) Yes, in the Contai subdivision.

(b) Rule 129 of the Defence of India Rules.

(c) No.

(e) and (f) Do not arise.

(g) and (h) The prisoner was not originally sent to the Midnapore Central Jail. He was in the custody of the Deputy Inspector-General of Police, Intelligence Branch, Bengal, until recently and has since been transferred to the Midnapore Central Jail. His relatives may see him as permitted by rules.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state why this prisoner has not been informed of the charges against him and why is it that he has not been given an opportunity to meet those charges?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Action has been taken under the Defence of India Rules and all their provisions are being complied with.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state if it is not a fact that it is now obligatory on the Government to inform the detenus of the charges against them and whether it is also not a fact that the detenu in question has not been informed of the charges against him?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have already stated that the provisions of the law have been carried out in this case.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Does the Hon'ble Minister then mean to say this this detenu was informed of the charges against him? I want a direct answer to this question, Sir.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I have nothing further to add.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Is it a fact that the prisoner has not been informed of the charges against him?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have already told the House that the provisions of the law have been carried out in this case.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, I would beg of you to ask the Hon'ble the Chief Minister whether he will give a direct answer to this direct question? After the Defence of India Rules were framed, certain further rules were promulgated to the effect that detenus would be informed of the charges against them; and my question is whether under this later Ordinance of the Government of India the present detenu was informed of the charges against him and given an opportunity to meet those charges: this is my direct question. The Hon'ble Minister can reply—yes, or no.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The answer is in the affirmative as regards the carrying out of the rules and regulations; and action as provided under the Defence of India Rules has been taken.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: According to the Defence of India Rules, the prisoner was arrested but subsequently a rule was issued that all detenus were to be informed of the charges against them: has that been done?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The answer is in the affirmative in that respect.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Did the detenu give an answer to those charges?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister state the date when the charges were communicated to the detenu?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I ask for notice.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister state the date when the charges were communicated to the detenu?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I want notice. •

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble the Home Minister please state why in answer to (c) of the question he states "No" when his present statement is that the prisoner has been informed of the charges?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: All that depends on the language used.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether the reply that was given by the detenu to the charges against him has been considered by Government?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have already asked for notice in regard to the question as to whether any reply has been sent by him or not. But I may again state here and make it absolutely clear that if a reply has been sent, it must have certainly been considered.

Pabna Satsang.

270. Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if he is aware that regular and persistent acts of hooliganism are being perpetrated by unknown persons against the members of Pabna Satsang, a humanitarian and religious Association of Pabna, in course of the last few months resulting in some deaths;
- (b) if the reply is in the affirmative, what steps the Government have taken up to date to successfully investigate into the matter so that the culprits are arrested and brought to book;
- (c) if the Government propose to appoint efficient C. I. D. Officer or Officers to detect the criminals without further loss of time; and
- (d) if not, why not?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (a) No.

(b) to (d) Do not arise.

Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state if they have received a long memorial in this respect from the Pabna Satsang?

Grievances of the people of Chittagong.

271. Mr. NUR AHMED: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Revenue Department be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that he was pleased to receive a deputation headed by Mr. Atul Chandra Datta and Shaikh Rafiuddin Ahmed Siddique at Chittagong during his recent visit to Chittagong;
- (b) whether it is a fact that the above deputation submitted a memorandum to him containing some pressing grievances of the people of Chittagong; and
- (c) if so, what are those grievances and what steps have been taken by him to remedy those grievances?

MINISTER in charge of the REVENUE DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Mr. Tarak Nath Mukerjee): (a) No formal deputation was received; but there was informal discussion with Mr. Atul Chandra Datta, Shaikh Rafiuddin Ahmed Siddique and others during my visit to Chittagong in the last week of August, 1944.

(b) A note was submitted covering some of the subjects discussed.

(c) The grievances related to problems arising out of requisitioning of immovable properties under the Defence of India Rules, and administration of relief measures. These were discussed with the local officers later on and suitable directions were given.

Mr. NUR AHMED: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what were the specific grievances regarding the requisition of immovable properties under the Defence of India Rules?

The Hon'ble Mr. TARAK NATH MUKERJEA: Compensation has been given to those persons whose properties have been requisitioned.

Use of non-standard weights.

272. Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Commerce, Labour and Industries Department be pleased to state what steps the Government have taken or are proposing to take in order to stop fraudulent transaction by means of variation of bazar weights used in different markets and different shops in the whole of Bengal, and specially within the limits of the Corporation of Calcutta?

(b) Do Government propose to make the use of non-standard weights a cognisable offence so that matters may be reported to the police authorities and the latter may have right of arresting persons and prosecuting them as Crown cases? If not, why not?

(c) Are Government aware that in private markets, the public who use such markets are often cheated by the use of false bazar weights and measures, and by the use of faulty scales in such markets? Is he aware that if this is brought to the knowledge of proprietors of such markets, no steps are taken?

(d) Are Government aware that even when complaints are made by the public to the Market Officer or to the proprietors, no action is taken to stop such fraudulent transaction by the shops under the control of the proprietors of such markets?

(e) Do the Government propose to stop such fraudulent transaction from all such private markets? If not, why not?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Mr. Khwaja Shahabuddin): (a) and (b) It has been decided by Government to initiate provincial legislation with a view to giving effect to the Standards of Weight Act, 1939, enacted by the Central Government; and for this purpose an Expert Committee has been set up to advise Government on the manner of giving effect to the Central Act in Bengal. The Committee's report is expected very shortly and legislation will be undertaken in the light of its recommendations.

(c) and (d) I have no definite information.

(e) Covered by my reply to (a) and (b) above.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether Government will make necessary enquiries in the matter?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: Any glaring case of cheating regarding false weights might be brought to the notice of the police who will act in the matter.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether it is a cognisable offence or non-cognisable offence?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: The usual procedure will follow.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state when this expert committee was appointed?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: I have no information.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state when the report is expected or has it already been submitted?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: I have no information yet.

Appointment of Mr. Kovacs.

273. —Mr. BIRENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Commerce, Labour and Industries Department be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that a gentleman of Hungarian origin, named Kovacs, has been appointed in the Department of Industries;

(b) if so, when he has been employed there, and in what capacity;

(c) what are his previous experiences;

(d) what is his present salary and the period of service here; and

(e) whether the post now filled up by him was advertised and whether any suitable Bengali candidate was available or not?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Mr. Khwaja Shahabuddin): Mr. Kovacs has hitherto been employed in the War Supplies Section under Mr. Mitter, the Director of Industries, Bengal, who was then functioning as Agent to the Central Government in the matter of war supplies and was solely responsible to that Government in this respect. The War Supplies Section has since been taken over by the Central Government under their direct control. Both in his previous appointment under the Agent of the Central Government as well as in his present appointment Mr. Kovacs is treated as an officer of the Central Government. I do not therefore feel competent to answer the question which relates to a matter of administration for which I am not responsible.

Mr. BIRENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOWDHURY: Is it a fact that Mr. Kovacs draws salary from the Bengal Government?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: I want notice.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: What is his present salary?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: I want notice. The file is not with me.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, he asks for notice; but you will find that in paragraph (d) of the question Mr. Kovacs' salary had been asked for. So, the notice was already given when the question was given notice of.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, may I draw your attention and the attention of the honourable member that the reply clearly states that this Government accepts no responsibility for it, because it is primarily the concern of the Government of India.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Mr. Kovacs might be an officer of the Government of India, but he may draw his salary from here.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If the Government of Bengal is not responsible for this, I do not think the supplementary question is relevant.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Mr. Kovacs might be an officer of the Central Government but it may be that the Bengal Government pays his salary.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: I think the answer already given is quite clear.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I do not ask under which Government he is working; I only want to know his present salary.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: I have nothing further to add.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: The question is very specific, namely, whether he draws any salary from the Bengal Government and what is his salary.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: I think the answer is quite conclusive.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It has been said in the reply that "I do not therefore feel competent to answer the question which relates to a matter of administration for which I am not responsible". So, there cannot be any question over this.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Therefore, we ask the supplementary question as to whether he draws any salary from the Bengal Government or whether he is in any way subordinate to this Government.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If I had known that this does not concern the Bengal Government, I would not have allowed the question.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is Mr. Kovacs solely under the Central Government or is he partially under this Government?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: All these things are in the answer.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, the Parliamentary Secretary is replying to the question in the presence of the Chief Minister and if the Parliamentary Secretary is not in possession of full facts, let the Chief Minister answer this question. You should see, Sir, that we get answer to this question.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: On a point of order, Sir. In view of the answer that it is not the responsibility of the Provincial Government, I think no question can arise out of it. I submit most respectfully to you that in view of the answer given, these supplementary questions cannot arise out of this question.

Mr. PRESIDENT: As I have already said, had I known that this officer is under the Government of India and not under the Government of Bengal, I would not have admitted this question.

Complaints against the Nursing Superintendent of the Campbell Medical School and Hospital.

274. Mr. KADER BAKSH: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state—

- (a) whether Miss Timers is the Nursing Lady Superintendent in the Campbell Medical School Hospital; if so, how long she has been in that post;
- (b) whether she is under the control of the Superintendent of the Campbell Medical School Hospital;
- (c) whether she assaulted Tanthri Dai on the 10th September, 1943;
- (d) whether she was convicted by a Police Magistrate on the 15th December, 1943, under section 323 of the Indian Penal Code and fined;
- (e) if so, whether any departmental action was taken against her; if not, why not;
- (f) what are the causes that led to the strike by the nurses of the Campbell Medical School Hospital;
- (g) whether the Lady Superintendent had a hand in the matter;
- (h) whether the female nursing students were recruited in February, 1944, in the Campbell Medical School Hospital;
- (i) if so, how many were recruited;
- (j) whether any advertisement was given for such recruitment; if not, why not;
- (k) whether no recruits have been taken either from the Hindu or the Moslem community;
- (l) if so, what were the reasons for refusing to take any such nursing students from the Hindu and Moslem communities;
- (m) whether Miss Timers, the Nursing Lady Superintendent, refused to give permission to two Moslem nurses to say their Id prayer;

- (n) whether they were dismissed for going to say their prayer that day;
- (o) whether two Hindu nurses were dismissed for going to attend their festival; and
- (p) if so, whether any steps have been taken to allow Moslem and Hindu nurses to attend their congregational prayer?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): (a) Miss Timmins, and not Miss Timers, was the Nursing Superintendent of the Campbell Medical School and Hospital from 1st July, 1943, to 31st July, 1944.

(b) Yes, she was under the control of the Superintendent, Campbell Hospital, during the period of her employment.

(c) Such was the allegation of Tanthri Dai in her complaint before the court.

(d) Yes.

(e) No departmental action was taken on the conviction because the question of Motion against conviction on her representation was under examination by Legal Remembrancer. She was, however, discharged from service later on.

(f), (g), (m) and (n) A Memo. No. 4899-ARP, dated the 16th September, 1943, was sent from the Chief Medical Officer, A. R. P., in the office of the Surgeon-General, Bengal, to the Superintendent of the Campbell Hospital, to the effect that the duty roster of the A.R.P. nursing staff may be so arranged to allow them to enjoy two days' holiday to the Hindu nurses and two days' holiday to the Moslem nurses during the period of their religious festivals. It was later found that owing to the Campbell Hospital being very full of sick destitutes it would not be possible to give all the male nurses two days' holiday. Consequently, an Express Memo. No. 5152-ARP, dated the 29th September, 1943, was sent to the Superintendent as follows: "Please treat this office circular No. 4899-ARP, dated the 16th September, 1943, as cancelled. A.R.P. nurses in the Hospital, Hindus and Moslems, may kindly be allowed to enjoy a day's or half a day's holiday by rotation during the ensuing Id and Puja holidays." The male nurses were given a morning off to allow them to say their prayers but were put on duty during the afternoon. The Moslem male nurses, however, did not attend hospital for two days; some of them stayed away longer than two days. On the 5th or 6th October, it was learned that all the male nurses—Hindus and Moslems—had gone on strike on the following grounds:—

- (1) They stated that the Lady Superintendent had curtailed their holidays which had been allowed to them by the Chief Medical Officer, A. R. P.
- (2) They stated that 2 Moslem female nurses on the temporary staff of the hospital were dismissed because they had asked for two days' leave for the festival which had not been given.
- (3) The male nurses complained generally of unsympathetic treatment towards them by the Lady Superintendent.

The 2 Moslem female nurses referred to had applied for two days' leave on the 1st and 2nd October to attend the Id, but in pursuance of the order mentioned above from the Chief Medical Officer's office, they were granted only one day's leave. They nevertheless stayed away from duty for two days and, in consequence, they were dismissed by the Lady Superintendent whose order of dismissal was confirmed by the Superintendent of the Hospital.

(h), (i) and (k) No female nursing students were recruited in February, 1944. Thirty students have so far been recruited, out of which 12 were recruited in January, 1944, and the rest in April, 1944, and in the subsequent months. Fifteen, 2 and 1 recruits belong to Caste Hindus, Scheduled Castes and Muslims, respectively.

(j) For the first 12 appointments no advertisement was issued as candidates were selected by the Lady Superintendent from among girls who had applied to her directly. The Superintendent of the Hospital, however, considered that an advertisement should be issued in respect of the remaining appointments. This was done on 21st February, 1944, and the subsequent appointments were made by the Superintendent in consultation with Lady Superintendent.

(o) The 2 Hindu nurses referred to were not dismissed. One of them resigned because she had applied for leave on account of her husband's illness which it was not found possible to grant her. The second Hindu nurse resigned on the 8th August, 1943; the exact grounds of her resignation were not stated in her letter.

(p) Moslem and Hindu nurses are always allowed time to say their prayers and attend festival as far as this is possible, taking into consideration the amount of work which there is in the hospital at the time, the principle observed being that the first duty of nurses is to attend the sick and they can only be given leave when that primary duty can be satisfactorily arranged for.

276. Mr. LATAFAT HOSSAIN: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state—

- (e) if so, what are the names on that list;
- (f) if any nominated board is under the contemplation of the Government; if so, what will be the number of commissioners and what will be the basis of nomination; and
- (g) if any elected board is under contemplation; if so, when that election will be held and when the electoral roll is going to be prepared?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): (a) On the 31st March, 1945.

(b) and (d) Yes.

(c) In the hands of nominated commissioners.

(e) I regret that the names cannot now be disclosed.

(f) Yes; the number of commissioners will be 19 and they will be appointed with a view to securing proper representation of each ward and of the special interests in the municipality.

(g) Does not arise.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state why it is proposed to hand over the municipality to nominated Commissioners without holding a general election?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, the Parliamentary Secretary is finding it difficult to answer the question, and I would suggest that as he is a novice, he should be given some time for training before he is allowed to answer questions.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: What is the question, please? Will the honourable member kindly repeat?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Well, my question is this: Why is it that the Government have decided to hand over this municipality to nominated Commissioners instead of holding a general election?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: Because the election would not work well.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state whether this answer that election would not work well represents his personal view or it is the point of view of the Government on whose behalf he is replying?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Any reply that a Parliamentary Secretary gives should be taken as representing the Government's view-point unless he specifically mentions that it is his personal view.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Then, will the Hon'ble the Home Minister please state whether the policy of the present Government is not to face a general election because it does not suit them?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No.

Education of Muslims.

277. Maulvi MD. HABIBULLAH CHOWDHURY: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Education Department be pleased to state—

- (a) whether he is aware that a resolution was agreed to by this House on the 6th November, 1942, urging upon the Government of Bengal to take all possible measures for rapid spread of education of all sorts amongst the Muslim population of Bengal, and the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur M. Abdul Karim, the then Education Minister, gave definite assurances to make a minute study of the recommendations of the Momen Committee and the Madrasah Committee and bring before the Government a comprehensive scheme for the improvement of the Muslim education in Bengal;
- (b) whether the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur did actually prepare such a scheme; and
- (c) whether the Government are considering the desirability of giving effect to the resolution of this House and redeeming the assurances given by the then Education Minister?

- (ii) when the scheme will come into operation; and
- (iii) the steps hitherto taken by the Government in this regard?

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur MUAZZAMUDDIN HOSSAIN (on behalf of the Hon'ble Mr. Tamizuddin Khan): (a) Yes, the estimated cost will be about Rs. 57,00,000.

(b) (i) The amount has already been placed at the disposal of the controlling authorities for distribution.

(ii) It is in operation.

(iii) All necessary action has been taken.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please state who are the controlling authorities for the purpose of distribution of this grant?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY (on behalf of the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Jalaluddin Ahmad): (a) Yes. The mortality figure which appeared in the newspapers is highly exaggerated. Out of a total population of 4,300 in the village 262 persons died during 1943 and 67 up to June, 1944. Two hundred and twenty-seven out of the total number of deaths was due to malaria and malnutrition in 1943 and 62 in 1944. Deaths due to starvation were not separately recorded as there is no column in the Death Register for recording such deaths

25-8-1944	1,000	4,874,000

279. Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, the Hon'ble Minister for Local Self-Government is here. He can give us the pleasure of hearing him.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If he wants to get his question answered by Parliamentary Secretary, he can do so.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Will the Government please state whether they will arrange a column in the Death Register for the purpose of recording deaths due to starvation?

280. Khan Sahib Maulvi WAHIDUZZAMAN: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

(b) if he is aware that the alleged ground for the order of the said Deputy Magistrate was disturbance by a handful of persons professing to be members and supporters of the Muslim League;

- (c) if he is aware that the number of said members and supporters of the Muslim League was less than thirty;
- (d) if he is aware that over four thousand peasants had come to attend the Conference to listen to the speeches of Mr. Fazlul Huq and other prominent leaders;
- (e) if he is aware that the said supporters and members of the Muslim League attempted to cause a disturbance at the very commencement of the meeting and were driven by the audience out of the meeting ground;
- (f) if he is aware that no order for the dispersal of the meeting was made by the Deputy Magistrate, when the said supporters and members of the League were driven out;
- (g) if he is aware that after being driven out of the meeting, the said members and supporters of the League soon after returned to the meeting with reinforcement headed by one Abdus Salam Khan, Secretary of the District Muslim League, with shouts and slogans intended to disturb and disrupt the meeting;
- (h) why the said Abdus Salam Khan and his followers were allowed by the police to come back to the meeting shouting such slogans and threatening to break the meeting;
- (i) if he is aware that the said Abdus Salam Khan and his followers were again driven out of the meeting by the members of the audience;
- (j) if he is aware that on being driven out a second time, the said members and supporters of the Muslim League resorted to the throwing of brickbats and other missiles;
- (k) if he is aware that these missiles were thrown from the road adjoining the meeting ground in spite of the presence of a large number of police; and
- (l) what are the reasons for the failure of the police to apprehend or drive away the miscreants who were throwing brickbats and other missiles?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (a) No ban was placed on the meeting. The Deputy Magistrate was compelled to disperse it after some time owing to uncontrollable rowdiness.

(b) to (l) As criminal cases have now been instituted by both sides, these questions are sub-judice and I can give no information with regard to them.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether these cases have not now been withdrawn?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As far as I am aware, no.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I am coming from that place and I am under the impression that they are still there.

Damodar river.

281. Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Communications and Works Department be pleased to state—

- (b) if it is a fact that during the winter season a small country boat or a donga can hardly make its way through it when the tide is low and that steamers used to ply during all seasons of the year only forty or fifty years ago;
- (c) if it is a fact that due to the shrinkage of this natural drainage of the locality the feeder canals and khals have also considerably dried up bringing the incidents of malaria, kala-azar and cholera this year to an alarming limit;
- (d) if the Government propose to re-excavate the canal in question on the lines, suggested in part (a); and
- (e) if not, why not?

Minister in charge of the COMMUNICATIONS and WORKS DEPARTMENT (the Hon'ble Mr. Barada Prosanna Pain): Information has been called for and the reply will be given as soon as it is received.

Short-notice questions.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, there are two short-notice questions, one by Mr. Haridas Majumdar and the other by Rai Sahib Jogendra Nath Ray. Both are practically the same; only in case of Mr. Majumdar's question there are some additional points. So, the answers would be the same. With your permission, Sir, I am reading out the question and answer.

Report of Enquiry Committee about Howrah Municipality.

282. Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if it is a fact that the officers of the committee for enquiry into the Howrah Municipal affairs with particular reference to the conduct of its Chairman Mr. Pain who happens to be a member of the Bengal Cabinet have submitted their report to the Government of Bengal;
- (b) if so, when;
- (c) if it is a fact that the Enquiry Committee have found that almost all the charges are substantially correct;
- (d) if not, what are the findings of the committee; and
- (e) if the reply to part (c) is in the affirmative, what steps, if any, the Government are taking to deal with the affairs of the said Municipality and with Mr. Pain as a member of the Bengal Cabinet?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN:

- (a) Yes.
- (b) 16th September, 1944.
- (c) No.
- (d) I would refer the honourable member to the report which will be published in the course of the week.
- (e) Does not arise.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: Is there anything in the report so far as the municipal administration itself is concerned?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: This enquiry relates only to Mr. Pain.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: It does not deal with the administration side at all?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No, but the honourable member may know the full details when the report is published.

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: In the question (e) there is a reference to Mr. Pain—

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I still maintain that it does not arise.

Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: Arising out of that part of the question where the Hon'ble Minister has said that all the charges have not been found against him.....

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I would ask the honourable member to wait and see the report when it is published. At present all I can say is that he would be sadly disappointed.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state when this report will be published?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Within a week, I hope.

Mr. HARIDAS MAJUMDAR: In the course of the debate regarding this subject the Hon'ble the Chief Minister promised that before the House is prorogued the report will be placed on the table of this House. Are we going to get that report before the House is prorogued?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I do not remember having said that the report of the committee will be placed on the table.

Mr. PRESIDENT: In any case that question does not arise.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I find that there are some other questions the answers of which have been received; but there was no time for printing them or to cyclostyle them. So will the Hon'ble Minister kindly read out the questions and answers. One question concerns the Home Department and another concerns the Commerce and Labour Department.

283. Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Home Department be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that both Mr. Kiran Sankar Roy, Leader of the Congress Parliamentary Party, and Mr.—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, was it a short-notice question?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order, Mr. Das, you must allow the Hon'ble Minister to proceed.

(a) whether it is a fact that both Mr. Kiran Sankar Roy, Leader of the Congress Parliamentary Party, and Mr. Santosh Kumar Bose, ex-Minister and the Leader of the Bengal Congress Parliamentary Party, are being prosecuted under Defence of India Rules in the Presidency Magistrate's Court for alleged using of uncovered lights in public meetings, held under their respective presidencies in June last;

(b) in what connection were those public meetings held; and

(c) if the Government will consider the desirability of withdrawing those prosecutions hearing of which is fixed for the 26th August, 1944?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: (a) Yes, they were prosecuted.

(b) To protest against the Secondary Education Bill.

(c) The cases ended in acquittal.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: May I enquire whether it is a fact that it was a short-notice question?

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not exactly remember whether it was a short-notice question or not.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: The office can at once say whether it was admitted as a short-notice question.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not remember it, Mr. Das. There were so many short-notice questions; but whether this particular question was admitted as a short-notice question, I cannot answer off-hand.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: They can at once say whether it is a short-notice question or not.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That information is not immediately available. If you will kindly write to the Secretary, you will know.

There is another question which is to be answered by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Department of Labour, Commerce and Industries. Who is going to answer that?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: I will do so, Sir. The question and answer are as follows:—

284. (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Commerce, Labour and Industries Department be pleased to state why the judgment delivered on or about the 14th September, 1944, by Mr. R. Gupta, Chief Presidency Magistrate, adjudicator, appointed in the dispute between the Calcutta Tramways Company, Limited, and the Tramway Workers' Association has not yet been published or otherwise communicated to the Tramway Workers' Association as yet?

(b) When will the same be published and communicated to the said Association and will the same be placed on the table of the Council Chamber?

(c) What are the contents of the said order?

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY, Parliamentary Secretary (on behalf of the Hon'ble Minister for Labour, Commerce and Industries Departments):

(a) The decision has been published.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) A copy of the order made is laid on the Table for information.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Questions over.

Statement on Sandwip Durga Puja Affair.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: May I now make my statement on the Sandwip Durga Puja affair? This matter arises out of a short-notice question—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Or in response to a promise to make a statement on an adjournment motion that stood in my name which was postponed by the Deputy President.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, in this case the Sarbojonin Durga Puja at Kalibari at Sandwip was stopped under section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code and the reasons for stopping it were that in the previous year there was some trouble over a Durga Puja procession. The District Magistrate visited the place afterwards and modified the previous decision of the then District Magistrate of Noakhali, Mr. Hamid Ali, passed sometime in 1940. Mr. Bastin, District Magistrate, last year gave certain orders in connection with the observance of the puja and the way, that is, the route the procession would take, and in pursuance of that the Deputy Magistrate maintained the position according to the orders of the District Magistrate and tried his utmost to bring about a compromise between the Hindus and Muslims. But as he found that no compromise was possible and as there was likely to be a breach of the peace so he had no option but to issue the order of injunction. In this connection there are certain facts which I would like to state, as certain statements have appeared in the papers which I am afraid are not correct. It is not correct that the worship of goddess Durga at Kalibari, has been taking place from time immemorial. It is not so; in actual fact it has been taking place only since last year when the communal trouble began. Secondly, it is not a fact as alleged that the order was promulgated after the Bodhana Puja. In fact at the time when the order was promulgated the image had not been painted and no puja had taken place. That is all. I may tell the House once more as I have told the House many times about the policy of Government in this matter. The policy of Government is that they are trying to observe. Sir, the local officers are expected to carry out the policy that was initiated by Government in 1926. If there is any dispute or dissatisfaction with the decision of the local officers, then they have got to appeal to the District Magistrate and if it is an appealable case, they can go to the Commissioner and again if they are dissatisfied with the decision of the Commissioner, they can approach the Local Government who is the final authority. Government would not intervene until the parties have exhausted the right of appeal before the local authority. In this connection the Commissioner has undertaken to go there in November and thus we can bring about a settlement. He could not go earlier because he has undertaken a very extensive tour in the Chittagong district. As soon as his tour is over, he will visit Sandwip during the month of November and try to settle the dispute or at least give both parties a hearing.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, with reference to that I saw the Hon'ble Chief Minister with relevant papers and in response to his wishes the gentleman who was in charge of this puja affair appealed to the District Magistrate. I have received a telegram in which it is stated that the order has not yet been withdrawn. Now as regards the point that the Bodhan Puja was not completed, I cannot agree with the Hon'ble Chief Minister because the gentleman—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. You cannot make a counter statement in reply to the Hon'ble Chief Minister.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I am putting that question to him. The facts must be placed before him.

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is never the practice to allow any counter statement in reply to a statement made by a Minister. If any point is not clear from the statement which has been made, you can certainly ask one or two questions to have it cleared.

Mr. BIREN ROY: Is the Hon'ble Minister aware that the Bodhan Puja begins 7 days before the actual puja ceremonies? Is he aware that even when the image is not painted, the puja ceremony may continue?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I am making a statement on the authority of the District Magistrate who happens to be a Caste Hindu gentleman.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble Minister please give us the exact time when the notice under section 144 was served on the 23rd of September?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Is the Chief Minister in a position to answer this question?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No, Sir.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble the Chief Minister be pleased to send one of the Hindu Ministers to the place to enquire into the affairs, as it is a very important question from the religious point of view of the Hindus? One of the Caste Hindu Ministers may be sent to enquire whether the Bodhan ceremony had been completed and if completed they may be allowed to complete the whole puja ceremony. He admits that in previous years there were pujas. I hope Government would take this step to satisfy the Hindu public.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: As far as this is concerned, I would like to stick to the old practice of approaching the local officers first and lastly the Commissioner before Government can intervene. The Commissioner is going there shortly and if after his visit the matter remains unsettled, certainly one of my colleagues would go there.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Who is the present Commissioner?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Mr. Carter.

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMED: Who is the District Magistrate? Is he a Caste Hindu?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Mr. Sen, a caste Hindu.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Will the Hon'ble the Chief Minister consider the desirability of allowing the Hindu public at Sandwip to complete the puja if it had not already been finished?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I have got the report of the Deputy Magistrate there and I have no reason to disbelieve his statement. Therefore, this question does not arise.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Does the Hon'ble Minister consider that the Hindu public at Sandwip will be deprived for ever of their right to perform the Taraga Puja, owing to the communal feeling there?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I may inform the honourable members here that many Durga processions have been taken out there in the past; but this is a new innovation altogether.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I have a very important matter to mention—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order.

Council representation on Joint Library Committee.

Under rule 2 of the Rules regarding the control and management of the Library of the Bengal Legislature, I nominate—

- (1) Khan Bahadur Abdul Hamid Chowdhury,
- (2) Mr. W. B. G. Laidlaw,
- (3) Mr. K. S. Ray, to represent the Bengal Legislative Council who with three members of the Bengal Legislative Assembly and one representative of the Legislative Department will form the Joint Library Committee.

Action taken by Government on Motion under rule 112.

Secretary will now read a communication from the Deputy Secretary to His Excellency the Governor regarding the summoning of the Bengal Legislative Assembly.

SECRETARY (Dr. S. K. D. Gupta): Sir, the following communication has been received from the Deputy Secretary to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal with reference to a motion which was moved in and adopted by the Council on the 6th October, 1944, under rule 112 of the Bengal Legislative Council Procedure Rules:

GOVERNOR'S CAMP, BENGAL, DARJEELING,

Dated the 21st October, 1944.

FROM

H. P. GOODWYN, Esq., I.C.S.,

Deputy Secretary to His Excellency the Governor of Bengal,

TO

THE SECRETARY, BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

SIR,

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of the Hon'ble President's letter No. 1493 L.C., dated the 10th October, 1944, and to say that His Excellency the Governor has summoned the Bengal Legislative Assembly to meet at 4 p.m. on Monday, the 20th November, 1944, in the Legislative Chamber, Calcutta.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

(Sd.) H. P. GOODWYN,

Deputy Secretary to the Governor.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I have a very important matter—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. The adjournment motion must be taken up first. I am not going to encourage the practice of allowing members to mention anything and everything on the floor of the House. If any honourable member has got anything important to mention, he might meet me in my Chamber and if I consider the matter to be important, I would allow that to be mentioned in the House.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: But, Sir,—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I am sorry, I cannot allow you to go on in this way. Yes, Mr. Mukherjee.

Adjournment motion regarding abrogation of the powers of the Berhampore Municipality.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I have got an adjournment motion regarding the Berhampore Municipality. On the last occasion when I mentioned this adjournment motion, the Deputy President said that as he had no time to look into my motion—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. There is some difference between the motion that was disallowed by me before the Puja Recess and this motion, because that was much wider than this one. One point which

I would like to mention in this connection is that my notice was drawn to the fact that the statement that was made by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of Civil Supplies was not correct regarding the actual orders passed by the District Magistrate of Berhampur. In fact, the Chair was misled on that point. So I would like to have a have a copy of the actual order—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I have got a copy of that order sent to me by the Chairman of the Municipality.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Will you please read it then?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Yes, Sir. I am reading it.

The order of the District Magistrate of Murshidabad which was passed under the Detence of India Rules ran as follows:—"No Chairman, Commissioner or Commissioners will seize any stock of rice, wheat, wheat products, gram, dal or any other foodgram or essential commodity stored, sold or otherwise disposed of by or under orders of the District Magistrate or any of the Subdivisional Officers, Assistant Director of Civil Supplies or any of the subdivisional supply officers. This order, however, prohibit seizure of unsound and unwholesome food which may be lying at retail shops or with private wholesalers or any be offered for sale direct to consumers in bazars or in the black-markets within the municipal area. The Chairman of any municipality in which any such stock as mentioned above has been seized up-to-date will, within 24 hours of service of this order, deliver the same to the Assistant Director of Civil Supplies or his nominee for disposal according to my orders; and the Chairman, Commissioner or any officer of the municipality will not interfere in the future disposal of such released stock except with respect to such unsound and unwholesome parts as are kept for sale direct to consumers living within the municipal area. In the absence of any specific and clear direction by a Magistrate in exercise of powers conferred under chapter XIX of the Bengal Municipal Act, no seized stock can be deemed to be a property of the Commissioners and therefore no question of any payment to a municipality for making over stocks in compliance with this order can arise."

Now as I pointed out the other day, this order is directly in contravention of the various sections of the Bengal Municipal Act, and therefore I say that the adjournment motion should be allowed to be moved. It is a matter of very urgent public importance. There are other municipalities where similar things are happening. Therefore, I submit, Sir, that food-stuffs that are in the hands of Government should be liable to be seized by municipalities.

Mr. PRESIDENT: May I have the views of the Government on the matter?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I am afraid, I am not prepared for this question.

Mr. PRESIDENT: There was some misunderstanding. Mr. Suhrawardy definitely gave me to understand that the order of the District Magistrate only referred to the Municipality of Berhampur and it only referred to that particular quantity of atta in the hands of Government. That was what he said, and Mr. Moholanabish's motion was much wider than that. So, on the authority of the statement made by the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies, I did not give my consent to Mr. Moholanabish's motion. But the full-text of the order read out just now is something different from what I was given to understand by the Hon'ble Minister. May I have the views of the Hon'ble the Chief Minister?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Mr. Suhrawardy is not here and I am afraid, I am not in a position to say anything.

Mr. PRESIDENT: In that case, I am inclined to give my consent to this motion being moved. Is there any objection?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Yes, Sir, I object.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Then, will honourable members who are in favour of leave being granted kindly rise in their places?

As more than 13 honourable members have risen in their places, leave is granted to the moving of the motion. It will be taken up tomorrow in due time. Now, I will take up the Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Have you fixed any time for this motion, Sir? At what hour will it be taken up?

Mr. PRESIDENT: After the question hour, as usual.

The Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House will now proceed with the Third Reading of the Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Mr. BIRENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOWDHURY: Mr. President, Sir, I am rising to make a few observations on the Bill which I know are rather futile at the present stage but without which I am unwilling to see this measure go out of the House.

The present Bill, Sir, was introduced at the instance of the Government of India but had, really speaking, no support of the public opinion of this Province. In fact, Sir, it was the deliberate point of view of a large section of the people of Bengal that, pending the final decision of the future of Permanent Settlement, such a measure was not only uncalled for but was definitely inequitable and unjust. Besides, in the face of the peculiarly abnormal economic condition of Bengal, this taxation Bill was singularly incongruous. Even at this late stage I think it necessary, Sir, to repeat my protest against the introduction and passing of this Bill.

In course of the discussion of the measure we pointed out on more than one occasion that if this tax was to be levied in spite of our opposition, its proceeds should be devoted specifically and exclusively to the improvement of agriculture which was really in a disorganised state in Bengal. The Flood Commission on whose recommendation this taxation measure is based was strongly of opinion that the tax "should be applied solely for the improvement of agriculture, or for projects connected with agricultural improvement". The two distinguished members of the Commission who wrote a Note of Dissent in the Report were also of the view that if the tax was levied in spite of their opposition, "it should be earmarked as provincial revenue to be distributed in proportion to the agricultural needs of the different districts". The Hon'ble Finance Minister tried to circumvent the recommendation of the Commission in his speech at the present stage by pointing out that conditions in this Province have changed since the Commission submitted its report. He tried to show that much more was being spent on agriculture now than formerly. But, Sir, this assertion on his part does not undermine the virtue of the recommendation of the Commission. By reserving the proceeds of the present tax for agricultural development, the Government will not be spending more than is necessary in this regard. While this tax will be devoted to agriculture money from other sources might be released for other purposes. But, Sir, I should emphasise it that in spite of what Hon'ble Finance Minister has told us actually not much is being done for agricultural development in Bengal. There is in fact a clear case for earmarking this tax to this end.

With these few words, Sir, I oppose the passing of the measure by this House.

Rai Sahib JOGENDRA NATH RAY: Mr. President, Sir, while I rise to speak I should say at the outset that where the Government is bent upon passing the Bill by the force of sheer majority. I think it unnecessary to dilate upon very many points of the Bill which required much careful thoughts and considerations of the Government and the Opposition alike in a give and take spirit. I shall make certain observations only.

It is perhaps unprecedented in the history of Provincial Legislature in India where history has been created over what is described as the slip of tongue on the part of the Chair. The matter was dragged to the Courts of Justice. I do not like to say anything about the legality or otherwise of such a procedure but to my mind it is certainly unbecoming to the dignity of a House of Legislature as also both to the Government and the Opposition. It is most unfortunate and extremely undesirable.

From the beginning when the Bill came up to this House, Government was adamant and the Minister concerned declared that the Bill will be carried through the House without any amendment, however trifling—of course in Government's opinion. This attitude of the Government to pass the Bill in toto was sufficient affront to the Opposition who brought as many as about 400 amendments—many of which were too important to be lightly discarded. But the Government was appearing obdurate and could not therefore be compelled to be reasonable. That the much vaunted artificial majority of the Government backed by the European Group is at the basis of such an uncompromising attitude of the Government is crystal clear and so it is all the more deplorable.

Coming to speak of the time taken for the discussion of this Bill, we find that about 7 months passed in this House but really speaking there was no progress with the Bill—it is as it was in April last—in form, language and spirit. But the Opposition did its best to persuade the Government to accept certain much needed amendments and it may be said that virtually all the discussions on the Bill came from the Opposition and the Government adopted an attitude of aggressive non-violence against amendments as such. But had the Government co-operated in entertaining certain extremely necessary amendments of the Opposition, I think the trembling stability of the Government would not have shaken as dangerously as to cause apprehension of an immediate collapse. Then the Bill after the amendments could have passed the lower house and made ready for His Excellency the Governor's signature. I do not know how the Government has the right to kill the precious time of the House unnecessarily as it did in regard to this Bill.

It is admitted that the drafting of the Bill was not up to the mark and there were many mistakes of omission and commission when the Bill came to this House and unfortunately not a dot or a dash was amended. This will have the effect of ultimately creating many difficulties in the administration of the Act and lead to the delegation of such authority to the executive which executive independence will go a long way in unnecessarily tormenting and harassing the victims of this Bill.

Before I take my seat I should mention that though there was no express provision in the Bill to earmark a portion of it for agricultural development, the Government should make it a point to spend a substantial portion of it for purposes of agricultural rehabilitation of the province in the shape of better irrigation, manures, implements, marketing, rural credit facilities, education, etc.

It will be admitted by all that the time is not opportune for the imposition of a tax like agricultural income-tax upon the people who are somehow scaring the wolf out of their doors, but taxation, if there should be one, it must be of such a nature that it should not disturb and dislocate the whole economic fabric of this province which is at the present time almost on the point of breaking down due to war and resulting famine. Rural Bengal requires time and money to settle down and the Government, should utilise the proceeds of the agricultural income-tax for the purpose of restoring the economic balance of the country.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I did not intend to speak on the motion for the Third Reading of the Bill. But I find that there is a good deal of commotion among the members of this House and among the public outside as to how we could proceed with the Bill when irregularities and illegalities which were pointed out in the course of the Second Reading stage of the Bill. As a matter of fact, with regard to clause 65, the Opposition wanted to point out some misconceptions and also illegalities but that was not allowed to be pointed out on the floor of this House and therefore it is necessary to bring to the notice of the honourable members of this House through you, Sir, and also to the notice of His Excellency the Governor before he gives his assent to the Bill the procedure that we have followed in this House in considering the Agricultural Income-tax Bill.

Now, Sir, if we look to the provisions of the Bill from the beginning, we will find that there are serious discrepancies and illegalities which could have been rectified if Government had accepted some of the amendments which they admitted to be necessary. But the Hon'ble the Finance Minister was not in a mood to accept any amendment so far as the present Bill is concerned, whether there was mistake of any kind, whether there was irregularity of any kind in the clauses of the Bill. The first thing that strikes one when one looks to the provisions of the Bill is the provision regarding the assessment of the agricultural income of the Ruler of an Indian State. The point was raised by you, Sir, before the consideration commenced and was discussed and we were proceeding with the Bill on the assumption that the Bengal Legislature is entitled to tax the Ruler of an Indian State. I expressed my misgivings repeatedly in the course of my speeches on various provisions of the Bill; but now I would only like to point out the difficulties that the Hon'ble the Finance Minister might meet with in enforcing the tax against the Ruler of an Indian State. Now, so far as that matter is concerned, the Ruler of an Indian State has been first mentioned in sub-clause (9) of clause 2 of the Bill. There, the Ruler of an Indian State has been included among the persons liable to be taxed. What we wanted was that the Ruler of an Indian State should be separately defined. Now, I may point out that under section 86 of the Civil Procedure Code there is a method prescribed by which the Ruler of an Indian State can be sued or can be tried in any competent court, and here I would have liked to include the court of an agricultural income-tax officer in it. This provision is also supported by the Government of India Act. Section 86 runs as follows:—

“86. Any such Prince or Chief, and any ambassador or envoy of a foreign State, may, with the consent of the Crown Representative, certified by the signature of the Political Secretary, and in any other case with the consent of the Central Government, certified by the signature of a Secretary to that Government, but not without such consent, be sued in any competent court.”

It is necessary that the Hon'ble the Finance Minister should take note of this section before he proceeds to deal with the Ruler of an Indian State under the provisions of the Act which is now going to be passed by this House. Although the Hon'ble the Finance Minister opposed all amendments which were tabled on this subject, there is yet time; and if the Hon'ble the Finance Minister considers these objections carefully, he will be able under the rule-making powers to find out a way which may successfully operate in compelling the Ruler of an Indian State to be taxed. I do not think that would be sufficient but still proceedings may be taken against the Ruler of an Indian State as far as possible in consonance with the procedure prescribed in the Civil Procedure Code and the Government of India Act. This is the first thing that I mention with regard to the question about the Ruler of an Indian State. The next thing that I want to point out to the Hon'ble the Finance Minister is the incongruity which is to be found in the definition of Agricultural Income-tax Officer in clause 2 (2). Under sub-clause (2) "Agricultural Income-tax Officer" means a person appointed to be an Agricultural Income-tax Officer under section 21. Now, if we look to clause 21 of the Bill, we would find that there is no officer designated as "Agricultural Income-tax Officer". This is one of the repugnancies which was pointed out in course of the debate, and we wanted to remove the repugnancy between the two sections. The only course which the Hon'ble the Finance Minister and the Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax who has already been appointed and who is now sitting behind the Hon'ble the Finance Minister—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, it is never the practice to refer to persons in the gallery.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I am very sorry. But whoever he may be, he should take note of the fact that in section 21 there is no mention of "Agricultural Income-tax Officer" although in the definition clause "Agricultural Income-tax Officer" has been mentioned. Now, in section 21, we find three classes of Agricultural Income-tax Officers, viz., (a) the Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax, Bengal; (b) the Assistant Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax, Bengal; (c) Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officers. So far as the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officers are concerned, they have not been defined. Therefore, we are to proceed with the Bill and with the realisation of the taxes with the help of the two officers mentioned in clauses (a) and (b), because clause 21 (a) and (b) has no reference to the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officer or the Agricultural Income-tax Officer. I would submit, Sir, that we have seen advertisements in the papers inviting application for the appointment of Agricultural Income-tax Officers. Possibly, after appointing a huge staff as Agricultural Income-tax Officers for Bengal, they will find out that these officers have nothing to perform as the Agricultural Income-tax Officers. Therefore, they could not appoint any officer under the designation of either Agricultural Income-tax Officer or the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officer. You can avoid the repugnancy only if the clause is amended by an amending Act which I hope will come soon. The next thing that I pointed out was with regard to the definition of the Hindu undivided family governed by the mitakshara law. There again, you will find that the clause has been left indeterminate and an undivided Hindu family governed by the Dayabhaga school of Hindu law has not been included there simply because the Finance Minister thinks that under the Bengal School of Hindu law the share of each co-parcener in a joint family is divided and therefore he wants to assess individual members of a joint family without giving them the benefits which members of undivided mitakshara families are going to get under the provisions of the Act. Unless the members of an undivided Hindu mitakshara family, the moment this Bill is passed, declare themselves to be no longer members of an undivided family, possibly the administration of the Act with regard to members of undivided Hindu families will lead to several difficulties.

Then Sir, I would like to refer to Chapter I of the Bill. The first is the preliminary chapter. Here I have pointed out several instances which should be taken particular note of before acting under this Act and attempt is made to realise the tax from persons noticed therein. In Chapter I of the Bill, we have got "charge of agricultural income-tax". There again, in clause 3 you will find that "agricultural income-tax shall be charged for each financial year in accordance with and subject to the provisions of this Act at the rate or rates specified in the Schedule in respect of the total agricultural income of the previous year of every individual", etc. Now, Sir, we all know that this Act will have retrospective effect; that is to say that it will come into operation from the 1st April, 1944. Therefore, the income which the Agricultural Income-tax Officer will have to determine is the income of the last year, or the year which ended on the 31st March, 1944. I have already stated that the last year was a famine year and the prices of produces were exceedingly high, when rice used to sell at one place at Rs. 120 and at some other places at Rs. 60, 70 and 80 per maund. But what he will do is perhaps that he will calculate the entire produce of the cultivators and calculate the prices at the rates of the last year. This will certainly amount to a figure which would be much above the Rs. 3,500 which is the prescribed minimum. Suppose, a family had 100 maunds of rice. The price in some places would be Rs. 6,000 and in some places Rs. 1,000 which would hardly suffice to meet the costs of cultivation and also the maintenance cost of the family for that year and also for the next year. As a matter of fact, it will no doubt be conceded that most of these people had to incur huge debts for the purpose of maintaining themselves and I hope the Hon'ble Finance Minister will support me in this part of my statement. The Hon'ble Minister may not be a cultivator; he may be a rich landlord but still he may consider the case of his tenants who are large cultivators holding lands more than 100 bighas and whose yield was more than 100 maunds during the last year as to whether it will be fair to calculate on the basis of the income for the year ending on 31st March, 1944, for the purpose of assessing the income for this year. Large amount of arrears have also been paid up in some of the districts and if the Agricultural Income-Tax Officers are to assess the income of the landlord on the basis of the collection of last year, then the plight of the assessee would be very much miserable and it would be very difficult for them to meet the taxes. Therefore, I submit, Sir, that under his rule-making power the Finance Minister may consider how this difficulty might be removed in the matter of assessing for the first year, the 1st of April, 1944, to 31st of March, 1945. It is clear that many cultivators were not aware that this agricultural income-tax will be placed on the anvil of the House. Majority of them have not got proper accounts of their collection and disbursement. If they are to be penalised by reason of the other sections of the Act for their failure to produce their collection books, it would inflict a great hardship on the middle class population of Bengal. I request the Finance Minister to keep this aspect of the matter particularly in view when he gives instructions for the purpose of assessing agricultural income-tax for the first year.

Sir, in Chapter I there is another section which is important, I refer to clause 4 of that chapter. Here provision is made for exempting incomes which are spent for charitable purposes. Let me read clause 4—"any agricultural income derived from property held under trust or other legal obligation wholly for religious or charitable purposes, and in the case of property so held in part only for such purposes or in the case of Muslim trusts commonly known as Wakf-al-aulads, the income applied thereto". In this connection, I must not omit to mention that there is another clause under which no relief from taxation can be claimed unless there is a document creating religious endowment. The Opposition wanted to move amendments with reference to this clause. We know there are no documents in many cases and there are many families who have got to pay expenses in connection with religious ceremonies as compulsory payment. They consider these payments as compulsory for the purpose of religious and charitable institutions and if these incomes are not given deduction, possibly these charitable and religious institutions will die out. The officers assessing income under the Agricultural Income-tax Act should be told that where they find payment of a compulsory nature from the income of the person, they ought to be given relief under the provisions of clause 4. I may remind the Hon'ble the Finance Minister that so far as this part of the case is concerned, under the Hindu law a Hindu is not compelled to execute a deed of dedication for the purpose of religious endowment in respect of his properties. It is not essential and this has been held by the highest judicial tribunal. It is only sankalpa (intention) that is sufficient. He is only to say that his properties are only for meeting the expenses connected with religious ceremonies of the deity he has established. Therefore, even though there is no amendment to clear up the provision in the clause itself, yet it can be done by the Government under the rule-making power so that charitable institutions started by Hindus and Muhammadans may be given allowances even though there may not be any document for the purpose.

As regards Chapter 2, where computation of agricultural income-tax has been dealt with.....Sir, I do not find the Hon'ble the Finance Minister in the House. I do not know whether he has left the Chamber for good or he is again coming back. So far as the Parliamentary Secretary is concerned, I do not think he is competent enough to take notes of the speeches made here for the Hon'ble Minister. I think he has got to pass the period of probation before he is quite competent to take note of these things—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Mukherjee, I think that is a personal reflection.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: It is not a personal reflection, Sir—

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: What I said is this. He ought to be under a period of training to make himself competent for the post he has managed to secure. I can give you one instance. I can tell you, Sir, that even Sir Rash Behary Ghose, under whom I worked as a junior, after 50 years of practice, said that he had yet many things to learn and did not even hesitate to take suggestions from me. Therefore, it is not a disparagement to say that Mr. K. C. Roy Chowdhury should pass a period of probation.

Mr. PRESIDENT: If you do not mean anything, that is all right.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: I am not a novice here. I have been in the Council from 1921.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: However, Sir, as I was saying, in Chapter 2 in clause 6 (7) provision has been made for allowing 15 per cent. of the expenses incurred and in cases where audited accounts and certified accounts are kept allowances may be allowed up to 20 per cent. With regard to this matter, I would like to tell the Hon'ble Minister that there are a number of estates which are managed by the Court of Wards, a department of the Government of Bengal, and if the officers of the Court of Wards do not allow more than 20 per cent. of the expenses, the poor landlords will be deprived of the allowances which are provided under the Act itself. They will be compelled to pay taxes on income which he has to spend for collecting the income, and there is no question here of an audited or certificated accounts because so far as the Court of Wards are concerned, accounts are all audited and certificated. Therefore, I submit that the Hon'ble the Finance Minister may make a note that in assessing landlords whose estates are under the charge of Court of Wards and in assessing the landlords who have got audited and certificated accounts their expenditure should be liberally allowed by the Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax.

Now I leave Chapter 2 on which there are many other points which could have been stated but as this is practically the principal one which can be rectified by the rule-making power. I refer to this only and not to any other matter in this connection. Now, I pass over to clause 8 which is the most controversial clause and which was discussed in this House. Clause 8 deals with computation of tax on mixed incomes. Now, so far as clause 8 is concerned, I would refer to it only for the purpose of showing that a provision is made there for computation of tax on mixed incomes on certain fixed principles and in this clause itself it is provided that in determining the income-tax to be charged on certain class of assesses the return which the assessee furnished to the authorities under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, ought to be deemed as conclusive. Sub-clause (3) of clause 8 says: "For the purpose of the assessment of agricultural income-tax under this section or any rule made thereunder a certified copy of an order of an assessment under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, or a certified copy of an order of any appellate or revising authority or of the High Court or of His Majesty in Council altering or amending such order of assessment under the provisions of that Act shall be conclusive evidence of the contents of such order."

Now, Sir, if we look to clause 25 we find that there is a repugnant clause, and I only refer to this for the information of the Hon'ble the Finance Minister so that he may try to reconcile the two repugnancies by the rule-making power which he still possesses. I would like to indicate the manner in which it can be reconciled. Under sub-clause (3) of clause 8 the provision is that "for the purpose of the assessment of agricultural income-tax under this section or any rule made thereunder a certified copy of an order of an assessment under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, or a certified copy of an order of any appellate or revising authority or of the High Court or of His Majesty in Council altering or amending such order of assessment under the provisions of that Act shall be conclusive evidence of the contents of such order". But in clause 25 the provision is that "if the Agricultural Income-tax Officer is satisfied without requiring the presence of the assessee or the production by him of any evidence that a return made under section 24 is correct and complete, he shall assess the total agricultural income of the assessee, and shall determine the sum payable by him on the basis of such return." I think the particular clause which deals with the matter I am referring to is sub-clause (4). Sub-clause (1) deals with assessment and sub-clause (2) deals with the assessment of persons who did not submit their accounts in consonance with the notice served upon them by the agricultural income-tax officer. Then we come to sub-clause (4). There it is stated that "the powers conferred by sub-sections (2) and (3) shall not except with the permission of the Commissioner be exercised by the Agricultural income-tax Officer in the case of agricultural income which is assessed under the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 8 and regarding which an assessee has submitted together with his return under section 24 a certified copy of an assessment order under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922".

The only way in which the repugnancy of sub-clause (3) of clause 8 and sub-clause (4) of clause 25 can be removed is by giving a direction to the Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax to acknowledge or accept the assessment made under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922; otherwise, there is no way out of it. As a matter of fact, I may point out that I wanted to move an amendment in order that clause 25 might be kept intact and the provisions in clause 8 (3) making the return under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, inconclusive, so that clause 25 (4) might be kept in full force and the Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Officer might have a handle to see whether the Indian Income-tax Officers have dealt with the income correctly. This power has been taken away from the Commissioner of Agricultural Income-tax, by clause 8 (3) and it is then again re-incorporated in clause 25 (4). This repugnancy has to be removed; otherwise possibly it will lead to litigation and the amount of tax which will be collected from the persons who are assessed will be spent up in litigation, as we all know how Government incur expenses in litigation in these matters. Therefore, I submit that so far as these two clauses are concerned, an attempt should be made to reconcile the repugnancy. Then, there is one other matter with regard to Chapter III. In Chapter III there is a very great hardship placed on the trustees and guardians and agents and any person who is under a liability to handle trust property or the property of minors kept under their guardianship. With regard to these matters, we find that the provision is this: any agricultural income-tax payable under this Act on such income shall be levied upon and recoverable from such guardian, trustee, agent, receiver or administrator in like manner and to the same extent as would be leviable upon and recoverable from any such person if in direct ceipt of such agricultural income and such guardian, trustee, agent, etc., shall be deemed to be the assessee in respect of the agricultural income-tax payable by such minor, etc., etc. If a trustee of a property also himself possesses agricultural properties with an income of Rs. 5,000, the same as that of the trust property then he will be assessed under clause 13 of the Bill on the basis of an income of Rs. 10,000. But his real income is only Rs. 5,000 and the other Rs. 5,000 goes to the beneficiary over which he has absolutely no power or control. The Act, of course, provides that the extra tax which the trustee has thus to pay, he is entitled to deduct from the trust and the other beneficiaries whose properties are in his charge. Here you are not only putting a pressure upon the trustee to pay a higher rate of tax but you are charging persons who are not liable to tax because they have had the misfortune of placing their properties in the hands of trustees for the purpose of administering the trust which they have created for the benefit of themselves and may be for some charitable objects. Therefore, I submit that so far as this clause is concerned, the Hon'ble Minister will be pleased to note—

Mr. PRESIDENT: You have already spoken for half an hour.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: If I am repeating, you will stop me but so long as I am not doing so—

Khan Sahib FARIDUDDIN AHMAD: I move that the question be now put. There has been enough of discussion over this question.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that the question be now put.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I have not yet finished.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But I have accepted the closure motion.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: But, Sir, this is very unfair. I am still on my legs and I have not yet finished. You have gagged discussion and we protest against the attitude of the President. We shall retire after this and shall take no part in the discussion of this Bill.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, this is very unfair, as many of us had intended to speak.

(The question that the question be now put was then agreed to.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: that the Bengal Agricultural Income-Tax Bill, 1944, as settled in the Council, be passed.

(The motion was agreed to.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: The House stands adjourned till 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Adjournment.

The Council then adjourned till 2 p.m. on Wednesday, the 25th October, 1944.

BENGAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL DEBATES

First Session, 1944, No. 90.

THE COUNCIL met in the Legislative Chamber of the Legislative Building, Calcutta, on Wednesday, the 25th October, 1944, at 2 p.m., being the ninetieth day of the First Session of 1944, pursuant to section 62(2)(a) of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Mr. President (the Hon'ble Sir BIJOY PRASAD SINGH ROY, K.C.I.E.) was in the Chair.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mr. PRESIDENT: There are two short-notice questions due to be answered today: one standing in the name of Mr. Haridas Mazumdar and the other in the name of Mr. Latifat Hossain. The first one is to be answered by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Local Self-Government Department and the second one by the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Judicial Department.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: Sir, may I answer the questions on behalf of the Hon'ble Ministers?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Yes, but you will have to read out the questions and answers, as the questions could not be printed and circulated among the honourable members in the House.

We shall take up the printed questions in the first instance.

Barley-atta.

Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHAUDHURI: Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state—

- (a) the approximate quantity of barley-atta in custody of the Civil Supplies Department for the disposal of which tenders have just been invited;
- (b) the reason or reasons for which it was procured by this Department;
- (c) the amount that has been spent on procuring the same;
- (d) the reason or reasons for which it is now thought necessary to dispose of the stock;
- (e) the place or places where it was manufactured or from where it was indented; and
- (f) the amount that is expected from the disposal of the stock?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) 59,000 maunds of barley-atta was manufactured. The whole quantity has been sold.

(b) Barley-atta was not procured but manufactured from barley grains allotted to Bengal by the Government of India.

(c) The costs of barley-atta including price of barley transport and milling charges were about Rs. 10-8 per maund.

(d) The Barley-atta has been sold so that it can go into consumption.

(e) Manufactured in Calcutta and Howrah.

(f) Approximately Rs. 3,16,800.

Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHAUDHURI: Has the manufacture of these articles been suspended?

No answer.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Arising out of (f), will the Hon'ble Minister please state how he states that he expects Rs. 3,16,800 for 59,000 maunds of barley-atta when he says that the price is Rs. 10-8 per maund?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Will the honourable member please repeat the question?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, may I repeat the question? It is stated that 59,000 maunds of barley-atta was manufactured and it cost Rs. 10-8 per maund. Therefore the cost would be Rs. 5,95,000 out of which it is stated in answer (f) that the amount that is expected from the disposal of the stock is approximately Rs. 3,16,800. May I enquire where the amount of Rs. 2,15,000 has gone?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: The answer is self-evident. The honourable gentleman has made his calculation.

Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHAUDHURI: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state what is the reason of suspending this manufacture?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Because barley-atta was not acceptable to the public; and this was the reason why it was a loss to Government.

Mr. SHRISH CHANDRA CHAKRAVERTI: Then according to the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies the whole transaction was entirely a loss to Government?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Yes.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state when this barley-atta was manufactured?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: This was the first consignment that we received. The quantity was considerable and we turned it into atta at once, and we hoped that it will be taken by the public and so we tried to push it in the market but the people would not take it. Since then barley-atta has not been manufactured and the whole thing had to be sold.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: I want to know the month and the year when the barley-atta was manufactured.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: It must be about 10 months back.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state who is responsible for this loss?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I do not know whether there is any responsibility attaching to anybody in this transaction. Only there was some loss.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Are we to understand that this barley-atta was manufactured some time in the months of January and February this year?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I cannot exactly remember but that is my impression.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state whether he was satisfied that this barley-atta was placed upon the market in time when it was imperative to do so?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: There is no question of being imperative. Barley was turned into atta and after it was turned into atta, it was placed into the market for consumption but the public did not buy it and so we tried to sell it to all kinds of places and it was refused. Consequently it had to be sold at the best price it could fetch.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: My question was, was the Hon'ble Minister satisfied that this public loss was necessary in the interest of the Province? Was the situation such at that time that this barley-atta had to be placed into the market?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: If we did not do that, probably it would have been a total loss.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state why barley-atta was in that case requisitioned?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I did not say that barley had been requisitioned. I said that if the barley-atta had not been sold at a loss we would not have got anything out of it. This was the first consignment of barley that we received from outside. It was not requisitioned. It was not purchased.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Was any expert opinion taken before deciding that 50,000 maunds of barley should be converted into atta and sold in the market for public consumption?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I don't know that.

Mr. RANAJIT PAL CHAUDHURI: Did the barley deteriorate or was it damaged?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: It deteriorated.

Bad quality atta.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: (a) Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Civil Supplies Department be pleased to state whether it is a fact that in some parts of Bengal adjoining Calcutta people are being forced to accept bad quality atta unfit for human consumption by withholding the quota of sugar unless they agree to take their quota of atta?

(b) Is it a fact that such inferior quality of atta is being forced on the public of Calcutta by stopping the issue of wheat?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: (a) No. The allegation is entirely unfounded.

(b) No.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Is the Hon'ble Minister satisfied that at no time this state of affairs as alleged in the question was in existence?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: According to information received from all sources this answer has been given.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister please enquire whether in certain localities during the months of May and June the supply of sugar was actually withheld unless atta was also taken?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: If the honourable member will please mention the locality concerned, I shall make an enquiry.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. K. C. Roy Chowdhury will now please read out the questions which could not be circulated among the members together with answers thereto.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: All right, Sir. The first question is by Mr. Haridas Mazumdar, and it is this:—

Question.

Will the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Education Department be pleased to state—

- (a) if it is a fact that the Mohammadan Headmaster of a Dacca High English School has been belaboured by the Moslem students for allowing the Hindu students of the school to celebrate birth day of Sri Rabindra Nath Tagore, in spite of protest from a section of the Moslem students of the Institution;
- (b) if it is a fact that the said Headmaster told that section of the students who called this celebration "un-Islamic", not to participate in the function if they so desired but he could not in any way interfere with the celebration which he thought just and proper; and
- (c) if the answers to parts (a) and (b) are in the affirmative, what steps, if any, the Government propose to take to check this rising tide of communalism in the country which will spell ruin and disaster to both the communities of the province?

Answer.

(a) The Headmaster of Armenitola Government High School, Dacca, who happened to be a Muslim, was assaulted by some unknown person or persons on his way home at about 10 p.m. on the 6th May, 1944. It is not a fact that he allowed the Hindu students to celebrate the birth day anniversary of the late Dr. Rabindranath Tagore. A proposal was made by the Hindu students for holding the function on the 5th May, 1944, but it was dropped as the Muslim students raised an objection and no agreement could be arrived at between the two sections.

(b) No.

(c) Does not arise.

Mr. K. C. ROY CHOWDHURY: The next question is by Mr. Latafat Hossain, and it is as follows:—

Question.

(a) Will the Honourable Minister in charge of the Public Health and Local Self-Government Department be pleased to state what expenditures have been incurred for construction and repair of roads and drains within the Bhatpara municipality area from May, 1942, to December, 1943?

(b) Is it a fact that the Bhatpara Municipality has spent little or nothing on roads and drains in 1942, 1943 and 1944 from the day of supersession and after the appointment of the Executive Officer by the Government?

(c) If the reply to part (b) be in the affirmative, how was the income of the Bhatpara municipality utilised?

Answer.

(a) The expenditure incurred on construction and repair of roads and drains from May, 1942, and December, 1943, is Rs. 28,768.

(b) No. The municipality spent Rs. 28,768 from May, 1942, to December, 1943, and Rs. 3,911 from January, 1944, to March, 1944, on roads and drains.

(c) Does not arise. The unusually high expenditure on conservancy including Pumping Station made it impossible to spend more on roads and drains; at the same time, owing to difficulty in getting materials many important works could not be taken up.

Points of information.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I have an important matter to mention: I sent in a short-notice question. As most probably the House is going to be prorogued today and as it is a very important question, I should like the Government to treat it as a very urgent and important question. I also—

Mr. PRESIDENT: But what is it about?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: It is in respect of Maulana Manir-uzzaman Islamabadi, M.L.A., who has been put under arrest. I want to know whether it is a fact that the said Maulana Sahib was suffering from high blood pressure.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You cannot get an answer to a question immediately after putting the question on the floor of the House.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: The public are very anxious to know the whereabouts of this gentleman and the place of his detention. As he was suffering from high blood pressure, we are very much anxious to know of his whereabouts.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You want to know whether the Maulana Sahib has been suffering from high blood pressure and you also want to know his whereabouts.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Yes, Sir, his condition of health and under what circumstances he was arrested.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: He was arrested under the direction of Government of India; as far as my information goes, he has been taken out of Bengal and is now in the custody of the Government of India.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I want to know the condition of his health.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I have got no information.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: So it was not at the instance of the Government of Bengal?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: No, Sir.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Will the Hon'ble Minister be pleased to state under what Regulation he was arrested?

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Under the Defence of India Rules.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I have got a very important matter to mention. This is with regard to the missing of children numbering 49 in the month of September. In one month 49 children have been missing and only 3 have been traced out. Sir, this is a very important matter and it should be advertised by the Government either through the cinema or through the Press so that the citizens might be more watchful about their children. I would like to know what steps Government propose to take to prevent this.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Where were these children missing?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: In Calcutta, Sir.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I strongly protest against this. He had ample opportunity to put in a short-notice question for eliciting information in this connection long before. I have not seen any question of this nature anywhere.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: This startling information is to be found in the Police Commissioner's report and I think, Sir, the Home Minister is in possession of this information.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, have you put a short-notice question regarding this?

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Yes, Sir, I have done so. As this is a very urgent matter, you can compel the Hon'ble Minister to reply to my question now.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, I find that your short-notice question was received only yesterday. I have not seen it yet.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I have already mentioned that this is a very important matter and the merits of my question should compel the Government to give a definite answer.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: The Honourable member opposite has deliberately misled the House and created a serious breach of privilege by making a false representation.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: It is in the Police Commissioner's report.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, if you have put a short-notice question only yesterday, you cannot expect the Hon'ble Minister to reply to your question today.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: It could be the subject-matter of an adjournment motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That might be so; but the proper course for you would have been to put a short-notice question much earlier.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I am just bringing this fact to your notice.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I have understood your point, Mr. Mazumdar. I see your difficulty. You have just mentioned that these children disappeared in September last, and now we are in the third week of October——

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: But the Police Commissioner's report was published only two days ago. So, how could I know beforehand?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Then the proper course for you would have been to approach the Hon'ble Minister direct.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: They would not take any action.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: On a point of privilege, Sir. The Hon'ble the Chief Minister gave an undertaking in this House so far as the holding of public meetings and processions are concerned. He said this ban would apply only to the city of Calcutta, Dacca and Midnapore. Now, Sir, certain events have happened in the meantime which compel me to mention this point again. His undertaking in this House has not been implemented. In the press-note he repeated the suggestion that——

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Das, you rose on a point of privilege. But what you say is not a question of privilege.

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, if it is not a question of privilege, it is a point of information. However, Sir, in Munshiganj the immersion of Durga could not take place due to an order by the Deputy Magistrate that no procession could be taken out though there was an order under section 144 by the Additional District Magistrate that Muslims should be prevented from creating breach of the peace during the immersion. If the undertaking by the Chief Minister had been carried out, this thing would not have happened. I want to know from the Chief Minister whether he is ready and willing now to fulfil the undertaking and allow the immersion to take place in Munshiganj.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, I told the House the other day that the statement of the honourable member was not correct and I repeat that today. I challenge him to read out the press communiqué where it says that Dacca was not included or left out—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, before he proceeds further, I will read out the press-note: "A Bengal Government Press-Note states that the republication of an Order under the Defence of India Rules dealing with public meetings has caused some misunderstandings. Government wish to make it clear that the re-issue of this Order has not changed the position with regard to the holding of meetings, assemblies or processions and that although the Order empowers the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, and District and Subdivisional Magistrates to enquire that written notice be given of the intention to hold meetings, assemblies or processions or that previous permission in writing be taken to hold such gatherings general orders to this effect are in fact in force only in Calcutta and the district of Dacca and Midnapore. In all other areas, instructions have been given to District Magistrates that no general Order requiring notice of or permission to hold or organise or take part in meetings, assemblies or processions shall be issued and that orders requiring notice of or permission to hold such gatherings should be issued in particular cases only when the District Magistrate considers for good and sufficient reason that the exercise of this power has become necessary for the maintenance of public peace. "The attention of the District Magistrate is again being drawn to these instructions."

Here is a definite and clear instruction that except in the city of Calcutta and the districts of Dacca and Midnapore—

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I thought, Sir, that the honourable member would spot out the mistake but he could not. This order refers to the condition which existed at the time and it is definitely mentioned that instructions are going to be issued to the District Magistrates pointing out only the city of Dacca will be included under the ban.

(At this stage Mr. Das took the notification to the Chair for his perusal.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: It is a question of interpretation of the Government order. I think the best course for you would be to meet the Hon'ble Minister to find out what is his interpretation and to mention what are your suggestions.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, it is only fair that I should try to explain to the House where Mr. Das was making a mistake. The honourable member did not take the trouble of reading the whole notification—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I read the whole thing—

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: It was not issued at the time when this thing was done. This notification was published a day after the commitment was made by me in the Council Chamber. The Opposition members were not satisfied with my assurance and therefore this communique was published reiterating the position, as it stood, and it clearly stated that the attention of the District Magistrates are again being drawn to the fact that the restriction order will only apply to the city of Dacca and not to the rest of the Dacca district. So I hope the House will see that I am correct.

Now, Sir, about Munshiganj affair. Here again, as I stated previously, we have left the discretion to the District Magistrates that where they consider that the holding of a meeting or a procession is likely to lead to a breach of the peace, there they are, still entitled to stop meetings and processions and they can do so only by previously notifying the parties. It is for this reason that we did not agree to withdraw the ban altogether from the Province. The order is there but the executive instructions are that the restrictive order is not to be used unless the local officers are of the opinion that the holding of a particular meeting or taking out of a particular procession is likely to lead to breach of the peace—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, may I explain the whole thing? Here is a clash of two orders—one order by the Additional District Magistrate of Dacca and the serving of notice under section 144 prohibiting the holding of all meetings and then there is a counter-order by the Subdivisional Officer of Munshiganj to the effect that the immersion could not take place owing to the order banning all processions. We want an explanation as to how there could be this counter-order against the order of the Additional District Magistrate. The Hon'ble Home Minister has not replied to that. Will the Hon'ble the Chief Minister give an answer to the point as to why the order of the Additional Magistrate was not carried out and how is it that the Subdivisional Officer of Munshiganj is obstructing that order?

Mr. HAMIDUL HUQ CHOWDHURY: In reply to Mr. Das, may I say that—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: I have not asked you this question but I have addressed this question to the Chief Minister.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Chowdhury, I do not think you need enter into a debate over this matter.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: May I rise on a point of personal explanation, Sir? The Hon'ble the Home Minister in reply to a certain remark from me made the observation that I was deliberately misleading the House. I remember an occasion when facts were based on the Calcutta Gazette and one Hon'ble Minister told the House that it was a false statement or something like that. Here also my remark was based on the Police Commissioner's Report, and still it is described as a false statement. I, therefore, propose that the Hon'ble Minister should withdraw his remark; otherwise I would be bound to say that he too has made a false statement.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: I think I should make the position clear. When I said that it was a false statement I did not refer to the report about disappearance of the children from Calcutta, but I was referring to the matter about the short-notice question. I said that the honourable member was misleading the House by saying that he had given notice of the short-notice question long ago but that Government had not cared to answer it. His remark gave us to understand, gave every honourable member of this House to understand, that the short-notice question had been put by him long ago and that the Minister concerned did not answer it. Let the honourable members opposite honestly say what was their impression and let the Hon'ble the President also say what his impression was. The impression no doubt was that that question was put long ago and that the Minister would take about a year to answer. On enquiry it was, however, revealed that the question was put only yesterday and that it had not been seen even by the Hon'ble President. It was then that I said that the honourable member had deliberately misled the House.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I may refer to the fact that in many cases short-notice questions were pending before the Ministry for more than two or three months.

Mr. PRESIDENT: There should be an end to that discussion now. There are other motions before the House Mr. Mukherjee.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Before I move my adjournment motion, may I rise on a question of privilege?

Mr. AMULYADHONE ROY: May I ask if the remark made by the Hon'ble Chief Minister was dignified? Should he not withdraw it?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order.

Points of Privilege.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, my point of privilege is this: There is a rumour afloat that the present Council Session is going to be prorogued. I would like to point out that this will seriously affect the privilege of the members of the House in view of the fact that several adjournment motions have been already tabled and you, yourself, Sir, were pleased to state that most of them dealt with matters of urgent public importance and should be discussed in the House. Adjournment motions have to be admitted by the President before they can be moved formally. Adjournment motions are allowed by the President strictly in accordance with the rules prescribed by them. They are first admitted and then, according to our convention, fixed for discussion one after another. Only one adjournment motion can be discussed in one day. Following that procedure we have been discussing the adjournment motions. Now we have come to a position where there is no further Government business to be transacted and a rumour is afloat that the Council is going to be prorogued today. Therefore, I would request you to consider the matter and allow the adjournment motions to be moved.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Does that question arise today?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: If after today's sitting the House is prorogued, it would seriously affect the privilege of the House. We shall not be able to discuss all the adjournment motions. (Laughter from the Treasury benches.) This is no question of laughter. I feel ashamed that responsible people should be laughing when people in the province are dying for want of food and medicine and the Opposition is prevented from criticising the attitude of the Government with regard to these matters. At any rate, we want that the rules should be followed and you should allow us to have the admissibility of the adjournment motions considered before allowing any further business of the day to be gone into.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The position is this. Prorogation of the House is done under the orders of His Excellency the Governor and if he passes an order in his discretion, I do not think anyone in this House can question it.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: What I am saying is this. His Excellency is acting on the advice of his Council of Ministers and as was done in the case of the Lower House, this House, I think, is also going to be prorogued on the plea of want of any Government business. There are adjournment motions which should have been admitted today and therefore there is business still to be carried on and so the House should not be prorogued. I want to draw the attention of His Excellency as well as of his advisers, the Council of Ministers, to the fact that as there is still some non-official business before the House, it ought not to be prorogued. This is a serious question affecting the privilege of the members of this House. Therefore, I think that you should not fritter away the rights of the Opposition members. I would not have raised this question if there were no adjournment motions to be discussed. Sir, practice cannot override a law and if the construction of rule 99 permits the admission of all adjournment motions to be disposed of and the fixing of dates for discussion thereon, that ought to be done today.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Is the prorogation order passed by His Excellency the Governor under the instruction of the Hon'ble Chief Minister?

Mr. PRESIDENT: Prorogation order is issued by His Excellency the Governor in his discretion.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I want to know whether the Ministers have given their advice or information that there is no business before the House.

Mr. PRESIDENT: You should understand that there is difference between "discretion" and "advice".

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: My point is that His Excellency must have been informed that there is no business.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I want your decision on the question of privilege which I have raised.

Mr. PRESIDENT: As regards your point of privilege, I would like to consider it first and then give my decision. This House has been following certain practice for some time and if that practice has to be upset, I must take time to consider the matter more thoroughly.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I have a point of privilege. I may draw your attention—

Adjournment Motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Mr. Mukherjee, you are losing your chance to move your adjournment motion.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, my point of privilege is a very serious one. In this House there is no provision for any member to question the decision of the President and it is not my intention to question in any way the decision which you took yesterday. But I simply want to draw your attention to the manner in which the privilege of this House was infringed yesterday at the time when the third reading of the Bill was very suddenly brought to a close. I mention this fact for your consideration. I will not question your decision, but I want you to consider that under the rules, a closure motion can only be put when there has been a complete and fair discussion. Even if there be a motion for closure, it is not imperative for the President to put the motion immediately. He has got to satisfy himself that there has been full and fair discussion on the matter. Then and then alone can the question be put. On the third reading of the Bill, only one or two Opposition members spoke. One of them was an independent member, I mean, Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad. Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee was speaking when the discussion was brought abruptly to a close. You know, Sir, in the Opposition there are more than three parties. The other parties which are represented in the Opposition had not taken part in the deliberation on the motion for the third reading of the Bill.

You know, with your experience as a parliamentarian, that at the third reading many questions can be raised,, which are not discussed in the second reading stage or even at the introduction stage of a Bill. I want you to consider whether in these circumstances your action did not stifle the discussion—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, I have understood your point. I am very glad that you have raised the point. I can quite see that there is some amount of misunderstanding on this matter. It is my desire that there should be no misunderstanding between myself and any section of the House. It has always been my endeavour from the very beginning of my assumption of office to see that there is no such feeling. Let me now explain the position. The Bill could have been passed day before yesterday. When the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Bill moved the third reading of the Bill there was only one speech from the Opposition, namely, that of Khan Bahadur Naziruddin Ahmad and all the other Opposition benches were empty—(Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: For a particular reason which you know) and it was I who in order to give the Opposition a chance to take part in the third reading of the Bill postponed the debate till yesterday. Now, yesterday, Mr. B. K. Roy Chowdhury spoke first, then Rai Sahib J. N. Ray, and thereafter Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee spoke for nearly half an hour. I found there was no other Opposition member except yourself. So, out of four members in the Opposition three members had already spoken including Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee. Only you were there and there was no other member in the Opposition to speak. In those circumstances when the question was put, I had no other alternative but to infer that the Opposition did not like to take advantage which I wanted to give. It was clear that the Opposition was taking no interest in the debate whatsoever. If there were some more members to speak, certainly I would have given them opportunity. Therefore, I hope you appreciate the fact that it was only to give a chance to the Opposition to speak that I adjourned the House the other day although it would have been perfectly regular for the Chair to have concluded the debate on the third reading of the Bill on the 23rd of October, 1944, shortly after the motion had been moved by the Hon'ble the Finance Minister.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: May I say one thing by way of personal explanation? The point of personal explanation is this that when you pointed out to me that I had spoken for half an hour and so I must stop, I said that if I repeated or if I was irrelevant you would stop me. As a matter of fact, I was going to discuss in the very next sentence a very important question of constitutional law but you did not allow me to continue. I wanted a few minutes' time to finish my speech but you did not allow me to do that. Therefore I protested against your action and said that your action was highly unjustifiable and that you gagged me in the middle of my speech yesterday.

Mr. PRESIDENT: When you wanted to continue your speech, I allowed you to continue your speech. But immediately after that Khan Sahib Fariduddin Ahmad got up and moved the motion that the question be put—

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: When he said that, you ought to have told him, "Let Mr. Mukherjee finish his speech". But you did not say that. You ought not to have gagged me in the middle of my speech.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, with reference to the remark made by you just a few minutes ago that we were not taking any interest in the debate and that we were sitting outside the Chamber, I may say that here the question of interest does not arise at all and that we were attempting to bring the members of the Government Party under our control by arguments.

Mr. PRESIDENT: That is a novel argument, Mr. Mazumdar.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: That is a very good argument.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I beg to move that this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation that has arisen out of the action of the District Magistrate of Murshidabad prohibiting the municipality of Berhampur from seizing or destroying unwholesome food under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act.

Sir, the circumstances in which a similar motion was disallowed has already been stated by you yesterday, and I need not repeat them. I would refer the honourable members of this House and also you, Sir, to the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act, section 427, and the provisions of sections 428, 429 and 430. I hope, Sir, that the honourable members of this House would realise and the Hon'ble Minister in charge of the Department of Civil Supplies should also realise that the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act authorise the local municipalities for the protection of the consumers within the municipalities to act under the provisions of the Local Self-Government Act, and there is a regular system provided for the analysis of the sample of food taken by the municipality for examination. As far as possible, they also remedy the cases of unlawful or malicious interference with the normal trade by the officers of the Municipality because they have got a very ample safeguard left with them. In that order of the District Magistrate it is stated in the preamble that it was necessary for maintaining supplies and services essential to the life of the community. I would like, Sir, the Hon'ble Minister of Civil Supplies to say whether by compelling the consumer to purchase unwholesome articles of food it would serve the purpose as indicated in the order. The order is said to have been promulgated in exercise of the powers conferred upon the District Magistrate by a gazette notification No. 3660 P., dated the 6th April, 1942, under rule 81(2) of the Defence of India Rules; the order of the Magistrate refers to Chapter XIX of the Bengal Municipal Act which contains the sections I have quoted above. The order states that in the absence of specific and clear directions by the Magistrate in exercise of the powers conferred on him no seized stocks can be deemed to be the property of the Commissioners and therefore no question of any payment to the municipality for making over the stocks in compliance with this order can arise. Now, Sir, I would refer the honourable members to the provisions once more, to section 427(2) of the Bengal Municipal Act and say that it provides that if after inspection by the authorities prosecution is lodged under this Chapter the burden of proving that the article of food which was the subject-matter of enquiry was not intended for human consumption should rest with the party charged. Now, if you look to section 431(I), you will find that if the article of food seized under section 428 is not destroyed by consent under section 429(I) the article has to be taken before a Magistrate as soon as may be after such seizure and then action will be taken under sub-sections (2) and (3) in case the article of food be found by the Magistrate to be unwholesome or not. Therefore there is a wholesome safeguard in this regard. The municipal authorities can take steps but that is subject to the judgment of a Magistrate. There was also a safeguard for the supplier in case there is unlawful interference by a municipality with the samples of food which are really not unwholesome. The municipality of Berhampore seized some samples of food products which were found to be unwholesome and wanted to seize or destroy them in terms of the provisions of Chapter XIX of the Municipal Act. The order prohibits the Chairman from doing so and the Chairman is compelled by reason of that order to deliver all articles seized up to the date of the promulgation of the order, namely, the 24th of August, 1944, to the Additional Director of Civil Supplies of that Circle, or for disposal according to the orders of the Magistrate. The order no doubt exempts unsound and unwholesome food as are kept for sale direct to consumers living in the municipal area. I would submit that the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act do not make any exception with reference to any stocks kept anywhere within the limits of any municipal area as long as it is proved that they are kept for purposes of human consumption and it is intended for sale to the public. I think it cannot be denied that these stocks lying with the officer mentioned in the order, were kept for human consumption, and were therefore liable to be dealt with under the provisions of section 427 of the Bengal Municipal Act. The order, therefore, clearly prohibits the Chairman from functioning in accordance with the provisions of the Act. Under the provision of section 432 of the Act if any article of food had been found to be unfit for human consumption and if any authority directs in exercise of the powers conferred by Chapter 19 of the Act the destruction of that article of food then that article becomes the property of the commissioners of the municipality. In the present instance, the municipality of Berhampore had seized articles of food possessed by the authority mentioned in the order and they were found to be unfit for human consumption and the municipality intended to take proceedings under the provisions of Chapter 19 of the Act, for the purpose of destroying the articles in terms of section 432 of the Act. The order, therefore, I repeat, clearly purports to prevent the municipality from seizing or destroying unwholesome food in terms of this section of the Bengal Municipal Act. Let me now consider as to whether the order has been promulgated in terms of the order conferred on the District Magistrate by section 81(2) as published in the "Calcutta Gazette" notification. The preamble to the order indicates that it was necessary in the interest of services and supplies to the community that there should be no interference with them by any municipality in the district. Now I would submit that it is clear that the power of the District Magistrate of promulgating an order of the nature in question is by virtue of necessity as indicated in the preamble to the order. It has been pointed out in several decisions of the High Courts in India and particularly in the case of Banowarilal Roy relating to the order of supersession of the Howrah Municipality by the Government of Bengal that it is not enough that the order should be passed under colour of the power conferred; that must be done in actual exercise of it and no power is conferred to make such order in bad faith or any abuse of the Act or any abuse of the power or for the purpose of effecting a fraud on the Act and it is necessary to ascertain the issues for the purpose of determining whether the order has been made in the exercise of the power conferred by the Act and not merely in colourable exercise of such power. Now, Sir, if it is a fact that the articles of food were found to be unwholesome and unfit for human consumption, I would submit that it cannot be asserted that if the municipality wanted to seize the stocks and deal with them in accordance with the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act they would any way affect the maintenance of supplies and services essential to the life of the community. On the contrary, I would assert that the action of the Municipality in seizing such stock was really intended to save the life of the community and save the people residing within the municipality of Berhampore from being supplied with unwholesome products of food. It is therefore clear that the power was exercised not in the exercise of the power but in colourable exercise of the power and was really a fraud on the Act and on the charge that it was really intended for the purpose of detecting that the Government stocks had been damaged and deteriorated and were unfit for human consumption and should not be allowed to be sent to the retail shops or to private shopkeepers for sale direct to consumers in bazar or black markets within municipal area. I submit the Government has no right to prevent the municipality from seizing the stocks with the officers mentioned in the order if they were found to be unwholesome and unfit for human consumption. It is now notorious, Sir, that in various municipalities stocks held by officers of the demonstration indicated in the order of the District Magistrate of Berhampore have been damaged and rendered unfit for human consumption and the municipalities should not be prohibited from preventing the Government officers from distributing such unwholesome foodstuffs. Only the other day in the District of Birbhum within the municipality of Suri large stocks of unwholesome food were sent out for distribution among the retail shopkeepers and when they were found to be unwholesome they were thrown away in several ponds with the result that even the fish in the ponds having consumed the unwholesome foods died and were seen floating on the surface of the ponds after the unwholesome food have been thrown into them. I hope, Sir, that I have said enough for the purpose of condemning the action of the District Magistrate of Berhampore and if this is the policy pursued by the present Government, I hope the Government would immediately withdraw these orders and see that the municipalities within the province of Bengal are allowed to function in accordance with the provisions of Bengal Municipal Act. The municipality of Serampore seized some articles of foodstuff and were of opinion that they were unwholesome. There was a widespread epidemic disease soon after the consumption of these foods. Sir, as a matter of fact this question is very important. Only the other day we found that a very good business is being carried on in the province of Bengal by the Civil Supplies Department. They are selling or advertising to sell unwholesome goods (wheat) to the public, the price being Rs. 4 per maund. The persons who purchased that wheat managed to take delivery of good wheat from the Government stocks and again sold them to the Civil Supplies Department, thereby making a profit of about Rs. 48,000 in a single day. This sort of thing is very bad and the Civil Supplies Department should not be allowed to be its own judge. If the municipal authorities—I mean the sanitary officers and the persons who draw samples—deal in an unfair way, there are provisions in the Bengal Municipal Act to check that. Therefore, Sir, Government has done a serious thing in allowing the District Magistrate to promulgate the order prohibiting the municipality from drawing samples from the Government stores when they are unwholesome. With these few words, Sir, I move my motion.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Motion moved: That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation that has arisen out of the action of the District Magistrate, Murshidabad, prohibiting the municipality of Berhampore from seizing or destroying unwholesome food under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Sir, I beg to support the motion moved by my friend Mr. Bankim Chandra Mukherjee. He has fully explained the position with regard to this matter. Yesterday the Hon'ble the Home Minister stated in connection with the report of the Howrah affairs enquiry committee that I would be badly disappointed. But, Sir, disappointment is the order of the day. We have been disappointed in regard to the supply of wholesome foodstuffs to the people; we have been disappointed in regard to the distribution of foodstuffs all over the province; we have been disappointed in regard to the administration of the Defence of India Rules and Ordinances; we have been disappointed with regard to the day-to-day administration. (The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY. What oratory, what oratory!) Disappointment is writ large on the forehead of this unfortunate province from the day when this Ministry took the gadi and we shall not be surprised when the Chief Minister tells us that we shall be disappointed this time also. But, Sir, what is at the root of these executive illegal acts? It is simply due to the bungling of the Ministers, due to the mismanagement of the Ministers. Now, under the Defence of India Rules and other Ordinance they want to gag the public. Taking those Rules and Ordinances under their elbow they are introducing lawless laws in the country. Nobody knows what happens behind the screen. We have repeatedly told the Ministry on the floor of this House and outside not once or twice or thrice but a hundred times that they should try by every means to supply the people with really good foodstuffs and that the rationing system become a success. In some of the ration shops the relation of the Hon'ble Ministers have been provided or some contracts have been given to their relations. All this is being done to shield the misdeeds of the Ministers.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mazumdar, you better come to the subject-matter of this motion.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: This is the subject-matter, Sir. These municipalities are not given a free hand to work under the provisions of the very law under which they exist, and why? Because they want to screen the misdeeds of their colleagues. They have made millions out of these foodstuffs. They stocked foodstuffs which have become unfit for human consumption due to their own worthlessness. I brought in another adjournment motion but that motion would not come up—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I do not think, Mr. Mazumdar, you can refer to that.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: I can give a substance of that motion by way of illustration. These municipalities practically have been made to feel that these Ministers are trying to do things which ought not to have been done and that they are doing these things through the instrumentality of the executive officers of the district. That is the impression, Sir, that we have got about our Ministers. With these words, I support the motion and those who are fair-minded and those who know that justice should be done in all fairness should also support it. With these words, Sir, I commend this motion to the acceptance of the House.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I want to speak a few words on this motion, and I would like, first of all, to draw the attention of the Hon'ble Minister concerned to the fact—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Sir, the Hon'ble Minister is sleeping.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, I protest against the remark that I was sleeping. I was not sleeping at all. I was simply in pain when Mr. Haridas Mazumdar was speaking.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Well, Sir, the point which I want to place for the consideration of this House is that we have been discussing this kind of question time and again, I think the members, both on this side of the House and on the other, will agree that all is not well in this Province. I will not at this stage attempt to apportion any blame. There is blame no doubt, and probably the Hon'ble Ministers who are responsible for this serious state of affairs know where the blame lies. I would, Sir, draw the attention of the House especially to what we can do at the present stage in order to improve the state of affairs in which we are unfortunately placed today.

I think, Sir, that it is the experience all over the province that there is great shortage and that there are great difficulties of the people. What adds to the injury and the sense of injury is that at a later stage it is found that foodstuffs were there, but they were not forthcoming at the time of the need of the people. Only a few days ago, we found a report in the papers that at Narayangunj about 80,000 maunds of wholesome food had been allowed to rot—

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Is it relevant, Sir, to the subject-matter of discussion today?

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: The Hon'ble Minister will have his chance of replying to these points. I do not yield to him unless it is on a point of order.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: On a point of order, Sir. I submit that this is most irrelevant to the question of the rights of the municipalities, and so I do not undertake to answer that sort of reference that found place in the papers regarding unwholesome food here, there and in Narayangunj. This is not the subject-matter of the adjournment motion of today—

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, it ill-suits the Hon'ble Minister to adopt a lecturing attitude—

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Because it is false—

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: If it is false, you can say so; but it is not for you to lecture—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Humayun Kabir, I hope you will kindly try to confine yourself as far as possible to the actual subject-matter of discussion.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Sir, I shall not say anything irrelevant at all. If the Hon'ble Minister has the sense of understanding what I say, he will see that the remarks which I have made are absolutely relevant to the subject-matter for discussion. In the Berhampore municipality, the question of requisition came up because food rotted and because food became unwholesome—

(At this stage the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies left the Chamber.) Sir, I refuse to proceed if the Hon'ble Minister walks out in this way. It is an insult not only to the speaker but also to the President of the House as well as to the House itself, if in the midst of a speech the Hon'ble Minister turns his back on the President and walks out of the House.

(There was no Minister on the Treasury Bench.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: There should be at least somebody here to represent Government. Where is the Government?

(Cries of 'there is no Government,' let the House be adjourned.)

Mr. KRISHNA CHANDRA ROY CHOWDHURY (Parliamentary Secretary): Perhaps the Hon'ble Minister will return very soon.

(At this stage the Hon'ble Mr. Suhrawardy and Mr. Tarak Nath Mukerjee entered the Chamber.)

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: As I was stating a moment ago, if the Hon'ble Minister will have patience, he will find that the remarks I quoted from the papers were absolutely relevant to the subject. There is no question on my part of trying to be "as far as possible" relevant, Sir; I am wholly relevant. This is the only question that we are discussing here today, namely, as to whether the executive authorities are justified in taking recourse to the Defence of India Rules or any other similar rules in order to prevent the municipalities and other local bodies from doing their duty. It is imperative on the municipalities to see that unwholesome food is not supplied to the people in their respective areas, to see that Government do not force upon the people in their areas rotten stuff. Therefore, Sir, this question of unwholesome food is absolutely relevant to the subject-matter under discussion.

As I was saying, Sir, I did not intend that this particular motion should be discussed in an attitude of party spirit; but I regret to find that the Hon'ble Minister is unable to rise above a partisan spirit. Therefore, even when suggestions are made for his consideration,—I stated at the very outset that I was only concerned with finding out methods for preventing the state of affairs now prevailing,—he cannot take them in a proper spirit. He is the victim of the partisan spirit which has characterised his activities up till now. In great chagrin he left the Chamber like a school boy reprimanded by his teacher, not only in a partisan spirit but also in a spirit of irresponsibility. I did not expect this from a senior politician like him—for he ought to remember that he is no longer so young as he was; in fact, he occupies a senior position among the politicians of the day. Besides, he has gifts which, if they were used for the service of the country, would do great good.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Mr. Kabir, I do not think you are quite relevant; you should confine yourself to the subject-matter of the motion.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: Quite so, Sir.

Mr. PRESIDENT: But for some moment you had become absolutely irrelevant.

Mr. HUMAYUN KABIR: But you should also control the irrelevancies of the Ministers. They should certainly be prepared to bear with remarks which their conduct extorts.

However, Sir, I was saying that the present position in Bengal has been created by abuse of power. The case of Berhampore is only one instance of such abuse. We have found that large stocks of foodstuffs were damaged in Narayangunj, the report about which the Civil Supplies Minister now says is false and incorrect. If it is incorrect, then he should see that those reports are not published in the press. He should take steps to see that such incorrect statements are not allowed to be made with impunity. Then again, we find that there is executive interference with the duties of the local bodies, whether at Berhampore or at Calcutta. We find that in the case of the Calcutta Corporation where it made an attempt to find out from tests and examination the quality of food supplied by Government, the Government became afraid of such examination. Government will not allow the Calcutta Corporation to test the quality of the foodstuffs. All these, I say, are instances of the executive attempting to conceal or hide the actual state of affairs. How can we remedy that? First of all, the present Ministers denied shortage. Valuable time was thus lost. Later, they bestirred themselves and I will concede that the Hon'ble Minister attempted with some success to get food from outside. To that extent he deserves commendation. But after that food was brought, how was it utilised? Was it distributed in proper time? Was it used in a way which was to the greatest advantage of the people of the province? Or was the situation mismanaged and bungled whether on account of political or other reasons, I will not say here? Unfortunately, the impasse through which the province is passing now makes one suspect that there were political reasons for which the Hon'ble Minister bungled in distribution after he had succeeded in bringing supplies to the province. Sir, he has himself admitted and often stated that such questions—the question of food—should be discussed from a point of view which is altogether free from partisanship. I would ask him to remember that principle himself—

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. Your time is up.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Mr. President, Sir, I propose to ignore the remarks of the member who has spoken last, as I consider them to be wholly irrelevant and waste of the valuable time of the House. I will confine myself to the motion itself. I wish to state, Sir, that, I have nothing to add to the statement which I made on the first occasion. I do not know under what circumstances this motion has been allowed.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order, Mr. Suhrawardy. You can not refer to that.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: I am not raising that point. I do not know why it has been allowed and the statement which I made on the first occasion still stands. There has been a certain amount of misunderstanding regarding the powers of the municipality and the circumstances under which this order came to be passed. I have now before me a fuller report of the District Magistrate which was not in my hand at that time when the question first came up for consideration. The honourable members may remember that I read from a telegram which I had received. The motion says that the District Magistrate of Murshidabad has passed an order prohibiting the municipality from seizing or destroying unwholesome food under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act. My contention will be that the Magistrate has done nothing of the kind and that he has left unimpaired the powers of the municipality under the Bengal Municipal Act. It was my contention at that time that the District Magistrate had not in any way interfered with the powers of the municipality nor did he intend to do so. Mr. Mukherjee said that so long as—and this is the crux of the whole argument—the food is intended for human consumption the powers of the municipalities are attracted. Mr. Mukherjee says, and he bases his entire argument upon his statement, “that it could not be denied that the stock was meant for human consumption”. Therefore he says that as it was meant for human consumption, under section 427 of the Bengal Municipal Act the municipality had the power to take samples and thereafter proceed under the various sections. Now, the contention of the Magistrate is that the stock to which his order referred cannot be said, at the moment the seizure was made, to have been meant for human consumption and consequently the powers of the municipality under section 427 were not attracted and therefore there has been no interference with the powers of the municipality. The honourable members should realise that the stock that was seized was the stock of foodgrains in the possession of Government stockists before they were distributed to retailers for the purpose of human consumption. The honourable members know and it appeared in the papers on several occasions that the stocks in the hands of stockists had on occasions been destroyed by Government. Government examine stocks from time to time and pass some for human consumption, some for cattle consumption and some for industrial purposes for sizing and destroy the rest. Therefore, the mere fact that there are foodgrains in the possession of Government stockists does not mean that all the foodgrains are for human consumption. I hope this is clear to the honourable members. The entire argument of Mr. Mukherjee, the entire basis of his motion is “that it could not be denied that the stock was meant for human consumption,” and that the Magistrate prohibited the municipality from seizing or destroying the unwholesome food. But until the food is distributed to the retailers, it cannot be said that Government intended that the stock should go for human consumption. It is for that reason that the Magistrate in the course of his order made it quite clear that the municipality could proceed against the stocks in the hands of retailers and could seize them; but they could not seize the stocks from Government stockists unless they are distributed for human consumption. The Magistrate did not prevent the seizure of unsound or unwholesome food which might be lying at the retail shops or with private wholesalers in the bazar or in the blackmarkets within the municipal area. The municipalities have always full powers to seize stocks in the hands of the private shopkeepers.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: On a point of information, Sir. May I know why foodgrains were not allowed to be taken by the Calcutta Corporation people from ration shops for the purposes of examination?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Well, Sir, this does not arise out of this debate, but as the honourable member needs the information, I will give it to him. In the case of the Calcutta Municipality all orders on the subject are governed by the rationing order and under the rationing order no one who is not in possession of a ration card can go and take stocks from the ration shops. It has got nothing to do with the powers of the municipalities.

Now, Sir, it is clear that the order is with respect to such stocks about which the municipalities are not supposed to do anything, because they do not know whether such stocks should be sold to the consumers within the municipal area or whether the whole or part of it will be destroyed or used for purposes other than human consumption. Consequently, the Magistrate was entirely right in taking steps against the action of the municipality.

As I pointed out on the last occasion, out of 13,000 maunds which means 6,500 bags, 7 samples were taken and on the basis of the analysis of 7 samples it was decided that the entire 13,000 maunds should be condemned and that the municipality should get hold of it and that it should become the property of the municipality much to the advantage of the municipality. That was a thing, Sir, which the Government could not stand, namely, what is loss to the Government should be the profit of the municipality. In storage, sales to agents, etc., there should be no interference from the municipalities. I want that the honourable members will listen to me. I want that there should be no misunderstanding regarding this, for I agree with the view that in the matter of storage there should be no interference from the municipalities: otherwise if by taking a few samples they can declare huge stocks as being unwholesome, it will be impossible to manage supplies in the district. There are large stocks of Government stores in Dacca and Narayanganj; but the Dacca and Narayanganj municipalities cannot go and take samples from those stocks and condemn all the 8 lakhs of maunds of rice which we have stocked in Dacca.

Then, I submit, Sir, that the District Magistrate was entirely right in preventing the municipality from taking illegal action.

Sir, reference has been made by some honourable members to a report which has appeared in a particular paper regarding certain maunds of wheat which subsequently has been found to be good. It is stated therein that this wheat has been re-sold to civil supplies at Rs. 20 and so much money has been gained. Now, Sir, I have caused an enquiry to be instituted; but I have not got the report as yet—

Mr. LALIT CHANDRA DAS: Please do not prejudice the report.

The Hon'ble Mr. F. S. SUHRAWARDY: Sir, after all we are dealing with a large number of persons who are stockists and agents and nobody can expect that there would be no corruption anywhere. But it is our duty as soon as such cases of corruption are brought to our notice to take steps at once. But I say that this information is being subjected to enquiry but I do not exactly know how it could have got into the press; it is possible that the wheat might have been changed in course of transit; but the news that the Civil Supplies should have purchased it back at Rs. 20 a maund is rather surprising, because we are not purchasing wheat at all. I do not understand how that report has got into the press.

Mr. HARIDAS MAZUMDAR: Will the result of the enquiry see the light of day?

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Oh, yes, certainly.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Sir, I would like to say a few words in reply to the Hon'ble Minister for Civil Supplies. I find that he has taken up a brief on behalf of the District Magistrate of Murshidabad and has tried to justify his action by referring to certain sections of the Bengal Municipal Act. I am sorry however that the Hon'ble Minister did not look carefully to the various sections which I mentioned in my preliminary speech and portions of which I will again refer to for his elucidation in order that he might consider the desirability of not interfering with the functions of the municipalities in the province of Bengal. Sir, the sole object of the Minister in taking up the brief on behalf of the District Magistrate of Berhampore is as follows: He says that out of 13,000 maunds of wheat or atta, or 6,500 bags, only 7 samples were taken and the municipality found that all these 7 samples were unfit for human consumption and the municipality thereafter wanted to seize the entire stock in order that it might be destroyed under the provisions of the Act. And he stated that it might be that beyond the 7 samples that were taken, it might be that other bags might contain wholesome food and he also stated that when the articles were in the hands of stockists as distinguished from retailers the municipality is not authorised to take samples from the stockists under the Bengal Municipal Act and declare them to be unwholesome or unfit for human consumption. With regard to these observations I would like to refer to certain provisions in order to elucidate the points for the consideration of the honourable members of this House. If we look to section 427 (I)—clause (a) of the Bengal Municipal Act, we find that commissioners, executive officer, sanitary inspector, health officer or any other officer authorised by the commissioners may at all reasonable time enter into and inspect any place (within the limits of a municipal area—it is not limited to retailers only and I think the Hon'ble Minister will agree with this interpretation) and seize any article of food—I am leaving out the irrelevant portions—intended for human consumption, which is being hawked about for sale and is brought out for such purpose. It will surely be conceded that these stocks were kept principally for human consumption. I do not think that the Civil Supplies Minister will contend that he was stocking atta for the purpose of consumption by animals in the province of Bengal, unless he wants to characterise the population of Bengal as cattle population.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Will the honourable member read that section properly?

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: Yes, I am reading it properly.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: "For the purpose of sale".

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: The large amount of money that is being brought into the coffers of the Department of Civil Supplies is responsible for this. Now, Sir, I would refer to section 427, sub-section (2).

The Hon'ble Mr. H. S. SUHRAWARDY: Will the honourable member tell me the meaning of the words "for such purposes".

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I would refer the Hon'ble Minister to the next sub-section "If, as a result of such inspection as is provided for in sub-section (I), a prosecution is instituted under this chapter, then the burden of proving that any such living thing, or other article of food or drug as aforesaid was not exposed or hawked about or deposited or brought for sale or for preparation for sale, or was not intended for human consumption shall rest with the party charged."

There is a remedy for the Civil Supplies Department against this. As soon as a prosecution is launched by the municipality, the Civil Supplies Department can say that they have not brought or stocked this article for the purpose of human consumption. That is a point of time when the question as to whether it is for human consumption or not has got to be raised. The moment an article of food is seized by the officers of the municipality—they are entitled to seize it and they are entitled to launch prosecution—it is for the Civil Supplies Department to go there and say, oh, they have not brought this article for human consumption; they have brought this article for the cattle population of Bengal. There is remedy under section 427, sub-section (2), but here the argument of the Civil Supplies Minister on behalf of the District Magistrate of Berhampore is absolutely fallacious. Under section 427 of the Bengal Municipal Act he can get the stock released by saying that these samples were not brought for human consumption. This one point has been answered completely. Therefore it is clear that the order of the District Magistrate was to prohibit the Chairman of the Berhampore municipality from functioning normally.

Under section 431 we find that: "Where any living thing, article of food, drug, utensil or vessel seized under section 428 is not destroyed by consent under sub-section (1) of section 429, or where an article of food so seized which is perishable is not dealt with under sub-section (2) of that section, it shall be taken before a Magistrate as soon as may be after such seizure."

Therefore, it is not for the municipality to destroy the whole article the moment it finds that it is unwholesome. The municipality has to bring the case before the Magistrate. Under section 431 (3): "If it appears to the Magistrate that any such living thing is not diseased or that any such food or drug is not unsound, unwholesome or unfit for human food or for medicine, as the case may be, or that any such utensil or vessel is not used for preparing, manufacturing or containing food or drugs which are unsound, unwholesome or unfit for human food or for medicine, as the case may be, the person from whose shop or place it was taken shall be entitled to have it restored to him, and it shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate to award him such compensation, not exceeding the actual loss which he has sustained, as the Magistrate may think proper." There is also provision that the municipality would be liable to pay compensation for unlawful seizure. Therefore, I say, Sir, that the provisions under the Bengal Municipal Act are quite sound and they were passed with reference to the probabilities of all cases of overzealous officers seizing wholesome foods and destroying them. But the officer from the municipality has got to produce the articles so seized before the Magistrate if complaint is made by the shopkeeper that his articles have been wrongly seized. So, why is the Hon'ble the Civil Supply Minister afraid of the officers of the municipalities? Sir, I have already shown by quoting rules from the Municipal Act that the stockists are not exempted from the operation of section 427. If that is so then why should not the municipalities function normally in accordance with the provisions of the Municipal Act. I regret to submit, Sir, that the Defence of India Rules are not for the purpose of protecting the citizens from accepting the unwholesome food but they are for the purpose of protecting the Civil Supplies Department from top to toe from uncomfortable exposure of the state of things that were going on in the Civil Supplies Department. They are bringing unwholesome food and if they are not detected they pass them on to the retailers for human consumption. I think the Hon'ble Minister will realise that it is not possible for the sanitary officer to examine retail shops and seize articles there and leave out the Government stockists—

MR. PRESIDENT: Mr. Mukherjee, did I hear you to say to Mr. Suhrawardy that "cattle population like yourself"?

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: I said cattle population as you say."

MR. PRESIDENT: Then you didn't say cattle population like yourself?

MR. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: What I stated is this. The Hon'ble Minister characterised the population of Bengal as cattle population because the atta was meant for them; so unless he says that it was not meant for human consumption he cannot escape. It goes without saying, Sir, that the articles of food must have been stored there for human consumption and not for cattle population.

Mr. PRESIDENT: I hope you do not mean any reflection.

Mr. BANKIM CHANDRA MUKHERJEE: If it is a reflection, it is reflection in that sense. If he describes the entire population as cattle population, he is included in that.

Mr. PRESIDENT: The question before the House is: That this Council do adjourn its business to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the situation that has arisen out of the action of the District Magistrate, Murshidabad, prohibiting the municipality of Berhampore from seizing or destroying unwholesome food under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act.

(The motion was put and lost.)

Mr. PRESIDENT: Now, the Chief Minister will make a statement.

Statement by the Hon'ble Chief Minister.

The Hon'ble Khwaja Sir NAZIMUDDIN: Sir, this item was put down on the agenda merely to enable the honourable members of the Opposition to discuss this adjournment motion, as there cannot be any adjournment motion when there is no Government business. So, in order to obviate this technical difficulty, this item was put. I hope the honourable members would realise how Government try to help the Opposition.

Prorogation.

Mr. PRESIDENT: Order, order. I have it in command from His Excellency the Governor that the Bengal Legislative Council do now stand prorogued.
